Intellect Involved In Crossing This Bridge

By JOANNE MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Bridge Studio, 158 Victoria Avenue, Belleville appears to be just that. As you enter the house, you're struck by the red carpets and curtains, the fireplace with trophies on the mantle and the nine tables already for play.

Then you wonder what exactly goes on there.

Mrs. Cheryl Bally began classes in bridge three weeks ago and was surprised at the Belleville response. She believes it's something that Belleville needs and according to statistics she says there's more bridge players in Belleville than any other city of its size in Ontario.

"Teaching makes a bridge player. You learn by studying it yourself or being taught."

Mrs. Bally, who has been playing bridge for two and a half years, finds it a mentally challenging game. "You have to have the kind of mind for it. A great deal of concentration is involved. Anybody can play bridge but everybody plays it to their own level of enjoyment or satisfaction."

Mrs. Bally, who has played in several all night bridge sessions, also explains that if you give up, you're psychologically not prepared to play it.

Teaching with her is Arthur Little, a certified director of the American Contract Bridge League. Mr. Little, who has taught bridge overseas for five years, is also the only Life Master in Belleville. That involves the accumulation of 300 points through playing in tournaments.

Speaking of tournaments, Mrs. Bally mentions that the Canadian team placed third in the World Olympiad, the amazing fact being that Canada has only two bridge levels, Kingston and Toronto, in comparison to the 30 or so in France.

As for the local scene every January, Belleville holds a bridge tournament. There has been an increase in the number of people coming to play in the city as well as more local people playing each year.

"Bridge is not like any other game. You can't do it alone. There's a partnership involved and one must have trust and faith in the partner. It's communication."

In addition to classes based on authorized courses from the Winnipeg Contract Bridge League there are also games on various nights of the week, with over 70 people participating all together.

How do people get "addicted" to bridge? Mrs. Bally feels that it could be a need for self recognition in addition to needing something to stimulate the intellect. She thinks that there are social bridge players, money players and premium players.

One question that she finds difficult to answer and she often wonders about is "Why do these people get so dedicated to something?"

Even if you know very little about bridge, you can see that Mrs. Bally's and others' enthusiasm and seriousness and the "friendly competitiveness" at times, about the game must be like no other.

Ann Landers

Ann Praised for Advice To Alcoholic Husbands

Dear Ann Landers: The letter signed "Telling It Like It Is, Wish You'd Tell Them Sarah" spurred me into action. I've been wanting to write to you for a long time.

Your approach to helping the alcoholic is a good one, Ann. Don't let women like her get by with it. Your readers should be told that having "love and compassion" does not mean creating a dependency which is unhealthy for what harvested in the case of the woman who suffered the consequences of her husband's drinking for 30 long years.

Unfortunately there are millions of women like her. They help push the alcoholic into an early grave because their "love" him too much to do the most loving thing, which may be to "throw the bum out."

Too many wives continue to "rescue" an alcoholic husband because of a selfish martyrdom of their own concocted. Keep telling it like it is, Ann.—R. Ed Rich, Executive Director, Chattanooga Area Council On Alcoholism

Dear S.R.H.: Thanks for those kind words. I received a lot of harsher criticism for my hard-line stand, but I am not backing down.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is being written in the dead of winter. We live in Connecticut and it's plenty cold up here. My wife hustles us (teenage son and two daughters, eight and ten years of age, by actual count) into our woolies and mittens on their feet. She insists that bare legs and feet lead to an invitation to colds and other sicknesses.

My wife was raised in a foster home and had to walk to school in hand-me-down shoes that were either too small or too large. She often took her shoes off and went barefoot, even in very cold weather. The woman insists this accounts for her good health and the fact that she never gets colds. She wants to raise our daughters the same way.

The girls must have inherited their mother's rugged constitution because they don't get colds either, but please, Ann, tell her there is no basis for her theory.—J.W. of Union, Conn.

Dear J.W.: It's difficult to tell a person there's no truth in a theory when it seems to work.

According to my medical consultant, however, going barefoot-legged in the winter does not lead to immunity to anything. Your theory that the girls inherited their mother's rugged constitution is a likely one—plus the fact that she has them petrified out. I firmly believe that a positive attitude toward good health can go a long way toward keeping people well, Dad.

Dear Ann Landers: A close relative of mine lost her husband two years ago. Within a month after the funeral, large sums of money began to appear in almost every room of the house. There's a huge business over the TV that I find most distracting. His eyes have a piercing quality and he is staring out at people. It gives me the creeps.

Do you think I should mention this to her? I don't want to hurt the woman's feelings but I'm sure others are as uncomfortable as I. —Tempted To Speak Out

Dear Out: Pass up the temptation. It's her home and if she wants those pictures around, no one has the right to ask her to remove them. Perhaps in time she will feel better. Then, I hope it is soon, for her sake.

Confidential to Willing To Be Set Straight: It is not true that in countries where wine is served at the dinner table there is very little alcoholism. In France alcoholism is the No. 1 health problem. More than 27,000 Frenchmen die annually of cirrhosis. This is 10 times the death rate in the U.S.

A FEW EXTRAS

If you can't keep food really hot (about 140 deg.) and you can't keep it cold, don't keep it long. In other words, don't keep foods long at room temperature. Let cooling to 60 deg." and cuts at 140 deg. for bacteria that cause food poisoning.

Convalescents recover faster after an illness or surgery when their diets include high quality protein as supplied by lean pork.

Salami is a highly seasoned ground meat (beef and lean) cured, dried and smoked. Hard salami gets its firmness from an intricate drying process. Cooked salami is sometimes called "summer sausage," because originally, softer because it is first cooked, then air dried for only a short time or not at all. It is was made in the winter when supplies of meat were ample and kept for use in the summer months.

New Slate Of Officers

They are as follows: Mrs. E. Badger, past president, Mrs. G. Stratton, president, and Mrs. V. Pascoe, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. William English dealt with the various meanings of words. The true meaning of compassion is active sympathy, she explained, using the example of the Good Samaritan.

The treasurer reported a balance of $469.15 at the end of 1972.

Reverend William Hendry was present at the meeting and joined in discussion on social events which could be carried out during the year and involve the congregation.

Successful Living

Drugs Are An Escape: Slow Down and Think

By DORIS CLARK

Drugs — what a blessing! Their abuse — what a crime!

One authority suggests today's tensions and the everyday rush of the big cities are responsible for much of drug misuse. People need escapes.

This is borne out by the Le-Dain report on drugs which says that young people living in more rural, slower moving areas have a lower percentage hooked on drugs. Same for young men and women with a church connection, and also for those who make up the "Jesus People."

Obviously we need more time to think, and to think about things worth while.

* * *

Dear Doris: Many thanks to all who have sent us packets of cards and of literature. Also for the hearing aids and glasses.

The greeting card refurbishing has been a many hour, earning extra. A new style I have thought of: We'll have the greeting printed on the card and paste onto the outside the lovely pictures from your cards, cut to suitable size.

So now you may as well cut down postage expense by only sending picture cards — the double-fold ones remove the inside. It is so nice to have the profit funds for helping with hospital bills and to keep handicapped people busy working on them.

May the Spirit of Christmas, with its love, peace and its joy remain with you throughout the year. — Frances Stephenson, Christian Crusoeland, 11 Bombay Agra Road, Indore, M.P., India.

Dear Frances: It is wonderful to realize how much use you make of the beautiful Christmas greeting cards produced here in Canada. I gather you can still see plenty of glasses, as well. More power to you!

* * *

Dear Doris: Back in 1916 my mother returned from 10 years in the tropics. She was all dried on and wrinkled like a prune. She wrote Lillian Russell, the American beauty and favorite of Edward VII, who conducted a beauty column, and asked for a nourishing skin food.

The recipe she got called for sweet almond oil, sweet cocoanut oil, lanolin, white wax, spermaceti and rosewater. It was wonderful. Well, I've lost the recipe.

I read in Consumers' Research that there is now the magic ingredient of all good creams, so I made up my own version with lots of lanolin, some olive oil, a little white wax, ordinary water and some perfume, if I had it, and scrambled the druggists call "cream base". Since I do it by guess and by gosh, some times I get it too stiff or too sticky. Could someone give us proper proportions? — Skin Food.

Dear Skin Food: Pharmacists tell us some Lillian Russell ingredients are no longer on their shelves. But also they pooh pooh that good old recipe can be purchased from them in bulk, cheaply.

You are right about the lanolin. If your own invention comes reasonably close, why not try adding more of the liquid ingredients, drop by drop until you have the consistency you want?

That is, until a helpful reader — or one with a good memory — comes up with something better. That is the wonder-formula but still available.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Is it best to avoid marital scraps?

NO; fights help clear the air for a couple, of course. More than that, though, when a husband and wife are battling, at least they trust each other enough to express their true feelings. They are communicating with one another. If anything in marriage is to be avoided, it is a "dead spot," sort of armed truce in which neither the husband nor the wife says anything in the effort to get along and keep from aggravating the situation. A good marital scrap, too, is a sign of confidence in marital love.

Does an only child have it made?

NOT any more than a youngster with a flock of brothers and sisters, in a family where each child is given the love he or she craves. Admittedly, an only child can bask in the glory of being the family center of attention. On the other hand, the only child has to contend with moments of conflict. He or she may even have to get along with brothers or sisters—an experience that can ease the preparation for adulthood.

Are egotists usually neurotic?

NO more than those who are overly zealous in showing how modest they are. An egotist, in fact, may suffer less than someone who continually plays down his accomplishments. The egotist lets it all out and tells everyone how wonderful he is. Any shrinking it all out and tells everyone how wonderful he is. Any shrinking violet would bite his tongue before he would mention anything about himself. He is afraid people won't feel as enthusiastic about him as he thinks they should.

Turner Faces Critical House With Monday Budget Speech

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment and inflation aren't supposed to go up together but mista..say, but they have. And when Finance Minister John Turner brings down his new taxing-and-spending budget at about 8 p.m. EST Monday, some remedies are expected.

Complicating the economic situation is the fact that Mr. Turner is staring down the muzzle of a primed political gun. The Oct. 30 federal election left the governing Liberals with a minority in the Commons and a need to win New Democratic Party support. If they lose it, the government goes down, opening the way toward a new election.

Mr. Turner has maintained, as he did in his last budget May 8, that reducing unemployment is the government's top priority. January unemployment was 668,000, largest number of jobless in more than a decade. But the statistics bureau noted a slight improvement, taking seasonal factors into account, of the underlying trend.

The government also ran into criticism when the consumer price index jumped almost one per cent in January over December, pushed up mainly by food and housing costs.

In his May budget, Mr. Turner included corporate income tax reductions and fast write-off provisions for new equipment to stimulate the manufacturing sector and hopefully create more jobs.

Unemployment and higher living costs were major themes of the Conservative and NDP election campaigns, with the NDP contending that big business gets a relatively easy ride while the working man pays too much. Both the NDP and the Conservatives called for reduced personal taxes as a stimulant for the economy.

It seems unlikely that Mr. Turner could step up his attack on unemployment with further action in the corporate tax field and still hold on to NDP support. It also appears likely this support will disappear unless there is some move to reduce personal taxes.

Across-the-board tax cuts are seen by economists as stimulating to the economy but also inflationary. So Mr. Turner presumably will have to aim at a delicate balance designed to improve the political situation without a rapid acceleration in inflationary pressure.

Whatever else it brings Monday night, the budget is expected to provide the biggest political test yet for the 43-year-old finance minister, bigger than his challenge for the Liberal party leadership in 1968 when he finished second to Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

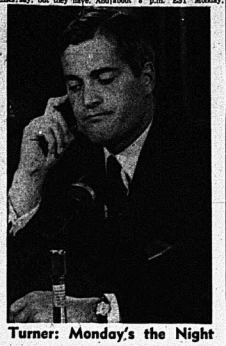
The man who was once best known publicly for dancing with Princess Margaret has built up a solid political record.



He was a bachelor in 1958 when, as a young Montreal lawyer, he attended a party for Princess Margaret during a Canadian tour, danced with her and suddenly was depicted as a possible royal husband.

Fifteen years later the image is quite different, and he is a married family man now. The black hair has turned to grey, but the slim six-footer still has the physical attraction that led one Parliament Hill secretary to remark, after he was first elected in 1962: "Watching him is one of the fringe benefits for the girls in this place."

In the 11 years since his first election, he has progressed through the cabinet ministries with ever-increasing responsibilities. Before finance, he was justice minister and won wide praise for guiding through a number of legislative items, including a long-needed updating of the Criminal Code, legislation streamlining procedures for arrest and bail and freer abortion law.

Fluently bilingual, he has always had a free-and-easy relationship with most other MPs regardless of party. Even in the tough finance job, where he is belabored unmercifully by opposition critics, there is a distinct undertone of personal respect.

Monday's budget is expected to put all his qualities to the acid test.

Turner: Monday's the Night

Nipigon Reservoir Flood Answer?

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis told the Commons Friday his department will take a careful look at a proposal to control rising Great Lakes water levels by creating a huge reservoir in the Lake Nipigon area of northwestern Ontario.

Keith Penner (L—Thunder Bay) brought up the subject when he asked if Mr. Davis was aware of a scheme proposed by Lorne C. Henderson, Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Lambton and chairman of the provincial select committee on land drainage.

The Thunder Bay MP said the idea involved the flooding of 14,000 square miles. He called it "a mad proposal" and asked Mr. Davis if his department would intervene to counteract it.

"We will take a careful look at it," the minister said. "A reservoir in that area could not of fect lower lak$ areas for st least a year and possibly two."

High water in the Great Lakes has damaged shoreline properties in some areas.

Tango OK

LONDON (AP) — Distributors of Marlon Brando's controversial Last Tango in Paris announced Friday the film has been approved for screening in Britain to adults only.

The distributors, United Artists, said one 36-second cut had been approved by Director Bernardo Bertolucci. The cut was in the sodomy scene.

Bodies Found

CASTRO VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — The bodies of three women have been found in Alameda and Contra Costa Counties, authorities said Friday. Appeal to Queen

TORONTO (CP) — The People or Pallets (P.O.P.) group decided Thursday night to appeal to the Queen to halt construction of the proposed international airport in nearby Pickering. Clark Muirhead, a former Pickering councillor and P.O.P. president, said a number of loyal supporters that the appeal to the Queen, through Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener, would ask for a halt on expropriations to stop "further hardship" until a public inquiry is held into the need for the airport.

Lisa Picked

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Lisa Minnelli, who starred in the film Cabaret, has been chosen the 23rd annual Woman of the Year by Hasty Pudding Theatricals, which claims to be the oldest theatrical organization in the United States.

Miss Minnelli, daughter of the late Judy Garland, arrives Tuesday to receive the award and to help launch the group's off its 125th annual production, Hasardeed Bayou, a musical satire.

Other actresses who have received the Woman of the Year award are Gertrude Lawrence, Katharine Hepburn, Ethel Merman, Rosalind Russell, Lauren Bacall and Shirley MacLaine.

Diva to Sarnia

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Joan Sutherland and her conductor husband, Richard Bonynge, have been invited to open the first Sarnia Festival in July, 1974, with a concert production of Offenbach's La Vie Parisienne.

It was announced during a meeting of the Festival Organization Friday. The Australian soprano is expected to spend six weeks in the community.

It's Been Colder

By ARNIE HAKALA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When it's really cold, Mike Newark slaps his warm fingers into the mouth of a fish.

The coldest mainkind has ever recorded was 127 degrees below zero at a Russian station named Vostak in the Antarctic," he says with a giggle.

Mike, a meteorologist with Environment Canada in Toronto, said that's not really cold—as it has been in southern Ontario for the last few days—for more than a time inside.

As he spoke, the temperature was a mere one degree above zero in Toronto and the wind was coming from the northeast at 26 miles an hour. The wind-chill factor was also about 35 below.

It was a good time for Mike to pause and reflect.

"It's no use sitting here and looking at all the pretty charts," he said, whispering that it helps Toronto International Airport.

Friday was a cold day in Ontario and other parts of Canada but as Mike will tell you—all those long underwear, toques and extra socks don't tell the full story.

It has been much worse.

The record lows:

Southern Ontario is in the middle of a cold spell which is clinging. The rest of the country is under normal temperatures.

"We'll be under zero tonight," said Mike in reference to the south and we ("everybody calls us the weatherman") will get most of the blame."

NFU Agent?

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A private member's bill which would limit the National Farmers Union the bargaining agent for farmers in Prince Edward Island agricultural products was introduced in the legislature Thursday.

Water Levels Serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration has warned that an unprecedented flood threat continues unabated for lower Great Lakes shore areas and connecting waterways.

An NOAA announcement Friday said that among the most critically threatened are areas bordering Lake Erie, the Detroit River, Lake St. Clair and Bay on Lake Huron and Lake Ontario.

In serious but less danger are shores of the rest of Lake Huron and Lake Michigan, also threatened is Lake Superior.

A NOAA lake survey centre spokesman for Detroit said Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair remain at the highest levels on record for mid-winter. The bulletin said their levels are expected to continue at record highs through next July.

NOAA's national weather service said some lakeshore residents experienced a sample of the flood problem last Nov. 14 when strong winds piled up Lake Erie's water at its western end, causing $22 million in property damage.

Such "storm surges" of wind-driven water on top of already-record lake levels are the principal worry, the service said. It said a strong wind then that of last Nov. 14 could produce a storm surge several feet higher.

O'Neill PM's PR

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre O'Neil, a former reporter with the Montreal French-language dailies La Presse and Le Devoir, has been appointed press secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau.

The 38-year-old O'Neil replaces Peter Roberts, 45, recently appointed chief of the department after two years on Mr. Trudeau's staff.

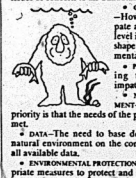
Canada's Energy Resources for sale?

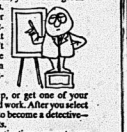


No doubt you have been reading a lot lately about how scarce the energy supply is in some places and how Canada should manage its supply. But this is only the tip of an iceberg. There are a lot of other resource problems facing Canadians. Problems of land use planning, population, education and others, all of them applying to man and how he relates to his natural environment.

MAN AND RESOURCES is a conference program which asks you along with thousands of other Canadians to tell us how you would correct our environmental problems.

MAN AND RESOURCES is presenting you with a unique challenge. But, then, MAN AND RESOURCES is a unique nation-wide program—designed to give you an active role in deciding, at all stages, what kind of total environment you want surrounding you.

Last October in Montebello, Quebec, some 300 Canadians from all walks of life identified 12 important issues of concern to all Canadians.

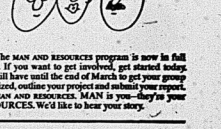


- CITIZEN PARTICIPATION —How citizens can participate at a more meaningful level in the decisions which shape our social and environmental life.
- POPULATION — Evaluating the environmental impact of population.
- NORTHERN DEVELOPMENT—The first and highest priority is that the needs of the people be defined and met.
- DATA—The need to base decisions affecting our natural environment on the conscious application of all available data.
- ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION—The need for appropriate measures to protect and restore the quality of the environment.
- RESOURCE-PLANNING—Identification and implementation of long-range resource use plans to meet the continuing needs of society.
- GROWTH ETHIC—The need to change our attitude from the growth ethic (more is better) to one of living in harmony with the total life system.
- ENERGY—The need to re-evaluate in terms of long-term goals the provision of energy in all its forms.
- FOREIGN OWNERSHIP—The extent and control of foreign ownership in Canada.
- OWNERSHIP—A primary issue is land ownership education and the conflict of interests in the use and development of lands.
- DECISION MAKING—The lack of integrated planning and co-ordination in the decision-making process at all levels.

Citizens groups all over Canada are already hard at work investigating environmental problems which affect the whole country, your community included. They're compiling evidence, getting expert advice, and writing reports specifying solutions that take into account social, and economic factors, as well as ecological ones.

Every report MAN AND RESOURCES receives will be read and co-ordinated directly into the program's final report. If we get enough groups together, and enough good reports, it could lead to wide-spread changes in the way government decides policy. That's why, if you're really concerned about a problem, you should get involved with MAN AND RESOURCES.

HERE'S HOW. First write or phone the local MAN AND RESOURCES representative listed at the bottom of this ad. If you don't have one, write to us. We'll advise you how to start your own group—and how to go about putting your report together.



When you join your group, or get one of your own started, then comes the hard work. After you select your issue for study, you've got to become a detective—discovering the background facts.

To help you in your investigations, experts are available to assist in exploring the implications of the whole problem.

After your group has its facts, write up the report, giving the complete background of your investigations, listing not only the best solution, but the alternatives too.

That's the task. It's a tough one, demanding a great deal of persistence and concentration on your part.

But the pay-off is an Ontario Government that really listens to and understands what you want. First, all the reports from all over the country will be co-ordinated to give a total picture of how all the specific problems and solutions fit together. Then, in November, the MAN AND RESOURCES conference will discuss these co-ordinated reports and submit recommendations to the appropriate Federal and Provincial ministers.

The MAN AND RESOURCES program is now in full swing. If you want to get involved, get started today. You still have until the end of March to get your group organized, outline your project and submit your report.

MAN AND RESOURCES. MAN is you—they're your RESOURCES. We'd like to hear your story.

College Acquires Steel Band

Sure Lorne Shewfelt, head-master of Albert College, has some "starry-eyed ideas. He's the first to admit it.

The latest one involves a travelling orchestra made possible on the arrival of a surprise package that cost $1,100, to ship from Trinidad.

Albert College, serious and staid and steeped in tradition, has become the owner of 32 steel drums, large enough in numbers and varied enough in size to create a steel drum concert orchestra.

The surprise package came via a student's father who formerly was a member of the cabinet in Trinidad.

The headmaster, upon hearing of the idea, came up with his "starry-eyed" idea. "Why not have the band rehearse to the stage where they can accompany the school choir on tour?" queried Mr. Shewfelt.

But not many people can play steel drums. And even the four young Trinidadian boys attending the college.

Undaunted by the teaching problem, Mr. Shewfelt was looking at a massive storage question, a permanent one if the instrument weren't used.

Plans are in the works to either find a teacher locally or to import one from Trinidad. Mr. Shewfelt is quite certain the band will begin rehearsing next September.

Dropout Rate Worries Boards

The increase in high school dropouts this year has the county boards of education worried.

Hastings county's school administrators have observed the trend and last Tuesday provided them a full report on the number of students who have left school since September.

Now Lennox and Addington trustees have received a report that shows 123 secondary school dropouts in the first term of this school year. The decreases in enrolment will cost the board about $70,000 in provincial government grants before January is June this year.

Loss of grants because of declining enrolments is the main concern of boards whose dropout rates are increasing. Grants used to be based on enrolments at the end of each September. But the ministry of education is now basing grants on attendance figures taken in September, December and March.

The enrolment drop in the three Lennox and Addington secondary schools, at Kingston, Napanee and Cloyne is not confined to any one age group or grade.

Drumming Up Music

Albert College has become the proud owner of an orchestra-sized set of steel drums, shipped to the school from Trinidad. Getting the first lesson is Dianne Fries-en from two Trinidad students Neil (Trin) Ramdeholl and Wayne Sumadh.

Madoc Carnival Under Way

MADOC — Madoc Winter Carnival is away and running.

The event reaches its annual peak tomorrow with snowmobile races at the village fairgrounds in the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation's 18 classes. The winner receives a trophy known as the Centre Hastings Cup.

Reigning over the events as carnival queen in 18 - year - old Michelle Lahey. The pretty teenager was selected Thursday night from among 12 teenaged contestants from Centre Hastings Secondary School as the carnival's curtain - raiser.

Noreen Pigden, 18, and Debbie Declair, 17, were named carnival princesses.

Yesterday brought judging of snow - sculpturing for which snow and colder weather arrived just in time for public and high school students. The secondary school prize went to young sculptors who built a king-size rabbit, head on the school's playing grounds.

Last night saw a torchlight parade through the village, followed by an oldtimers' hockey game between Madoc and neighboring Tweed today brought hockey, basketball and volleyball tournaments with a bazaar and craft show at the Kiwanis Centre, followed tonight by a dart and cribbage tourney and dance at the Canadian Legion Hall.

The final day is flipped off with a Sunday morning pancake breakfast at the Kiwanis Centre. The snowmobile races are scheduled for 12.30 p.m.

Answering Service Lends Kindly Ear to the Lonely

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — To many insomniacs, the five operators at Trenton's Division Street Telephone Answering Service switchboard are a welcome voice in the night.

Some just call for a regular friendly chat. Others are troubled and want the ear of someone who is willing to listen and occasionally offer a few words of support.

The worst time for such calls, said senior operator Mrs. Georgina Trembley, is at Christmas.

Doctors, lawyers, plumbers, newspapers, ministers, priests, politicians, the Victorian Order of Nurses — the board holds a wide variety subscribers sometimes on a 24-hour a day basis, others on infrequent service.

"Hello dear, you in for awhile?" or a cheerful "bye-er," are indicative of the friendliness, the personal touch.

A friendly conversation, a secretary - like reminder of an upcoming appointment, or an inquiry about family, job or some of the recent occurrences in town — and all boil down to an interest in the people on the other end of the telephone line.

The longer service operators have got to know many of their customers personally. Some have dropped in to visit at one time or another and because of that, customer and operator aren't just impersonal voices at the other end of a phone.

TAS isn't required to phone messages to customers, other than doctors, but often this is done anyway.

"It's not the general rule, but if people don't check in for some time, my operators call them, especially if there are messages," Mrs. Trembley says.

The job can be frustrating. Most difficult besides the occasional rude caller, are the false emergency calls on the lines of physicians who use the answering service. Mrs. Trembley puts them down to the action of children. Ice can be especially harmful because the calls must be handled in case they are real emergencies.

"It's a job you have to like, because it can be very hectic," she adds, referring to those times when doctors, priests, politicians, the Victorian Order of Nurses — the board holds a wide variety subscribers sometimes on a 24-hour a day basis, others on infrequent service.

"That's the loneliest time of the year, and that's when you get most of the suicide calls".

Operator Mrs. Marian Carney has a favorite caller.

"She calls at night and just wants to talk. You tell her your troubles and it helps. I guess you might say we're two old souls tottering around, talking about our aches and pains".

Trenton's TAS is an institution that goes far beyond the normal realm of the business world. There are life customers on the single switchboard that has provided service for the last 20 years.

Plastic Shoes Beat Wage Costs

By MIKE PATERSON
Staff Reporter

Three mastershoe makers and Bata Industries' Canadian Division spend their working hours crafting boots and shoes. The rest of the 1,000 people involves the destruction for them.

Monoplax is a process that mass - produces durable PVC plastic! Costs are low costs. It was developed by a Czechoslovakian, Thomas Gervivicka, who now manages the Monoplax Division at Bata, and has travelled the world setting up similar plants.

"Wage costs in the Far East are what undercuts us," he said, "so we keep the lowest wage content possible in the overall cost."

It's done with automation. A staff of seven including a stylist and the master shoemakers are responsible for the craftsmanship in the final product. They make up the "master" shoe.

A style is accepted, crafted in leather and developed into size sets. The boots and shoes made at this point could never be worn. Stitching and glueing is just enough to hold the master shoe together while a mould is made.

Once reinforced, the master shoe is electronically plated with a layer of nickel. The nickel fills the grain of the leather and faithfully reproduces details of stitching and styling.

A slight loss of grain is taken into account in selecting the leather for the mastershoe.

The crafted master shoe is then torn free from the nickel and discarded.

From this point the process looks deceptively simple. The nickel moulds go on a conveyor belt and a specific purple liquid is poured into each mould nearly filling it, and the mould moves through ovens that gel the PVC liquid against the sides of the mould.

The automated chain empties the excess purple liquid back into the mould and a squirt of green liquid is poured into the mould's centre. More ovens harden the gels. The purple liquid turns into a flexible brown plastic, the green into a hard plastic heel.

A worker removes the boot from the inside of the mould and trims it. Linings are stitched into foot-shapes, then glued and stitched into the boot. Zippers are inserted and an endless stream of completed boots plop off the end of the line to be boxed and sent to distributors.

"In fact it involves some pretty complex chemical engineering," said Mr. Cervicka. "But we need very few skilled people on the line."

He developed the process in 1959 after 10 years in Bata's laboratories as a chemical engineer.

Mr. Cervicka came to Canada after losing a large paint manufacturing plant in Czechoslovakia to nationalization. "The ideas were mine in business," he said. "Everybody is the same in business."

"I believe in letting everyone live his own way," he said. "It's not worth fighting over."

Metro Garbage's Fate Undecided

TORONTO — One of 150 apprehensive Ontario communities will find out next week if it has been chosen to receive Metro Toronto's garbage.

That's the number under study as possible locations for a landfill project operated by Canadian Pacific Rail to handle 500,000 tons of Toronto garbage annually.

A company spokesman said Canadian Pacific has narrowed its considered locations to one site and will announce where it is next week.

Fears that Belleville might be chosen were aroused Friday when a Toronto Sun columnist mentioned the city as the proposed site. The report was not denied by a CP Rail official.

Harriston, 30 miles north of Kitchener, was considered the hottest contender, but strong opposition has been voiced by Harriston area residents.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Friday she had heard no reports of Belleville's selection and added that Ald. Jean Smith has a letter on file denying the possibility.

Environment Minister James Auld said in an interview in Belleville Dec. 9 that this area is not in the running. The sites being considered, he said, are on little-used rail lines in a 30 to 60 mile radius of Toronto. He was in the Brockville area riding. Friday and not available for comment.

Mr. Auld told the legislature in its last session that he was opposed to landfill operations as a long-term solution to garbage problems.

"We can't just keep digging holes and filling them up," he said.

CP Rail has not yet made an application to the government for approval of a landfill site.

Morley Kells, executive assistant to the environment minister, told The Intelligencer's Toronto Bureau Friday he anticipates receiving notice from PC Rail after it announces its site preference next week.

"If we wants to dump anything, anywhere, it has to make application to the ministry of environment, he said.

After application for a dumping site is received by the environment ministry's waste management branch, it is considered by the environmental hazards unit. The matter is then discussed at a public meeting, usually within a month.

Wellington - Dufferin MPP John Root is chairman of the hearing board. The proposed Harriston site, about 90 miles north of Kitchener, is within his riding. However, he would not be involved in the board's actions if Harriston were chosen as the disposal site.

Pensioners' Brief Reaches Cabinet

A brief drafted by a Belleville pensioners' group calling for more government action on senior citizens living standards, has reached federal cabinet ministers.

The document—from Belleville and District Pensioners Concerned — has drawn replies from Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde and Finance Minister John Turner.

Both ministers have written the group's president, H. Glynne Jones, who organized the Belleville branch of the Canada wide organization last October.

Mr. Lalonde said the opinions of such groups are "greatly appreciated" and "difficulties encountered by our old age pensioners are a matter of prime concern" to the government.

Mr. Turner said he was "deeply disturbed" by rising living costs and "the real hardship" ensuing for older Canadians.

While old age pensions and guaranteed income supplements have been stepped up in recent years, requests for increases must be balanced against the cost taxpayers are prepared to pay.

A $10 increase in the basic old age pension, wrote Mr. Turner, is "equivalent to a one per cent tax increase for every Canadian taxpayer, and I would not be honest if I did not mention that to you."

Nonetheless, the government's recent throne speech expressed desire to improve the economic situation of pensioners and "I hope we can make some helpful announcements," said the finance minister who brings down his budget next week.

The letters followed presentation of the brief — which seeks relief for pensioners from local and senior government levels — to both ministers by Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

Registry Office Criticized

PICTON — Facilities of the Prince Edward County registry office were criticized Tuesday and expansion or new construction recommended in a grand jury report to the honorable Allister Cullen presiding in Picton.

Jurors claimed washrooms at the registry office were inadequate and that the building lacks a proper vestibule. More storage area is needed and certain walls are deteriorating. The cramped conditions do "housekeeping" difficult and a sharp increase in documents handled in the past year over documents handled in the same period this year was observed.

The report praised the multi-lingual done at the registry office and the facilities for showing it.

Jurors agreed the office should be enlarged or a new one built as soon as possible. Foreman of the jury was Jerry Bond of Picton.

Glanmore House Museum Open to Public in July

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Glanmore House will open next July 1.

Mrs. Jeffrey said the public will be invited to attend an afternoon plaque-unveiling ceremony in the old office of her Faulkner mansion.

Federal government representatives, as well as local dignitaries, are also expected to be on hand for the long-awaited debut of the Victorian era County Museum's new home.

The mayor said workmen were still applying finishing touches to the old house which originally was scheduled to open last fall. Next step will be to design display areas and arrange exhibits.

She made the announcement at the Hastings County Historical Society's annual meeting in St. Andrews' Church Wednesday night.

The society will operate Glanmore House on behalf of the management board.

A budget committee has already been drafted by the society's treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Ellis, and will be presented to the board for perusal before being forwarded to the city and county councils for final approval.

The hiring of a full - time curator will be one of the first orders on funds the two governments make available. The curator hopes to entice a husband and wife team to take care of the museum with assistants added as future needs dictate.

Returned are Mrs. Becker, Gerald Boyce, Ed Buckley, Mrs. G. Stewart, Ted Follwell, George Currie, Ken Hill and Mrs. Marg Wiggins. Harold Carruthers takes over duties of Mr. Foley.

Officers will be decided at the new board's first meeting.

County Home Codemned

PICTON — "Immediate construction" of a new Prince Edward County home for the aged has been urged in a grand jury report which claims residents could not be evacuated safely in an emergency.

The report, made this week following an inspection tour, stated the design of the present county home makes it uniform heating impossible. The electrical system is "taxed to the limit" and washroom facilities are inconvenient and inadequate.

The laundry washer is old and "inadequate" and facilities for crafts are also "inadequate."

The jury reported the home well kept and clean and commended administrator and matron Mr. and Mrs. George Ross and their staff.

Hospital Requests Section of Park

Belleville city council has referred to the parks board a request from Belleville General Hospital that it sell a section of parkland in the Bay Drive area to the hospital.

The request from the hospital board was that the city sell to the hospital, for parking purposes, the parkland south of two houses on Bay Drive.

Alderman Paul Russell observed that the matter had not been officially before the parks board and requested that it go to his board for consideration before action.

Alderman Bert Corke observed that the suggested sale price of one dollar was not very realistic.

A second request from the hospital board for rezoning of part of the Queen Elizabeth School playground to enable its use as hospital parking was referred to the city manager

World Hockeython Record Goal of Quinte Players

The heat of competition off the ice rink during the cold winter for Belleville high school students and students of area still skating today to set an offbeat world record.

And they'll still be skating tomorrow — and maybe into the early hours of Monday.

The event is a hockeython that started by Quinte Secondary School football players who have enlisted clients to lace skates in their record bid.

Starting Friday afternoon from Centennial St. around noon from the school, they hope to score a new record of hockey.

So far they will have outskated their rivals, a high school in Belleville, New Jersey, who made the QSS players record of 58-hours — set three years ago — by skating 60 hours.

But the rivalry has its community-benefits side.

The hockey - playing students hope to raise up to $1,600 in pledges. Some of the cash will go to buying the senior footballers new jackets, the rest to the Canadian Cancer Society.

Participant Paul McQuaid, 20, who started skating at 4 a.m. today, when temperatures had dipped to 14 degrees below zero, said: "It's cold — but it's colder if you don't skate."

He said the players are hopeful of reaching their target.

At the first hockeython that launched the recreational school activity, QSS played enough time to raise funds for a bus trip to New York City.

High School Marathon: These Plays Have Serious Goals

Napoles Not Feeling Age

LOS ANGELES (CP-AP) — Jose Napoles, the Spanish-speaking Cubanborn resident of Mexico City who holds the world welterweight boxing title, doesn't think he's too old at 32.

"I'll keep fighting as long as I feel the way I do and fight the way I do," Napoles said Thursday. "I interpreted the title as he prepared to defend his 10-round title here Feb. 28 against Ernie (Red) Lopez.

If he successfully defends the title in the Universal fight, Napoles indicated his next fight probably will be against middleweight champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina, thereby sidestepping the challenge of Toronto Clyde Gray, the British Commonwealth and Canadian titleholder.

Gray and his manager, Irvy Ungerman, said after winning the Commonwealth title with a 15-round decision over Eddie Blay of Ghana last Monday that Canada has been promised a shot at the world title by Napoles.

Ungerman, who tried to locate Napoles Friday night, said in Toronto he was following up negotiations for the world title during the weekend in Miami.

"I will be sending Clyde there (Los Angeles) regardless for the challenge of the winner, which we naturally expect will be Napoles," Ungerman said in an interview. "At the same time, if we're not able to get Napoles, we're going to keep moving.

"We've got an offer to go to Jamaica or anywhere in Europe, so...

"I'm definitely going to keep on working on Napoles. I'm sure we're going to get him. As long as the money's there he'll come to us."

"He's changed," Lopez told reporters here. "For one thing, he's older. And I think my left hand is better," he added, referring to the first fight they met years ago in which Napoles knocked him out in the 15th round.

Ungerman said he wouldn't be disappointed if Napoles decided to ignore Gray's challenge and move into the heavier division.

"If he's going after the middleweights, it only means one thing. He's getting too heavy for the welterweight and the title might be declared vacant.

"And I know Clyde will be rated first or second (after his victory over Blay) so there's no way they're going to avoid him."

Ungerman said he would persist in his efforts to line up a title match for Gray "in Canada."

"If he (Napoles) isn't there, they're going to have to give us a crack regardless of whether it's vacant or not."

Nationals' Decision Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — The future of the Ottawa Nationals, the financially troubled World Hockey Association franchise, is expected to be revealed Monday.

That's when Nationals' president Doug Michel has called a news conference and is expected to announce that the team will renew its option to remain in Ottawa for the 1973-74 season.

Local groups have been pressing Michel for a decision as to his ticket sales for next season can commence.

Michel said Tuesday the deal to sell the Nationals to a Milwaukee business group, had fallen through.

He also said that the team is not interested in relocating, but would remain in Ottawa if certain guarantees are completed could be made with the city and a local business group, which has shown interest in supporting the Nationals.

McLaren Loses Indoor Race

NEW YORK (CP) — Peter Kaal, a tall South African running for the Pacific Coast Club held off the challenge of Grant McLaren of Drumbo, Ont. to win the 3,000-metre race at the Olympic Invitational track and field indoor meet Friday night.

The battle between Kaal and McLaren, winner of the event last year, easily was the high light of the night as the two runners lapped the field in their race to the taper.

Kaal won by a stride in eight minutes three seconds while McLaren, a 24-year-old student at the University of Western Ontario, was clocked in 8:03.4.

McLaren said he knew he would have to win with a sprint because the pace was slow. He made his move with 1½ laps to go but Kaal held on.

"You can say I made my move too late," McLaren said. "I just couldn't catch him."

Foreign runners swept all but one of the distance races and in the high jump, Claude Ferrazzo, 21-year-old student at the University of Montreal, ended pole vault and won with a meet record of 17-6¼.

Smith tried for a world indoor mark of 18-1 but failed in three attempts. He set the world mark of 18-0¼ last month in Madison Square Garden at the Wanamaker-Millrose Games.

Rod Milburn twice equalled the world indoor mark of 7.0 seconds for the 55-metre hurdles. The senior from Southern University at Baton Rouge, La., first equalled the mark in qualifying and nipped Larry Edge of Louisiana State freshman, in the final.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee Bucks edged Houston Rockets 106-102, Chicago Bulls routed Cleveland Cavaliers 109-92, Los Angeles Lakers trounced Baltimore Bullets 121-101, Atlanta Hawks downed Phoenix Suns 111-104 and Seattle Supersonics shaded Golden State Warriors 114-108 in overtime.

Fred Carter, Tom Van Arsdale and Jeff Halliburton led the way for the Nets with 27, 24 and 22 points respectively.

Jo Jo White and Dave Cowens combined for 46 points in the second half as Boston erased a 20-point halftime deficit and overtook Portland.

New York remained 2½ games behind Boston when Walt Frazier, Dave DeBusschere and Jerry Lucas sparked a four-point quarter rally that enabled the Knicks to wipe out a 10-point Buffalo lead.

With Abdul-Jabbar sidelined, Oscar Robertson, Lucius Allen and Bob Dandridge took up the slack for Milwaukee against Houston with 31—a season high for the Big O, 27 and 23 points respectively. Elvin Hayes paced the Rockets with 32 points.

Chicago broke open a tight contest in the fourth quarter to turn back Cleveland. Bob Love was high with 27 points while Norm Van Lier topped the losers with 23.

'Hometown Skip Leads Ontario Mixed 'Spiel

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Hometown skip George Kilner maintained his lead in the Ontario mixed curling championships despite losing one of its three games Friday.

Kilmer defeated Toronto's Gord Cavanagh 8-6 but then lost to Peterborough's Peter Hunter 9-7 before returning with a 7-5 win over Don McGonigal of Toronto in the fifth round of the seven-game round-robin championship.

Kilmer has a record of 4-1 after two days of play. Close behind with records of 3-2 are Gale's Paul Stone, John Chairelli of Ottawa and Hunter.

Tied at 2-3 are Ian Adamson of Leamington, Larry Neden of Brampton and Tom Cavanagh. McGonigal has one win in five games.

In the third round, Kilmer defeated Cavanagh 8-6; Adamson beat Hunter 12-3; Neden edged McGonigal 7-5, and Chairelli stopped Stone 8-7.

In the fourth round, Chairelli edged McGonigal 8-7; Stone trounced Neden 13-2; Hunter upset Kilmer 9-7, and Adamson beat Cavanagh 7-5.

In the fifth round, Kilmer beat McGonigal 7-3, Stone rocked Adamson 11-4, Cavanagh upset Hunter 8-7 and Chairelli used last rock advantage to top Neden 8-7.

The final rounds are being played today.

"Now let's have a good, clean fight. He'll try off the eyegouging if you don't do an awful lot more than I do."

Patience Proves Virtue As Laver Beats Richey

TORONTO (CP) — The way Rod Laver sees it, tennis is a game full of confusion and the man who can retain his composure has the winning edge.

The top-seeded player in the $50,000 Toronto International tennis tournament retained his composure Friday while Cliff Richey lost his and Laver emerged with a 2-6, 7-6, 6-4 semifinal victory.

One of two banks of lights over the indoor court went out during Laver's match and there were a number of questionable line calls and the latter apparently un-nerved Richey in the second set.

Richey, the No. 8 seed from San Angelo, Tex., was leading his Australian opponent 4-0 in the second set when he became upset over one line call in the fifth game.

Laver broke Richey's service in that game went on to take a 5-4 lead before the Texan rallied briefly for a 5-5 tie. The two exchanged service breaks and then Laver won the tie-break the match.

"That's the game of tennis—confusion all the time," Laver said.

"But I could have got just as upset over some of the calls on me. But I'm not the one to say whether it's in or out. That's the job of the linesmen, otherwise you might as well not have them there.

"In this game, you have to be able to concentrate in spite of all those things."

As for the troublesome bank of lights, Laver said it was distracting but didn't affect his game.

"I started rushing some of my shots and I think I created some errors, but I returned pretty well and he doesn't come to the net and sort of does have heavy volleys."

It was the second quarter-final clash between Laver and Richey this year in the World Championship Tennis Group A tour. At Richmond, Va., earlier this month, Laver beat Richey 6-4, 6-3 and went on to win his second of three tournaments this year.

The 34-year-old Laver now goes against Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., today's semi-finals. Smith advanced by defeating Ove Bengtson of Sweden 6-4, 6-3.

Fifiol qualified by upsetting third-seeded Dick Stockton of San Antonio, Tex., 6-4, 6-3 while Emerson advanced with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over countryman Allan Stone.

In doubles quarter-finals, Fifiol and countryman Patricio Cornejo advanced by default over Edison Mandarino of Brazil and Harold Solomon of the U.S. when Solomon was sidelined by an infected toe.

Fifiol and Cornejo go against Laver and Emerson today while Smith and Mike Estep of Pasadena and Stone meet Australians Phil Dent and John Alexander who advanced by default by their doubles match with a 7-6, 6-4 victory over Richey and South African Frew McMillan.

Swimmers Just Miss Sweep

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Canadian swimmers won all but one of eight events in which they participated Friday in the opening round of the national Brazilian swimming championships.

"They were tremendous results for us," said head coach Deryk Snelling. "We swam from fair to just right, up to what we did in the Olympics."

He felt his team's showing was especially good, considering that it is mid-winter in Canada and only the start of the season.

Olympic silver medal-winner (100-metre butterfly) Bruce Robertson of Vancouver was expected to take part in Friday night's event, Snelling said, due to an intestinal flu. He said he felt Robertson would be in shape to swim tonight.

Here are the results of events involving Canadian swimmers:

Women's 400-metre freestyle: Winner, Leslie Cliff., Vancouver, 4:37.2.

Men's 200-metre breaststroke: Winner, Jose Fiolo, Brazil, 2:29.5. Peter Birdbitschka of Vernon, B.C., placed third with 2:37.9.

Betsy Loses Ground To Chief Ski Rival

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP) — Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., chief rival to Betsy Clifford in the Can-Am ski circuit, gained on the Canadian star with a first-place finish in the downhill event here Friday.

Overall point standings in the Can-Am races now show Miss Clifford with 119 points and Miss Nelson with 104 and Diane Fratte of Rossland with 77 points.

In the downhill event at Rossland, Miss Nelson finished with a time of 97.76 seconds. Miss Clifford was clocked second of her closest rival, Gail Blackburn of Brunswick, Me., Diane Fratte of Rossland ended third in the race.

In the mens' downhill, Cary Adgate of Cheyne City, Wis., and Heins Weixelbaum of West Germany continued to dominate Can-Am standings, but it was the turn of Andy Mill of Aspen, Colo., to share the glory.

Chuvalo Fails To Make Appearance

TRENTON — So much for the second time around. Legion curlers told themselves last night.

Once again, the guest speaker for the Royal Canadian Legion Provincial Curling Championship banquet, failed to appear.

Dinner guests had whetted their whistles to all heck and gonzales — George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion but when they arrived, George was off to New York on a contract signing jaunt.

He had informed organizers on Friday morning he wouldn't be able to make it after all, but the whole affair rang shades of yesteryear.

Last year, the Legion had retained Joe Theismann, Toronto Argonaut quarterback, as guest speaker, but a snow squall kept him in the gray city.

All was not lost, however, for at the last minute, a guest did arrive. Ross Brevitt of Rexdale, whose company puts out the NHL programs for Toronto, Buffalo and Montreal home games, arrived at Dixieland 119 and offered some hockey anecdotes by way of an address.

Cats Make Tracks

Belleville Bobcats display some of the talent that brought them an 8-1 Metro Junior B hockey win over Toronto St. Michael's Friday night at Maple Leafs. Bob Moore chases Don Ojaczo-vic from his crease (top) while Neil Turner rides John Pace off the puck, (bottom). The Bobcats will open playoff action later this month.

Player Losses Fail To Sidetrack Bobcats

The bench strength kept wearing down, but the score kept running up for the Belleville Bobcats Friday night.

Right wingers Jim Hawkins was suspended from the contest because of a major misconduct picked up in Wednesday's 2-1 win over the Toronto Young Nats. Rick Merglingher was forced to leave the game with a sprained ankle when he checked a Toronto St. Mike's player into the boards.

Mark Coates and Brian Cousins departed from the scene in the second period when they were given game misconducts for their part in a major battle.

Despite the losses, the Cats just kept rolling along, to score an easy 8-1 win over St. Mike's.

Coach Moe Hunter, looking forward to the first round playoff meeting with Peterborough's Metro Junior B permanent winners, would like to see his team improve their checking performance. "We didn't play tight hockey tonight. Like I said Wednesday and that's the type of game we'll need against Peterborough. These guys couldn't check with us, but Peterborough can."

The Belleville coach said that "Robbie Foster played a good game for us and our defence played well. Junior (Neill) was skating well".

Taylor, playing his second game of the season as a Bobcat, drew complimentary words from Hunter for his work, while Edwards received his outstanding Junior B play with a goal and two assists.

The defensive additions allowed the Belleville coach to continue to use Wally Dosenberry at a forward position. "It's different at forward. I find myself still thinking about getting back all the time", observed the converted rearguard.

He appears to be coping with the change, however, assisting a pair of goals in last night's victory. The first came at 17.36 when he picked the corner on Toronto goalie Paul Rosan, while he tallied again in the third on a scramble in front of the opposing net.

Peter Sparks, Jim Richardson and Edwards count'd for Belleville in the opening frame to give them a 3-lead. "We really skated in the first ten minutes and it paid off", noted Hunter.

The lone Toronto tally came with just 46 seconds to play in the first period when Rick Graham's shot caught the top corner. The tally ruined a shut-out bid by Belleville goalie Bob Moore who/faced 26 shots in the contest as opposed to 45 for the St. Mike's netminders.

Rosan was ejected from the game for a second period battle with Mark Coates, bringing on Mike Brown to handle goaltending duties for the remainder of the game.

Tonight, Belleville and Toronto's Joe Haffey were also given the gate for their part in the fracas. While Dainard and Peter Rainert were flagged for five-minute majors. The losers were tagged with 21 of the game's 29 penalties.

The Quinte's next home game will be Tuesday when they face the Kingston Aces in an 8 p.m. bout at the Memorial Arena.

Cornwall Still Skidding

Cornwall Royals continued to lose ground to league-leading Quebec Nordiques Friday night as they dropped a 7-5 decision to Sorel Black Hawks in one of four games scheduled.

The loss left the Royals five points behind the Remparts in Quebec, with 82 points, have played five fewer games than the Ontario club.

Sorel's win kept them in third spot, one point behind Shawinigan Bruins, who scored three third-period goals to dump Montreal Red. White and Blue 7-4 in the other game.

Andre Denis Desgagnes fired three goals to lead the Black Hawks to victory. Ray Gill, Pierre Mondou, Michel Deziel and Pierre Lacroix also scored.

In Sherbrooke, Daniel Dubuc, Francois Bachand, Sylvain Parent and Pierre Laganiere were the Beavers' scorers while Daniel Dubuc scored for the losers.

Trenton Rink Contends

Merklinger's Gana-oque rink is the second round dropped by Trenton, 11-5 by Mark McDonald's Gananoque rink in the second round of play. McDonald, the defending Ontario champion, heads the only undefeated rink after three rounds of play.

The Trenton foursome is tied with Roger Harris' Toronto team and the Chatham entry skipped by Peter Deeming. All four teams have 2-1 records.

In action today, Trenton was scheduled to meet Gananoque, while Toronto was to face Chatham.

We Get Letters

Further Views On Quintes

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After watching another Quintes' Hockey game, for what it's worth, I decided to write this letter.

As a youngster I played quite a lot of hockey in and around Belleville and for the past 22 years a fan at most of the Senior and Junior hockey games. As hard as I try I cannot recall a team so effortless as the Quintes. It did not say as bad as the Quintes, because I do believe the ability is there. They just need the right coach to bring it to the fore and put it to use.

By such a statement I certainly do not question Wisner B-town's integrity, not at all. I have met him and found him to be a fine person, a gentleman and a capable hockey player but not the right coach.

The same holds true for Lionel Bozly, a damn fine fellow and a great defenceman — in his day. He seems so unsure of what he is doing when he's on the ice, he stands 6 out of position if he is at right defence and the puck carrier is on his left he will invariably go out to meet him thereby leaving his right defence open to be fed for grabs by the opposing player. What is the point in forechecking for but to protect the left side? When he gets the puck he still doesn't know what to do with it.

I have heard it said and I'm sure it's partly true that the fans must have a winner or they'll stay away. I don't buy that. In my opinion if we had a team who would try, try even though they are beaten, I'm sure the fans would come out, but only about one-third (sorry fellas) are really trying.

It may be said that the majority of the boys work (of course) during the day and/or they have such a long distance to travel. Well so far back as I care to remember most of the hockey players have had jobs and yet we have had some great fans to serve in Belleville, I mention?

These guys are in effect working for themselves so would it not be to their advantage to go all out? Perhaps they could cut out those 13-3, 10-1 and other humiliating defeats.

Before I close I must defend the goaltenders. The only I see it. our goaltenders are adequate and they are only as good as the team in front of them.

JACK WILLIS

P.S. There is much I could say about the officiating but they bother me. Perhaps it is silently wonder are they underpaid or just naturally incompetent?

Hull Burns Houston Aeros

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull is still hot, so is goaltender Joe Daley, and Winnipeg Jets are turning the World Hockey Association's Western Division race into a runaway.

Hull scored two goals Friday night, Daley posted his second shutout in two games and the Jets romped to a 7-0 victory over Houston to stretch their lead atop the division to 11 points over the Aeros.

In other games, Philadelphia's Blazers spotted New York a two-goal lead and rebound for a 9-3 victory over the Raiders and Los Angeles Sharks blew a two-goal lead and had to settle for a 3-3 tie with Les Nordiques.

The Blazers, all but counted out of the post-season games early in January, scored six unanswered goals in the second period and breezed to an easy decision to move within a point of third-place New York in the Eastern race.

Hull, with 14 goals in the Jets' last seven games and 38 for the season to tie Chris Bordeleau for the team lead, also picked up two assists—on goals by Bordeleau and Ab McDonald's second of the game.

Light-scoring Bill Sutherland also had two goals in the game as Daley, who has allowed only one goal in three games and taken over as No. 1 goalie from Ernie Wakely in front of 6,567 Winnipeg fans.

The two teams meet again in Winnipeg Sunday night while the Blazers entertain Los Angeles and Chicago Cougars are in St. Paul against Minnesota's Fighting Saints.

Tonight Cleveland Crusaders are at home to Minnesota with New England Whalers in Quebec and Ottawa Nationals at Chicago.

Hull missed adding to his total when referee Ron Ego disallowed both a first-period score he ruled Hull had directed into the net with his skate. The official wiped out another Hull goal when the Golden Jets' blueline blast went through Houston goaltender Don McLeod's pads late in the second period ended.

Wayne Rivers and Bobby Sheehan gave the Raiders a two-goal lead before the first period ended, but that ended their scoring threats as the Blazers opened the middle period with a flourish.

Danny Lawson, Don O'Donoghue and Don Burgess—the latter with Philadelphia a man short—gave the Blazers the lead for the first time by their 4:31 mark.

John McKenzie scored three times, O'Donoghue and Burgess added another goal apiece and Camille LaPierre completed the rout on New York goaltender Gerry Desjardins in front of 4,977 Philadelphia Fans.

Gallagher Sings Aubry

Gallagher Sings Aubry treated 7,202 Quebec City fans to three goals of his career as he turned aside 46 to 48 Los Angeles shots to preserve the Sharks' 3-3 tie Saturday.

Joe Saura in the first and Rouleau in the second gave the Sharks their two-goal cushion, on his heels of play in the game in which Los Angeles had a 42-23 edge in shots, that it could have been enough.

But with Aubry performing heroics in stopping Los Angeles shooters, Quebec rallied with goals by Bob Guindon and Mike Rouleau less than two minutes apart early in the final period and the teams battled through a scoreless sudden-death overtime.

Guidolin Stresses Hockey Work Ethic

NEW YORK (CP) — Down at Bep Guidolin's joint there are no complacent hockey players hanging around these days. They've put away their pointsticks and gone to work.

Bep's body shop stresses the work ethic everyday and it seems to have—the wonder, in his case, Bep thinks, who are on a six-game winning streak.

That's why I like to shower with the players," he says. "That's where I can watch their weight."

Guidolin is not enamored by the number of goals and assists his stars pile up. He stresses the basics at his tough practice sessions and defence is one of them.

The Stanley Cup champions were in a slump when Guidolin replaced Tom Johnson as coach Feb. 6. The Bruins had won only five of 15 games.

But with Derek Sanderson back in the fold to help with the penalty killing, Guidolin turned the offensive-minded Bruins into a goal-stingy club as well.

In the five games Boston has won under Guidolin's guidance, it has allowed only nine goals. Under Johnson, the Bruins allowed an average of 3.15 a game.

It'll be difficult for Bruins to catch first-place Montreal in the East Division of the National Hockey League with the Canadiens holding a 10-point lead over third-place Boston.

The Bruins, however, are only four points behind New York Rangers with 21 games to play.

If Guidolin can keep the Bruins tight on defence as he has so far, it could be an entirely new ball game. The Bruins always had the offensive power, and lead the league in goals scored.

Guidolin's insistence that everyone turn up for training sessions broke a habit the Bruins got into under Johnson of showing up for such sessions on a "voluntary" basis.

His long sideburns bristled as he ordered the Bruins on the ice for a 90-minute workout. He was still in his sweat shirt, having just gone through a workout with his former players on the Bruins, the Boston American Hockey League farm team.

The Bruins watched the big boys take it. Bathed in sweat, Bruin defenceman Dan Averey shouted: "Hey, does this happen all the time?"

WHERE YOU FIND SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE EVERYDAY!

What the Stars Say

By FRANK DIXON

Sunday, Feb. 18

Aries (March 21-April 19): There is all you can reasonably hope with right where you are without venturing afield looking for problems and adventure.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Gather yourself for a less-than-perfect Sunday in which differences are apt to arise over even trivial matters.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): It is up to you whether to let others impose on you or not. An early start with proper and fairs can be very helpful.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): See that you carry your usual role in the community's weekend functions in calm and serene self-confidence.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Coping with unexpected conditions and people is not your most finest skill, but it seems you will do well at it today.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Much that is on your mind cannot be expressed because the people who should hear you are not around or available.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Let-backs and setbacks are a fine art now. Nobody seems quite willing to diverge from their narrow pathways, old habits.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Very little goes as planned. You can be of great benefit to your own interests by pursuing a calm course.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It comes naturally for you to help organize the day's activities into a coherent program. Leave plenty of leeway for changes.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your morale tends upward while attention is directed mainly at others, leaving you free to collect your resources.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Pray for serenity of spirit and composed behavior on the part of all. A little prayer can help you cope with the stress of the day.

MONDAY FEB. 19

Aries (March 21-April 19): If your work routine is set aside, as it will for a great many people, reflect on the lessons to be learned.

Taurus (April 20 — May 20): The less you incur as future obligations, the better. Even simple requests encounter resistance or denial.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Routines are dispersed with or shaken up for the day—with some details never to be reinstated. Stay somewhat on the surface.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Starting early to take advantage of the day's holiday status helps less than expected, as many are not in step.

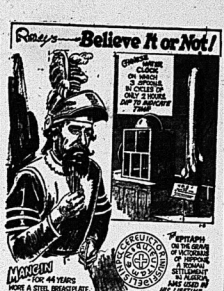
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Any action should be directed to consolidating your position where impulse has led you into a free-spending habit.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Being free during prime selling hours doesn't mean your purchase is automatically wise or timely. Enjoy window-shopping buy later.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): There's just enough resistance to provoke you into a vigorous healthy reaction to conditions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You fare better in unfamiliar places paying attention rather than acting things for granted around your home base.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Anything you try now encounters mixed going. By later hours you will have come to some interesting opinions.



Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Financial ideas promise well, may be evolved amid the pleasurable of renewing acquaintances, confirming family ties.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It's just as well things are not exactly routine today—you have some conflicts to settle among your pet projects.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your opinion can wait and nature until you get a specific request for it, with a better chance of being heard.

Etiquette Education

LONDON (CP) — A North London borough is to appoint a lecturer to teach good manners at local schools. He will instruct the children how to conduct themselves in public, to dress neatly, to eat politely and to order meals in restaurants. Councillor Charles Paley-Phillips, who initiated the posting, said teaching of parents "fail to teach 'children rudimentary good manners."

Research Is Key To Heart Disease

Heart disease is responsible for 51 per cent of all deaths in Canada yearly and the living victims total 1½ million.

To fight such discouraging statistics, the Ontario Heart Foundation annually mounts a fund-raising campaign to support research in the field.

Heart week in Belleville will be Feb. 25 to March 3 this year, with Ald. Jean Smith as chairman. The objective is $10,000.

The Heart fund is a combined appeal fighting a series of diseases including heart attack, stroke, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, rheumatic fever and inborn heart defects.

Too often, says the Ontario Heart Foundation, cardiac diseases strike family breadwinners in the prime of life, from 30 to 50 years old.

There is only one practical way to fight heart disease — by supporting the Heart Foundation's programs of research education and information, says the Foundation.

Council Opposes Fund Disclosure

Members of Belleville city council don't feel that municipal election candidates should be compelled to disclose contributions to their election campaigns.

At least the council resolutions committee has recommended that no action be taken on a City of Windsor resolution asking that contemplated provincial legislation with respect to provincial election contribution disclosure be extended to cover civic elections.

City council members Monday went along with the resolutions committee recommendation that no action be taken.

The Windsor resolution said that contributors to civic election campaigns could influence decision-making that might adversely affect the public well-being.

Hearing Date Set

WELLINGTON — An Ontario Municipal Board hearing to probe the installation of a sewerage system in Wellington village will resume here on March 26 at 11 a.m. in the town hall.

The hearing opened on Jan. 24 with OMB officer S. S. Spiegal chairing the session. Evidence was presented for almost five hours before a capacity crowed of village ratepayers. The hearing was adjourned for two months because of Mr. Spiegal's demanding schedule which made immediate continuation impossible.

Opposition to the sewerage project has been spearheaded by a group of residents who are protesting the installation on a basis of "cost and hardship".

Total estimated cost of the new system is approximately $1,159,000 according to figures released in 1970.

Charles Letenan, a spokesman for the Ontario ministry of the environment this week reportedly told the local newspaper that recently announced grant increases for municipal sewerage and water services probably will affect Wellington village.

He said, according to the news report, that instead of reducing the present cost estimate of $127 per householder for the sewerage system the revised grant structure likely would prevent an increase of this figure. He explained the estimated cost of the Wellington project per householder already lies within the ministry's guidelines.

Mr. Letenan was quoted as saying the ministry is completely satisfied with the plan presented by Gore and Storrie, a firm of consulting engineers. It is realized that a few homes will not benefit from the proposed sewerage system because of the shallow mains proposed.

Ceasefire Commissions Start Policing Actions

SAIGON (AP) — Two ceasefire peacekeeping commissions took new actions today to reduce the fighting in Vietnam and facilitate the release of prisoners.

As the Saigon command reported another 194 Communist ceasefire violations in the last 24 hours, the four-party Joint Military Commission decided to send a team of investigators to the northern coast to check reports of heavy fighting. This is the first field investigation ordered by the joint commission, which is made up of the United States, the Viet Cong and North and South Vietnam.

The investigation will centre on the fishing village of Sa Huynh, about 90 miles below Da Nang. The Saigon command says that the North Vietnamese attacked the village three hours after the ceasefire began Jan. 28, and there have been reports of steady fighting ever since. Saigon says about 400 militiamen are missing.

U. S. sources reported that U.S. maintenance teams were flown today to the Communist headquarters at Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon, to repair the airstrip and "facilitate the release of prisoners." U.S. planes ferried Vietnamese prisoners to and from the exchange point have been having tire trouble because of shrapnel imbedded in the runway from fighting earlier.

The four-nation International Commission of Control and Supervision—made up of Canada, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland—met today with an agenda of critical problems facing it.

Two Men Held For Abduction

LUCAYA, Grand Bahama Island (CP—AP) — Two men held in custody in connection with the kidnapping of the four-year-old daughter of a Canadian banker, sources said today.

Meanwhile, the banker, Robert Spencer, left the Bahamas Sunday with his family. Last week's abduction was the second experienced by his family in the British colony in little more than a year.

Island police would not discuss the two men in custody. But sources said they are both Bahamians.

Spencer's daughter Andrea was kidnapped last Thursday night by two armed men who invaded the Spencer home. They left her tied up in an abandoned church in an isolated part of the island and telephoned Spencer, demanding $50,000 ransom.

Family friends said the young girl freed herself Saturday morning and was found shortly afterward by three airline employees who were looking for wild roses.

Spencer, from Glace Bay, N.S., in the meantime had taken the money to a spot specified by the abductors and dropped it. The money had not been picked up by the time Andrea was returned and was reclaimed by Spencer and the police.

The 49-year-old banker, speaking to friends from an undisclosed location in Florida on Sunday, said his family, especially Andrea, stood up well under the ordeal.

Canadian PoW Starts Trip Home

SAIGON (CP) — Canadian Marc Cayer left for Canada today on the last leg of his flight to freedom after five years as prisoner in North Vietnam.

Canadian officials would give no information on what airline he was flying on, his route or his first destination popst in Canada.

The attitude has been typical since he arrived in Saigon Saturday and was mobbed by reporters at the airport.

Cayer, a 27-year-old volunteer teacher from St. Raymond, Que. who was captured near the gold with 27 other Americans, has said little publicly since he was released Tuesday in Hanoi.

In Saigon he was met by Canadian officials and a horde of reporters. Looking pale and drawn, he at one point appeared to be on the verge of tears.

He would say nothing and made it clear to members of the Canadian delegation that he did not want to speak to the press.

Later, however, he requested an interview with Radio Canada during his stay at a downtown Saigon villa used by the Canadian delegation to the new International Commission of Control and Supervision.

Lynch Finds Eire Election Race Tight

BALLINAMORE, Ireland (CP) — A mood of uncertainty sweeping this mountain inland has dampened the hopes of Prime Minister Jack Lynch for a decisive victory in the Feb. 28 general election.

"Let no one any longer believe that this election can be won by more than a few seats," Lynch told supporters in this market village, nestled in the centre of County Leitrim.

His comment reflects a startling shift in popular opinion since the snap election was called nearly a month ago amid a widespread belief that "Jack will take it at a walk." Now, opinion polls indicate an extremely tight race.

Lynch's main problem is a coalition formed by the opposition Fine Gael and Labor parties, which, between them, controlled 67 seats in the 143-seat parliament, or Dail, at the time of dissolution.

He is depending heavily on his almost legendary "common touch" with the voters to carry the day for the governing Fianna Fail party.

Even in Leitrim, however, Lynch's government has come in for some blistering criticism, particularly from Fine Gael candidates.

A pub owner, waiting in a brisk wind for the prime minister's weekend arrival, said Ireland's entry into the European Common Market has forced people, concerned that cheap dairy products from the continent will strip them of their dwindling livelihoods.

Unemployment problems and the internal security of the republic, faced with continuing violence in Ulster, have clearly emerged as the central battle areas in the campaign.

Tax Cuts Likely

Turner To Present His Second Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — When Finance Minister John Turner presents his 1973-74 budget to the Commons tonight, one of the first things he will have to explain is what went wrong with the last budget.

The explanation—and the related measures he proposes to remedy economic problems—may well decide the fate of the minority Liberal government.

When the graying, 43-year-old lawyer gave his first budget speech last May, he predicted unemployment would fall, prices would not grow as fast in 1972 as in 1971, and the real rate of economic growth would be "on the order of 6 to 6½ per cent."

He was wrong on all three counts.

There were 688,000 unemployed last month, up from 665,000 a year earlier. The actual unemployment rate—7.7 per cent—and the seasonally-adjusted rate—6.2 per cent—were exactly the same as in January, 1972.

The over-all increase in consumer prices from January-to-January, 1973, to last month was 5.7 per cent, up from the 4.8-per-cent increase from January, 1971, to January, 1972.

And Statistics Canada forecasts of 1972 economic growth on the basis of June statistics indicate a real growth rate of 5.24 per cent. That would put gross national expenditure for last year at $70.98 billion, compared with $67.45 billion the previous year, both measured in constant 1961 dollars to exclude the effect of inflation.

September statistics—the latest available—indicate a real growth rate of only 4.56 per cent, but those were affected by such unusual events as dock strikes.

In either case, the growth rate is a long way from the previous.

It's going to be tough enough for Mr. Turner to come up with solutions to these problems, but he has another headache to worry about at the same time—the political repercussions of his taxing and spending plans.

The budget is such a key part of government policies that the government would have little choice but to resign or call an election if the budget is rejected by the Commons.

Unless the government can do the unexpected and get Conservative votes for its budget, it has to have New Democrat votes.

A complicating factor is that legislation has not yet been passed to authorize the extensive corporate tax reductions of last May's budget. That legislation will be part of the new budget legislation.

Last May and during the fall election campaign, New Democrats bitterly condemned tax treatment of corporations as being too generous. On the other hand, New Democrat spokesmen have frankly admitted their party is not ready for an election and they don't want to provoke one by defeating the government.

The decisive factor in the complex political equation may be cuts in personal income taxes. Observers have speculated that substantial personal tax cuts would induce New Democrats to accept the other parts of the package.

There have been indications that such measures will be part of tonight's budget.

Prime Minister Trudeau recently told the Commons the budget will provide some relief from the rising cost of living. But it was not clear whether he was referring to all taxpayers or just those in the lower income brackets.

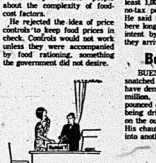
Trudeau Promises Appealing Budget

SUDBURY Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau says Canadians will not look favorably at the other political parties if they bring down the minority Liberal government on today's federal budget.

"We are going to bring in the best possible budget for the Canadian people," he told television interviewers on CKNC-TV here Saturday.



Other parties should see considerable merit in it, but if they do not and an election follows a government defeat, the Liberals would "fare rather well." People would not look with favor on parties that prevented tyranny of the budget's proposals from being implemented.

As it was, he told a similar panel of interviewers earlier at nearby CKSO-TV, the government was in no hurry to call an election and would remain in power as long as it was supported by either the New Democrats or Conservatives.

The prime minister made the remarks following a closed-to-regional party conference called, like three earlier ones in Ontario, to shore up the Liberal organization. MPs and party people at the meeting said there was a free-wheeling exchange of ideas and that mistakes made by the party in last October's federal election were among matters discussed.

On television, Mr. Trudeau fielded a variety of questions, among them the work of the Commons special inquiry into rising food costs. He said the 25-member committee looking at the issue probably would not come up with "simple answers to difficult problems." But it would help educate people about the complexity of food-cost factors.

He rejected the idea of price controls to keep food prices in check. Controls would not work unless they were accompanied by food rationing, something the government did not desire.

Taxes Said Evaded

TORONTO (CP) — Barry Lord, who would like university teaching jobs protected for Canadians, says foreign professors here have illegally held back $10 million in unpaid taxes. He said at least 1,000 professors in Canada took a two-year, no-tax period Canada allows visiting professors. He said they are breaking the law by remaining here longer than two years and many prevent the intent by taking landed immigrant status when they arrived.

Businessman Seized

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Kidnappers who snatched a 70-year-old Argentine businessman have demanded a record ransom equivalent to $1.5 million, police sources reported. The abductors pounced on Nasun Kocovcyz on Friday as he was being driven to the meat-packing plant he owns on the outskirts of Buenos Aires, the sources said. His chauffeur was also seized and Kocovcyz bundled into another car at gunpoint.

Airliner Crashes

PRAGUE (AP) — A Soviet airliner crashed on landing at Prague airport today, an unofficial report said "about 50" persons were killed. Airport sources said the plane carried 94 persons and 15 to 20 of them survived. The survivors included all of the crew, the sources said. The disaster, the sources said, One eyewitness said the plane was aflame as it came in to land, exploded and broke into three parts. The wreckage was reported scattered over a wide area.

Magnetic Train Planned

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The National Research Council has awarded a $130,000 grant to a research team at Queen's University to develop a 300-mile-an-hour magnetic train, the council and the university announced today. Prof. David Atherton of Queen's physics department will lead an inter-disciplinary team of scientists and students from University of Toronto, McGill University and Queen's.

Legislation Will Reduce Council

Special provincial amending legislation which would expedite Hastings County council moves reducing the number of deputy - reeves — but extending their terms — appears in the offing.

Change to Ontario local election laws, based on present legislation, swelled the number of deputy-reeves permitted to sit on county council this year. But this pushed council membership to 47, a number felt administratively cumbersome.

Council earlier approved a private bill for legislature presentation which would cut back the total of councillors, both reeves and deputies, to 29 at the beginning of 1974. This would have been before the deputy-reeves' elected two year terms ran out. But last week, council decided the new deputies affected should stay until the completion of their terms — at the end of 1974.

Mr. Rollins said he had been given ministerial assurance that legislation will be introduced — subject to cabinet approval — giving council authority to declare the length of time that deputy-reeves will continue to sit in the county chamber up to the start of 1975.

Mr. Rollins said he had received the assurance from Treasury Minister John White and the minister's parliamentary assistant, Donald Irvine, MPP.

The move will speed up legislative formalities necessary in authorizing council's latest decision supereceding its earlier bill

Ashes of Family Enterprise

Brothers Will (left) and Fred Kitsch look at ashes of family enterprise that grew into unique Ontario eating spot — Mother's German Restaurant, in bush country northwest of Actinolite. In fire that razed the building last week, all that remained intact was old iron stove, used as ornament in establishment they hope to rebuild.

Restaurant to be Rebuilt

The Kutsch family are not that kind of people.

Then, last Thursday, it was razed by fire.

At first, admit Fred and Will Kutsch, the impact on them and their families was a desolate sense of personal loss.

The restaurant hadn't started out as a dream project. It just grew that way after the brothers deliberately vacated big - city life in Toronto and bought an abandoned farm on Black Creek Road, a half-mile north of Highway 7.

First, they built their homes — colorful, alpine - style chalets. In 1969 they turned the original old farmhouse into a coffee shop — as a stopover for snowmobilers and summer tourists.

Business bustled in: In late 1971, after promptings from friends, they transformed the short-order operation into a 40-seat full-fledged dining room, adding specialty dishes. But it remained a total family enterprise, from waiting to waiting on tables — a fact which added to the convenient.

It's friendly atmosphere, sophisticated menu, and unique locale, was a recipe for success. The restaurant not only became a rendezvous for Quinte - district diners. As word spread, passing travellers between Toronto and Ottawa made it a regular stopover. The Kutsch brothers felt they found themselves serving members of parliament, cabinet ministers, television personalities. It was a...o some thing of a community centre where local people met and socialized.

For the Kutsch family this total involvement in the business was an enjoyable way of life — "A family affair ... of enthusiasm," says Fred.

He was the first to find it burning. He arrived that day. He looked out his front window to see flames pouring from the restaurant.

He couldn't even get inside the door of the burning building.

By the time firefighters covered the 10 miles from Tweed, it was a total Loss. Ironically, the only object still intact afterward amid the debris was an 85-year-old iron stove brought from an abandoned Eldorado railroad station as an ornament to enhance the restaurant's rustic atmosphere.

That night, Fred says, they didn't even discuss rebuilding. The family just "felt helpless". But another day brought another outlook — and something else. People, not only friends and neighbors, but customers from various Quinte communities started calling. Amid consolations, were many urgings to rebuild.

There was also community response. Neighbors came with coffee and milk; a nearby Mohawk grocery store owner arrived with boxes of food. People offered help with the labor of rebuilding. One contractor promised to provide machinery.

While their $20,000 insurance on building and contents did not cover the loss and rebuilding — with inflation, new installations — would be costlier both Kutsch brothers say they are certain they'll rebuild.

And not only for their own sakes.

Says Will: "We have sort of an obligation to the people ..."

Some Properties Flooded

Owners of property flanking the flood-swollen Moira River in downtown Belleville should receive pumps are in standby working condition.

The warning came today from Quinte Emergency Measures Co-ordinator Angus Duff, after a weekend in which the Moira rose about three feet above normal, seeping through to several waterfront properties and overflowing its banks near the river mouth.

However, today the water level began to recede and public works crews were working to clear the problem — a thick ice jam in a channel at Victoria Park, said the EMO official.

"We're not issuing a flood warning, but residents should make sure their pumps are in working order," he said.

The flood threat peaked yesterday, said Mr. Duffy, but since then the river has dropped at least one foot at the city's footbridge in the downtown core.

During the weekend, water poured through the March property on the river's west bank, and one business on the site — the sailmaking Keeble Canvas Goods — had about four inches of water in the building and its furnace had to be sandbagged, the fire chief said Mr. Duffy.

Water also was found in basements of a service station and the Belleville Yacht Club on east bank, he reported.

The threat has been posed by a cold front and rainfall which created slush ice in shore normal levels for this time of year because of mild weather and rain which has caused a ground runoff in the river's watershed.

The low banks the Victoria Park channel south of the CP rail bridge, causing the river to overflow.

Water also was found in yesterday water had flowed over the low-lying banks of Victoria Park and was also in a foot deep near the bridge on further south near the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Mr. Duffy reported a weekend - long vigil by EMO and city officials. Yesterday, the Belleville Police Commission, with city councillors Stu Meeks chairman and Arthur Keegan inspected the river at various points.

Today the river was two to three feet below its banks, said Mr. Duffy.

But the situation could later be complicated by weather conditions — more rain or another cold spell.

Interior Renovation Job Next for Proctor House

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — The exterior of one of Brighton's most famous buildings, built by John Proctor in the mid-1800s, has the look of elegance from another era.

And it should. A recent face-lift cost the federal government $25,000 and through the efforts of a local historical group, the old estate home looks much as it did 100 years ago.

But inside it's another story altogether.

Walls and ceilings have been stripped down to bare lath (split wood siding used at that time to hold plaster). Stairways have been covered with plywood for protection. Beams and joists lie exposed, and dust, sawdust and grime are everywhere.

But this is an air of progressive destruction of the past. For as of this year, the Save Our Heritage Organization, or SOHO as it is more readily known, has a promised purse of an additional $36,000a from the federal government under its Local Initiative Program to be used for interior restoration.

Receipt of this second grant has created a good deal of excitement among local history buffs and conservation-minded people of the area.

As recently as 1971, the fate of the Proctor House looked dismal. Once a prime example of pre-Victorian architecture complete with widow's walk and second storey outdoor privy, the old mansion had fallen into ruin.

Empty since the mid - 1950s after the death of Miss Stella Proctor, the mansion and a certain amount of property was deeded to the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority. This group found the old brick building to be in a bad state of repair.

They thought it not worthy of restoration.

After several meetings and laying of ground rules for preservation, the federal government announced its LIP program — a godsend for local conservationists bent on keeping the landmark standing.

SOHO was organized. An application was made, and the first grant received in early 1972.

With Canada Manpower in Trenton acting as a labor exchange, workmen began arriving to take part in the massive restoration project.

The roof was replaced — not with cedar shingles, but with a suitable substitute. Exterior brickwork that in several places had hand-sized gaps, was patched with similar bricks from an old house being torn down nearby.

All the windows were taken out, including two ceiling-high bay windows at the front; the wood was repaired and scraped and the glass replaced, with old if not antique glass.

All the adjustable shutters were repaired and replaced with a patchwork of matching pieces scrounged from various locations

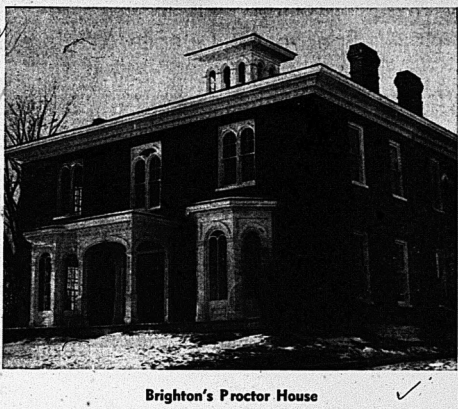
The second phase grant now allows workmen to tackle the interior job and provide 24-hour watchmen to protect against vandals and undesirables.

Electrical wiring was put in some time ago, but with removal of the antiquated heating system, only several wood-burning pot stoves provide a semblance of heat. Through the drafty and narrow corridors, and tall ceilings, cold is everywhere, making the working atmosphere difficult at times.

But the workers are an eager bunch. One man even walked several miles to work when he couldn't arrange for a lift.

During a tour of the sprawling mansion this weekend, project consultant Arvid Oberg, who gave assistance during exterior work last year showed several examples of modern man's ingenuity. Rare and brittle ceiling plaster and moulding has crumbled in most places.

The solution? A local carpenter recreated the design in wood, which when mounted and coated in a thin layer of plaster of paris is difficult to distinguish from the real thing.



The grant for hiring the workmen, plus about $3,500 for materials has to be used up by the end of June. By that time, says SOHO president Ray Kaufman, most of the interior work is expected to be completed in the main portion of the house.

After that, the group hopes to call on local organizations and clubs for help in providing enough money to complete the remainder of the house. As well as so-called "cosmetic" touches — period furniture, wallpaper, drapery and fixtures, SOHO hopes to add old books, documents, photographs, and a host of other objects that will recreate mid-1800 Canadiana.

Part of what is believed to be the original portion of the house may be turned into caretakers quarters, if funds allow.

Some of the artifacts have already been promised by descendants of the original Proctor estate. The present John Proctor, who lives in Alberta, has promised SOHO to send several items for display once the ancestral home is restored and opened as a museum.

Once complete plans for the mansion are drawn up within the next few months, Mr. Kaufuck expects SOHO will be given a lease for the property by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority.

Brighton's Proctor House

House Was the Centre Of Commercial Empire

BRIGHTON — The Proctor family, whom many old Brighton residents would rather forget, according to historians, first came to North America in the 17th century.

It was during the exodus of the Puritans that the Proctors arrived, first settling in Massachusetts and then later in Vermont.

In 1814, Josiah Proctor emigrated to Canada, cutting the first tree on the site of present Colborne and later becoming in Brighton. Believed to be a man of immense strength, Josiah Proctor is reputed to have weighed 500 pounds.

The family established themselves on 1,000 acres of land, with several town properties. By the mid-1800s there were several Proctors in and around Brighton.

One descendant of the original area-settler, another Josiah, served on a village council of 1850. His son John E. Proctor, who built the present Proctor House north of the village, was reeve of Brighton between 1867 and 1874.

He was described as "a man of vision and enterprise" who by means of the schooners Briton and Malta, served the people of Brighton by bringing in chests of tea, cargoes sugars, tobaccos, glass and salt and forwarding Oswego lumber in lots as large as 21,000 feet and shingles in shipments of 30,000 — a truly remarkable business which he maintained with these boats until 1861.

It was from his widow's walk, a tiny windowed room on the roof of the mansion, that John Proctor used to watch his ships come in through a giant telescope.

By this time, the estate stood at 2,200 acres, a flour mill, five acres in the store and a growing family that eventually totalled 19 children.

The exact date of construction of the sprawling mansion has not been established. Some believe it to have gone up in 1867. But one old pottery exists with the date 1857 on it.

The main portion facing south was obviously built at a more recent date than the rear portion, the older wings strangely referred to as the "servants" has narrower doorways, and wider floorboards usually found in pioneer houses of the early 19th century. No authentic dating has been done as yet.

By the time the 20th century rolled around, the widespread Proctors had dwindled in numbers. The original splendor of the house had deteriorated, and about 15 years ago, with the death of Miss Stella Proctor, the family ceased to live there.

The present status of the Proctor family in the area is unknown. One descendant, named John after the former mayor, now resides in Alberta.

House Has Ghost, Too

BRIGHTON — Not only is the old Proctor House here noted for its historic value, but lovers of the occult and mysterious might well take note of one of its more mysterious legends.

As noted in Canadiana Encyclopedia, the Proctor family of the 1850s was thought to be a penny-pinching lot.

Residents of the village more than 50 years ago swore they saw the supernatural resurrection of a certain Mr. Nix. This apparition was supposed to have appeared in the shape of a man enclosed in a ball of fire.

As the story goes, Mr. Nix owed the Proctors a sum of money — $35 to be exact — which was not paid at time of his death. Proctor apparently refused to allow the corpse decent burial, selling the body to pay the debt.

It is thought that the fiery figure returned to seek revenge on the Proctors.

Whether this ghostly figure has appeared in recent years, has not been reported, but one of the watchmen who recently spent the night there found his radio dying out several times one night — like the rest of the electricity remained on.

Senior Citizens Want Lower Fares

A petition from residents of a senior citizens home on Bridge Street West requesting lower taxi rates has been set aside by the Belleville Transportation until a report on rate structures is prepared.

The fare question was one of three topics involving taxis that arose at the Wednesday meeting. The commission voted to make fitness checks mandatory for taxis and suspended the licence of a driver who is said to have feuded with police after bashing nude in Vancouver.

The petition — also sent to cab company owners — calls for reduction of fares to the residence from $1.25 to $1.00. The home's 99 residents claim service to Quinte Darling Club across the road costs only $1.00.

The commission was told that a city bylaw designates Sidney Street as a dividing line beyond which fares increase by 25 cents. Rides to properties abutting the line are also subject to the lower rate and since the rink is on fairgrounds property, which is bisected by Sidney Street, drivers were charging the lower fare.

Grant Devolin, owner of Central Cab, told the commissioners he was opposed to a special tariff for the home.

"If you do it for one, the others will want it too and where does it finally stop," he said.

The entire matter was shelved until City Solicitor John Miller and Police Chief Douglas Crosbie have submitted a report on rate structures.

The commission also decided to make road worthiness checks mandatory for the city's 75 taxis at least once a month. In addition, taxi licenses will not be issued without a fitness certificate obtained from the police department.

Chief Crosbie said he would appoint a man to brush up on inspection techniques at the ministry of transport's testing facility in Toronto. He speculated a smaller facility could be built in Belleville at a later date.

Policemen have always had the power to pull taxis off the road but the checks were made only once each year. Mr. Devolin said he greases his 50 cars every 1,000 miles and keeps two full-time mechanics working on them.

The driver suspension followed receipt of information from Vancouver police about an altercation they had with a man picked up bathing in the buff.

The unidentified driver was given a licence here last month after telling the commission his run-in several years ago was a youthful indiscretion. But a further check revealed the incident to be serious and the commission decided to revoke his licence.

The man will be allowed to appeal the suspension at the commission's next meeting.

Pollution Probe Frowns on Fires

The men — employed under a provincial-federal works incentive program — were cutting dead elm trees and brush around the village, burning the cut waste.

Council meantime has decided to request more provincial work incentive funds for ditch clearing and other projects, including painting the municipal buildings.

Culture Decline?

We saw a brief news item recently where someone had warned of a decline in culture under the pressure of our materialist-technological age.

If by culture we mean the cultivation and propagation of the arts, then one segment of it in Belleville that formerly enjoyed strong support is in trouble. The Community Concert Association here has fallen upon hard times and its future as a viable institution is in grave doubt.

Reasons for its decline, with a sharp drop in membership the most obvious indicator, range from the impact of television to the facility with which people can now take in big city concerts. Rising costs have also militated against the association; indeed this was a factor in having only three concerts this season instead of four as in the past.

The irony of it all is that with increased population (including new arrivals from larger centres) interest in the association's programs conceivably should have been picking up in recent years.

Or is it really that we are still hicks at heart and that citizen interest in the past was just a mask — something with which to impress our friends and neighbors? Well, that may not be the entire answer either. Often interest will level off anyway, especially with the press of other events. Thus, there is merit in the prospect of a renewed membership drive. We hope it will succeed, for there are rewards in the type of programming the association has brought into our midst in the past.

At the same time it may be that the sensory aspect of the programming requires uplifting. By this we mean that a program of chamber music one month might be balanced by something with a touch of the exotic the next. Variety is not given much rein when there are only three programs, but if membership and finances could be strengthened, a return might be made to four programs, with greater scope for balanced programming.

When we speak of the sensory and exotic we might cite the program of Spanish dancing we attended in Cobourg's historic Victoria Hall five years or so ago. It was the unlikeliest of settings for such a presentation, given the Ontario winter scene outside, but it was all color and excitement — a memorable evening. Furthermore, it was held under the aegis of the concert association of Cobourg. Let's hope Belleville can rekindle the interest it needs to keep the association and its work here going. We believe it requires only the effort and what the necessary response will be forthcoming. The fact that some 600 members attended the Robert Goulet singers presentation recently was encouraging enough. What is needed however is a drive to bring membership up to at least the 1,000 plus of a few years ago.

Confused Society

If there is a decline, or simple lack of awareness of culture in our midst, as discussed above, could it have anything to do with a situation described with some insight by educator Lloyd Dennis?

Mr. Dennis was talking recently of the "confusion, hypocrisy and lack of social values of Canadian society," and he went on to say that education "should be something more than an assembly line for industry."

These are challenging words, even if they may be open to varying interpretations and to questioning. In these short sentences there is the substance of much that is wrong with society today.

Life must have meaning, as it relates to each individual and vice versa. And we wonder if in our concentration on things material and technical — and in the schools on a much wider curriculum that does not necessarily emphasize the basics and important subjects such as history, we are spreading ourselves too thin in matters of knowledge and wisdom.

As Montaigne said, "to be everywhere is to be nowhere."

General Grivas Poses New Threat

Spectre Of Guerilla Warfare Returns To Cyprus

By KEVIN DOYLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Just after daybreak on March 14, 1964, an advance guard of 2,000 khaki-clad Canadian soldiers flew over the fog-shrouded Mediterranean to the ancient, rebellious island of Cyprus.

The troops were the first consignment of nearly 7,000 men from six countries making up a United Nations peacekeeping force intended to restore order between warring Greek and Turkish-Cypriots. Its aims and code of operations were not radically different from those of the International Commission of Control and Supervision now in South Vietnam.

Today, Cyprus remains pallidly divided by race, religion and language. A lasting peace seems almost as remote as on that misty morning nearly nine years ago. Roughly 3,000 UN troops, including 275 Canadians, remain in position.

Now, however, in the monumental task of keeping Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots from open warfare, there has been added an even more difficult job of trying to prevent a major outbreak of violence within the Greek-Cypriot community itself.

With a presidential election set for Feb. 18, a 75-year-old Greek-Cypriot general with decades of experience as a terrorist leader has announced he will use any means—including violence if necessary—to achieve his aims.

Gen. George Grivas, who led the island in a sustained, successful revolt against British rule from 1955 to 1960, accused the ruling Makarios administration of Cyprus, of abandoning the Greek-Cypriots' long-cherished ideal of union with Greece, or Enosis.

He contends that Makarios, recognized leader of Cyprus's 600,000 Greek-Cypriot majority, has given up the cause of Enosis in order to seek a settlement with the island's 100,000 or so Turkish-Cypriots. In fact, talks have been held between representatives of the two communities lately but with little or no positive result.

During the struggles against the British, Makarios stood by Grivas's side, giving his blessing to the terrorists. But after independence and years of bloody fighting against the Turkish-Cypriots, which almost brought war with Turkey in 1967, Grivas was exiled to Athens.

Sixteen months ago he returned to Cyprus in secret, aiming to overthrow Makarios. He took to the mountains, recruited a number of youthful dissidents and set up a clandestine training headquarters. In the last month, he has begun sending out small bands of guerrillas for sporadic raids on unsuspecting villages and towns.

Makarios believes he can count on 95 per cent of the vote should he be opposed when he stands for re-election. At the same time, the worn slogan of Enosis, while an outmoded concept, still arouses strong traditional emotions among the Greek-Cypriots.

Makarios believes the impressive economic prosperity Cyprus has enjoyed under his policy of independence, pursued since the military coup in Athens in 1967, will outweigh the emotional appeal of the doctrine.

But Grivas's network spreads throughout the island and his skeleton army has an ample supply of arms, reinforced by several large thefts.

If the general should choose to wage an outright war against Makarios, it is unlikely the UN forces would be directly involved at the outset, although they have been busy trying to head off such a development.

But many observers believe that extensive rebel action would inspire the Turkish-Cypriot minority as well to take up arms against Makarios, throwing the UN back into exactly the same situation it faced in 1964.

Whatever the outcome, the tedious, expensive role of the peacekeeping force carries little promise of a successful conclusion in the foreseeable future.

Gaullist Minority Could Mean Political Chaos

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The phrase Popular Front bears strong memories of the late 1930s and the rule of coalition parties of the left in prewar France and Republican Spain.

The late Leon Blum, one of the great French parliamentarians of those years, as well as long-forgotten leaders of the old Spanish Socialist and Radical parties, fought losing battles against the creeping tide of Fascism from Germany and Italy.

The Popular Front concept was appeared in France this winter as a tough and determined coalition of Communists, Socialists and Radical-Socialists battle the Gaullists for power in France.

Many observers who didn't give this modern Popular Front much hope a few months ago, now say it could unseat the Gaullists in the French national elections on March 4th and return France to the political uncertainties which brought down the Third and Fourth French Republics.

In fact a Popular Front-style government has been in power elsewhere in the world since one was elected in Chile under Marxist President Salvador Allende in August, 1970.

The Chilean left, which has ruled through a Popular Front government in 1938 as an almost exact model of the Lion Blum coalition in Paris, has found the formula that has successful.

The reasons relate to the experience of the late 1930s in Western Europe. And they should be a warning to the French Communists and Socialists if they are ruling France after March 4th.

Communists and Socialists share the power practically despite the different views they have of assuming economic and political control. In Allende's Chile, the Communists and the even more extreme Maoists, fan element which did not exist in the late Thirties), want immediate nationalization of all private industry. Chilean or foreign-owned. They want a commercial government replaced by a people's assembly with delegates "appointed" by the government.

The latter means certain death to Chilean democracy. And it would be France if the Communist win and have their way. The French Socialists, while supporting strong but slower-moving nationalization programs, gain the powerful multi-national companies, are still special friendly with the work only through the parliamentary process and will reject Communist totalitarian ideas.

But in France in 1973 as in Chile in 1970, with a France again in the Thirties, neither Socialists nor Communists have the strength to win single-handedly. The Popular Front is more "popular" with its members because of their winning an election, than after it.

Another constitutional factor could lead to political and economic chaos in France as it has in Chile since 1970. Allende's coalition of the left does not control a Congress, dominated by non-Socialist parties.

In Chile, there are also elections in March, this time to choose a new Congress, not a new president. President Allende therefore, has a chance to bring about his complete political control of the Chilean constitutional apparatus.

So Much For Brotherhood!

Kingston Whig - Standard

Near Green River, Wyoming, on Sweetwater County, the Sheriff of the county, John Zabovich, recently found the body of a young man in a smelled car. There had been a blizzard and the car was out of gas and standing in the middle of a highway. Beside the body was a note: "I have been waiting 12 hours for someone to stop. I am cold and the cold and wet and they just keep passing by." The persistative gun laws of the United States had successfully prevented this man with his war suit; he had shot himself with a .22 - calibre pistol.

Somebody could write a sensitising analysis of this little tragedy. The implications are sufficient, in fact, that a thesis at the Ph.D level could easily come out of the effort. For instance, under the law, and according to Christian teaching, suicide is a crime. But what about the pa- [illegible] ... or "Do unto others ..." And what about the injunction to "Love thy neighbour as thyself"? Does this brother's keeper? There was also that of St. John Donne:

> No man is an Island, intire of it self; every man is a peece of the Continent, a part of the maine; if a Clod bee washed away by the Sea, Europe is the lesse, as well as if a Promontorie were, as well as if a Mannor of thy friends or thine owne were: any mans death diminishes me, because I am involved in Mankinde; And therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; It tolls for thee.

Unemployment Insurance

Montreal La Presse: Good things are willingly misused, while bad things rarely are. If there was misuse of unemployment insurance, it was probably proof that it was good. Some even found it too good.

Canadians can still remember the days when the law was previously amended, maximum benefits did not exceed $53 while the minimum was $9. Today these amounts are $108 with a bonus of an unemployed's average income.

It has been noticed recently that the law often leads to misuse—unavoidable misuses undoubtedly. . . .

The restrictions the government wants to implement will make life harder for fictitious orders and those unemployed who habitually collect, or employers could willingly quit his job or do something to get fired. The unemployed who work not corresponding to his tastes and capacities.

If the restrictions proposed by the government are adopted, all that will become impossible. Whoever loses his job for bad conduct, or quits without valid reason, will not be eligible for unemployment insurance.

Furthermore, whoever is receiving benefits, and refuses the job offered to him will no longer be eligible.

Another restriction — the period an insured will be eligible for benefits—will be limited to 53 weeks instead of 52 weeks.

Finally, from now on the rate of benefits will be 66 2/3 per cent of a single person's salary, but will remain at 75 per cent for a worker with a dependent.

The trend to quit a job without valid reason seems to be on the increase. Robert Andras has revealed that in 1972, about 200,00 persons left jobs—10 per cent of those retiring unemployment insurance —and quit their job without valid reason.

Another curious phenomenon is the increasing number of women registering for unemployment benefits. Of the 64,708 persons unemployed in Montreal last Dec. 30, 25,708 were women, about 1,000 more than in 1971, while the increase for men was only seven per cent compared to 22 per cent for women.

The new amendments will not eliminate all the misuses, but they will surely help to stop the most flagrant ones. this will be so much the better for taxpayers.

Mr. Trudeau Popularity Still High

It would be surprising. Unless the prime minister himself decided to quit politics, and there is no reason to believe this, the Liberal party will likely confirm his functions.

In the state in which the federal Liberal party finds itself any different from 1968? It was, at that time, the country's most popular party. Its leader enjoyed an extraordinary support.

However, if Mr. Trudeau has since lost some followers, it seems he still has enough to keep the confidence of his followers.

There would have to be some very significant changes for the party to consider, seriously at such a critical time in political life, to throw him overboard. There is nothing at this time to foresee such a decision by the convention.

On the contrary, even if the occasion is used to mention certain well-deserved reproaches, his place will be maintained. Mr. Trudeau has no reason to worry. . . .—

Clamor Of Worldliness

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I overheard on the radio this morning, a minister holding forth on the subject of living by faith, and exhorting his congregation to leave a little more closely to the ways of the Lord.

It is true that the complexities of this life, whilst he was so occupied, I too had a vision. It is true that the whole structure of Christianity distributed throughout hundreds of all enormous tree, all casting their leaves' shadow. And in a while, from the base of the tree there came the sound of a woodman's axe falling at a tree, the roar and rattle of machinery as it felled a tree. It is not clearly an all-critical respect, but rather a thinking attacking the bases of the world: the problems of the world, the wars, the discontentment of even the well-to-do and the fraud, theft and violence in business.

There was something hallucinous about it.

Trenton Bus Service Welcome

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — No one in Trenton can predict the success or failure of a bus service, be it a dial-a-bus or regular shuttle system, should one locate here.

But the subject, as proposed by J. E. Montgomery, Loyalist Coach Lines owner from Carrying Place, has become a general topic of discussion here in recent weeks.

Earlier this year, he approached town council with the idea, seeking a franchise for a regular route system. However, before council would consider a suggestion, complete details and comparison studies with bus lines in other small centres, would have to be provided.

Council is naturally concerned that should the line prove unprofitable — as in many of them do — subsidies would be necessary.

A case in point, as illustrated by former councillor Eban James, was the Armstrong line that began operating in Trenton between 1953 and 1954. During his tenure of office, the line was approved. Unfortunately, patronage fell off and subsidies were necessary. That ended the short-lived bus service.

Mr. James pointed out that transit systems are a precarious business. A case in point he used was Belleville's own public system, taken over from the Rawson family at the beginning of the 1900's when public support was found necessary to keep the line running.

Belleville has a more - or - less regular bus line since the days when the Aselstine family operated horse-drawn bus carriages from the Hotel Quinte to the CNR station. They later converted to motorized buses and began regular street service.

In discussing the question of a Trenton service, most of those interviewed felt it would be the senior citizens and housewives who would benefit the most if buses were to be established here.

At present, there are three taxi companies who provide the only means of public transportation available. And one of the managers — Donald Rushnell of Graham's Taxi — has already put out feelers, expressing interest in buses, either as a regular service or with dial-a-bus. He has no firm plans, simply wishing to know what success a system might have.

Town officials are greatly interested in such service. As well as any private examination of other bus lines, council will seek information concerning any provincial or federal grants available as assistance for improving or establishing" transportation in towns and cities. Such grants are being provided in an effort to increase public transit and reduce congested private traffic in downtown cores.

The six opinions expressed here are only a few of those who were in favor of buses in Trenton. None of those interviewed were against such a move. Several who had no comment, admitted they have cars and buses wouldn't affect them greatly.

BILL NORMAN

Bill Norman, a Trenton Insurance "adjuster, agreed "there should be a bus service."

He pointed out that service between Trenton High School, CFB Trenton, through Middleton Park and the downtown district, would be beneficial.

He did think that if a service were started here, it should make use of mini-buses, similar to those Belleville used up until 1970.

"It's a long trip for some people: shoppers, and high school kids."

MRS. BARBARA KING
McGill Street

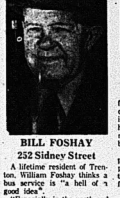
Mrs. Barbara King of McGill Street and her two young daughters stopped briefly to answer questions concerning a bus service. As a part-time lounge, Mrs. King says she feels the pinch of using taxi service.

She estimates, her weekly cost at $10. This includes trips to tap dance classes for one of her little girls, downtown shopping and to and from work each night.

"It usually costs $1.10 there and then $1.20 back home after work. It all depends on whether I get a ride with one of the other waitresses.

"A bus service? It's a good idea, an excellent idea."

MRS. LUCY BANGA



ANDREW BANGA
Carrying Place

Andrew Banga and his wife Lucy, of Carrying Place, travel to Trenton by car to shop. They both find parking a bit difficult at times.

While proposals for any bus service are sketchy, and may not include plans for service to fringe communities such as Bayside or Carrying Place, Mr. Banga feels a line "would be very profitable. It's a good idea."

Mrs. Banga agrees. "There are a lot of sick people in the hospital. It's quite a way for people to go and visit them."

BILL FOSHAY
252 Sidney Street

A lifetime resident of Trenton, William Foshay thinks a bus service is "a hell of a good idea."

"Especially in the north end of town. Parks Corners, and the new subdivision on North Field Street. Some of those areas are a mile and a half, two miles from downtown.

"This is a big town, bigger than Belleville because it's spread out so much. From one end of it to another is quite a ways across."

Mr. Foshay's parting shot to anyone who receives a bus service franchise: "Tell him if he gets that bus service going, I'll sell my car."

Quinte Claims Record

If a small group of Belleville high school students are caught dozing at their desks today they have a record reason.

Before dawn today the last relay of 20 Quinte Secondary School football players ended what may have been the world's longest hockey game — lasting 62 hours and 12 minutes.

In that time the score totalled a stupendous 2,167.

Of more importance, they had filled a time schedule estimated to bring in $1,000 in pledges — to be spent on jackets for QSS senior footballers and a donation to the Canadian Cancer Society.

The time total also meant they regained a record — first set three years ago — from a rival high school in Belleville, New Jersey, where last year students skated 60 hours of hockey.

The QSS hockeython, staged on a pond, started late Friday afternoon and continued uninterrupted until nearly 6 a.m. today.

Two six-player teams played six hours at a stretch, with one hour per team allowed to rest during play. Between games, the players slept in the school cafeteria.

Community response also helped. The city's parks and recreation departments created the rink, provided nets and lighting. News reports of the event brought food and drinks from city restaurants and stores. People turned up with firewood to keep the warming bonfire on the pond's edge going.

The players came through without injury from games or weather and were ready to start another school week.

Organizer Stu Boardman, 18-year-old school football offensive end said his teammates were in good condition, but "just tired".

MRS. SYLVIA SALUSBURY
Brighton

Mrs. Sylvia Salusbury, a former Bayside resident who operates Salusbury's Marina CFB Trenton, through Middleton Park and the downtown district, would be beneficial.

He did think that if a service were started here, it should make use of mini-buses, similar to those Belleville used up until 1970.

Police Here Buy Bulletproof Vests

Concerned over recent shootouts that claimed the lives of two Toronto policemen, the Belleville Police Department is ordering three bulletproof vests to be worn when crises present themselves.

"It's the kind of thing you hope you'll never have to use but think you should have on hand," commented Police Chief Douglas Crosbie at a Police Commission meeting Wednesday.

The force already has tear gas canisters and a sniper rifle.

In addition, a new marked car now on order will be used as a task force vehicle to patrol high accident and residential areas for 16 hours a day. Chief Crosbie hopes to hire two new officers shortly to man the car.

Indians Welcome PM's Statement

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Bay of Quinte Mohawks are hopeful recent indications of favorable federal government attitudes to aboriginal claims will eventually benefit this reserve.

The claims involve surrenders of Indian lands which never were legalized under historic treaty terms, says Chief Earl Hill.

The Mohawks' reaction is shared by other Indian groups and was stimulated last week by Prime Minister Trudeau's agreement to establish a federal committee to negotiate Yukon Indian land claims.

The Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians — of which the Quinte Mohawks are a member group — hopes to take advantage of what now appears a favorable government attitude to aboriginal land claims.

In Brantford last week, Leighton Hopkins, an association spokesman, said reports of changing Ottawa attitudes on land claims by Yukon Indians "seems to indicate the settlements."

Chief Hill said the Quinte Mohawks have a number of such claims involving land that was never "legally surrendered".

However, assembling data on such claims and the terms under which surrenders were made may "take some time and considerable research," the chief said.

But he hoped settlements could be received in time "if Mr. Trudeau lives up to what he said."

In Brantford, Mr. Hopkins said he is documenting outstanding claims of the 20,000 Ontario Indians on the nine reserves which are members of the Iroquois Association.

Work already has begun on the St. Regis reserve near Cornwall and the Gibson reserve west of Bala.

The Yukon brief sought cash settlements, unspecified land grants and royalties on gas, oil and mineral development.

Winged Wonder Makes Soft, Easy Landing

Though Sunday afternoon temperatures only reached a high of 14 degrees above zero, Belleville residents enjoyed the sunny weather outdoors.

Todd Daynard, 13, and Danny Ross, 14, took a walk along the Moira River. Because the snow wasn't "packey" enough to make snowballs, they began some serious snow designing.

With Danny's assistance, Todd designed an angel with wings. The trick to parts of Todd, were: beginning the design by falling on his back and getting up after his "winged wonder" was formed.

Todd Daynard, 13, a student at Charles School and Danny Ross, 14, a Quinte Secondary School student discovered three easy steps for making a "winged wonder" in the snow. Sunday afternoon.

Operation Rehearsals Given

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — People about to have operations attend a one-lesson night class at St. Joseph's Hospital.

They see pictures of everything that happens to a surgical patient from admittance to discharge. They practise exercises they'll be expected to do after their operations, and they are encouraged to ask for help if they need it.

The program is run by Sister Angela, a clinician who has run a similar program in Chatham, Ont.

She says it is helpful if patients know and understand rather than just have things happen to them.

For instance, if surgery patients "don't know beforehand that their arm is going to be painted, all they expect is a little scar and they are amazed when they wake up all orange."

She teaches the group with the help of two members of the hospital auxiliary.

"It has been proven that group teaching is more effective than individual teaching. By himself a patient can only go at his own rate. Sometimes, because of fear, he doesn't want much information, he just can't absorb it. But when in a group support one another. Of course, they are all watched to see if they can handle a group situation."

She said research has shown that people who have had the classes are less likely to vomit after surgery.

The slides and accompanying sound track were made during two months at the hospital. The staff and auxiliary members have all seen the material.

"A woman who is herself frightened by surgery could have a bad effect on patients."

She says they are not encouraged to answer questions about operations.

"They don't know enough, and in this case, it's more important to know what you don't know than what you do know. They must be able to react intuitively. If they have to be told how to talk to a patient, we don't want them."

Alertness In Our Time Stressed

This year's theme of the World Day of Prayer to be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Roslin, March 7 will be "Alert in our time."

Women of New Zealand were the original service which is a call to fellow Christians to assign fellowship and to be alert to every opportunity of sowing service to mankind.

It stresses alertness to the needs of all people.

Canada has sponsored the World Day of Prayer since 1945 when it was first celebrated on a nation wide scale.

It was decided that a committee, made up of the education secretary, regent, and treasurer, be set up to administer the Mrs. A. E. McColl Memorial Fund and to set out guidelines based on requests made by school guidance counsellors

Mrs. R. C. Ellis announced that a tentative date of Wednesday, April 11, had been set for the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra presentation, to be given at Centennial Secondary School.

The secretary read a letter from Miss Rosa Spry, Provincial Councillor, thanking the district dinger to be held on September 27, at Norwood.

Mrs. R. Bailey, Membership Secretary, reported that Mrs. H. McKay and Mrs. R. J Ridley had been ill and that she had conveyed our best wishes to them.

Before concluding the meeting, Mrs. Lenk thanked Mrs. T. H. Hammel for the work she had so ably performed as social convener for the last several years.

A social hour was enjoyed and a delicious lunch was served by the tea - hostesses, Mrs. R. Bailey and Mrs. W. Slade.

Letting Belleville know what the United Community Services is doing is the name of the game for a new UCS committee, it was announced by board of directors president Hugh Pepper.

The formation of such a committee was discussed briefly at the board of directors' meeting. The board at that time voiced some opinion that many people in the city don't know what the board was doing with money raised through the United Way.

It was at this meeting that the board unanimously voted to allow the press to enter the meeting, setting a precedent for UCS in the city.

Mr. Pepper, in his first address to the board as its president said, "we must break down the notion that we are here and everybody else is out there," hinting at a closer liaison between the board and the community.

The UCS, last fall, had been criticized in the press for its reluctance to comment on the progress of fund donations.

In the early portion of the meeting, members of the board were given a list of committees that would be set up through the coming term.

Mr. Pepper and some other board members suggested the public relations committee could be best handled by perhaps three people.

Mr. Pepper said, "we are going to have to maintain an effective relationship with the public," and he hoped this could be achieved through the special committee. He described public relations as a key area for the new board's attention.

Catholic Group Opposes Traditional Abortion Laws

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A group of Catholics opposing their church's traditional stand against contraception and abortion is meeting to appeal all United States laws regulating birth control.

Patricia Fogarty McQuillan, a practising Catholic, founded the group three months ago and gave it the name of "Catholics for the elimination of all restrictive abortion and contraception laws."

Mrs. McQuillan, the separated mother of a 20-year-old daughter, says, "As Catholics we believe that abortion and contraception are strictly personal conscience and medical matters—private issues—and the state should be silent and neutral in this regard."

A Jan. 22 U.S. Supreme Court decision said state legislators could forbid abortions in the last 10 weeks of pregnancy, "except where it is necessary to preserve the (mother's) life or health."

But that is not enough, Mrs. McQuillan says.

"That still leaves the last 10 weeks for the state to do its meddling. We denounce the concept that a woman's reproductive system belongs to the state at any time and she must be accountable as a criminal under any condition of pregnancy."

In addition, she advocates repealing New York laws confining contraceptive sales and drug stores and to persons over 16 and suggests placing vending machines containing prophylactics in men's rooms.

Asked how she reconciles her stand with her Catholicism, Mrs. McQuillan, a board member of the feminist National Organization of Women (NOW), said women have no say in formulating church regulations.

"Our Catholic Church still maintains a celibate, male, discriminatory and sexist code of laws regarding women, which is not denied and yet forbids all women any representation on its policy-making and canonical interpretative bodies," she said.

As a consequence, while laws against abortion have protected the lives of pregnant women "in earlier days of biological and medical ignorance," women could not choose to change the regulations as medical research made the operation safer, she said.

The group's first public meeting brought its membership up to nearly 1,000, including a few nuns from the Sisters of Mercy, Sisters of Charity, the Order of St. Ursula and the Marymount Sisters, Mrs. McQuillan said.

It also brought out the anti-abortion forces of the interdenominational Right to Life group, which has been lobbying in Albany, New York state's capital, for strict anti-abortion laws, she recalled.

"Some people called us heretics and shouted, 'You're not Catholics'," she laughed, "but I told them I was as much as Catholic as they were."

Alfalfa Warning For Mothers

NEW YORK (AP) — Many young mothers are endangering the health of infants today by eating alfalfa because they think it is an important health food, a nutrition expert believes.

"Alfalfa is not dangerous in itself," said Barbara Peerenboom, nutritionist for the New York City department of health, "but when it is substituted for meats, vegetables or fruits it simply lacks protein and other nutrients that both mother and child should have.

"Actually, alfalfa is used to feed animals all over the country, especially cows, to boost their stomachs and one of these turns alfalfa into a nutritive food."

The alfalfa trend began, Miss Peerenboom said, when high school and college students latched onto the organic food movement. They wanted to eat vegetables, greens and fruits fresh from the fields, without additives or chemical fertilizers.

Alfalfa, she said, had been highly touted for its value to pregnant and nursing women because of its vitamins A and K. These vitamins are also present in large amounts in everyday greens such as spinach, broccoli, collards and kale.

"Health food stores claim that the alfalfa vitamin is of great value in fighting toxic substances. It is correct, because another of the cow's four stomachs creates up to 100 pounds of bacteria. There are other legumes which create the needed bacteria and are well for humans," Miss Premo said.

Successful Living

Children Are to Love—Don't Possess Them!

By DORIS CLARK

It is all very well to dote on your children, but when it comes to wanting to probe their every thought, it is not doting; it is possession.

Think of it this way: Your children are on loan to you, in trust. Trust that you will do your level best to free them to become creative, clear-thinking personalities. Personalities that are able to think for themselves and, at maturity, to run their own lives.

Besides, if you spend all your time doting, and possessing, what happens to your life when they have fled the nest?

* * *

Dear Doris: My best friend has a very cruel husband. His wife is considerably younger than him and they have three children.

He tells his wife he can't stand the sight of her face. She's developed an inferiority problem. He tells his hired man that he is to come in for dinner and that if the hired man cares to take his wife to bed after the meal, go ahead. (This is stated in the most awful way.) Needless to say, this girl detest their father. The boy is maturing and we can see him developing these same ideas and values of his father.

The wife has begun to drink heavily but still is trying to be both parents to her children. I have been trying to get her to take her kids and leave her husband. She won't do it because he has frightened her that if she ever leaves she'll never see her kids again. The mother's greatest fear is to lose her children. Kids with her legally? If she kids with her legally? If she went to stay at her parents' could he force her back home?

He doesn't want her or the kids but he doesn't want them to have a happy home, decent food or warm clothing either. Incensed.

Dear Incensed: Is there another side to this story, or is this man just so much older, so much stronger, and at the same time so much the adolescent bully, that she is no match for him? Perhaps he resents this lady he has married; should have looked up with a flashlite who could give as good as she got!

Anyway, you could leave and take the children; and file suit for support. Frankly, that's the way she could to get the children, probably, would be to be shown as an unfit mother.

If she continues to drink heavily she ruins her own case. She needs a social worker, and/or a lawyer.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a widow, 58, handicapped by nerve deafness so that I cannot find employment, either in my own profession (nurse) or any other.

I come home from a gathering of any kind feeling not just handicapped but odd, so I prefer to stay home. I would like to do something useful with my time) that would somehow involve me with other people like myself (handicapped by deafness).

I have heard there is a society for the deaf in some cities. — Lonely.

Dear Lonely: Deafness is the loneliest of handicaps. Many elderly people with failing hearing have felt like oddities; not just like deaf people.

Part of the feeling comes from having once been able to hear. Those who are born deaf have learned means of communication and how to live within their limitations.

There is indeed a group which can help you get used to the idea of being deaf, accepting it and living with it. Write to headquarters of The Canadian Hearing Society, 60 Bedford Road, Toronto 5, Ontario, for guidance to the nearest branch.

You can be helped to make friends who are only "odd" in the same way that you are, which is not odd at all — just unfortunate. And you will be guided to new interests.

(Ask Doris about your difficulty, writ.g her in care of this newspaper. She will discuss it or send you to a source of help.)

Ann Landers

Woman Values Her Time Resents Drinker's Calls

Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem that is getting me down. It's a neighbor with whom I was once rather friendly, but since she and her family moved to another suburb I haven't seen much of her.

This woman used to drink a little, but now she drinks a lot. At least three times a week she telephones me and she is always bombed out of her mind. She goes on and on, repeating herself until I could scream. Yesterday she called twice. After I had listened to her for 30 minutes, she telephoned a second time (one hour later) and had completely forgotten about the previous call.

Although I feel sorry for her I am becoming resentful of the way she cuts into my time. What can I do—short of telling her in plain language that I don't want her to call me anymore.—Former Neighbor

Dear Former: Telling a drinker anything is utterly useless. When she gets into the sauce she'll call anyway. The best solution is to have your telephone number changed—and request the new number unlisted.

Dear Ann Landers: Your article on the subject of bikinis was right on target. I have a beach in front of my house and I see more than I want to see of young women who are obliged to be covered from head to foot in order to enjoy a dip in a public place!

Within my lifetime we have made tremendous strides in liberating ourselves from the terrible sense of body shame that has bedevilled the human race for so long. I remember so well when one of us would lower a tan evenly, a beach guard would blow a whistle and stop us as if we might be sufficiently mature to accept complete nudity in public. This will make for a healthier society, physically, mentally and morally.—Augusta, Maine

Dear Maine: We are all products of our culture, and I was not brought up to accept nudity in public. If this labels me a narrow-minded, backward-looking prude, so be it, but I doubt that I will ever change, no matter what the trend.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16, the oldest of five children. I am being punished because I am always getting my little brother for being a pest. Please say something.—Concerned Sis

Dear Sis: Of course you are right to be concerned about your little brother's diet, but apparently your mother does not want you to help him for something else?

Stanfield Urges Tax Cuts

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government must make substantial cuts in personal income taxes when it presents its budget to the Commons tonight, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday.

Speaking to a party fund-raising dinner, the Progressive Conservative leader repeated his three-point plan for halting inflation:

—Substantial personal tax cuts to put more money in taxpayers' pockets and thus reduce the demand for higher wages and prices;

—Tax reform so the government does not profit by inflation. He has said the present tax system means taxpayers who are pushed into higher brackets by inflation pay a higher proportion of income in taxes even though their incomes have risen only enough to match the rise in the cost of living.

—Elimination of "fat" in government spending to show that the government takes inflation seriously.

"If the government does not take action on all three of these fronts, no program of restraint or controls, voluntary or compulsory, will attract the broad support needed to make it effective."

Without the trust of the people, he said, the government will never stop inflation.

"People must know in their hearts that a sense of order and a sense of purpose in economic policy applies to their government as well as to themselves."

Princess Tired

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne has become ill during her visit to Ethiopia but her condition is causing no concern, Buckingham Palace said Sunday.

Safety Bus

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — A new school bus engineered here will cradle students in broad bands of steel and swaddle them in deep padding to reduce the chances of injury in accidents.

Killed in Naples

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police say a former Toronto man has been killed in a Mafia-style slaying in a restaurant garden outside Naples, Italy.

They said that the body of Vito Adamo, 30, was found bullied in the garden of the restaurant Jan. 25. He had four pistol slugs in the chest. Official identification of the body didn't come until last Friday.

A woman's body was found nearby. She has been identified as Laura Savo, born outside Rome. She had been shot through the heart and her body placed in the drainage pit of the restaurant's washroom.

Toronto police said that Adamo returned to his native Italy early this year. He had been charged in 1971 with importing narcotics into Canada, but the charge later was withdrawn.

Party Purge

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin said Sunday it will begin a purge March 1 that, unlike bloodbaths of earlier times, will rid the Communist party of unwanted members merely by failing to renew their cards.

TORONTO (CP) — Preliminary figures indicate a decline in the number of Grade 13 students applying for fall university admission, the director of the Ontario university application centre said Saturday.

PEKING (Reuter) — Western diplomats say there apparently has been a major breakthrough in Chinese-American relations during U.S. special envoy Henry Kissinger's visit here, crowned Saturday night by a long meeting with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Suit Filed,

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — A $500,000 damage suit has been filed in circuit court here against Arthur H. Bremer, the man convicted of shooting Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace last May.

The suit was filed by Dora Thompson, who was also wounded in the May 15 gunfire at Laurel shopping centre.

Whelan Says Food Prices Will Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices probably will continue to increase, says Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan but he maintains Canadians still get a better deal on foods than people in most other countries.

The federal minister told a panel of newsmen on the CTV program Question Period there are two main reasons for increasing food costs.

First, Canadians demand certain kinds of foods, ones that also are in great demand internationally and which are expensive to produce and which require long periods to become available in quantity, he said.

Second, food producers—farmers—are getting out of the business in Canada because "it is not a decent way of life for them."

Mr. Whelan said there was a scarcity of some of the foods Canadians wanted, and he used beef as an example.

"There's a real surge on beef all over the world and you can't not increase beef production in less than 3½ years or more likely four years."

"Even developing countries want more . . . and some of the countries that were exporting beef have stopped."

Canada exports some beef, the minister said, but it imports more than it exports.

On the other hand, pork production has gone down, he said. In 1971 the farmer was getting the same price for pork as he was in 1951, despite increases in feed and other aspects of production.

Farmers' incomes were too low, he said, and despite subsidies mentioned by panel members, such as lower prices for gas, farmers "can't make a decent income."

Peter Calamai, an Ottawa reporter, said Mr. Whelan had told the parliamentary committee that a family of four could buy food for $28.70 a week.

That would come to $125 a month out of about $150 a month, which is the highest amount paid to families on welfare, he said.

That would leave only $25 for clothing, utilities and household flooring, he said.

Mr. Whelan replied that Canada's welfare program "stacks up against any nation's in the world." He also said legislation is in the house on the CLB income and pensions is being planned.

The program was taped for broadcast Sunday

Schultz Sees Market Forces Solving Problems of Trade

WASHINGTON (CP) — Treasury Secretary George C. Shultz, in a television interview Sunday, said the United States is relying on natural market forces to help correct its trade deficit with Canada.

Under questioning by reporters on the CBS program Face the Nation, Shultz was asked specifically about the Canada-U.S. situation whereby Canada's floating dollar has moved with the U.S. dollar which was recently devalued, by 10 per cent.

"Well, one of the things we have been seeking—and we put this forward in a comprehensive effort at the International Monetary Fund meetings last September—is to get into the system more flexibility than it has had in the past.

"And I think one of our objectives in what happened this past week (devaluation) was to move in that direction.

"Now, the Canadians are floating—that is, the relative rates of exchange between their dollar and ours is presumably determined by market forces.

"And, we expect, that there will not be a lot of intervention by the (Canadian) government about what the market forces bring.

"So, we'll see, with respect to floats, what the market forces bring out in the way of the relationship between those currencies.

"If the market forces work right—and are allowed to work—it will help change patterns that are essentially leading to disequilibrium."

Broadcasters Defend Accord With Policemen

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Broadcasters (CAB) erected with glee Sunday to the reception given a series of guides recently made public by it and the Association of Chiefs of Police of Canada.

The tenor of most of the comments has been that the police will take control of news during times of crisis, regulating what can or cannot be reported.

"At best, many of these comments appear to represent an unfortunate misinterpretation by people who either have not read the document or have seriously misunderstood its content and meaning," a news release from the CAB said.

"At worst, some comments constitute an outright attack upon the integrity of this association and its members by those whose goal can only be to undermine public confidence in the broadcasting media and law enforcement officers.

"The aim of both national associations has been throughout—as it is today—not to seek any form of agreement, much less one binding on either membership and, most certainly not to seek any commitments which would, in any way, restrict the freedom of police officers or media to pursue their legitimate activities"

Ad Control

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia is interested in legislation to control advertising aimed at children, William Tetley, Quebec minister of consumer affairs said Friday.

Mr. Tetley said in an interview that he presented the B.C. attorney-general, Alex Macdonald, with written material on the section of the Quebec Consumer Protection Act related to advertising aimed at children.

Mr. Tetley said the material was given to Mr. Macdonald in Victoria Thursday and that "he liked it."

Plan Protest

TORONTO (CP) — About 600 delegates to the Ontario Anti-Poverty Conference voted Sunday in favor of a mass lobby at Queen's Park to press for stronger government action to end poverty in the province. No date was set for the demonstration.

The delegates, representing church groups, organized labor, helping agencies and community and citizens' organizations, also voted before the close of the three-day conference to set up a permanent 24-member coalition to co-ordinate anti-poverty activities.

Toronto Riot

TORONTO (CP) — The more than 10,000 persons who turned out to pay tribute to Toronto's police Sunday got a first-hand opportunity to see policemen in action.

Seven persons were arrested as skirmishes between Marxists and a right-wing group erupted. The 16 charges laid ranged from assaulting a police officer and obstruction to carrying dangerous weapons. One uniformed policeman was belted across the legs by a woman swinging a two-by-four but police said later no civilians were injured.

Out of Steam

TORONTO (CP) — A Quebec business leader said Saturday separatism seems to have "run out of steam."

Charles Perrault, president of the Employers Council of Quebec, told students at York University that the political strength of the Parti Quebecois seems to have levelled off after the 1970 provincial election when it was one in five voter.

Shot at Wedding

Witnesses said two masked men stopped the wedding party in front of the bride's house and demanded a box containing cash wedding gifts, carried by the best man.

A warning shot was fired when he refused. A man grabbed for the box containing about $3,000 and a struggle ensued.

MADOC — An estimated 2,500 people turned up in warm wintry weather here Sunday for the grand finale of this village's 1973 winter carnival — snowmobile races.

The races, under Ontario snowmobile Racing Federation B section sanction, ended the three-day carnival and attracted about 150 snowmobilers to the village fairgrounds.

Other race results: Stock, A-B, Bill Vermilyea, Belleville; C, Brett Cairns, Carrying Place; D, Bob McKenzie, Picton; E, D. G. Thom, Whitney. Modified, A-B, Vince Murray, Kingston; C, Claude Leclair, Tweed; D and open, Bill Ireland, Belleville. Junior, A-B, Tanney Hamilton, Ladies, A, Sandra Weese, Carrying Place; B-C, Sandy Cone, Foshoro; D, Doris Lips, Inglewood.

The winning coach felt that the key to his team's win may have been Dave Brant's victory over Jack Green of Moira in the 96-pound championship match. "I think that that match might have been the difference, along with Darrin D'Anna's second place finishin the 106-class." It was the first loss of the year by Green who has a 11-1 record opposed to Brant's 16-5 mark.

Mike Mayo gave Quinte its second individual championship in the 178-pound class, running his season mark to 26-1. Mayo's only loss came in the Pembroke tournament when he was beaten 16-3 by the Dahadian champion of his weight division.

"His strength is a big asset and he's picked up a lot of moves from other coaches," said Uhrynuk of his 178-pound standout.

"I guess he just didn't do anything last week. Maybe that's his secret," quipped Centennial's Pat Carty after Uhrynuk's Quinte team had battled their way to the Central Ontario Secondary School Association's wrestling championship.

Quinte qualified six wrestlers for the all-Ontario meet en route to piling up 62 points against the ten competitors from Central Ontario in Saturday's meet at Bayside. Duncan Hill High School finished second with 58 points while Oshawa's Eastdale accumulated 51½ and defending champion Milne 45.

"I really can't say what the difference was this week- I guess you just have to give the boys themselves the credit," said Uhrynuk of the first COSSA championship m a t team to represent Quinte. He competed in tournaments in Pembroke and Montreal during the year, as well as competition helped. Next year we'll try and get more tournaments in this district."

Cornwall Continues Slump

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

During the course of this season, it has been a very rare thing to see Drummondville Rangers playing overtime games in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League, let alone winning them.

But such a rarity occured Sunday when the last-place Rangers claimed a 3-2 win over Shawinigan Bruins on Denis Drolet's goal 13 seconds into the overtime period.

It was Drummondville's 11th win in 52 tries.

In other action Sunday, Quebec Remparts dumped Sherbrooke Beavers 5-2, Sorel Black Hawks downed Montreal Red Wings 4-3 and Hull-Ottawa Nationals 5-3 and Trois-Rivieres Ducs upset Cornwall Royals 7-4.

Remparts' goal scorers were Jacques Locas, Real Cloutier and Andre Savard while Guy Lafleur and Mario Desjardins replied for the Beavers.

Jean Beaulieu, with two, Daniel Duboc and Louis Chassen also tallied for the Ducs while Blair McDonald, John Wensink and Gary McGregor were the Cornwall marksmen.

In tonight's only league game, Quebec visits Laval Nationals.

Bowman Angry Despite Win Over Maple Leafs

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Scotty Bowman won't let sleeping dogs lie. The angry young Montreal Canadiens' coach was still fuming in Toronto Sunday after his National Hockey League East Division leaders nipped the Maple Leafs 3-1.

His angry mood was directed at referee Lloyd Gilmour's lenient in his allotment of penalties in the Toronto-Montreal game after he kept strictly to the book in Montreal where the Canadiens were upset 7-6 in a penalty-marred contest Saturday by Philadelphia Flyers.

"We should have won that one but we didn't," said Bowman, "but we got a bad game out of Gilmour."

"I thought there were a lot of key plays (he missed) that hurt us."

Asked if Gilmour's presence on the Toronto ice, following so closely his appearance in Montreal when the Flyers and Canadiens engaged in a Pier Six-style brawl that stretched the first 20 minutes of action over an hour, had much affect on his players, Bowman replied:

"It didn't help us, let's put it that way."

Only three penalties were called in the Toronto game — two to Toronto's Jim McKenny. Goals by Jim Roberts and Steve Shutt 26 seconds apart early in the second period nailed down the Montreal victory.

Elsewhere Sunday, Boston Bruins regained their winning touch, 4-1, over Chicago Black Hawks, while Buffalo Sabres defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1 and Philadelphia romped 5-1 over Minnesota North Stars and Los Angeles Kings beat California Golden Seals 4-2.

In other Saturday games, the scores were: Minnesota 5, Boston 2; Buffalo 3, Pittsburgh 2; and Toronto 6, Islanders 2; Detroit was also upset by Gilmour's officiating at Toronto but refused to be drawn into the criticism other than to make his head and admit: "What's the sense of squawking about the officials."

The game at Montreal drew a total of penalties at 15:35 mark when tough Dave Schultz took on both Serge Savard and Pierre Bouchard, an act that drew him double major penalties but had Bouchard tossed from the game after being the third man into the fray.

The game also marked Bobby Clarke's first three-goal night in the NHL, including the winner at 16:31 of the third period, and the return of Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden who was instrumental in the Canadiens' victory at Toronto.

Dryden, seeking his first action since he was sidelined with a back injury at Oakland on Jan. 12, replaced starter Michel Plasse after the young netminder drew his second minor of the game at 15:22 of the middle period.

Rangers held a wide edge in the play against the Islanders but they needed goals by Bobby Rousseau and Rod Gilbert in the last period to bust a 1-1 stalemate.

The victory enabled them to hold a four-point advantage on the resurging Bruins who join their first game under new coach Bep Guidolin Saturday.

The Bruins made second period goals by Derek Sanderson — his first since rejoining Boston after getting axed by Philadelphia Blazers of the rival World Hockey Association — Ken Hodge and Bobby Orr stand up.

The Flyers, who set two club records when Rick MacLeish scored his 30th goal of the year against Minnesota and took 20 minutes in penalties for a season total of 1,239, are at St. Louis Tuesday night while Vancouver entertains Boston and Pittsburgh visits the Islanders. Leaf coach John McLellan's it's too fast for instant adjustment."

Pollock said the Montreal club didn't intend to experiment with the walkie-talkie system in the near future.

SAM POLLOCK

Jim Gregory, general-manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, agreed with Pollock.

"We employ two people to handle statistics, I've usually have one or two of our scouts among the spectators, then we have our films to study the players' mistakes and that seems to be sufficient."

"It's really not a new idea, anyhow," Gregory said. "Bob Lemieux, coach of Fort Worth in the Central League, has been using Henry's system for several years. Anyway, we haven't time to think about it this season."

Johnny McLellan, Leaf coach, said he believed Henry's innovation had some merit, but he does not believe it is feasible unless hockey teams have assistant coaches behind bench, as they do in football.

"There's no way one coach can change lines, watch the play on the ice and handle a two-way radio without missing something important."

Jets Not Congenial As Host to Houston

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Jets have been anything but congenial hosts during Houston Aeros' weekend visit to the Western Canada city.

The Jets established a 12-point margin atop the World Hockey Association's Western Division race Sunday night, scoring three late goals en route to a 4-2 victory over the Aeros.

Winnipeg had swamped Houston 7-0 in the first of the back-to-back games at Winnipeg Friday night.

In other Sunday games, Minnesota Fighting Saints ran their win string to five, beating Chicago Cougars 7-5, and Los Angeles Sharks ended Philadelphia Blazers' five-game win streak at home, 6-1 loss.

Cleveland Crusaders, owned by the more than 8,000 fans who turned out to watch them in Cleveland Saturday, were upset 7-3 by Minnesota and lost ground in their battle with New England for top place in the Eastern Division when the Whalers beat Quebec Nordiques. Ottawa Nationals downed Chicago 3-1 in the only other game.

They'll get an opportunity to pad it at home Tuesday night against Alberta while the Whalers play host to Los Angeles and Chicago visits Quebec.

Winnipeg scored the third goal of the night with only 36 seconds left in the sudden-death 10-minute overtime period to give the league-leading Terriers the victory.

Claire Alexander scored twice for Houston and Moore and Henry Monteith added one each while Dave Nicholson and Norm Dupont scored the other Winnipeg goals.

Jim Watson scored the winner and Bill Sutherland scored the final goal with seven seconds remaining in the game and the Houston net empty in favor of an added attacker.

Duke Harris, for Houston, and Norm Dennis, for Winnipeg, were the game's earlier scorers in front of 7,262 Winnipeg fans.

George Morrison, Terry Ball and Bill Kiatt completed the Minnesota scoring as the team moved into second place in the Western race, one point ahead of Houston.

Many of the extra attacker didn't backfire on the Cougars, nor did they add to their totals.

Gary Edwards, trying to move ahead in the Eastern race after trailing the six-team division throughout most of the season, remained one point behind New York Rainers with the loss before 6,016 Philadelphians.

Pollock Not Eager To Adopt Grid Tactics

By LLOYD JOHNSTON

TORONTO (CP) — Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, said Sunday he believes the use of quarters by National Hockey League coaches would be only 50 per cent as effective as in professional football.

Pollock was commenting on a statement last week by Camille Henry, coach of New York Raiders of the World Hockey Association, who said he is employing spotters to sit in the seats and relay information to him behind the bench with two-way radios.

Henry said Sunday was "lagging behind" professional football in this respect and in several others.

Henry said he recently assigned defenceman Kent Douglas to sit in the stands and that he found it was beneficial.

"I wouldn't say the idea was stupid," Pollock said, "but how good it would work from period to period I don't know.

"Certainly, the coach can't see everything from behind the bench—but football is a different game here and too many things happening in hockey and

Minor Hockey Round-Up

Sprague Starts On Right Skate

Rick Sprague started his participation in the "AAA" OMHA windup-down against Kiwanis - Rotary on the right skate as he tallied a hat trick Sunday to lead the McIlmoyl-Maines bantam minors to a 5-4 victory.

Doug Shaw and Bob Crawford scored the other Bellevillie goals to give the McIlmoyl boys a win and a 1-1 tie with the Kiwanis - Rotary bantams. The Kingston club were forced to play catch-up hockey in their second outing as the Belleville team were leading them 4-1 at one point and held a 5-2 lead early in the third period.

In the playdown's opener Saturday, the Kingston team defeated the McIlroy - Maines bantams 4-2 in the best of five series. Randy Aitchinson and Crawford tallied Belleville's goals.

"Super Fly" Not Enough

Gary "Super Fly" Thompson provided the Blake Kerr Imperial midgets with a goal per game at the Brockville Minor Hockey Tournament over the weekend but his efforts were not enough to earn the Belleville club the "A" championship.

The Imperials came home from the eight team tourney as the "A" series runners-up to Ottawa - South Canadians who defeated the Belleville club 5-3 in the final.

Though the Imperials failed to win the tourney, they did have the satisfaction of defeating Cornwall who had won the overall championship at the Drummondville tourney which hosted 100 teams over a two week period.

Goalie Don Thompson earned the shutout in the 3-0 victory over Cornwall, who ended up as "B" champions, while Thompson, John Murphy, and Peter Crawford tallied for the Imperials.

The second game victory in the "A" series came with a little more difficulty as the contest was forced into a sudden death five minute overtime to break a 2-2 third period, final score.

Kinsmen Win

A pair of goals from Bob Chase and team captain Bob Thompson led the Belleville Kinsmen Club to a 6-2 victory over the Trenton Kiwanis Club bantam majors Saturday.

Rib McBrien and Paul Hayman provided the other two tallies for the Belleville OMHA "AAA" entry in their contest with the Trentonians. Hackett and Wilson provided the Kiwanis Club bantams with their two goals.

The Kinsmen, however, failed to come away from the home - and - home series with Trenton with another win Sunday as the final siren blew on a 6-6 tie. Paul Biskin provided two goals for the Kinsmen in this contest, while single tallies came from Tony Meagher, Paul Weeks, Chase and McBrien.

Rollins Win First Series

Danny Duffy scored two goals to help the Rollins peewees register to a 4-2 victory over Kingston Church Athletics and win the OMHA "AAA" playdown series win.

The Belleville club won the best of five playoffs 3-1 to put them into the second round of OMHA action against Oshawa Sports Villa Sunday.

The Rollins club didn't get a rest after their Kingston win as they had to meet the Oshawa club Sunday on the Memorial Arena ice.

The Oshawa club defeated the Rollins club 4-1 to earn a one game lead in the best of five OMHA second round playdowns. Peter Bane, Gary Lavroix, Mike Ferenc and Kevin Benton tallied for Oshawa who defeated Peterborough for the right to meet the Rollins Construction peewees.

Dixie Tied

Though the Kingston Church Athletics outshot the Belleville Dixie Lee Fried Chicken peewee minors 20-8, they could not come up with a win.

The final scoreboard markup read 4-4, despite a 10 minute overtime period in the third game of the OMHA "AAA" laydowns.

Goalgetters for Kingston CAL were Kent Peirson with two, Barry Shaw, Larry Garrah, Brian Larman, and Kevin Dickey with singles. The playoffs series now stands with each club having a victory and a tie to their credit.

In other weekend action, the Dixiemen were on the short end of a 4-3 score in an exhibition game with Bancroft peewees. Crawford, John Henry and Brad Miller were the Belleville club's scorers.

Georgetown Rink Wins Legion Curling Title

By JAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton's hometown rink skipped by Bruce Merklinger, failed to bring a fourth provincial curling title home at the end of the Royal Canadian Legion championship curling bonspiel this weekend.

The honors went to the Georgetown team led by Harvey Chappel, whose rink was organized just this year to contend the trophy.

Sunday's 9 a.m. start promised to end in a tie for the lead by both Georgetown and Exeter, with a 10th session on the ice for the afternoon. But Exeter, a team that emerged as a favorite early in the five-day bonspiel held at the Trenton Curling Club, went down to defeat by third-place Barrie, with a score of 8-4.

Harvey had good words for everybody, as did his teammates Ken Taplin, second Vice Gord Campbell and third vice Dune Moneypenny.

They all admitted that Bruce Merklinger's Trenton team had them "psyched out" as the start to best. It was the Merklinger rink that earlier this year beat out the long-time favorite Earl Jesse rink that brought home the Legion trophy for the last three years.

Georgetown's rink was the Merklinger and his crew early in the tournament. Trenton defeated Georgetown 8-6.

Three members of the Georgetown rink have played together before over the past two years in various rinks. But when it came time to select a replacement for a fourth member who couldn't show at Trenton, Dune Moneypenny was the choice. Dune was a member of another Georgetown team that Chappel and his crew beat out for the chance at the provincial title here.

Lancers Blow Playoff Chances

The Loyalist Lancer hockey and basketball teams had a noticeable lack of success in their four games over the weekend, losing their respective matches to Ottawa's Algonquin and Cornwall's St. Lawrence Colleges.

The Lancer's hockey club dropped a 7-5 decision to the Ottawa Cats while losing 6-3 to Cornwall in Ontario College Athletic Association play.

The Lancer's loss to the Cats knocks them out of the playoffs in the six team eastern division of the OCAA competition. "We had to win this game to get into the playoffs," said Lancer coach Bruce Cameron.

The Lancers had trouble against Cornwall, who have lost only one game during regular season action, according to Cameron. "We only went with three defencemen," said the coach, "they outskated us. We couldn't score on our power play and our third line scored two of our goals while the first only got one. The second was scoreless."

Bill Kyle again was the top scorer for the Lancers with 12 in the first game and 22 in the second contest. Ed Goody and Rob Chevalier provided the Lancers with 10 points each in the Cornwall contest.

Parks Gives Towers Trenton Novice Title

But what mattered to the Belleville club was not the number he scored but the time at which he scored his final tally. Parks provided the Towers club with the tie-up goal with 20 seconds remaining in the Grand Championship game against Kingston Centre 70s novice. His goal forced the game into two five minute overtime periods.

Parks, who earned Most Valuable Player of the Tournament recognition, took a pass from Rob Soule to earn the tie-up after Bob Wolfe had tallied two goals to pull the Belleville novices out of a 4-1 deficit late in the third quarter.

Despite a 4-4 score at the end of the two overtime periods, the Towers - Food City novices won the championship outshooting the Kingston Centre 70s 1-0 in the final five minutes.

The Belleville team was catapulted into the championship match after they had trounced Kingston Township 12-1 in the "B" championship final game. Parks, along with Soule, were selected as "stars" in the lopsided victory.

Parks led the Belleville goalgetters with four tallies, while Wolfe with two, and Lawrence Hanlon, who scored in the Grand Championship game, Soule, Charles Doran, Brad Burkholder, Tim Jacques, and Joe Guthrie tallied singles.

The Towers - Food City novices earned their "B" championship slot with a 4-2 win over the Trenton novices bough they lost a first round 3-2 decision at Kingston Township.

Parks scored two goals against Trenton, while Wolfe and Louis Crawford tallied singles. Scott and Cole provided the Trenton goals. In the first game, Danny Hounslow and Hanlon scored singles.

McDonalds Cold At Madoc

Exactly that happened at the Saturday's Madoc Tournament, as the Belleville McDonalds novice minors were forced to take a 10-minute break between the second and third period in their game with Stirling to thaw their cold toes.

Despite such cold weather hindrances, the McDonalds club earned a 3-0 shutout against the Stirling novices. Rick Cook provided the Belleville team with solid goaltending while Stu Emerson, Dave Gilby and Rick Mandeville provided the goalgetting.

With a first round victory under their belts, the McDonalds' team headed into the "A" round of the OMHA tourney, only to be defeated by the Cambellford novices, 6-4.

Belleville's Paul Hounslow and Campbellford's Art Nicholson both scored hat tricks to earn their respective teams, while Allen Derry provided McDonalds' other goal.

Picton's entry in the First Invitational Junior Curling Bonspiel came close to winning championship honors, taking their fast two decisions before an 8-3 loss to Barry Ray of Tweed knocked them out of contention.

Tweed Juniors Win Picton Bonspiel

PICTON — An invitational junior curling bonspiel, the first to be held at Prince Edward Curling Club in many years, last Saturday drew enthusiastic teams from throughout the Quinte area. The event was co-ordinated by the juniors group of the Prince Edward Curling club and is expected to become an annual feature according to one spokesman.

Overall bonspiel winner was the Barry Bay rink of Tweed with Barry Ray, skip, Lorraine Fargey, Paul Tummon and Julie Strahn. Runner up was the Trenton rink, with Mark Rittinger, skip, Barbara Havens, Deb Havens and Kim Fay.

Dolphin Trained as Spy

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS said Sunday a dolphin trained by the United States Navy has been used to place a detection device in a foreign harbor to find out what kind of atomic fuel the Russians are using in their nuclear submarines.

Morley Safer, a CBS reporter, said on the CBS program 60 Minutes that the planting and retrieving operation is one of a number of tasks being done by the navy's "biological weapons system" of trained dolphins, whales and sea lions.

Safer said the dolphin that placed the detecting device went back weeks later and retrieved it "for American intelligence analysis." He gave no further details.

CBS said the navy has classified almost all information on its $30-million sea mammal program "top secret."

CBS said it has learned that "the navy's dolphins have been trained to attack enemy divers, to ward off sharks, to place explosives and monitoring devices on ships."

Cars Fall Through Ice

ST. WILLIAMS, Ont. (CP) — Several fishermen were stranded here Sunday when their cars fell through the ice into Point Bay in Lake Erie, just south of Simcoe.

The cars were empty at the time.

Fred Howe, one of the owners of a store on the nearby shore, said he warned some of the drivers that the ice was too thin to support more than a few cars.

"I tried to discourage them but one got in and the rest thought it was a parking lot," he said.

However, he managed to save another car after the driver left the keys with him. Ten minutes after he drove the car to safety, the others went under.

"I've been here 16 years and I've pulled about 25 cars out of the bay," Mr. Howe added.

No Plans for Surcharge

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida White House indicated Saturday President Nixon plans no other immediate steps, such as a temporary import surcharge, to help cure the United States dollar crisis.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, asked about congressman Wilbur D. Mills' call Friday for an immediate 15-per-cent tariff surcharge on imports, said "we feel the recent adjustment in exchange rates is a step we are prepared to take at this time."

The devaluation, Ziegler said, is the best way "to deal with the trade deficit at this time."

Brigitte Becomes Bitter Hermit

PARIS (AP) — Actress Brigitte Bardot at 38 has become a bitter recluse who says she hates humanity, rejects children and suffers moments of melancholy when she has little interest in life.

The screen sexpot of the 1950s and 1960s, who drew headlines with her three marriages, a series of semi-permanent boyfriends and her sun-kissed life on the French Riviera, says she might quit the movies altogether when she is 40 and retire to a farm.

"I find my balance in nature, in company with the animals," the magazine L'Express quoted as saying in a rare interview. "I have two more years to prepare another existence."

Bardot turned 38 last September. She has made fewer and fewer movies in recent years and rarely turns up in the papers.

She has just finished Don Juan, directed by first husband Roger Vadim, who launched Bardot in the early 1950s. Advance publicity for the film has centered on a lesbian sequence where she is nude in bed with actress Jan Birkin.

"Even if Don Juan is not my last movie, it will be the one before last," Bardot told L'Express. "My profession is not the centre of my life."

Why does she want to change her celebrated life style?

"Why not? There are moments when one does not even feel like seeing one's friends. When one finds little interest in leading a life that, after all . . . what? What does one do from morning to night? Nothing thrilling . . .

"I say to myself, what am I doing? I am going around in circles."

"A man must protect a woman, and a woman must be comforter," she explained. But she made clear, as quoted by L'Express, that her fascination with men is drying up.

"I hate humanity. I am allergic to it. I see no one. I don't go out . . . I am disgusted with everything . . . Men are beasts, and even beasts don't behave like them."

"There is no question that I should bring a child into the world . . . people who make children are crazy." she replied, but if her life became more stable, she might try it, "although I don't have a very developed sense of motherhood."

Bardot has one son, Nicholas, who lives with his father, producer Jacques Charrier. When she is with the boy, "we play poker and he tries on my things, to see if there is anything he likes." the magazine quoted her as saying.

"Thank God he is being raised by his father. It is better for a boy, a woman would make a homosexual out of him."

Straight Man Taxing Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Being a straight man to a comedian can be a little bit like setting a friend up in business and letting him make the profit.

"The term straight man means just that. To play it straight and let the comedian be funny," says Harvey Korman of the Carol Burnett Show on CBS.

"It's hard. You can't just get any good actor. You need a chemistry—you must fit together. I seem to have the knack for fitting well with just about anybody."

Korman, 46, follows in the tradition of straight man—or second banana—dating back to vaudeville and bathhouse. But only up to a point. Korman's television role is second banana.

His old friend Tim Conway said: "In sketch comedy I don't think anybody hates him. It's like a finely tuned racing car. There's no way you can beat him.

"Harvey has done close to 1,000 sketches with Carol, and Danny Thomas before that. It's not always a different character in each one, but it's certainly a different attitude. Something has to happen to make people laugh every time, and he's done it."

Korman said he enjoys setting up a situation so that someone else gets the laugh.

"If the set up is not right, if the timing is off even a beat, the star is left with no laugh. Carol and I have been together so long that we anticipate each other."

Miss Burnett said: "Right from the start there was a chemistry. We work very much alike. We think alike on most sketches. It's almost like a marriage. Some people push sketch work, but it's really very difficult."

Miss Burnett said she feels it is important to be surrounded by talented people. "It only helps the show," she said.

Wedding Called Off

LONDON (CP) — British singer Screaming Lord Sutch has had to call off his wedding today to American model Thann Rendessy because he is single.

Feeling it would be unfair to deprive Thann of children, Sutch, 31, said the four-year romance would continue while he seeks a cure.

"I'm bitterly disappointed," he added.

After doctors broke the news to him last week, Sutch, who claims to earn $2,500 a week, said he wanted a doctor to take over his rock and roll heart operation which he rises out of a coffin.

"I have no brothers or sisters so I am the last of the Sutch line," he said.

Anne Is Leaving Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Singer Anne Murray says she has accomplished all she can in Canada.

"So I'm going to try England and I'm going to try the U.S." says the Springhill, N.S., girl who already has a gold record for selling a million copies of one song.

Snowbird, the hit was called, and with it her career snowballed.

But Miss Murray, despite her success, has no illusions about the music business outside Canada.

"I may not make a great impression on this business but I can assure you that I'll make some kind of a dent on it.

"If her current schedule is any indication, Miss Murray already has.

She appeared on the U.S. Johnny Carson TV show Friday night, did a concert at Toronto's Massey Hall Saturday, and went to Los Angeles Monday to act as host at a country music TV special.

She also faces a Toronto recording session, and the taping of her second CBC-TV special of the season. Then in April she tours England with singer Glen Campbell.

But she has refused pleas of her U.S. agent to move to Los Angeles even though she says "maybe I could have had five hits by now."

And she no longer accepts every offer that comes her way, not since "crazy 1971" when she finished a tour of Western Canada in Vancouver, having to take train quillisers.

"I didn't even have a manager. I was handling all the bookings myself, all the money and I was even doing the accounts."

Showbiz Shorts

OSLO (AP) — Fasko, a Norwegian police dog that was acclaimed by critics here Saturday as the best performer in Call of the Wild, a British-Norwegian movie of Jack London's classic novel, which had its world premiere here.

Director Ken Annakin was praised for his sequences illustrating the gold rush to Dawson in the Yukon, and especially the dogsled scene, shot in Norway.

"The big star of the film is Fasko, playing Jack London's Buck," says the newspaper Aftenposten, adding that Charlton Heston plays Thornton "without a false note."

LONDON (AP) — Nina Baden-Semper, 23-year-old Trinidad-born star of a popular British television series, Love Thy Neighbor, married an English clergyman Saturday. The groom is Rev. Jeremy Grant, 36, curate at St. Mary Magdalene Church, in London's outer district.

Robbins Wrecked

Robbins, 47, who has undergone two heart operations in 10 years, was racing down the front stretch when his Dodge veered into the concrete outer barrier and spun around several times. Two cars smacked into Robbins' wreckage.

Robbins had started the race 27th in the 40-car lineup. He had qualified at a speed in excess of 175 miles an hour.

Reject Program

LONDON (AP) — British unions rejected the Conservative government's tough, strengthened anti-inflation policies today and demanded a spending program paid for by taxing large corporations and the wealthy.

The union demand came in a policy statement that faced Britain with the prospect of a bitter confrontation between the administration and organized labor at a time when growing industrial unrest already is sapping the strength of the pound.

Lack Funds

TORONTO (CP) — The only residence for Canadian Indian girls in Toronto will be forced to close unless new funds are found shortly, its director says.

Andahsamun, which means "our home" in Ojibway, provides room and board and job counselling for Indian girls under 25 and can accommodate 14 girls at a time.

But the financial problem in keeping the home running has reached crisis proportions.

PoWs Healthy

CLARK AIR BAS' Philippines (AP) — Twenty ecstatic United States servicemen flew home from North Vietnamese prisons Sunday, the healthiest-looking prisoners to return so far.

About 1,500 greeters lined the flight line and cheered as the men walked on to a red carpet from the C-141 Starlifter jet that brought them from Hanoi.

36 Years of Safety

Jack Henderson, Saturday night in the Legion Hall was honored for his 36-year driving career without an accident. More than 200 commercial drivers received pins for accident-free driving. The meeting is sponsored annually by the Transportation Safety Association of Canada, represented here by Bob Newell of Peterborough.

Accident-free Record Started With Horses

On Oct. 4, 1929, he says, "I was working on the railroad but for three days I got a job hauling coal to Pine Street School. When my three days were finished he told me next night as well stay on and I did.

On Saturday night, Mr. Henderson was something of a guest of honor when commercial drivers got together for the annual meeting of the Transportation Safety Association of Ontario.

Mr. Henderson received a pin proclaiming he had driven accident-free for the past 36 years, a record for the Belleville area.

"Sure these pins are a great thing," says Mr. Henderson. "But I got a jar full of them at home that I don't know what to do with. They're real good for the young fellas."

More than 200 drivers attended the meeting held in the Legion auditorium representing 1,500 accident - free drivers and their employers. Clearly Orville Mr. Henderson's record are Dick Campbell with 32 years and Ron Rushton with 30 years. Both drivers are employed by Miara Schuler.

"There's no evasion he shouldn't beat me," says Mr. Henderson.

A horse would bring you home if you had a little too much to drink, he said, recalling the days prior to the truck.

The early ones sometimes didn't have heaters or even windows, he said.

Mr. Henderson at 64 years old, is the oldest driver of his company and drives the oil-coal truck, a 1965 Ford. "I'm not stuck on those diesels. Hard to climb in and out of," he said.

Mr. Henderson, who says the reason he has never had an accident is because he uses common sense and judgment, will probably not make his record 37.

But re the next annual meeting, he will retire from his career in January.

Mr. Henderson is happy, though. He says he owns his own home, has a big garden and a cottage in Huntsville, all to be taken care of.

Mr. Henderson's wife will have some company and both will have more time to visit their married daughter in Kingston.

Turner's 'Family Budget'

Taxes, Tariffs Cut Pensions Increased

By IRVING C. WHYNOT, CP Business Editor

That was Finance Minister John Turner's description of his Monday night budget in which he aliced personal income tax by at least five per cent, increased old age pensions and lowered sales taxes and customs duties on numerous consumer items ranging from cosmetics to fruit and vegetables.

The budget measures, he told a news conference following his appearance in the House, increase the take-home pay of average Canadians and put more money in their pockets.

And he said the benefits go to those who need them most— more than 70 per cent of the tax cuts to families where the breadwinner makes less than $10,000.

In a unique move designed to protect wage earners from the inroads of rising prices, income tax exemptions and rates will be adjusted starting in 1974 to compensate for inflation. Canada will become one of the few countries in the world with such a system. Progressive conservatives immediately noted this was part of their last election campaign.

'He's busy with the budget'

Calculated Risk

Mr. Turner said his expansionary budget designed to boost the economy and produce jobs—is a calculated risk.

"We recognize that we are running a risk and that the risk is on the side of overshooting," he told the Commons in referring to the possibility of stimulating inflation, a serious failure in the economy for the last several years.

"That is a risk worth taking at this time in the interest of dealing more effectively with unemployment."

Another risk he didn't mention directly was the political one of a minority government that must gain support from some opposition members to gain budget approval or face defeat.

The official opposition leader, Robert Stanfield, quickly said the budget fails to provide a coherent approach to the country's economic problems. But David Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said Mr. Turner had gone a long way toward meeting his party's demands.

Approval Expected

The immediate reading of political observers is that Mr. Turner has produced a budget that is generally acceptable by enough opposition members to get approval.

Since the new Parliament met Jan. 4 after the Oct. 30 election, the previous record in Canadian history—the minority Liberal government of Prime Minister Pearson has been kept in office through support of the NDP.

The Liberals have 109 seats to 107 for the Conservatives, 31 NDP, 15 Social Credit and two independents.

But Mr. Turner reaffirmed measures from his May, 1972, budget—never approved before the October general election—to reduce taxes paid by corporations and provide fast write - off for tax purposes on new equipment purchased by manufacturing and resource industries.

These were measures the NDP attacked during the election campaign as part of the so-called corporate rip-off—or lucrative concessions to big business—and Mr. Turner left open the general method by which he will ask the House to approve these measures.

Finance department officials said they will be brought before Parliament at a time and in a form to "best expedite their treatment in the House."

The implication is that he can bring them in separate from his

Monday budget proposals, if necessary.

That would mean that the government reserves on the budget proposals with NDP support.

But it might face defeat at a time of its own choosing on the decision to increase the NDP with the left-over 1972 budget resolutions, calculating that the Conservatives will jettison original support for them to take the opportunity to force a government defeat.

Income Taxes Cut

There were the highlights of the budget, clearly expressing a delicate balance between political expediency and economic policy:

—Income tax for individuals cut by five per cent, with a minimum of $100. That reduction effective Jan. 1, 1973, replaced a cut of three per cent that lapsed last Dec. 31 but the equivalent of a minimum means a tax reduction of much more than five per cent for many wage earners.

—Income tax exemptions raised and to be adjusted annually, along with rates, starting in 1974 to compensate for the effects of inflation.

—Old age pensions to be raised April 1 to $100 monthly from $86.61 due at that time and war veterans allowances to be raised by a similar amount.

—The 12 per-cent federal sales tax abolished on children's clothes and footwear and near-food products such as candy and soft drink.

—The 10-per-cent luxury tax removed from cosmetics, toilet articles and time pieces of under $50 wholesale.

—Family farms to be free of capital tax given when transferred from one generation to another.

—Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec and the four Atlantic provinces to receive more generous federal tax payments.

—Tax concessions to be made for small corporations in manufacturing with a promise of more help later.

Big Deficit Forecast

All told, the budget would leave the government with a 1973-74 deficit of $975 million, largest since the $2 billion in deficit a year of the Second World War.

Mr. Turner told the House the purpose of the budget is, first and foremost, "to bring about a substantial reduction in unemployment."

He predicted that by this time next year, 300,000 more persons will have full-time jobs.

At the same time, it was designed to reduce the pressures of inflation. This was necessary to maintain the competitive position of export industry, and to reduce the pressure of rising prices on family budgets.

The budget is aimed at increasing the real income and improving the standard of living of Canadians.

"It is aimed at ensuring that older Canadians share more fairly and more fully in the growing national prosperity.

"It is aimed at balanced economic expansion in all of the regions and at equitably in our growing wealth."

NDP Backs Turner

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic leader David Lewis said today that his party will support the minority Liberal government's new tax-and-tariff-cutting budget.

With 31 seats, the NDP hold the balance of power in the House and its support for Finance Minister John Turner's Monday budget temporarily assures the government's hold on office.

Mr. Lewis announced his party's intention to back the budget following a morning caucus meeting.

Mr. Lewis indicated shortly after the budget speech was read Monday night that the government had come a long way in its budget toward gaining NDP support.

Tax cuts, tariff reductions and an increase in the old-age pension were something his party had fought for for a long time, he said.

Mr. Lewis told reporters there was much in bill in the budget and that while his party remained poised to see retained corporate benefits announced in last May's budget, "they are not part of that budget."

The clear indication was that the NDP could continue to support the Liberals until the government brought in bills to remove corporation taxes and provide fast depreciation allowances.

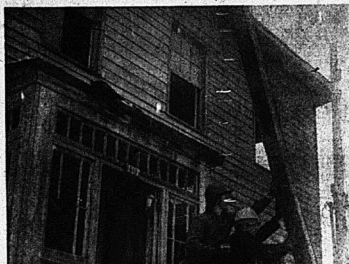
Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said he was flattered the government had borrowed his proposal to take inflation into account when considering income taxes. But he said the budget lacked an effective attack on the rising cost of living although proposed tariff changes might have an effect in some sectors.

Pensions Go to $100 April 1

OTTAWA (CP) — The basic old-age pension will rise to $100 a month April 1 and war veterans' allowances also will be increased, Finance Minister Turner announced in his budget speech Monday night.

The old-age security pension now is $82.88 a month. It was to have gone to $86.61 on April 1 under a cost-of-living adjustment announced last year.

That formula is superseded by the straight $100 a month for this year but it will take hold again April 1, 1974.



The guaranteed income supplement paid on the basis of need will be boosted by a maximum $78.14 from $67.12 due under the cost-of-living formula April 1. So the total maximum for a single pensioner would or $178.14, now is $156.

A couple over 65 could receive a combined total of $334.60 a month—basic pensions plus maximum supplement—compared with $288 now.

For disabled veterans, Mr. Turner announced an increase in the basic allowance to $121 per month from $121 for single persons and to $257 from $217 for married persons.

Another Landmark Disappears

The old Simpson Tavern at the corner of Dundas and Front Streets, which more than a century ago was a stopping off place for travellers, is going under the wreckers' hammer. The old frame structure built about 130 years ago, has been vacant in recent years and is being razed to make way for a combination chicken take-out, gasbar and car-wash.

Farms Freed from Gains Tax While They Stay in Family

OTTAWA (CP) — It took almost two years but the federal government now has conceded that its capital gains tax—as originally enacted—would have had an undesirable effect on the family farm.

Tax changes announced in Monday night's budget will make family farms wholly exempt from the capital gains tax so long as the farms remain in the family. Definition of family is to be spelled out in regulations.

When the capital gains tax was presented to Parliament in 1971, opposition critics and farm spokesmen complained that it would kill the family farm.

Under the capital gains tax provisions effective Jan. 1, 1972, the tax was levied on the value of a farm when its owner died, even if he left the farm to his children.

The change announced Monday night, however, is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1972, and thus in effect means those provisions were never in existence.

In his budget speech, Finance Minister John Turner said that the question of preserving the family farm is of great importance.

Under the present rules, when a farmer dies and leaves his farm to his children, he is treated as if he has sold his farm at its fair market value," Mr. Turner said.

"Therefore a tax liability at that time when there has been no real sale may leave the family of the deceased farmer with no alternative but to sell out.

"To remedy this problem, I propose that . . . when a farmer dies and leaves his farm to his children, there will be no deemed sale of his farm land".

Ceasefire Arranged In Laos

VIENTIANE (AFP) — A ceasefire agreement ending the war in Laos and creating a new national union government was initialled here today Premier Souvanna Phouma and Pathet Lao representative Phoumi Vongvichit, a Pathet Lao source said.

The ceasfire will come into effect at noon local time Thursday, the source reported.

The military and political agreement is to be signed formally by representatives of the government and the Neo Lao Haksat—political arm of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao—on Wednesday.

The signing will end the agreement calls for a halt to all military activities by the two sides on their present positions, and an end to all intervention by American aircraft.

The agreement also provides for the simultaneous creation of a provisional government of national union and a political consultation council, the source said.

THE WEATHER

The cold air will move slowly southward today, reaching the lower lakes this afternoon. The west will notice less the north and temperatures drop from the 30s into the 20s. Bobbies Kill Two Armed Intruders

LONDON (CP) — Three armed intruders, their faces covered with stocking masks, invaded the Indian high commission building today, beat and tied up employes, and then shot it out with British police. Two of the raiders were killed and the third injured, Scotland Yard said.

A Yard spokesman said the injured raider was arrested. One policeman, an Indian official and two bystanders were treated for shock and minor injuries at nearby hospitals.

The raiders were of Indian or Pakistani origin, all men in their 30s, police said.

The intruders barged into the India House building towards the end of the morning rush-hour period.

"They held up the staff, tied some of them up and began knocking others about," a police spokesman said.

Shortly after the alarm was sounded, police surrounded into the building, among them members of the special patrol unit who are normally trained as marksmen.

"As they came in they were threatened by a man with a revolver," the police spokesman said.

The officers fired back. As a result two of the intruders are dead."

Administrator Arne Nielsen

County Appoints New Administrator

PICTON — Arne Nielsen, a 54-year-old native of Denmark this month officially assumed his duties as welfare administrator for Prince Edward County. A lawyer in Denmark he emigrated to Canada 15 years ago and resided in Toronto until now.

Mr. Nielsen has been employed by the provincial government in the consolidation of municipal welfare since 1964 and in that year spent several months in Prince Edward to assist in establishing a county welfare unit here.

Prince Edward was the second county in Ontario to adopt a system of consolidated municipal welfare. Wentworth County being the first in 1963. Mr. Nielsen said yesterday that now approximately 75 per cent of the province is covered by such units.

The new welfare administrator, a replacement for Miss Nevalda Lagroix who resigned last December to take a new post, said his department will provide the basic services outlined in provincial legislation. Co-operation with other agencies will be stressed since it is important to utilize all resources in this area and avoid an overlapping of services.

"This is a waste of manpower and a waste of money," asserted Mr. Nielsen as he discussed possible duplications of services in certain areas.

He termed one of his department's biggest functions the act of channelling problems to various specialists who are equipped to handle them.

"In the meantime, we will provide all the financial assistance we can provide and all the practical advice we can give," he said.

Mr. Nielsen explained such "practical advice" is called objective counselling.

He spoke of the welfare situation in Prince Edward County, noting that the need for assistance has dropped in the past year. In August, 1972 statistics showed that 1.7 per cent of the population was receiving general welfare assistance but in 1971 2.8 per cent had received help.

Mr. Nielsen described winter works programs as "a blessing for us" since many unemployed persons can be placed in a controlled work situation. Old work habits can be relearned as the worker receives gradual exposure to full-time employment and its demands. Objective counselling helps the individual to improve his work habits.

Although several members of Prince Edward County council questioned at one point approximately two years ago that welfare recipients were flocking here from other areas, this problem is no longer evident.

Mr. Nielsen said a surplus of vacant homes in the county at that time induced welfare recipients to gravitate here where their shelter allowances could cover rentals. In larger cities such as Toronto, the maximum shelter cost could not pay for the comparatively high rents charged.

The housing situation in Prince Edward has changed in the past two years and a shortage of houses has increased rents. Outsiders no longer move to the county expecting to pay substantially less for accommodations.

Mr. Nielsen is assisted in his job by one field workers, Evelyn Beaumont and Robert Dixon and a stenographer Beverley Perry.

The new welfare administrator is married and he and his wife have two daughters.

Trailer Residents Get A Reprieve

TRENTON — Trailer court residents in the town's east end have a bit more time to live their lives in their trailers, that is.

At last night's town council meeting, a recorded vote at first reading of a by-law to authorize licensing of mobile trailer homes at $100 a year, was defeated.

Councillor John Bonn called for a recorded vote with himself, George Greer and Peter DeGroot voting against the by-law, as they did when the original motion was passed several weeks ago. Bob Councillors Robert Patrick and Edward Todd voted in favor.

Mayor Duncan McDonald, who broke the tie resolution vote bringing about defeating of the bylaw, tied the decision 3-3. Councillor Ronald Price, who voted for the motion earlier this year, was absent from the meeting.

Councillor Bonn said before calling for a recorded vote on the exact wording of the bylaw he was much hopeful than originally proposed. Town deputy clerk Arden Royce explained the wording was recommended by the town's solicitor, John Miller.

Councillor Bonn pointed out the bylaw had been defeated by the council sitting at the time. Mayor McDonald reminded him that the resolution supporting the bylaw was passed by a full council.

Ald. W. Larry Town clerk, checked the town's procedural bylaw, reported that a full vote is constituted a defeated vote. The matter can be introduced again at a later date.

The subject of licensing trailer courts has been a touchy one. Owners of the view, who pay for virtually all of their services, say they may be forced out of business if they have to raise monthly rents to compensate for licences.

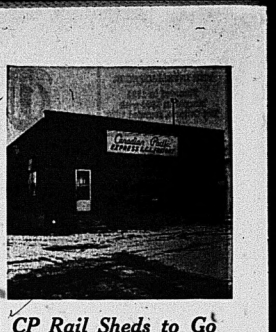
Price could return and cast the deciding vote, rather than wasting time on a tie vote.

Dr. Bonn then demanded to know if Mayor McDonald was attempting to manipulate voting.

"Would this same consideration be given for any future bylaws that might come up, if a council member is absent.

"Does this mean," he queried, "that we're not going to make any decision unless there is a full council for any contested bylaw?"

He said if the mayor gave his assurance that such would be the case "I could actively agree to this.



"But if you're going to say that for this situation we're going to have a special ruling on what's present or who isn't — at the discretion of the chair, I can't agree to this."

Councillor Bonn pointed out the bylaw had been defeated by the council sitting at the time. Mayor McDonald reminded him that the resolution supporting the bylaw was passed by a full council.

Ald. W. Larry Town clerk, it would result in a tie vote.

Howard St. Fire Costly

Fire destroyed most of a bedroom and caused heavy smoke and water damage in a Howard Street home Monday afternoon.

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culbard estimated damage to the 2 Howard St. residence of P. G. O'Neill at $2,000.

The fire apparently started in the blaze was well under way when firemen arrived shortly after receiving the 3:42 p.m. call.

They managed to confine the flames to the upstairs bedroom but smoke spread throughout the house.

A mattress in the bedroom was badly burned along with a radio, dresser and clothes in a nearby closet.

Swing Cost $75

A Trenton area man who claims he took a swipe at a restaurant owner while defending his wife's honor was fined $75 for common assault Monday.

James Patrick said in provincial court he became incensed when the owner of Glen Miller Food Villa, Ross Murrell, accused Patrick's wife of not doing enough work during her employment at the snack bar.

Dog Aids Identification

The St. Bernard mystique is alive and well. Just ask Steve Lahey.

Mrs. Labelle, wife of Richard Labelle who owns Ralco Electric Ltd. of Belleville, testified in provincial court Monday that even a confirmed mammoth can emerge a hero.

Her pet, a shaggy-coated female, was being punished last May 19 for scavenging on 50 light bulbs at the Ralco warehouse she guards on Dundas Street North. Labelle had placed her in a hallway, carefully closing all exits.

Later that night, Mrs. Labelle was awakened by the Belleville Police Station to identify a pair of scissors found on a suspected thief. She was able to identify them as hers by their best blades and lumps of tape. Convicted Monday of the crime, the result, she said, of opening the food cans for the Bernard.

Mrs. Labell's evidence was enough to convict William Allan Hogan of 34 Great St. James St., charged with break, enter and theft. Another youth, Charles Benson of the same address, had a similar charge against him dismissed by Judge J. A. Clendenning.

Milligan, 18, and Benson, 17, were picked up by Belleville police early Nov. 29 carrying two cases of beer, two cases of wine and a case of frozen steaks across a parkette lot opposite Hope's Steak House. Both pleaded guilty to "possession of stolen property."

Milligan was also carrying the scissors.

In addition, the former Stirling resident pleaded guilty to possession of a stolen tape player — worth more than $200 — recovered Nov. 18.

He and Benson were remanded in custody. Milligan will be sentenced March 12 while Benson, previously convicted for a Stirling theft, is to be sentenced next Monday.

Highrise Permit Sought

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

In an apparent move to beat passage of the city's proposed bylaw freezing construction of multiple family structures in the city's B zoned district, a local real estate firm today made application for a permit to build an 83 unit apartment on Highland Ave.

The application was made by Cecil Garrett of Barry and Turnbull on behalf of Unnamed Toronto principals.

The requested permit calling for construction of a seven-storey structure costing more than $1-million is being held by the city building inspector pending provision of a complete set of plans and other information.

Before building permits are issued, normal procedure calls for checking into the capacity of sewer services in the area and to make certain the lot size is sufficient to allow necessary building setback.

Mr. Garrett told The Intelligencer he was going to Toronto this afternoon to see if the necessary drawings were available.

He said plans may have to be changed somewhat but apparent intention was to build a seven - storey, 83-unit structure for adults without children. Rentals would be from $20 to $30 a month less than for similar facilities elsewhere, it was stated.

Site of the proposed development is across from the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Lot numbers are 71, 81 and 83 Highland Ave. The project would entail the demolition of three existing residences.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said that permits for such projects are seldom if ever issued on the day of application.

"The building inspector has to check on services and other matters before a permit can be issued," he said.

And in view of the present controversy over the construction of high rise apartments in Belleville, and in light of the proposed bylaw to eliminate new multiple family housing from the city's B district, Mr. Reynolds said the permit application would undoubtedly be referred to city council.

The amending bylaw freezing multiple family housing construction in the B district will be before council next Monday.

Kinsmen May Lower Limit

A motion to lower the age of admission to the Kinsmen Club of Canada to 18 was passed at last-night's meeting of the Belleville Kinsmen Club.

The motion does not mean that 18-year-olds can join the club yet. It will be taken to a district convention later this year, and before a national convention in 1974. If passed by the national meeting the 18 year-old admission policy will come into effect.

Correction

TRENTON — In a story in Monday's Intelligencer, Mrs. Barbara King was referred to "as a part-time lounge."

The error resulted when a piece of type was inadvertently misplaced. The story should have read "As a part-time waitress in a local dining lounge. . . ."

Library Shut-in Service Growing

Belleville Public Library opened in 1972 with a budget of $179,266, it was revealed at its annual meeting.

The city of Belleville put up $117,277 of the budget, $117,277.

Most of the remainder came from the province ($39,000). Amongst other receipts were: desk receipts ($2,972), the County Trust ($1,000) and the Johnson Fund ($661).

Staff salaries accounted for the major expenditure of $109,265. Cost of buying books and films was $27,930. Operating and maintaining buildings cost $18,453 and purchase of equipment and supplies cost $11,913.

Miss Olive Delaney, chief librarian, reported that 315,423 books were circulated in 1972. More than 150 books a month were delivered to shut-ins, including those in two nursing homes.

"Judging by the number of requests for books from people who are unable to come to the library, this will develop into a very vital and important feature of library service," said Miss Delaney.

The number of registered borrowers rose by about 1,000 last year over the 1971 total of 20,802. Total number of books circulated was 315,423.

Since the Belleville library was made the headquarters for the Regional Film Library, the loan of films has increased, Miss Delaney reported.

The basement gallery, frequently used for meetings and exhibitions, now houses the reference library. The move is temporary and was made necessary by the construction of the library extension.

Municipalities Confer On Seniors' Housing

TWEED (Special) — The possibility of the townships of Elzevir and Hungerford entering into an agreement with the village of Tweed to allow their participation in the operation of a senior citizen housing complex is being investigated by the three municipalities.

Under OHC regulations, rural municipalities may enter into agreements for participation in senior citizen housing but the units must be erected in an urban centre with sewage and water services.

Tweed already has an agreement with OHC for the erection of 20 senior citizen units' while the site chosen has room for an additional 20 units.

The meeting with Elzevir and Hungerford reeves followed at a special meeting of Tweed council to consider applications for the position of village police chief.

Some weeks ago Tweed Chief Bill Carroll tendered his resignation and five applications have been received for the position. Monday evening council narrowed the field to three applicants who will be called in for personal interviews.

City's Oldest Building Falling

Not that Simpson's Tavern, built more than 150 years ago, may have attracted much general attention for the end of it.

The two-storey wood building has stood in unabashed solitude — vacant for years — at the Dundas - Front Streets intersection.

Its dilapidation gave little hint of anything but seedy old age. As the intersection became a major crosstown traffic junction with construction of the Dundas St. bridge, the majority of passersby became motorists, with little time to give the rundown structure much thought.

Nonetheless, it could still lay claim to being the oldest extant building in the city, a site cherished by local historians.

It was erected in 1830 by John Simpson, son of early settlers, a few years after the settlement of Meyers Creek changed its name to Belleville, years before the community was incorporated as a village, more than a half-century before it was officially designated a city.

The hostelry — as now was said to contain traffic route — the line of the York Road linking the capital of Upper Canada with the east. Sold five years later, it was converted into a private residence by William Wallbridge.

Now it's rapidly being torn apart. Purchased by a Toronto firm, the site is now being cleared for a business enterprise.

Recently, Rodger Greig, city arts teacher, historian of Belleville architecture, told the Hastings County Historical Society a gasoline service centre was scheduled for the spot. But no official announcement has yet been made by the owners.

No building permit has yet been requested, the city hall building inspector's office reported yesterday. Only one document has been issued — to the Toronto office of M. W. Hayman: A permit for demolition.

Brief demolition of the old building is now well under way.

Four-year-old Does 100 Laps

With true team spirit, the plucky four - year - old completed a hundred laps of the Bay Park Mosque ice pad overnight for observation in the base hospital at CFB Trenton.

Hospital officials report Cpl. Kenneth McLeod, 24, is in satisfactory condition today. He received lacerations to the head and a bruised hip.

Cpl. McLeod was crossing 6RD Road at about 6:35 p.m. when he was knocked down by a truck driven by William Sandercock of Sidney Township.

292 Skaters in Event

PICTON — A skate-a-thon sponsored by the Picton and district minor hockey association last Saturday was described by chairman Jeremy Vincent as "a particularly successful venture." Pledge totals are not yet available but it is known that the fund-raising event received wide support. A total of 292 skaters took part.

Two participating teams, the Canucks and the Quakers, obtained 840 sponsors for the skate-a-thon held at the County Centre in Picton. These teams each donated 100 per cent participation. Coach for the Canucks is Lionel Gerline while coaches for the Quakers are, Carol McNeil and Nancy Douglas, students at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Prizes of hockey jackets will be awarded to the skaters with the most money turned back in each division. A grand prize of tickets for a team for an NHL game in Toronto also will be awarded. Winners will be calculated on the basis of the average per player of money turned back.

Mr. Vincent attributed the success of the skate-a-thon to its supporters and mentioned Douglas Reynolds, Ken Ireland, John Ferguson, Wayne Ring, Eileen Mechell, Maureen Hall, Anne Vincent and Gail Ferguson.

REAL ESTATE:

How Much Should a Realtor Know?

Ed McKinney
B.A., M.Sc. (Agric)
Realty Ltd.

Broadly speaking, there is no limit to the store of knowledge about his community that a reputable Realtor needs in order to serve his clients most effectively.

He must be an ace at using laws, both current and those pending. These laws directly affect the use and therefore the value of real estate.

He must have knowledge of proposed subdivisions, new building codes and health regulations. He should be the first to know of new industries coming into the community, new schools to be built; and he should possess a basic knowledge of real estate law and property tax laws.

Such information is gained by constantly talking to community officials concerned with the making of such changes, attendance at planning and council meetings where they are being debated and by studying zoning maps.

The most valuable service a Realtor can render his client — either buyer or seller — is counsel on the wisest moves to make in the light of such information. This is not simply to avoid a bad move, but to take advantage of opportunities that a property offers which may lay hidden from less knowledgeable eyes.

The Historic View

Moira secondary school teacher Rodger Greig's stimulating and analytical survey of some of Belleville's more interesting historic piles will have caught the reader's eye.

It is sad though at this stage to read of the now demolished St. Agnes Manor as a building which in Mr. Greig's view "would have stood for another 1,000 years" and made a more attractive home for the new county museum than Glanmore House. Mr. Greig does not mention the fire hazard that was know to exist at St. Agnes, but in any event its demolition is now a fait accompli and the anticipated high-rise apartment building already something for the mind's eye.

As for the old MacKenzie Feeds warehouse on South Front street we have passed it many times without being aware of its origin. Mr. Greig clearly has high regard for its architectural qualities and deplores the fact it also may be erased, in this case from its Foster ward setting.

Then there is the old Simpson Coach House at Front and Dundas — another destined for the wrecker's ministrations, with a gas station scheduled for erection in its place. It has stood derelict for some years now, since fire put an end to its more recent rooming house status. Unfortunately, the intervening years have been monuments to lost opportunities for a more glorious future at this corner.

This raises another question in keeping with what is now contemplated on the site — that is, access to and departure from the gas station. Somehow we cannot see this being an easy matter, given the flow of traffic at this point, and bearing in mind the fact that another gas station across the street folded.

Progress Somehow

The news from Northern Ireland as ever is unnerving — if it is possible, that is, to react any more to such apparently unrelenting terror and disorder. But wait a moment, is this all that is happening there? Of course not — and succeeding issues of Ulster Commentary prove it.

Despite the difficulties, there is economic progress. New plants, schools, hospitals and so on are being established. Industrial production has risen 11 per cent in the past two years and, incredible as it may seem, production in 1971 was higher than any of the leading industrial nations — six times greater than the United Kingdom as a whole and higher than West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, the United States, Canada, Sweden and Japan.

Living as they do under such singularly difficult circumstances has, if anything, stiffened the traditionally tough fibre of Ulstermen. Nevertheless, they are only human and, without necessarily forfeiting sympathy, it is natural that they have a warm regard for those who stand by them in these trying times.

Thus, when the celebrated New Zealand All Blacks rugby team ignored warnings and the example of others who stayed away, to fulfill a fixture in Belfast in recent months, they received a tremendous welcome from the big crowd of fans.

As Daily Mirror writer Chris Lander put it: "The All Blacks ignored the dangers that have terrified off other leading sportsmen. . .." Moreover, he felt the visiting team's example would encourage other sporting bodies to re-establish links with Ulster.

Ulster Commentary also notes that the Daily Express sportswoman of the year award went to Mary Peters of Belfast who was Britain's only gold medal winner (in the pentathlon event) in the Olympic Games. She succeeds Princess Anne, last year's winner.

Since these events of course there has been further violence among the unruly factions that plague certain elements of the population and who, unhappily, receive a lot of publicity. If somehow even these people can be persuaded to embrace civilized codes of conduct, it will be a time for rejoicing in that part of the world.

Executives Galore in $18,000 to $27,000 'Clover'

The Incredible Salary Scales of Canada's Bureaucrats

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Ask yourself this question, suggests New Democratic MP William Knight of Assiniboia . . . where on earth could you work where one of every three members of the staff makes more than $18,000?

Easy question . . . in the Industry Trade and Commerce Department, and, he suspects, almost certainly in just about any other federal government agency.

Then ask yourself this question, goes on Bill Knight . . . where could you work where your job at the $18,000-plus executive level is so secure, regardless of performance or non-performance, that you can applaud clear up to the Supreme Court of Canada against dismissal . . . where on earth.

Right again . . . in Industry Trade and Commerce and if likely anywhere else across the vast federal empire now expanding, according to Statistics Canada, 417,487 subjects.

Talking to Bill Knight and looking at the salary statistics he is extracting from the government, finally you have to ask yourself the question . . . what am I doing anywhere where I am when perhaps I, too, could be deep into the federal clover?

When confronted with the salary scales, the security, the fringe benefits and one of the country's best pension plans, there seems no sensible answer . . . except maybe that you never realized before just how good it can be working for the government.

The situation seems to fascinate Mr. Knight, for he has been pursuing it since he first took out after Statistics Canada last August and discovered that in three years there had been a 133 percent increase in the number of employees topping $18,000.

He said at the time that the astonishing expansion in Statistics Canada's executive suite was the result of the government "lifting more statisticians to pile up more statistics" to give the appearance of being busy at problem solving.

He saw Statistics Can's 133 percent increase in its $18,000-and-over salaries as "one of the worst examples of Parkinson's Law running wild."

But that was before he started asking questions about Industry Trade and Commerce salaries.

He asked just two simple questions . . . how many full time employees are there, and how many of them earn more than $18,000?

He has received the answers from Industry Trade and Commerce Minister Alistair Gillespie and finds the situation, as he puts it, "a sheer public outrage".

Mr. Gillespie informed him that 2,272 people work for the department.

And 691 — or about one in three — do better than $18,000.

Of these, 605 top $20,000.

The big bulges in the department's executive payroll are between $21,000 and $22,000, with 199 in that bracket and with another 112 "at the $26,000 to $27,000 level.

Pondering that neat-700 executive total, Bill Knight wonders who, in the staff of 2,272, apart from the customary quota of secretaries, clerks, stenographers and messengers, is left to do what.

He calls it "Fat Cattism gone mad."

So he is asking after the federal establishment agency by agency, on the basis, as he puts it, that "a question a day keeps the empire - builders at bay."

He hopes.

"Now, that's what I call a 'dollar crisis'!"

Nixon Turns to Environmental Issues

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — Ecology or economy — or rather the thorny question of how much of which — shines through President Nixon's call to the United States Congress to enact 19 administration environmental bills left over from last year.

High administration officials indeed, the president himself — speak of crisis. has been done and what remains to be done in an environmental sense, always with reference to the hard fiscal facts of life.

Nixon, in referring to his administration's refusal to spend $6 billion of the $11 billion authorized by Congress for sewage pollution treatment plants, says:

"Spending more money would not help us more pollution control facilities, but only more expenses."

It's a stand taken by William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, who has said recently in interviews:

We are able to absorb these water pollution expenses now, hopefully, without raising taxes. There's a lot of money being poured into the economy, and if we get into an economic slump again as we did a couple of years ago, we could get into big problem. The fiscal impact doesn't really hit until about 1977-78, because that's when the money becomes due."

The economy measure will save money in the long run because it will act as a brake on a climbing inflation rate.

Nixon says he proposes a plan to assure the U.S. of adequate supplies of energy at "acceptable economic and environmental costs."

Here again, there is caution as Ruckelshaus hedges the energy question against other air standards to which Nixon agrees with pride when he says:

"Day by day, our air is getting cleaner. In virtually every one of our major cities, the levels of air pollution are declining."

Ruckelshaus's caution comes from his admitted fear that it may become necessary, under some emergency situation, to relax restrictions on the burning of pollution-causing fuels such as coal with a high sulphur content, because, as the president warns:

"We are now consuming more energy than we produce."

Ruckelshaus has said, however, that it would be both unwise and unnecessary to lower over-all federal air quality standards for this reason. However, some states — fighting winter energy shortages — have been forced to do exactly that with their state standards.

Nixon has also detailed proposals to deal with damage to the environment from uncontrolled use of land, strip-mining controls and bills to revise policies of public-land management and mining and mineral leasing laws.

And here again there is conflict as energy needs clash with ecological and environmental needs.

It was under 30-year-old leasing laws — almost on a whim of history — that the proposed vast 800-mile trans-Alaska oil pipeline foundered in U.S. Appeals Court a week ago.

The line has been entangled in legal red tape for more than two years as domestic oil stocks run low.

But if the 1920 leasing law has teeth, advocates of strip-mining fear that a proposed new law on that subject has not.

Officials familiar with the drafting of the bill say — despite presidential assurances — the new strip-miner measure is not as strong as the one ignored by Congress last year.

Are Schools Over-Administered?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Apropos the letters to the editor on the subject of effective language.

The inability of today's students to communicate effectively has been apparent for a long time. The fault lies entirely with the Ministry of Education.

Charged with the responsibility of initiating curriculums that ensure the in-depth teaching of the three "Rs" they have chosen instead to emphasize and promote the so-called "free expression" approach.

This system that has most of its top educators playing administrative roles it is small wonder our standards are dropping. If we turfed out all our administrative educators and sent them back to the classroom where they belong we would be doing them and the students a singular service.

The inability to effectively express oneself is not restricted to the student population. All levels of government, civil service, and businesses alike suffer from an over-abundance of over-paid, semi-illiterates — all victims of our educational system.

English is a difficult language to master, and few of us succeed in attaining the degree of fluency we aim for. Nevertheless, upon leaving school everyone should be able to express himself clearly. Unfortunately, after 12 years or so exposure to our educational system, this, all too often, is not the case.

Mary C. Dolvin, writing as Head of the Department of English, Albert College, certainly did not convey her thoughts as clearly as Dragnet Taxpayer writing on the same subject. To me she was a victim of the very thing she was deploring.

Without resorting to heavy tomes on the subject, students wishing to improve their communication ability would do well to study the construction of newspaper and magazine articles in The Intelligencer editorials and the Royal Bank's monthly newsletter.

Economics of Mail Strike

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With regard to the recent strike the postal authorities tried, albeit not too successfully, to increase the workload of Belleville carriers without paying them for their added work. Management defended its actions by saying spreading practices would obviate the need to hire one more man. The plan reported saving $7,300 per year. The cost of taxi service of about $4,400 annually was deemphasized most effectively and the carriers who struck for fair compensation were made to look like the villians in the piece.

The lost direct and indirect revenues resulting from the strike is estimated at $75,000. That is apart from the expenses suffered by businesses and government who hired couriers to transport their mail. As our city is rapidly expanding the solution was a stopgap measure at best and an additional carrier, physical limitations of carriers being the key, will have to be hired within months. So what was gained by all the furore: the taxi companies won a substance of business and business.

Ten years ago Canada prided itself in having the most efficient and rapid postal service in the world. Then the government hired consultants to analyze postal operations. The package was bought without question. The outcome: the elimination of railway postal services, Saturday delivery at general - delivery rural post offices; shrinkage of open hours; reduction in the volume of mail transported by air carriers; contracting out of mail pickup; less frequent deliveries between and within municipalities; reduction in the number of postal boxes on city streets and the acquisition of inadequate postal sorting equipment.

Little wonder the postal service is virtually paralyzed, the taxpayers have less confidence in it, revenues have declined by hundreds of millions of dollars per year, and the cost of mail delivery gone up so drastically.

The government seems to suffer from tunnel vision. They see one square inch of the economic complex and are quite blind to the remaining 99 percent.

While we are now paying millions of dollars annually for a postal service which is foreign stockholders, it is known fact, in a secure job environment, humans can still sort mail and distribute it as fast or faster than mechanical devices at no greater cost. One would think the Liberal Federal Government would stop pitting civil servant against civil servant in continuing union-management disputes and get back to basics: the operation of an efficient postal service. If extra workers are needed they should be hired.

The government should also realize when they make "savings" of this kind they are merely shifting the dollar responsibility from the post office budget to Unemployment Insurance or Welfare Funds.

The reaction from some quarters will be that horse and buggy methods are not good enough for 1972. In anticipation of that criticism, may I emphasize I favor automation and the use of any other management device which results in an actual saving of tax dollars. But, when I see jobs being phased out by the government under the guise of achieved savings, when we have in excess of 600,000 unemployed, then I say let us realign our priorities and return to economic sanity. In other words in spite of "experts", economic-planners, consultants and automation, let us place the emphasis on human resources in full employment. When we do so the country will get back on its feet again — and so will the postal service.

High Water On Lakes

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

We have known for some time that this year there was going to be a critical period of high water on the lower great lakes: particularly Lake Erie, Ontario and St. Clair.

The results are beginning to appear that the situation is going to be more desperate than even the most pessimistic feared.

For forecasters are now predicting that the levels are most sound scientific background, that the levels this year are going to be the highest in the past century.

Which means great problems. And also problems about which governments can be done: no matter how many people cry for help, they are powerless to so many have been doing in recent days.

The levels of the great lakes rise and fall in natural cycles; the rate which they are particularly pronounced on the lower lakes.

The last high cycle was in 1952. And that time, as older readers may recall, there was considerable destruction and particularly shore-line erosion. Harbours and docking facilities were washed away, properties were flooded, and people living along the lakeshores, particularly where there were cliffs of some size, had to move, sometimes a dozen feet or more, back from the edge of their properties.

It thought it presented a long report it really didn't find ally answers and, indeed, nobody has come up with any since then.

Which means the situation that it will be almost uncontrollable.

Since 1952 St. Lawrence seaway has been built and through dams at its St. Lawrence power project. This has some control over the level of Lake Ontario.

Even if it could let out enough water to keep Lake Ontario from its down, which it can't, it would only be flooding out the people below the dam along the St. Lawrence.

Then Hydro also has a weir at Welland which gives some control over Lake Erie.

But it is recognized that this doesn't have nearly the capacity to prevent critical levels for the lake. And Lake Erie carries the water let through this way eventually leads up to Lake Ontario and adds to its problems.

CP News Roundup

Rhodesia Detains Journalist

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesian security police detained a black newsman journalist Peter Niesewand today and held him in Gwelo prison under the government's emergency-powers regulations.

Niesewand was the Salisbury correspondent for United Press International, Agence France Presse, Reuters, the BBC and The Guardian of London.

Niesewand first tangled with Rhodesian authorities last December over a report he wrote on the security situation in Mozambique. He refused to reveal sources for the report.

Three Rhodesian security policemen called on Niesewand's Salisbury home today, searched it, the drove off with him. He was fingerprinted at Salisbury police station then driven to Gwelo prison, about 150 miles southwest of Salisbury.

New Eruption

REYKJAVIK (Reuter) — A new volcanic eruption burst upon the night island of Heimaey, off Iceland's south coast, Monday, sending a huge wave of molten lava flowing towards the evacuated town of Vestmannaeyjar.

Reject Brief

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — The Yukon Association of Non-Status Indians (YANSI) has formally rejected a land settlement proposal drafted by the territory's 3,200 registered Indians.

The proposal, three years in the making, was submitted last week to Prime Minister Trudeau, who agreed to use the Yukon Native Brotherhood (YNB) submission as a basis for negotiating a settlement between Ottawa and the Indians.

The non-status Indians, who did not participate in drafting the YNB brief, called on the prime minister to "withhold his reaction to the brotherhood brief until he receives our views."

Long Trip

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — A group of 16 Ontario schoolmobilers arrived here Monday at the end of a 600-mile trip.

The snowmobilers, members of a Kingston club, left Saturday on the trip, which is their contribution to Kirkland Lake's centenary year celebrations.

They will be guests today of Kirkland Lake town council and start the return journey Wednesday.

Caught Again

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — One of 14 prisoners who escaped from Millhaven penitentiary last July was recaptured for a second time Monday, an hour after he escaped from three high fences guards.

Provincial police said Thomas Leslie Gordon, 30, commandeered an escort truck that was returning him and another prisoner to prison after a brief court appearance on a charge of escaping last year.

He pulled a home-made knife and forced the guards to remove his leg chains and handcuffs.

Police learned of the escape after Smith drove down a dead-end street and into a driveway. A woman called police and said a vehicle-general's truck drove into her garage.

Smith fled to a nearby bush and was captured a short time later. He was returned to Millhaven. The prisoner police did not become involved, police said.

Pleads Guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — Yves and Carmen Geoffroy pleaded guilty Monday to four charges arising from Geoffroy's escape from custody in December, 1971.

Geoffroy, who fled St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary after getting a 3-day pass to marry the former Carmen Parent, was sentenced to two years to run concurrent with his life term for murder. He pleaded guilty to escaping custody.

Mrs. Geoffroy, who pleaded guilty to aiding her escape, making a false declaration and obtaining a false passport, was freed unconditionally after the presiding judge said her conduct was "understandable but reprehensible."

Sauve Favors Larger Grants For Firms Buying In Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian-controlled companies should have that do most of their purchasing in this country should get larger industrial incentive grants, Science Minister Jeanne Sauve said Monday.

In a speech to the Canadian Club, the minister said that when a company develops a process or product, it usually requires new materials, services equipment and other goods.

"If the innovating firm deals with Canadian companies, these extrinsic benefits will remain in Canada and serve to strengthen our industrial base and our over-all ability to innovate, she said.

"If on the other hand, the innovating company must deal primarily with firms outside of Canada, many of these extrinsic benefits will be lost to Canada."

The minister gave no indication that there would be cuts in any of the existing industrial incentive programs. There are about 25 such grant-ing programs available through several federal departments.

HON. WM. A. STEWART

Canadian Food Content Urged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Monday he'd like to see more Canadian content in the food industry and better management on the part of farmers.

Speaking to the Kiwanis Club, Mr. Stewart said:

"If we are to demand that at least 55 per cent of our radio and television programs are to be Canadian in origin in order to develop Canadian artists and to ensure a truly Canadian system of broadcasting, then it is equally important that agriculture, or for that matter any other Canadian industry, should not pay the same kind of consideration?

"If there any reason why we should not guarantee 20 or 25 per cent of our domestic sugar market for Canadian sugar beet growers? There are some of the things that must be secured for our agricultural industry if we are to maintain viability and it is to continue to provide jobs for a reasonable rate of return for people in the service industries."

Review OK

TORONTO (CP) — The Divisional Court ruled Monday that the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) acted within its proper terms of reference to determine the desirability of the proposed Thorncliffe Park project in the east end of Metropolitan Toronto.

The OMB had sought the court's advice on whether it could reverse its earlier approval of the expressway after citizen's groups complained about the project.

Mr. Justice Albert Campbell, chairman of Metro, said the provincial government has secondary control of Metro's transportation planning "and we just have to sit and wait with our hands folded until they tell us what to do."

He said the divisional court decision probably means "we'll have to put off building the Scarborough Expressway for the foreseeable future."

Answers Critics

TORONTO (CP) — Lorne Henderson said Monday a proposal he made to his legislature committee for controlling water levels on the Great Lakes was "something I threw out for discussion."

Mr. Henderson, chairman of the Ontario legislature committee studying land-drainage problems in the province, was commenting on criticism from officials in northwestern Ontario that his proposal was bad and "stupid."

The proposal, discussed by the committee at hearings here last week, was to create a 14-by-900-square-mile reservoir in the Lake Nipigon area of Northern Ontario to control high water levels in the lakes system.

19 Charged

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Waterloo Regional Police Monday charged 19 persons with trafficking in LSD, amphetamines and marijuana after undercover operations by the morality squad that began Jan. 8.

Raise Pressure

LONDON (AP) — Trade unions stepped up their pressure on the British government Monday in a bid to breach Prime Minister Heath's attempt to control inflation by limiting wage increases.

Some 47,000 gas workers continued a series of guerrilla strikes to go-slow that have reduced gas pressure in three million homes, cut off supplies to many firms and made thousands of workers idle.

Annual Income Report Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde told the Commons Monday he hopes to introduce a policy paper in mid-April revealing government thinking on an annual minimum income for all Canadians.

Mr. Lalonde said during debate on government supplementary spending estimates that he will visit provincial capitals once more before making the policy paper available.

To the disappointment of the government, debate on $1.29 billion in supplementary estimates, expected to be approved Monday, resumes today after a breakdown in what appeared to be all-party agreement to let them pass.

The breakdown came after Conservatives and Social Credit agreed to spend an extra hour debating the spending program and then approve it.

But former union organizer Arnold Peters (NDP-Timiskaming) threw a monkey wrench into the agreement by refusing to give unanimous approval after the overtime hour.

Mr. Peters also caused some embarrassment to the Liberal cruise ranks with an earlier motion to cut the proposed spending of $71.6 million for power training programs to $1.

Only six of the 264 MPs members were in the House when the motion was put after 12 to 2. Andrew Brewin (NDP-Greenwood) voted against Mr. Peters' amendment.

Conservative and Liberal speakers said the motion if passed would have killed the program to retrain workers for other jobs.

Mr. Peters said that was not his intention and if he was mistaken, he wanted to withdraw the motion.

But Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) refused unanimous consent to have the amendment withdrawn. He said he objected to see NDP members, whom he accused of holding up passage of the bill, vote against their own amendment.

Mr. Speaker said he wanted to see the manpower and the unemployment insurance programs back in one department. He said the manpower service was part of the job.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras said studies are under way to see if this should be done. But he presented arguments that manpower programs have failed.

"The whole operation is taking on a ghoulish and beckoning to produce results," he said.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) agreed that manpower and unemployment insurance belong under the same roof. But he found it astounding that the bill would try to kill off the occupational training programs.

John Lundrigan (PC—Grenfell-Twillingate) said the amendment was akin to cutting off a man's head because you cannot diagnose his illness.

Ceremonial Beatings Are Fatal

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (CP) — A six-man jury, including three Indians, found Monday that a 32-year-old Sardis Indian died last Dec. 18 as a result of excessive beatings he received during a tribal dancing initiation ceremony.

The jury had been told by Dr. Peter Lee, a pathologist, evidence that the Indian, Edwin Gerhard George, had signed a consent for the ceremony but no bearing on the law.

"No one consents to any injury to his body," the coroner said. "Such a consent is void."

The jury foreman, attached no direct blame in the death.

Chief Richard Malloway, 46, told the jury inquiring into the death of Mr. George that he could remember no one who had suffered from tribal initiation rituals.

Chief Malloway said the rituals were performed only as a tribal dancing society sometimes changes the lives of those taking part in them.

Mr. George began his initiation at a doughnut in Sardis, Dec. 10, and died Dec. 18.

A victim's cousin, Peter George, was treated in hospital about the same time.

Chief Malloway said part of the ceremony includes carrying the participant around the longhouse at shoulder height four times, then dancing with deer hooves.

Four days after the initiation starts, the person is bathed in hot water. "then we take him to the river and make him swim in the cold water," the chief said.

He said when he underwent the initiation as a young man it was "quite a strain."

Beef Expensive

Beef prices in Canada keep climbing and the farmers, middlemen and Ontario retailers say they aren't getting rich. A western farmer says prices to feed a sponsor for the air show portion of the event.

The value of the air show was questioned at Monday's board meeting and it was noted that this year's cost has been set at $150,000 for the Labor Day weekend show, an increase of $50,000 over last year.

David Garrick, CNE general manager, said the organization would listen to anyone interested in sponsoring the international show.

Sponsor Sought For Air Show

TORONTO (CP) — Directors of the Canadian National Exhibition approved a $5.4-million budget Monday but indicated they are anxious to find a sponsor for the air show portion of the event.

The value of the air show was questioned at Monday's board meeting and it was noted that this year's cost has been set at $150,000 for the Labor Day weekend show, an increase of $50,000 over last year.

David Garrick, CNE general manager, said the organization would listen to anyone interested in sponsoring the international show.

for beef on the hoof and it costs about three cents a pound to ship it to the Toronto market. In a typical transaction, Canada Packers, Ltd., bought a 1,000-pound steer at a Toronto auction for 47-cents a pound, a total of $446.25. The carcass, trimmed of hide and waste products, would weigh about 500 pounds. The packers sell and process the hide and a great deal of the rest of the animal for glue, medical products and animal food. The trimmed carcass was sold to a food chain for $436.91, about 72 cents a pound. About 140 pounds of the carcass would be used for hamburger or stewing beef, the rest cut and trimmed into steaks and roasts. The average price per pound to the consumer would be $1.09. Robt. Nixon Advocates Price and Costs Review

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon proposed Monday that a permanent legislature committee be set up to continually review prices and costs of selected goods and services in the province.

Mr. Nixon, speaking to the Woodstock Kinsmen Club, said the all-party committee would be effective as a public forum to hear citizens' complaints and as a guide to government action.

"The committee itself would have no power to establish wages, price and profit controls," he said.

But the committee would be empowered to state whether proposed price changes were acceptable and justifiable.

Mr. Nixon said the committee would be particularly concerned with goods or services associated with necessities, such as the costs of insurance, automobiles, medical and legal services, and marketing boards that deal with food prices.

Individual Paying Bigger Shares of Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The individual taxpayer is paying a bigger share of federal budgetary income, while the portion from corporations is declining.

Figures issued Monday night with the 1973-74 budget show that personal income taxes will account for 47 cents of every dollar collected for the federal budget, up from 43 cents in the current year ending March 31.

Consumers Want Unit-pricing Law

OTTAWA (CP) — Supermarket chains should be forced by legislation to adopt unit-pricing for all food products they sell, the special Commons committee on food prices was told today.

The recommendation was contained in a brief from the Consumers' Association of Canada, a voluntary non-profit organization of 90,000 members representing all 10 provinces and territories.

The association said unit-pricing should not apply to individual items, but to comparable quantities, however. Unit-pricing allows buyers to compare the unit cost of one manufacturer's product against another.

Other recommendations contained in the brief:

—A tax reduction should be considered as a general stimulus to industry, with being a good corporate citizen, because most of its donations go to community-based groups.

—Six others considered flexible in their donation policies are Molson Industries Ltd., British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., Alcan Canada Products, Ltd. of Toronto, Bell Canada, Macmillan Bloedel Ltd. of Vancouver and Gulf Oil Canada Ltd.

—The report also says charitable foundations and trusts are "more inclined to study problems and find solutions. They maintain a "low profile . . . little information about their activities is available to the public."

—Pensions and public-assistance programs should be adjusted automatically to account for increases in the cost of living.

—The government should consider measures to prohibit promotional devices in food retailing.

—Federal sales taxes should be removed from food products and materials used in food production.

—There should be a "systems approach" to agricultural planning in Canada and more information should be available to help make decisions that will improve production.

Top Firms Give Little to Charity

TORONTO (CP) — A report released by a federally financed research group indicates most of the top 100 companies in Canada donate less than one per cent of their pre-tax profits to health and community development programs.

Memex From Turner, a national group which operates on $85,000 grant from the ministry of health, concludes that, with few exceptions, there is little evidence behind the image of generosity which corporations promote.

The report, made public Monday, also has some criticisms to make of charitable foundations and the United Appeal.

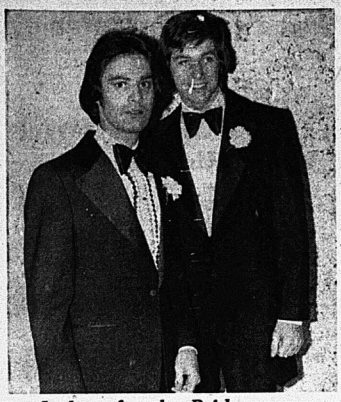
A federal official said that, despite federal funding, the group does not report to the government.



"Corporate giving is viewed by corporations as an investment position and by most corporations as a necessary source for public relations purposes," the report says.

The report, entitled Misgivings, credits only the firm of John Labatt Ltd. of London, Ont., with being a good corporate citizen, because most of its donations go to community-based groups.

Six others considered flexible in their donation policies are Molson Industries Ltd., British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., Alcan Canada Products, Ltd. of Toronto, Bell Canada, Macmillan Bloedel Ltd. of Vancouver and Gulf Oil Canada Ltd.

The report also says charitable foundations and trusts are "more inclined to study problems and find solutions. They maintain a "low profile . . . little information about their activities is available to the public."

Quinte Branch Canadian Diabetics Hold Meeting

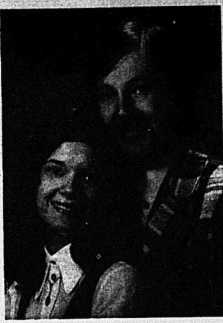
It was reported that the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Diabetic Association was instrumental in sending eight diabetic children to Camp Huronia at Huntsville with the help of a donation from the Belleville Yardsmen Benefit Fund.

At the recent meeting of the Quinte branch of the association, with Ronald Shetiell, president in charge, plans were also discussed to visit diabetic patients in the hospitals.

The Quinte Branch has approximately 90 members in the area from Napanee to Colborne and from Picton to Madoc and Tweed. Meetings are held in schools under the Hastings County Board of Education. Members expressed thanks to Mrs. Barbara Farquharson for these arrangements.

Through the year medical consultants were appointed to the branch. They were, Dr. W. Elliot, Brighton; Dr. J. S. Loynes, Belleville; Dr. B. O. Nugent, Trenton.

Diet consultants are Mrs. G. McColl, Trenton Hospital; Miss H. Clarke, Belleville General Hospital. Officers elected for 1973 were Mr. Ronald Shetiell, president, Bernard Holtinger, vice president; Mrs. Louise Gagnon, secretary; Mrs. Diane Hinchliff, treasurer; and Mrs. Ethel Kellar, to receive telephone information.



Cannifton-Corbyville Srs. Celebrate Valentine's Day

Mrs. W. Andrews presented the Valentine's Day program in keeping with the day's theme for Cannifton-Corbyville seniors. A Valentine poem was read by Mrs. Dafoe which was written by the late Helen B. Anderson. Mrs. V. Hamilton and Mrs. C. Eggleton sang a song. Rev. J. Morrison conducted a 'bring 'n put-le', during the entertainment program. The legend of St. Valentine was contributed by Mrs. D. Martin. Mrs. W. Andrews and Mr. Roy Pound also entertained with a humorous skit.

During the short business meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. Wilfred Clare, Mrs. D. Brenton, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting along with the financial report. Several thank you notes were read and all 89 members signed them.

A reading was given by Mrs. Clare.

Following the meeting and entertainment program, several tables of cards were in play while others enjoyed visiting.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zandbergen, Belleville are pleased to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Engbertha (Betty) to Herrick Boyd Couch, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Couch, Havelock. The marriage will take place on March 17, 1973, in Maranatha Christian Reformed Church, Belleville.

Dairy Princess Attends Party

"Drink up," Only the toast would have been to milk at Holloway Street United Church Monday night.

Sherry Pollock, Ontario Dairy Princess for 1972-1973 was the guest speaker at the celebration of the 50th anniversary of AOTS Mens Clubs. (As One That Serves)

The event was a joint celebration with the Quinte Kiwanis Club and the Holloway Street United Church Men's Club and as an added treat it was ladies' night with all wives present.

The Ontario Dairy Princess spoke of her duties and travels, informing people of the dietary value of milk. During her year the 18-year-old blue-eyed blonde from Ripley, Ontario will visit Britain and the United States.

She is touring Ontario as a "goodwill ambassador for the beached maple leaf" answering the many questions she receives on the dairy industry from milking a cow to the milk's final processing. Sherry is a full time employee of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, with an office in Toronto.

Another 50th anniversary was commemorated in a lighthearted manner when Doug Ploiemy, acting as preacher, performed a mock wedding for Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Johnston.

School Playground on Roof- Community Decided Its Design

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — In the first community school in Toronto actually built and operating, there is a playground on the roof because the people in the area wanted no more houses torn down.

Kensington school has a swimming pool because there are no pools in the cold, downtown neighborhood that surrounds it.

It has a community room where various social services are available during the day and at night.

Architecturally, it suits the neighborhood. It doesn't look like a conventional school because the people didn't want it to.

Kensington is a grade school built by the Toronto board of education. In most ways it operates like any other grade school. The differences that make it a community school are that it was built after consultation with the community it serves, and community use of the building is accepted as one of its functions.

The process is sending ripples in every direction. It touches political and administrative structures and individual convictions. No case is exactly like any other. No one knows yet where it will lead.

Duncan Green, associate director of the Toronto school board, said the rumblings began about five years ago.

"Schools were changing their techniques and styles. A gap grew up between the educationists and parents. There was a need for communication between the school and the people the school was serving.

"And it is a logical development in a city. As we begin to replace school buildings, with land at a premium, people say that's maybe a spot to put community facilities."

The approach to a community school begins with distribution in the school area of plans for a new school or a revamped one. People are invited to attend a meeting to comment. Committees are formed, plans made and altered, representations made to assorted governments boards. Petitions circulate the area.

Lorne Brown, principal of Kensington, said the initial protest and interest there was led by an existing community group alarmed at the prospect of the demolition of family homes. A new group formed around the school while decisions were being made about it.

Suggestions Made For Hard-of-Hearing

By DORIS CLARK

Here are some helpful suggestions for those who live with a hard-of-hearing person:

1. Get his attention before you speak.

2. Speak slowly and distinctly and use your lips.

3. Don't shout. It doesn't help.

4. Use short sentences.

5. Include him in the conversation when there is a group.

6. Be patient and repeat if necessary without show of exasperation.

Remember, but for the grace of God, it could be you.

A hearing aid has no brains. It can't and won't give you the better hearing you want unless you learn how to adjust to it, take care of it, and live with it!

"Of the many handicaps which society has made Remarkity, none causes the seeing, hearing person the annoyance and impatience which deafness and impaired hearing arouses," said Sadie Hawking. — John Milton Magazine

Dear Doris:

1. The girl I am going to marry has had a child out of wedlock. What legal procedure do I have to go through to have the child's last name changed to mine?

2. How do I get a marriage license?

3. I want to be married in Ontario city hall. Do I book an appointment or just go during business hours?

4. My fiancee and I want to make up our own marriage contract and also make it renewable after one year. Trial marriage, I guess you'd term looking for. How do I go about it? — Legal Help.

Dear Legal:

1. Adopt him legally; then your name automatically becomes his.

2. Apply for one at the city hall in the city where you plan to be married.

3. Make an appointment when you go for your license.

The ceremony will doubtless be scheduled to take place during business hours.

4. There is no such thing as trial marriage, in law. When you marry, it is for life. Only thing changing that arrangement being annulment, divorce, or death.

The best thing you can do, if you want a back door out in case of failure, is to agree between yourselves to part after a year. Then in three years you can get a legal divorce on grounds of marriage breakdown.

From where I sit, an understanding to quit makes things first vows tentative. A wholehearted commitment is more likely to make you both try harder to make the adjustments which mean happiness. Sometimes you need a good deal longer than a year.

Dear Doris: My problem is enlarged pores. I have tried several products, but to no avail. Is there any treatment you can recommend to shrink them permanently or otherwise? Also, do you know of any good "oil-stoppers"? — Teenage Skin

Dear Teenage Skin: If you would like to send me your address I can suggest an assortment of medicated creams which tend to minimize and shrink enlarged pores.

With regard to the "oil stoppers" I would say as if you have acne type of skin. Write in again for my leaflet "Acne — What You Can Do About It", enclosing 20 cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope. This leaflet goes into this whole situation with regard to oily pores, plugged pores, resultant blackhead, pimples and how to combat this teen-age problem.

When writing in, also request the list of medicated cosmetics.

England Experiences Boom in Cheese Exports

LONDON (CP) — Although Britain is a major importer of dairy products, she is experiencing a boom in exports of cheese. Production at home has tripled in 20 years and their Britons are eating their own country's cheese.

There are nine great British cheeses sold total production in 1970 was 225,000 tons compared with 42,000 tons in 1938. Production was on the rise in 1971 but total figures are not yet available.

The first boom in cheese began in 1955 when, wartime restrictions forgotten, the fashion began for wine and cheese parties. There was also demand for British cheese among expatriates and now Europeans countries, which have good cheeses of their own, are importing cheese from England, where records show the food was produced as early as 2,000 years ago.

The making of cheese itself has changed little over the centuries although it was done in factories without elaborate equipment until 1870, when the first cheese factory opened near Derby in the Midlands.

At first, cheese creameries, as the factories now are known, concentrated on varieties traditionally associated with their locations. Now Cheddar, the most popular variety and the most imitated, may be made far away from the original birthplace.

To make Cheddar, the milk, after being pasteurized, is cooled, pumped to a vat and a starter consisting of a culture of lactic streptococci is added. As the milk temperature rises gradually raised, these produce increasing acidity in the milk. Then rennet is added and the milk coagulates. After about half an hour a firm junket or curd is formed. The curd is then cut into small pieces to allow the whey to escape and the temperature is raised.

The moulded curd is put in a press for one to two days, when it is known as a green cheese. Cheddar is considered the right age for eating from three to 12 months later.

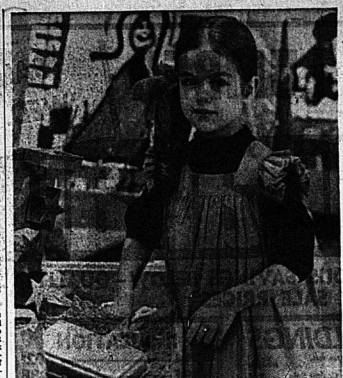
Stilton has been made since the 18th century. White Stilton, sold within three to four weeks of being made—before the characteristic blue veins have been formed—is also a pleasant cheese.

English Cheddar, originally made in the Gloucester Gorge area in the west of England, has been a favorite since the 18th century. It is probably the most generally eaten and the most copied by other countries.

Cheshire, popular since the 12th century, was said to have been a great favorite with Queen Elizabeth I. It comes in three colours, red, white and blue—Old Blue being first favorite.



Caerphilly, mild in flavour, pale in color, was first made in the tiny Welsh village from which it takes its name. Originally a miners' cheese, taken down the pits as a sustaining midday meal with thick piece of home-made bread, it now is popular all over Britain.

Double Gloucester—the name refers to its traditional size, a single Gloucester being half as big—used to be garlanded and carried round the city of Gloucester on May Day. Leicester, shaped like a large millstone, has a mild, mellow flavour. Lancashire, crumbly and creamy, is often toasted and is popular as a snack with beer.

Derby, mild when young, strong when older, is a close textured cheese, excellent for sandwiches. Sometimes, as with Lancashire, it is flavored with finely chopped sage leaves, giving an attractive green hue.

As well as these nine traditional cheeses local varieties still are made. In recent years several new types flavoured with beer, cider or herbs have been developed. Curd and cream cheeses are also made for local consumption, the low fat varieties being promoted for people on slimming diets.

Children's Fashions Simpler; Flattering and More Practical

TORONTO (CP) — Children's styles in the past were rigidly bound by rules defining what was and what wasn't suitable.

Little girls were confined to hum drum pant outfits, pastels, ruffles and a lack of practicality for mother who had to care for them.

Now all that has changed, according to children's wear designer Ellen Henderson.

"I used to think I had to put so much detail and good ironing into a dress before it looked the way I wanted it," says the Toronto grandmother of four.

"But the way trends are going for children is toward more simplicity and almost a throw out look. Simple dresses are the ones that are selling today.

"Mothers don't want a lot of frou-frou on their youngsters' clothes. Besides, a little dress that has less fussiness is more elegant."

The smock is one of the favorite looks in her spring collection for little girls, waist length to wear over pants, midi or just above the knee style. She makes the smock in every kind of fabric from denim and muslin to taffeta and prints.

"In party dresses, there's nothing more flattering than the empire bodice for youngsters and even girls 8 to 16, including the chubby one, because it hides the chubbiness beneath the bustline."

When mothers buy dresses for their daughters today, the first thing they want to know is if it's washable. Practical by is a factor, so 95 per cent of the fabrics in her collection are machine washable.

More practicality is found in her two - piece outfits for sports such as a white waffle pique dress with self-tucked bodice worn under a plaid pinafore.

"The two pieces worn together have a jumper look," the designer explains. "The dress can be worn on its own for a special occasion and pinafore can be used as a sundress. You get three different looks with this kind of outfit."

Ann Landers Response Varies Upon Quest for 'Real' Parents

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a young man asked if he should hire a private detective and try to track down his "real" parents. He had a growing desire, he said, a gnawing need to learn about his "roots." He hoped it would not upset his adoptive parents. "They have been wonderful to me," was the way he put it.

Your advice was characteristically to the point. "Forget it," you replied. "If you should succeed, chances are that you would be disappointed or downright miserable and rue the day you started digging around."

I liked your answer. It reflected my own personal experience and I thank you for it. Ann.—Colorado Springs

Dear Colorado: I received hundreds of letters from adopted children, adoptive parents—and mothers who had given up their children. Here are some excerpts:

From Worcester, Mass.: You do all right with teenage nonsense but when it comes to adult problems of serious proportion, you are beyond your depth. Your advice in the adopted man that he not try to find his real parents was terrible. I speak from experience.

I was adopted in infancy by a medium-income working couple. They had two other adopted children. When financial reverses came they had a difficult time putting us all through college.

At the age of 22 I found my real mother, by accident. She had been married to a well-to-do man for several years and they've been wonderful to me. He will always resent the fact that my adoptive parents never let me know who my real mother was. My growing-up years could have been so much easier in that home. They had much more money.—Deprived

From Nassau, Bahamas: Dear Ann: Bless you for your answer to the young man who wanted to hunt up his flesh-and-blood mother. I hope charts toward the natural mother will prevail over his curiosity.

Some adopted children are orphans, but most of them were born to honorable mothers who felt it would be best for her child. Almost always she was left with grief and shame and suffered a great deal. The sealing of adoption records is a good idea for all concerned. But most of all it is best for the unwed mother who gave up her child.—No Signature Please

From Madison, Wis.: I gave up my little girl 16 years ago and I thank God I do not know where she is. Her life would be greatly complicated—and so would mine.

From Cleveland: I spent $4,000 to locate my real parents. It was a big mistake. I won't go into detail but I hope that last sentence in your advice and leaves well-enough alone.

From Portland: Dear Ann: May I speak to the young man who wants to find his real parents?

Dear Confused: If you were the baby I gave away, don't start knocking on my door. You have no parents here. Your real parents are the loving couple who raised a child; I didn't.

Frankly, I think you are selfish to want two families. Count your blessings and don't look back. The parents who raised you love you and they are entitled to your total devotion. Forget about me.—Straight Arrow.

Dear Arrow: You've said it all. Thanks for wrapping it up.

Lesbians Lobby For "Straight" Acceptance

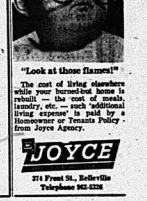
WASHINGTON (AP) — Led by women who admit to being lesbians, the gay-liberation movement is fighting for acceptance by "straight" feminists at the convention of the National Organization for Women (N.O.W.).

The strong lobbying by lesbians has taken the convention by surprise.

Some women have reacted with open rebuke. There has been more than a little nervousness from feminists who voice fears that the lesbians will spoil N.O.W.'s public image and limit its drives for the equal-rights amendments, equal pay for equal work, child care and other issues.

On the whole, however, said gay-liberationist Ms. Sidney Abbott, most N.O.W. members realize homosexuals suffer double discriminations and favor their being heard on behalf.

She predicted resolutions expected to be approved at this convention will clear the way for future co-operation between N.O.W. and gay-lib chapters on legislation concerning women's rights.



"I don't see any absorption of gay lib into N.O.W.," Ms. Abbott, who prefers that form of address, said in an interview, "but N.O.W. will be free to work with gay-lib forces from time to time."

She said lesbians don't want to weaken or cripple N.O.W.'s drives for the equal-rights amendment and other women's-rights measures.

"We want our issues to be considered important alongside others," she said.

Miss Abbott estimated that 10 per cent of the estimated 2,000 N.O.W. members attending the convention are lesbians.

She said she expected no opposition today when the convention was to take up resolutions supporting the sexuality workshop saying:

MPs Mild In Budget Criticism

OTTAWA — Quote — most Progressive Conservative MPs showed a reaction — migh of it approving — common to many of their colleagues outsites after last night's federal budget presentation.

The reason: They feel much of Finance Minister Turner's or Finance Minister Turner's proposals were prompted by Conservative policies.

George Hees, MP Prince Edward — Hastings, summed it this way: "In listening to Mr. Turner, I thought quite a bit of it was (Conservative leader) Bob Stanfield speaking in the last election."

As a result, both he and Jack Horner, MP Acadia, said the Conservative opposition would "naturally support" such items in the budget proposals. But, both had some reservations, even on proposals with which they agreed in principle.

Both were reserved on the budget's effect on unemployment.

There have been six bud-

GEORGE HEES

gets in the last 2½ years said Mr. Hees. Nonetheless, unemployment and inflation is a real rising.

Now it's a matter of "wait and see".

Mr. Ellis also took the wait-and-see attitude on such proposals as food tariff cuts and their possible effects on Canada, involving milk quotas — of importance to Hastings - County farmers, he said.

Neither is the five per cent increase in tax reduction what it may seem. It would be retroactive to Jan 1, it was a three per cent increase went into effect, sothe actual cut would be two per cent, said Mr. Ellis.

JACK ELLIS

Both MPs felt the increase of $100 differential for pensioners could have been higher — perhaps by another $10 or $15 by including concessions.

Ellis demanded by the New Democratic Party — the retention of corporate tax allowances — Mr. Ellis felt the government would need NDP support for the budget.

The budget contained many items "we urged and we will support them. But some things we may decide not to support," said Mr. Hees.

CP Rail Announces Second Site For Disposal of Metro Garbage

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville — Area environmentalists relaxed today after the long-awaited CP Rail announcement on a site for Metro Toronto garbage disposal revealed the proposed location is well outside the Quinte district.

Yesterday CP Rail applied to the Ontario Municipal Board Ministry for authority to operate a landfill site in Hope township, five miles west of Port Hope, and about 100 miles east of Toronto.

The railway also revealed it has opened discussions with Ontario Hydro on possible recycling of combustible waste to generate electricity.

The application entailed three months of watchful speculation among Ontario municipalities within a 125-mile radius of Toronto, where the railroad was reported seeking a suitable site for haulage of up to 500,000 tons of garbage.

Belleville city councillor Jean Smith, chairman of the new Permanent Joint Waste Committee involving all Hastings County, said she was glad the long wait for confirmation of a site was over.

Douglas Sward, chairman of PACE (People Against A Contaminated Environment), had similar feelings.

Ald. Smith first raised local warnings after the garbage haulage project was first discussed in November by Metro Toronto Council. Later however, Environment Minister James Auld said the railroad would never choose a site as far away as Belleville.

Last weekend area apprehension was stirred, however, when a Toronto newspaper report claimed a Belleville-area site had been selected.

Ald. Smith, who phoned ministry officials Monday morning, said she felt there would be no evidence to support the report.

Yesterday's announcement saved much work for local environmentalists who would have had to prepare cases in support presentations necessary to justify a public hearing by the ministry.

Ald. Smith said her committee would have appointed any Belleville-area site in order to bring on such a hearing as local citizens would have the opportunity to protest.

However, she said, the issue might not end with selection of the Hope township site if there was sufficient opposition to it.

The municipal memberships in the Waste Management Committee involve Belleville, Trenton and Hastings County.

Mr. Sward said PACE also had been watching the situation and at one time had pondered if the railroad might be considering one of the Canada Cement Company quarries at Point Anne. If so, the group would have had to institute possibility studies to ensure it had good grounds for any protest.

The railroad's proposed landfill site is a 454-acre area of swamp/cultura land between Highway 401 and CP Rail's mainline east of Wesleyville. Its plan calls for waste materials to be transported from Toronto in fully-enclosed railway cars for disposal on an engineered site.

This, said CP Rail's eastern region vice - president, L. R. Smith, "could eventually be made into a conservation area public park or golf course.

The area chosen is capable of handling one-quarter of Metro's garbage over 20 years. The railroad estimates that for every 100,000 tons processed each year over 15 years, about 50 acres is needed.

The Port Hope area site was announced several days after a location northwest of Orangeville, west of Toronto, was ruled out after heavy opposition from resident of the area. Metro council chairman Albert Campbell described the railroad's efforts to obtain community approval a public relations disaster.

The company is required to make four separate applications to the province on the garbage rail haul operation of the disposal site. A public hearing must be held before the ministry's Environmental Hearing Board before provincial government approval is given.

The refuse, as it is dumped at the site, will be spread in 2-foot layers. Successive two-foot layers will be added and compacted until a height of eight feet is reached. At the end of each day the garbage is covered with one foot of compacted earth.

Proctor House Title Dispute Leads to Charges of Rip-off

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — The federal government is being "ripped off" to the tune of more than $50,000 in grants awarded for restoration of Brighton's Proctor House historical museum, Tracey Kaduck charged here last night.

The Brighton resident is leader of SOHO (the Save Our Heritage Organization) that last year received $25,000 plus an additional promise of $30,000 in recent weeks, for restoration of the old John Proctor house into a historical site, museum and community centre.

At least that's what the federal LIP (Local Initiative Program) money was intended for, he told members of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority at their annual meeting here.

The problem lies with a lack of firm agreement Kadukson for the historical reforation group, who began their project with the belief the money would soon receive a deed from the LTRCA.

Originally, the executors of the Proctor estate said they were willing to let the old mansion and 70 acres of land go for a token $100, but then when assured the old homestead would be saved they decided it to the conservation authority.

At least, that was one story presented last night, by David McAlister, a friend of the late Proctor.

It's a matter of record that the Proctor House was in a state of ruin and the conservation body couldn't see spending money to restore it. They began thinking about bulding the mansion.

That's when local residents banded together as SOHO and applied for federal grants.

RAY KADUCK

In any event, Mr. Kaduck and his crowd were willing to a lease or any kind of legal hold on the property.

Now there a talk that part of the building might be converted into offices for the conservation authority. It is on this basis he charged the "rip-off" during last night's meeting.

He has also charged the provincial government with interference after applying pressure on the local conservation body.

In a statement, he said provincial representatives at a recent meeting between SOHO, the LTRCA and Canada Manpower as grant distributors, "stated that no loans projects had the slightest difficulty in obtaining revenue for annual expenses."

He said they "suggested that this problem could be alleviated if the conservation authority had offices in the building."

Mr. Kaduck said he has issued an ultimatum that if a decision is not in his favor over to SOHO within two weeks new coal projects made towards signing of a rental agreement... he will order work to stop. At the recent meeting in Toronto, he said, the Manpower representative indicated if plans for the house deviated from those proposed by SOHO, the grant may very well be terminated.

Part of any lease agreement SOHO agrees to, Mr. Kaduck says, will have to include clauses to the effect that they be allowed to continue restoration of the main portion of the mansion, plus use of a second wing for community use and possible conversion of the wing's upper floor for caretaker - watchman purposes.

Rumors died concern for the project began filtering through Brighton last week when provincial government experts toured the property. According to more than one SOHO representative, the visitor ordered work to halt. Lower Trent executive member Earl Hess said he knew the meeting here he felt more care could be exercised in the LTRCA's experts. "To come and look and after ten days, a decided decision . . . that was disgusting."

While both director Norman Patrick and parks supervisor officer Harry Christian of the conservation authority branch of the natural resources ministry, admit a man was sent, they deny he would have issued such an order.

At the meeting last night, Mr. Patrick said he may have expressed an opinion to the workmen, but it was not in authority to order a work halt.

He further stated that the province is in no way attempting to exert any pressure on the LTRCA or the local conservation authority.

The experts "came down to provide their technical advice," he said. "Sale or leasing of such property must have the approval of the minister and the (Ontario) Lieutenant - governor in Council".

"You can sell that property. You are a corporate body. It's spelled out in the act," he told members of the conservation authority.

Mr. Patrick said the original provincial approval for the sale of the property implied the buildings would be torn down and a park developed as a conservation site.

C. G. "Cy" Macdonald, LTRCA past - chairman, admitted, reference to the house and a swimming pool included here being on the property may have been in fault. "The authority was a great deal more interested in the land than the house," he said.

"An Albatross around the neck," he said.

Re-elected conservation authority chairman Arthur Wartman concluded most of the discussion with an agreement that meetings between SOHO, the LTRCA and the province should soon result in an equitable arrangement for all parties concerned.

A professional consultant will be hired to draw up a complete set of plans for the restoration project, once this plan has been submitted to the province, he expects a decision will soon be handed over to SOHO.

"Plans should go ahead shortly," he said.

Earlier Monday, in a telephone interview from his office in Toronto, Mr. Christian said the decision rested on the province, self or not, lies entirely with the local conservation authority. "We're not pressuring them at all," he said.

"We're trying to bring the authority and the group (SOHO) together. We don't like the money being wasted," he was referring to structural problems that still require attention. The provincial experts believe work should be done there as soon as possible.

"There's no sense going into the house unless the foundation is sound. The exterior is far from right at the present time," he added.

Mr. Kaduck, who attended last night's meeting but did not take active part, said he'd for it at the meeting prepared originally, he was not involved in the project when exterior work first began.

Mr. Patrick's final statement was that he was not aware that the group presented had advanced money without details of allocation to the property. "If you can't get clear title, you don't get provincial grants," he said. The provincial conservation director added that if the LTRCA insists on the lease, we're plans for future structures, repairs or with possible problems left unattended to, no grants would be received from the government.

This — why we called in experts . . . to examine what they were doing."

Educational Program To Begin

The complaint of a Belleville woman, Mrs. Sonja Trafford, concerning the rights of pedestrians and motorists at intersections with left turn flashing green lights has resulted in an educational program as the part of City Police Safety Officer Robert Hall.

Set. Hall will stress who has what rights in his visits to Belleville schools — posters will be prepared for erection at intersections with the flashing green lights.

Mrs. Trafford, in a letter to the traffic committee several weeks ago, said she was concerned that motorists and pedestrians were not aware of their rights on the flashing green light and the educational program was directed.

Lawrence Protests Dumping Proposal

OTTAWA (CP) — There must be a better way for Metropolitan Toronto to get rid of its garbage than "dumping it in the backyards" of rural Ontario, Allan Lawrence PC-Northumberland, Durham said Monday in the Commons.

He was commenting on an application by CP Rail to the Ontario government for authority to operate a landfill site in Hope Township where Toronto refuse would be dumped.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand said he new notbing about the plan but promised to look into it.

Replying to the Commons Mr. Lawrence said the minister was "no help at all." He said Mr. Marchand was told about the situation in early January.

Mr. Lawrence said 500,000 tons of garbage would "lie festering" for years. The plan was archaic.

He hoped other citizens of the area would oppose the application when it came up for public hearings under the province's environmental laws.

Residents Resent Name Confusion

Residents of Tracey Street living between Sidney Street and Lemoine Streets are unhappy about the extra attention they are getting from deliverymen and from unexpected callers.

And all because 39 houses were renumbered west of Sidney Street on what is known as Tracey Street West.

To correct the problem they want the west leg of Sidney Street renamed.

In a letter to the city council traffic committee, residents of East Tracey Street say that utter confusion has been caused through identical numbering east and west of Sidney Street.

Traffic committee members agreed that something should be done to remedy the problem and agreed that there were two possible solutions — to completely renumber Tracey Street West, North Front Street or change Lne Tracey Street West, West.

The problem is that when Tracey Street was built some years ago it was in Thurlow township and house numbers were started at Sidney Street.

Now the street has been extended west of Sidney Street and an 88-unit town house development is being erected in the area. Street numbers here also start at Sidney Street and go west.

Committee members recommended that city council change the name of Tracey Street, West, and have some form of planning board assist in choosing a new name.

Move Is Recommended

FRANKFORD — Offices of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority may move to vacant facilities in the municipal building here.

At least, that was the well-received recommendation of Lower Trent Township reeve Jack Bush at the annual authority meeting here Monday night.

Mr. Bush suggested Frankford as an alternative to temporary quarters now in Campbellford but cautioned that the boundaries of the conservation authority may change after another cost, a more central local for offices is necessary.

Mr. Bush's recommendation will be forwarded to the property subcommittee for consideration.

Moira Level Dropping

Public works crews have been working to clear the channel — near the Moira's mouth at Victoria Park — of slush ice which caused the river to back up late last week.

The project now is showing results. Emergency Measures Co-ordinator Angus Duffy said today.

The waterline at the Post-bridge — in the city's downtown core — has dropped 11 inches since yesterday, a total of 2½ feet from its four-foot peak Saturday.

Some property flooding during the height of the river's swell also has begun to recede, he said, and there have been no reports of flooding in low-lying basements along the Moira waterfront.

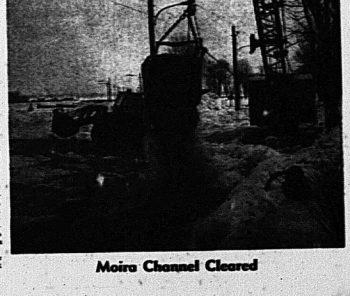
All now depends on the weather. Extreme conditions — either severe freezing, which creates the slush ice, or mild temperatures bringing rain — are the only threats now to be watched, he said. "If we just have good weather, we'll have it made," said Mr. Duffy.

Ministers Ready To Field Questions

Are eastern Ontario roads adequate? What about the threat industrial effluent poses to the environment in this area? Who is winning the competition for food between developers, agriculture and conservationists?

If these questions bother you, take the day off Thursday and tell Bert Lawrence, provincial secretary for resources development, about your concerns.

Mr. Lawrence will be in Smiths Falls for at least eight hours to hear opinions on any issues relating to the total physical environment of eastern Ontario.



So that questions can be answered at the time they are asked, Mr. Lawrence will be accompanied by six other cabinet ministers and their deputy ministers.

Mr. Lawrence and the six ministers form the resources development policy committee of the Ontario cabinet. The others are the ministers of transportation and communications, labor, environment, agriculture and food and industry and tourism.

The committee is moving through the province, seeking the opinions of the people of each area in the hope that conflicts over use of natural resources.

The Smiths Falls meeting will be informal, and written briefs are not required.

Mr. Lawrence has said that the purpose of the meeting is to "ensure that the provincial government is responsive to the ever - all requirements of eastern Ontario communities".

Hull Joins WHA Leaders

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Hull, the Golden Jet who three times was the National Hockey League's leading point scorer, climbed into the World

BOBBY HULL

Hockey Association's top ten for the first time this week, according to statistics released Monday by the WHA.

Hull, who won the NHL scoring title in 1959-60, 1961-2 and 1965-6, scored six goals and added five assists in three games last week to bring his season total to 74 points, tying him with Winnipeg team-mate Chris Bordeleau for eighth place on the scoring list.

Hull jumped the NHL Black Hawks to become player-coach of the WHA Winnipeg Jets, and missed the early part o the season while his case was being heard in court.

Included in his big week was a triumphant return to Chicago, where Hull scored four goals and two assists to lead the Jets past Chicago Cougars 7-2.

New York's Ron Ward and Philadelphia's Andre Lacroix are tied for the WHA scoring lead with 80 points apiece, six more than New England's Terry Caffery. Ward has 46 goals and 50 assists, Lacroix 37-53 and Caffery 33-51. Philadelphia's Danny Lawson leads the WHA in goals scored with 49.

Winnipeg's Joe Daley, one of the few goalies in pro hockey who plays without a mask, registered two shutouts last week to lower his goals-against average to 2.61, tops in the league.

Handicap Horses Die in Crash

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Two accidents on the final turn at Santa Anita cost the lives of two top handicap horses and caused injuries to jockey Eddie Belmonte during the running of the $67,000 San Luis Obispo Handicap Monday.

Autobiography, winner of the 1972 Eclipse Award as this nation's leading handicap runner, broke his left front leg and threw Belmonte into the dirt.

An instant later, he Argentine-bred Tuqui II also broke his left front leg and went down as a third horse, Yvetot, crashed into him.

Both Autobiography and Tuqui had to be destroyed. Belmonte was taken to Arcadia Methodist Hospital for x-rays to determine his injuries.

Long shots Queen's Hustler, ahead of those involved in the accidents, went on to win the 1⅛ mile test in 2 minutes, 37 1-5 seconds, bettering the track record of 2:38 2-5 set in 1946.

This distance, however, seldom is run on the dirt track here and wouldn't have been this time excelt for recent heavy rains which left it grass track too soft for the competition. The dirt was rated fast on the warm, sunny afternoon.

China Silk finished second to Queen's Hustler with the early pace setter, River Busy, third. The winner paid $18.80, $6.60 and $4.60. China Silk returned $4.20 and $3.80. River Busy paid $6.20.

Clarke Sets Sights On Expansion Record

MONTREAL (C) — Centre Bobby Clarke, of Philadelphia Flyers needs just two points today to reach the highest point total acquired by a player of a six-team National Hockey League expansion team.

Clarke who has equalled 71 1971-72 total of 61 points, is only one short of the 62 recorded by Centre Red Berenson in 1968-69, when the latter was with St. Louis Blues. Berenson finished eighth in the final scoring race that season with 35 goals and 47 assists.

And Clarke could well become the all-time expansion points leader tonight as the Flyers visit St. Louis in one of three scheduled games. The other two contests have New York Islanders playing host to Pittsburgh Penguins, while Boston Bruins are in Vancouver against the Canucks.

A second-round draft choice by the Flyers in the 1969 amateur draft, Clarke now is second in the Intrepidal scoring race, the highest position attained by a player from an expansion club this late in any season.

Tom Williams of Minnesota North Stars and equalled by Jude Drouin of the same club in 1970-71.

But the all-time record for assists appears out of reach for any player this season. Boston defenceman Bobby Orr holds the record of 102 in the 1970-71 and is the current leader with

BOBBY CLARK

Orr has 71 points, placing him in a three-way tie for 10th place in the current scoring race.

Centre Phil Esposito of the Bruins continues to lead all scorers with 90 points, including 37 goals, which ties him with Mickey Redmond of Detroit Red Wings for the lead in that department.

Another centre, Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks, out with a foot injury, has slipped to third place with 77 points, only two more than Another, Philadelphia centre — Rick MacLeish.

Montreal Canadiens goaltending trio of Ken Dryden, Michel Plasse and Wayne Thomas continues to hold the lead in the netminding race. The three have a combined goals-against average of 2.27 compared to the 2.44 average recorded by their nearest rivals — New York Rangers.

Philadelphia continues to accumulate penalty minutes at a record rate. With 17 games left to play the Flyers have 1,229 minutes, an average of 20.3 per game.

The record is held by Vancouver with 1,371 minutes in the 1970-71 season.

Nationals In Ottawa For 1973-74 Season

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Nationals of the World Hockey Association (WHA) will remain in Ottawa for the 1973-74 season.

Nationals' president Doug Michel told a news conference Monday that despite a large deficit—estimated at more than $600,000—the team will stay.

"The Nationals have a home . . . and we're bloody well going to stay," he said.

Plugged by the lowest attendance in the WHA, Michel said last week that he and coach Nick Trbovich would sell the team to anybody who could raise a "couple of million dollars."

A Milwaukee business group was reported to have bought the team for $2.1 million last Monday, but the deal fell through when the group's representatives failed to appear on the final day of negotiations. The group forfeited a $100,000 deposit.

Michel introduced a new price structure for the next six home games of the Nationals in an attempt to bolster the team's sagging attendance.

Ticket prices were reduced to $2.25-$3.25 from the original $3.50-$4.50 price.

The new price range fis designed to draw some of the local following of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior Ottawa 67's, to have been outdrawing the Nationals 10 to one this season.

One effect of the new price range will make the Nationals more competitive with Ottawa 67's of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' series, which has been outdrawing the Nationals by a wide margin in the 9,300-seat Civic Centre.

Jim's Upset In Final Game

Doug Preston was nothing short of jubilant this morning after his Mead Johnson hockey team upset the Gas House League-leaders Jim's Pizzeria 4-1.

"The win was beautiful!" said coach Preston, "we shocked a lot of people. I was so excited after the game that I couldn't breathe for two hours."

"It was a combination of factors that gave us the win," said the coach of the giant topplers. "Everybody played their best. It was the first time the guys put themselves into high gear and stayed that way for the whole game. We went the whole route for 60 minutes."

"This was the second or third time this winter that I've had the line-up that I've wanted. I had three lines and four defencemen, so I could ice the team the way I wanted. If anyone was tired, there were enough players for the man to come off the ice and still have the team going, in high gear."

One of the factors involved according to Preston was something that Jim's coach Don Putnam had said. "My players thought 'who does he think he is' when they heard that Putnam had said 'after win win we got three easy games left'." Putnam's comment came after a 7-1 victory over the Hospital, who at that time held down second place.

Putnam in accounting for the pizzamen's first loss of the season, said "if anything beat us the pressure of going through a no loss season was too much for us. That's what lost it — too much pressure. I could see it in the dressing room. I couldn't get the guys up. Al Ray told me that he couldn't even eat last night he was so uptight."

But the Jim's Pizzeria coach said that now with the regular season over, "we'll be fresh and raring to go come the playoffs."

In other Gas House League action, Terry Pope scored five goals to help Constellation move three points ahead of last night's opponents Cassidy Electric. Ron Mitchell tallied four goals and Dominic Lenzini a single to give the carpetmen a 10 - 4 victory over the electrics. Ron Fuller, Doug James, Paul Williams, and Joe Scanlan each tallied for Cassidy. Scanlon who normally sees action in the net played the centre ice spot last night, while defencemen Bernie Coughlni saw goaltending time.

In the first game of the three Monday night Wilson Corners solidified their hold on fifth place with a 6-0 victory over ninth place Rosebush Farm. Though the Wilson club had more opportunities to score than they capitalized on, Keith Parks, Tom Cormier, and Mike McDermott plled the Rosebush net with two goals apiece the victory. Vern Fraser recorded his fourth shutout of the season for Wilson.

Belleville Rink Edged In Senior Curling

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Mary Searles of Wiarton and Shirley Pilson of Chatham skipped their rinks to the top of the Southern Ontario women's senior curling championship standings Monday.

The Wiarton foursome beat Hazel McNevin of Belleville 9-8 and Edna Adams of Hanover 12-6 while the Pilson rink edged Helen Garbutt of London Highland 10-9 in an extra end and defeated Allie Hoar of Kitchenriers 10-7.

Barrie Country Club's Gladys Jensen and Teddy Noble of Hamilton were eliminated from further competition when they lost both their games.

Belleville and London rinks finished the day with 1-1 records. Edith Youel of Toronto Donalda Effie Herzelwood of Oshawa, Dot Scher of Kitchener-Westmount and Fern Irwin of Toronto St. George's each had 1-0 records for the day.

Competition ends Wednesday afternoon.

From Player to Coach

Frank Wiles, president of the Gas House Hockey League and Wilson's team member (left), presents the league's pennant winning trophy to Jim's Pizzeria coach Don Putnam while team sponsor Nick Syntetos looks on. The Pizzeria club hold a 16-1-2 won-loss-tie record which includes their first 4-1 loss of the season last night to Mead Johnson. The player's bench will now remain empty for the current winners until the start of the Gas House League playoffs.

Cuties to Play Quinte

Can the Quinte Secondary "Staffers" be pummeled by the California Cuties and still hold their heads high in the halls of the school?

There's no reason that the Quinte high school staff team should lose against the American team except lack of basketball practice time, lack of organized talent and lack of a player fo check Little Susie, an 85 pound 28" midget.

The California Cuties, men apparelled in women's garb, will be taking on a team composed of Quinte Secondary School male staff members Thursday at 8:00 p.m. on the Quinte home court.

The home court advantage may be minimal, however, as the Quinte team "couldn't get any women on the staff to volunteer to play" according to Jim Murray, coach of the senior Saints. If the Cuties charms, therefore, will not be offset by local talent.

Murray will not be on the bench for this contest, however, as he has given the coaching reins to "Easy Ed" Brodie. Murray will be on the court trying to outdo the scoring achievements of players such as Cuties' Rebound Ruby, Dumpy Dora, Dottie Dribble, Skinny Minnie and Chili Pepper.

"It is difficult to say who the star will be for us," said Murray, "but we're counting on Paul Paddin's efforts to pull us through. A man of his stature (five ten and 195 pounds) will definitely be our centre."

Rick Locke, Wally Uhryniak will also be among the 10 staff members who will hit the Quinte court Thursday, but according to Jim Murray "we're working on another guy to come out for us." Murray did not reveal who this player was for fear of frightening the California Cuties away with the excellence of the team fielded against them.

Ottawa Team Tops Field

Mary Stewart not only won the high darts category at the Women's Open Dart Tournament of the Royal Canadian Legion (Branch 99) but led her Ottawa team to the tourney championship.

A team from Havelock won the consolation round while another team from the same city were runners-up to the grand champions.

Belleville teams were runners-up to the consolation round champions as well as the doubles winners from Kingston.

Can Chili Chill?

California Cuties' guard Chili Pepper can toss the 16 pound shot put around 54 feet, but the question will be whether he can play basketball as far and as effectively against the courageous staff members (male only) of Quinte Secondary School. The Quinte Saints will be seeing court action against the Cuties Thursday at 8:00 p.m. at the Quinte Secondary gym.

No Need For Star

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Portuguese, without the services of Fernando Peres, Portugal national soccer star, defeated British 6-4 Monday night in the first half of a Toronto Indoor Soccer League doubleheader before 4,233 fans.

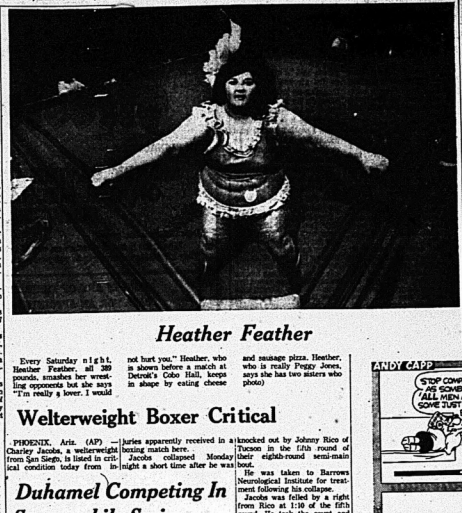
Peres, a former member of Portugal's World Cup team, performed the opening kickoff, but did not play, pending completion of contract negotiations with league President Joe Martin.



Jose Sambu and Waldemar Serafini paced Portuguese with two goals each. Sambu's goals both came off penalty kicks. Ramiro Santano Armando Costa got the other goals for the winners.

Carlos Medeiret, the league's leading goal-getter with 12, scored three for the Italians. Emelio Hernandez booted a pair and Georgio Pisoli and Oscar Morin added singles.

Liam Cahill paced Canadians with three goals. Bill Adolfson bit for his eighth and ninth of the season, while Steve MacNeil and Noel McDonald rounded out the scoring.

Snowmobile Safari

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The Bill Cooper snowmobile expedition to the Soviet Union reversed its effort Monday, leaving by bus for Winnipeg, Man., and then north toward Greenland.

Cooper and six other snowmobilers travelled 3,250 miles of the 7,000-mile trip between January and May last year. The expedition reached Devon Island on the Arctic Circle before stopping because warm weather was breaking up the ice.

The group of six snowmobilers-one dropped out since last year—will fly from Winnipeg to Devon Island later this week, Cooper said, and then cross the Arctic cap by snowmobile to Greenland, traverse Greenland from west to east, fly across the Greenland Norwegian Seas to Norway and then snowmobile across northern Europe to the Soviet Union.

Raiders Show Teeth

OTTAWA (CP) — Nepean Raiders, out of the Central Junior Hockey League playoffs, haven't lost their teeth as they thrashed Montreal by beating Smiths Falls Bears 7-4.

Larry Skinner, Dave Dale, Perry Bennington, Dave Bassett, Maurice Leger, Dan O'Neill and Art Powell scored for the Raiders.

As the league comes down to the wire, Pembroke Lumber Kings have first place clinched and are on a 30-game streak without a loss.

That point is up for grabs tonight as the Braves travel to Smiths Falls.

Welterweight Boxer Critical

Jacobs collapsed Monday night a short time after he was knocked out by Johnny Rico of Tucson in the fifth round of their eighth-round semi-main bout.

He was taken to Barrows Neurological Institute for treatment following his collapse.

Jacobs was felled by a right from Rico at 1:10 of the fifth round. He took the count and then got up and walked to his corner. After a few minutes in the corner he walked without help to the dressing room, where he collapsed.

"His pupils didn't react to light when I first got back there," said ring physician Dr. George Schads. "I put some ammonia in his nose and that didn't arouse him . . . and those things will wake up the dead."

The bout was Jacobs' fourth. He won the other three.

Northern Ontario Wins Senior Curling Opener

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — After the third Monday night, skip Ralph Smith thought Northern Ontario was going to lose its first game in the Canadian seniors curling championship.

Newfoundland, skipped by John Pike of Grand Falls, quickly changed Smith's mind following the rink's first two shots on the 10th which "left us an opening and we took advantage."

Behind 9-7 after nine ends, Northern Ontario was 10-9 on an extra end to remain the only undefeated rink with a 2-0 record after four rounds in the 11-rink, round-robin tournament. Smith, from Noranda, Que., an area which takes part in the Northern Ontario playoffs, had a third-round bye.

"We were lucky to get the win . . . I thought we had lost it in the 10th but they gave us a break when they missed on those first two rocks," Smith said.

"It left us an opening . . . when I had last rock with a sitting for 12-foot draw, I knew we could tie it up."

In another fourth-round game, Dr. Bill McTavish of Manitoba could have had similar thoughts when he entered the 10th and final end trailing 7-6 to previously-undefeated British Columbia, skipped by Roy Stone of Trail.

However, the Winnipeg four-

Sheffield Wins

LONDON (CP) — Three goals by Brian Lucey took Sheffield Wednesday through to the fifth round of the English Football Association Cup with a 3-2 extra-time victory Monday over Crystal Palace in Birmingham.

Second - division Sheffield twice trailed against their First-Division opponents in the second replay before Lucey pulled them level with goals in the 89th and 75th minutes.

He clinched victory with his third goal in the 20th minute of extra-time to give Sheffield a fifth-round clash at home to Chelsea. David Payne and Don Rogers scored for Palace.

In Scottish League First-Division play, Glasgow Rangers lashed Arbroath 5-0 to move three points ahead of Glasgow Celtic at the top of the table. Celtic has two games in hand.

across counted five points on the 11th and 10th ends to 10-7 and knock B.C. into a second-place tie with New Brunswick both with three wins and a defeat.

Other evening results had guy Chenail of Quebec City beating James Wilbur of Halifax 13-6, Dr. Wen MacDonald of Charlottetown whipping Ed Rhodes of Brampton, Ont., 11-3 and John Murphy of Saint John, N.B., defeating Gil Strauss of Saskatoon 7-4. Alberta, led by Don Cruikshank of Red Deer, threw the byes.

In the third round, Manitoba defeated Newfoundland 8-4, Quebec beat Ontario 12-6, New Brunswick edged P.E.I. 9-8, Saskatchewan surprised Alberta 12-7 and B.C. bounced Nova Scotia 13-5.

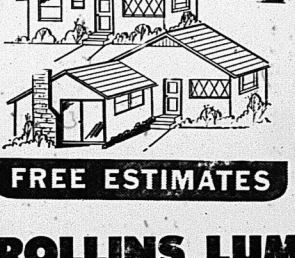
Alberta and Manitoba each has 2-1 records, Quebec and P.E.I. are 2-2, Saskatchewan 1-2, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia both 1-3, and Ontario 0-4.

In the fifth round this afternoon, B.C. meet Northern Ontario, P.E.I. plays Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan faces Ontario, New Brunswick takes on Alberta and Manitoba meets Quebec. Newfoundland had the bye.

The sixth round will have had Ontario against Alberta, Manitoba against P.E.I., Northern Ontario against Quebec, B.C. against Newfoundland and Saskatchewan against Nova Scotia. New Brunswick had the bye.

In the Northern Ontario-Newfoundland game, which lasted three hours and 45 minutes, Smith erased the 9-7 deficit when he picked up a free guard on the four-foot circle with his final rock on the 10th end.

On the extra end, Smith stole one when Pike's last rock went off a guard and went through the house.



"With John having last rock in the extra end, we just tried to keep a guard in the front of the house to make them take it out," Smith said.

"We finally got one hidden back at the edge of the eight-foot ring behind a guard . . . John's last rock was just a little heavy and went right past our rock and out of the house."

Dracula Was A Real Romanian

BOSTON (Reuter) — Yes, there really was a Dracula.

The vampire prince was in fact Vlad Tepes known as the Impaler. He ruled Walachia, now part of Romania, from 1456 to 1462.

Six years of research by two Boston College professors suggests that while Vlad was not actually a vampire, he was at least bloodthirsty.

His favorite practical joke, they say, was to invite elderly crippled people to a lavish dinner and then set the banquet hall on fire.

The Dracula, legend has a growing cult of followers. Travel agencies sponsor special "Dracula tours" to Romania where Dracula is something of a national celebrity, says Prof. Raymond T. McNally, director of The Slavic and East European Centre at Boston College.

Aided in their research by Florescu's uncle, George Florescu, a Romanian genealogist who found Dracula's burial place in an old church in 1931, the professors located Dracula's castle on a remote mountain peak in e Bistrita, Romania.

There was a 1,000-foot sheer drop on all sides, and the ruined castle could be reached only by crossing a rickety footbridge.

McNally and Florescu have made two other trips to Romania since then, continuing their research with the thought of publishing another book.

"Some people think it's a put-on," says McNally, "but it is serious historical research. This is our field."

The fictional Count Dracula was the subject of Bram Stoker's novel, published in 1897, which formed the basis of the first screen portrayal of the vampire by Bela Lugosi in 1931.

"Stoker's character was based on the real Dracula or Vlad Tepes, and embellished with folklore vampire tales," says McNally.

Kitty Franciscus and newborn Korie were reported doing fine. Franciscus and his wife have two other daughters. His most recent television series was Longstreet.

BOSTON (AP) — The Public Broadcasting System (PBS) has launched a nationwide "children's crusade" to save Zoom, billed as the only American television show written and performed entirely by children.

The crusade was ex'n rolled in PBS's television stations this week after a 10-day appeal in six New England states which drew 20,000 cards and letters.

Zoom, a 30-minute daily program completing its second year on most of the 230 PBS television stations, is facing a cut in funds from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. This left Zoom's sponsors $1.8 million short of the funds needed for a full 52-show season.

Budget Is Aimed at Fighting Both Inflation, Unemployment

By BUD JORGENSEN

The federal budget has been seen as one with 'something for everyone" and as a program to fight both unemployment and inflation.

Reaction to the budget tabled Monday by Finance Minister John Turner focussed on tariff cuts on food items, higher pensions, tax cuts and government actions to create jobs and to take the inflationary bite out of the federal tax structure.

Businessmen were elated that the government restated previous promises to pass legislation to reduce corporate taxes and provide investment incentives.

Orland Tropea, Montreal, chairman of the executive committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said these measures require immediate approval of Parliament, because "uncertainty and consequent delay in business commitments" had resulted from lack of legislative action.

Most negative reaction to the budget was in the form of complaints that it did not go far enough.

"We're delighted with the tariff reductions, which are basically on foods," Keith Dixon, Toronto, general manager of the Canadian Importers Association, said.

Daniel Sprague, Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said the tax reductions are welcome and the plan to relate personal income tax rates and exemptions to increases in the consumer price index "is a development of major significance with important implications for the future."

"Philosophically speaking, it could well be a turning point, marking as it does a substantial reduction of the inflationary bias inherent in our tax system to date," Mr. Sprague said.

Fernand Daoust, secretary general of the Quebec Federation of Labor, said the budget is a "small victory for the workers" who would "watch carefully" to see that sales tax cuts are passed on by consumers.

Mr. Daoust took exception to Mr. Turner's suggestion that personal income tax cuts could help curb wage demands in future wage demands.

"For the past few years, inflation has eaten away increases in wages," he said.

Mr. Sprague said the manufacturers' association needed time for "further study" of the tariff measures.

It is noted that the cuts are temporary and presumably negotiated by the Confectionery Association of Canada, said the industry will move "as rapidly as possible to pass on to the consumer extra values" as a result of the tariff reductions.

Roy Atkinson, Saskatoon, president of the National Farmers Union, said the tariff cuts would provide more benefit to foreign suppliers than to Canadian farmers and consumers.

William Hamilton of the Dominion Customs House Brokers Association, Toronto, estimated that about 40 per cent of the food on which customs duties have been reduced are the food stuffs not produced in Canada.

Prof. W. Y. Smith, President, Canadian Public Economic Development Council, says the budget as expansionary and designed to create jobs while running the risk of continued inflation.

"Inflation is bad, but unemployment is more serious."

E. R. Olson, Lanigan, Sask., president of the Saskatchewan Chambers of Commerce, said the "have-not" provinces welcomed the improvement plans for more generous tax payments under revenue sharing plans.

The government proposal to add local school costs to the equalization formula was seen as potentially a major financial break for the Atlantic provinces by Harry Fleming, executive vice-president of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council.

In Vancouver, representatives of senior citizens' organizations said the pension increases were too small.

Tom Alsbury of Pensioners for Action Now said the proposed $100-a-month level is "far when it is passed on."

short of what is needed."

Laura McWilliams, president of the Senior Citizen's Association of B.C. said the proposed figure is inadequate but "any increase will help."

W. M. Keenleyside, chairman of the British Columbia Committee of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, said the government's decision to introduce corporate tax reduction measures proposed in the May, 1972 budget, was a welcome move.

The budget proposals should encourage the manufacturing industry to be more productive and competitive and "will no doubt be a challenge to firms to employ more people," he said.

Michael M. Ryan, chairman of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, said the budget is "bland and has no specific new programs."

"It is not appropriate for this stage in the economic cycle . . . only for the political cycle," he said.

John Ellis, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said he is pleased with the budget for taking steps to slow inflation and stimulate employment.

"We like the look of the basic tax cuts and increased exemptions," he said. "They should spur spending.

"We note with approval the small business investment freedom and the measures to relieve the family farm of taxes when it is passed on."

Cold and Dry

Above normal and near normal temperatures are expected to cover most of the country for the remainder of February according to the 30-day weather outlook of the United States Weather Bureau. Precipitation is expected to be lighter-to-moderate, with the Maritimes and portions of Quebec receiving heavy. This is not a specific forecast, and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap)

Engine Uses Hydrogen

The Stirling engine, invented by a Scottish clergyman more than 130 years ago, is one of the power plants being looked into by the major car manufacturers in the search for the cleaner engine. The Stirling has been refined (tinp) and uses hydrogen alternately heated and cooled to deliver power to the pistons. The mockup (bottom) shows the engine as designed for the Ford Torino. Pre-heating tubes appear at the front with exhaust pipes at bottom and gas recirculation tube extending upward to intake air blower. A combined water pump and power steering pump, belt driven, is located near the front and the alternator is at the rear corner.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and pain even in the anus and speeds up healing of injured tissue in hemorrhoids. One hemorrhoidal case history: "Pain disappeared and I had very little itching. I noticed very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction (shrinkage) of hemorrhoidal tissue.

Amazingly these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most happy of all, sufferers were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured tissue. It helps retard growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is now the main ingredient in suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and relieves stretching and irritation. It helps prevent infection which is a problem in hemorrhoidal tissue.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with applicator) for specific relief.

Satisfaction or your money back.

Bleeding Likely If Stool Black

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I heard a doctor ask a patient about her stools. As near as I can tell, I have that black indicates cancer, but what does flatness indicate?—M.S.

First let's modify your statement. Black stools very often indicate bleeding high in the digestive tract. Although cancer may cause the bleeding, there are also other things that ulcers for one, bleeding from diverticulosis for another.

It is quite true that such a symptom always deserves investigation, but that doesn't mean that it is cancer.

To answer your question, flat stool implies pressure on the lower bowel, particularly in the lowest segment. Here again there are various possibilities, such as large hemorrhoids or a rapid prostate in the male, tumors of the genital tract in women. Again, it deserves investigation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have tried so many diets it isn't even funny any more. I am 5 feet 6 inches and weigh 210 pounds. I get so disgusted with myself. I just can't seem to stop eating.

I eat a good meal and half an hour later I am eating again and this goes on all the time. I usually eat when I get nervous and upset. It seems that food satisfies my tensions.—G.K.

You may well have gone further than you think in solving your weight problem. Understanding that eating too much quite often is an emotional reaction. When you know that, when you have the basis to make sure that your emotions are making you eat, you can substitute low-calorie snacks that won't pack on the pounds.

The first thing to remember: don't try to take off the weight too rapidly. That usually ends in failure. It's taken you a good long time to reach 210 pounds. It will require a reasonable amount of time to get the excess off. I'll be interested in hearing what progress you have made in the next six months.

Dear Doctor: Could you please comment on a gall-bladder test.

Is it effective always? I know that sometimes the lab requires a second test because the first cannot be read, but does this mean, when the first is read and it is either negative or positive, that the test is always correct.—Mrs. H.H.

I presume you are referring to the test (a cholecystogram) where dye is swallowed in tablet form so that, when and if it enters the gall bladder, it will be visible to x-ray.

If the dye is not seen, it may mean that the amount of dye used was insufficient to be detected, that it was rushed through the intestinal tract or that the gall bladder is indeed diseased.

A test is, after all, just that, and often a second one is required either to confirm findings from the first one or to correct the concentration of the dye.

If in subsequent tests the dye is still not detected, it can be presumed that the gall bladder is not normal.

Although the dye test represented a great advance in the diagnosis of gall-bladder trouble, doctors are also guided by symptoms and other physical findings before making final diagnosis.

Opening lead—king of hearts.

This hand illustrates a play known as the stripteuse coup.

You lead the king of hearts and declarer observes that there is a danger of losing a heart and trumps begin to down one. So, in an effort to avoid this disaster, South wins the heart lead with the ace, cashes the queen of trumps, plays a low diamond to the ten, and leads the ace of spades from dummy.

East ruffs with the four, in order to stop declarer from discarding his heart loser, and South overruffs with the five. Declarer now cashes the ace of diamonds and continues with the king, planning to discard dummy's heart loser if West follows suit.

But West trumps the third round of diamonds with the three and dummy overruffs with the eight as East follows suit. Continuing his campaign, declarer now plays the king of spades from dummy, forcing East to ruff with the six as South overruffs with the seven.

The stripteuse has now been accomplished, for East and West have each been denuded of their low trumps, and the king and ace — both unattended — are the only trumps they have left.

Declarer leads the queen of diamonds and West cannot do better than ruff with the ace of trumps. The rest of hearts is discarded on the trick. South ruffs and declarer ruffs a heart in dummy and his only losers on the hand turn out to be the AK of trumps.

The recommended method of play is of course an unusual way of extracting trumps, but that is hardly a bar to its use, considering the circumstances.

Economists See Turner Budget Having Only Moderate Impact

TORONTO (CP) — The federal budget will have a moderate impact on the Canadian economy, some economists say, and it may not be enough to take the slice out of unemployment totals.

However, they agreed Finance Minister Turner's address Monday night headed the government in the right direction.

Doug Sherbaniuk, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, said it provides "a necessary but moderate stimulus to the economy without at the same time creating a major problem of inflation for the future."

Its social measures—personal income tax cuts, tax reductions and higher pensions—are desirable, needed and beneficial, said Douglas Peters, economic adviser to the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

But Henri Migin, chief economist of the Provincial Bank of Canada, doubted there would be a significant drop in the unemployment rate. There would be some improvement, but nothing like the 300,000 jobs the federal government is forecasting.

Lorie Tarshis, economics professor at the University of Toronto, said unemployment in Canada is "tragically high" and needs "much more drastic expansionary medicine" are needed.

He said "there's nothing Canada needs more now than an expansionary fiscal policy."

He welcomed what he referred to as a departure from conventional anti-inflationary policies of tight money and higher taxes. International competition was increased by doing away with some import duties and sales taxes.

He and Mr. Sherbaniuk both viewed government withdrawal from certain sales tax areas as a way of redistributing more purchasing power to the poor. The 15-per-cent tax on children's clothing and footwear was eliminated.

Prof. Tarshis said the five-per-cent cut in personal income tax, with a minimum of $100 and maximum of $500, also favors the low-income earner.

Mr. Peters said that as desirable as the social measures are, the budget is not particularly stimulative to the economy.

Although the government estimated a budget deficit of $975 million, the deficit on national accounts was only $640 million and was less than the national accounts shortfall of the 1972 budget.

Others said reducing customs duties and imports helped to combat inflationary pressures in a stimulated economy. Prof. John Bossons of the University of Toronto said it helps lower prices on Canadian goods competing with the imports.

He joined with Mr. Sherbaniuk in praising the proposal to adjust personal income tax exemptions and rates annually, starting next year, to discount increases due to inflation.

It was perhaps the most important feature of the budget, Prof. Bossons said. It means a leveling off in the automatic growth of government revenues and possibly avoiding a windfall role for government in future.

Mr. Sherbaniuk applauded it as the first explicit recognition by Canada of the problem of tax inflation and provision for relief from it.

John Crispo, dean of the faculty of management studies, University of Toronto, said he is disturbed by the prospect that in attempting to get relatively full employment the government may be moving too rapidly and creating serious inflation.

But then they'll declare another war on inflation and as a result there will be another dose of unemployment . . . unless there was a move to unacceptable price and wage controls.

He said he is disappointed the government did not come to grips with the main cause of inflation—unduly powerful interest groups who abuse their position by demanding high wages and profits.

From an economic view, he added, the government was on safe ground in moving to reduce unemployment and stimulate growth. Politically, the budget was a clever package designed to win approval of the Conservatives and New Democrats.

Stanfield Steals Applause

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner delivered his second budget speech Monday night with the obvious measure of a man offering federal tax cuts.

Mr. Stanfield rose to boos and roaring approval from his party's benches four times during the 80-minute budget speech, once on Mr. Turner's behalf.

That was when the finance minister announced tax reductions on bananas, something Mr. Turner said was sure to get conservative support for his tax and spending plans.

The budget speech was dubbed "Banana Bob" during his campership in 1967 when television cameras flashed a shot of him eating one.

The three other bows came as Mr. Turner elaborated on a government plan to offset inflation by making it partially tax-deductible, a move advocated by the Conservative party.

Will the real Bob Stanfield please stand up. . . . Conservative backbencher shouted as Mr. Turner read the section. The real one did, with a grin.

Mr. Turner's speech was interrupted at times by desk pounding applause, mostly from Liberal MPs but many times Conservative opposition members, particularly those of the New Democrats.

New Democrat House Leader Stanley Knowles got a long time advocate of higher old-age pensions, praised Mr. Turner. Tory leader David Lewis when Mr. Turner announced pension increases.

The section dealing with tariff cuts for children's clothing also drew a boisterous response. "Hear, hear," roared one Conservative, referring to the prime minister's son, Mrs. Trudeau, watching in the gallery.

Perhaps the re- st response of all came when Mr. Turner announced. As all sides of the House pounded and cheered.

Second Budget

Hon. John Turner presented his second budget to the House of Commons Wednesday.

Faster Growth Aim of Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal budget Monday night gives Canadian business and industry a number of measures all aimed at faster growth of the economy. The aim is to create more jobs.

Finance Minister Turner announced tax changes aimed at helping small business, personal tax cuts which will give consumers more buying power, and sales-tax reductions which will make a wide range of Canadian-produced goods more competitive with foreign imports.

He also confirmed—as he said he would—that the government still is "committed to corporate rate cuts and other measures in his 1972 budget which were designed to assist industry. Those measures were never passed before the last House dissolved for the October election.

The new measure to assist small business eliminates a requirement on the use of certain income for tax purposes.

The tax now is 25 per cent on the first $50,000 in each year of business income of Canadian controlled private corporations until a total of $400,000 of taxable income has been accumulated.

The purpose of the low rate was to provide these firms with funds for expansion. But the rate did not apply on capital for other purposes—such as loans to investments.

This requirement—the so-called "ineligible investments test"—is repealed, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1972. Mr. Turner said the provision had proved "complex and difficult."

"I believe that these small corporations which enjoy the benefit of the lower rate of tax will, in fact, use these tax savings to improve their levels of output and to create more jobs for Canadians."

Mr. Turner said other measures to help small firms will follow.

"This government is deeply concerned about the problems facing small business today.

"Later in this session of Parliament, the government will introduce its specific proposals for assistance to this category of enterprise."

Mr. Turner said it was "urgent" that Parliament give early approval to proposals in his May, 1972, budget.

That budget proposed the top corporation tax rate be reduced to 40 per cent from 49 per cent in 1973 for profits from manufacturing and processing in Canada; and a cut to 20 per cent from 25 in the corporation income tax for manufacturing and processing profits eligible for the small business incentive.

Part of that package also was the proposal of a two-year fast write-off for tax purposes for purchases of equipment to be used in manufacturing and processing goods in Canada, replacing a schedule that took 10 years to depreciate about 90 per cent on the value of equipment.

Mr. Turner Monday announce that this will continue to the end of 1974 and the government, meanwhile, will monitor the program to determine its effect on prices and jobs.

The study will cover all aspects of capital cost allowances, not just the fast write-off.

Thus, his total federal tax payable on 1973 income is $6,032.20, compared with the $734 he would have paid on the same income in 1972.

The federal tax changes might mean the provinces will adjust their tax rates to produce the same revenue.

In Ontario, for example, provincial tax on his 1972 income is $234, producing total weekly federal-provincial deductions, including unemployment insurance and pension, of $22.61.

Allowing for the same amount of provincial tax on 1973 income, he would take home $129.96 of his $150 paycheque, compared with $127.99 during 1972.

In reality, however, both take-home figures would be lower due to deductions for such items as union dues and company pension plans.

Omitting those private deductions, here is what he would take home in 1972 and 1973 if he lived in the 1972 provinces where the federal government collects provincial income tax:

Nfld.	127.66	129.03
P.E.I.	127.66	129.03
N.S.	126.70	128.06
N.B.	126.58	128.32
Ont.	127.99	129.96
Man.	128.11	130.08
Sask.	126.91	128.88
Alta.	127.66	129.03
B.C.	127.66	129.03

There is still lots of time for provincial taxes to be raised or lowered, however.

Saskatchewan, for example, has announced an increase of three percentage points in its provincial tax. It will be worked into the above calculations, the 1973 take - home pay would be one from reductions announced Monday night.

But there is a "floor" guarantee to the provinces under the fiscal arrangements act.

Take-home Pay Will Be Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — A typical taxpayer will find that Monday night's tax changes mean $1.97 a week to his take-home pay.

That calculation is based on a married man earning $150 a week, with two children under 16. It includes the effects of changes in Canada Pension Plan and unemployment insurance deductions.

That taxpayer was paying $734 in federal tax on his 1972 income. This year, he would pay $650.22 if his 1973 income were unchanged.

The difference comes from two factors—increased deductions and a new tax cut to replace the temporary three-per-cent cut that expired Dec. 31.

From his $7,869 income for 1972, he can deduct $2,850 for the married-couple personal allowance, $300 each for the two children, $150 for employment expenses, $100 for medical expenses, $98.26 for unemployment insurance contributions and $88.20 for pension plan contributions.

That leaves $3,913.32 as his taxable income.

Basic federal tax on that is $756.82, but the three-per-cent tax cut reduces tax payable to $734.

Under Monday's tax changes, the $2,850 deduction would increase to $3,000. And he will pay $90 in pension deductions and $94 in unemployment insurance this year.

That produces 1973 taxable income of $3,882. Basic tax on that would be $750.22, or $6.61 less than 1972 basic tax.

The big difference comes in the new tax cut. It is five per cent of basic tax, but is a minimum of $100 and a maximum of $500.

Five per cent of $750.22 is $37.50, so instead he takes off the minimum $100. That means 1972 take - home pay would be in effect a 13.3 per cent tax cut. $128.62 instead of $128.

Provinces Asked To Hold Tax Line

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner devotes a long section of his budget speech to federal-provincial relations. He asks the provinces to co-operate in holding the line on their tax rates.

Provincial governments—and the larger provinces in particular—"must be prepared to carry an appropriate share of responsibility in policies for stability and growth in the national economy."

Mr. Turner's budget, and his request to the provinces, comes just a week after British Columbia announced a 10-per-cent increase in tax to 12 from 10 per cent, and two months after Saskatchewan increased personal income taxes to 40 per cent from 37 and its corporate taxes to 13 per cent from 10.

Because the provinces relate their tax rates to the federal basic rate, they will lose revenue from reductions announced Monday night.

But there is a "floor" guarantee to the provinces under the fiscal arrangements act,

Business to Play Big Role In Deciding Budget Effects

OTTAWA (CP) — The full impact of Finance Minister John Turner's budget will be determined by two groups—New Democrats and business.

The NDP controls the continued life of the minority Liberal government. It will decide whether to extend further support, or be pushed into an election if the budget goes a long way to meet its desires.

Business plays a major role in the calculated risk that the budget will invoke more spending through its tax, tariff and other cuts for the economy.

The NDP will make its influence felt first. With the Conservatives clearly opposed to the budget, the NDP vote in the standing Commons budget debate is decisive.

Then businessmen will decide whether its mix of tariff and tax reductions in federal taxes on consumer goods will yield profits or, as the government says it wants, reduce their prices and raise their quality.

Mr. Turner said Monday he hopes personal income tax reductions will expand consumer spending, spurring the economy to more job creation.

The addition of taxes on such goods as children's clothing and candy, and tariff reductions on scores of imported items, are intended to reduce producer costs and dampen price increases.

The minister told a news conference after the budget speech that he sees inflation will continue at last year's rate—3.7 per cent to August—when the Commons quickly passes his measures.

But he hoped unemployment will fall well below six per cent. Mr. Turner projected a 6.2 per cent as seasonally adjusted figure, the impact of low and high job periods over a full year. . . . Economists' forecasts of 300,000 new jobs.

He also acknowledged the limits of the government.

"I tried to balance economic credibility . . . with whatever flexibility I could to meet the current political situation."

The budget, which is passed by Parliament, Mr. Turner said he has no plans for wage and price controls. But expectations of lower prices for manufactures that will be first to feel the elimination of taxes.

"I'm relying a good deal on the competitive pressures applied to make this budget work."

He said he does have commitments from two industries—the textile and equipment sectors—to pass on tax cuts in the form of lower prices or higher quality.

Mr. Turner said in his speech he monitored to check whether the tax reductions have that effect.

He also is counting on unions and professional people to vote the bigger pay cheques that result from personal tax cuts bargaining for higher wages and salaries.

The minister said taxpayers will save $1.3 billion through the increased personal exemptions and tax reductions and tax rate proposed in the budget.

That means everybody will save as much in taxes as they would have if the three-per-cent tax reduction, due to expire at the end of 1972, had been maintained this year.

Most taxpayers will save more, he said.

Taxpayers also stand to save from the reductions in tariffs on a vast range of consumer goods-providing the benefits are passed on to consumers by importers.

Goods affected include meats, out-of-season fruits and vegetables, electrical appliances, sporting goods, camera equipment, drugs and fishermen's nets.

Consumers also are intended to gain from the corporate tax reductions announced in the May 8 budget and re-introduced Monday.

Those are aimed at making Canadian firms more competitive at home and abroad. Turner said they would be pairing the Conservative lead-

Tariff Reductions Aimed At Low Prices for Imports

OTTAWA (CP) — Tariff reductions aimed at holding down import prices without endangering jobs could benefit consumers under Finance Minister John Turner's Monday budget.

For exporters facing tough competition on world markets, Mr. Turner reaffirmed his commitment to reduce taxes for manufacturers and processors, as promised in the May 8 budget but not yet enacted.

The cuts in tariffs and corporate taxes are the main trade elements in the government's expansion-without-inflation budget proposals.

The tariff reductions, averaging five-percentage points, would affect about $1.3 billion in imports, mostly consumer goods. Eighty- and 60 per cent of the affected imports come from the United States.

They are intended to bring down the prices of imports and put pressure on domestic competitors to moderate their own prices, Mr. Turner said.

But he added:

"Every effort has been made to avoid any adverse impact on production and employment in our own factories and farms across Canada."

The reductions apply to such foods as out-of-season fruits and vegetables, bananas, citrus juices and sugar.

They also apply to drugs, fishing and dinnerware, furniture, electrical appliances, house trailers, camera equipment, sporting goods and toys.

They would not apply to goods competing with domestic dairy products, eggs or in-season fruits and vegetables.

A finance department official said reporters the reductions should not have a significant impact on the volume of imports, but should result in "a modest reduction" in prices.

The budget speech says the corporate tax cuts — reducing the rate to 40 per cent from 49 per cent—will "provide substantial incentives" to offset the serious competitive threat posed by substantial tax subsidies for exports made available in the United States and EEC corporations."

The U.S. law setting up DISC domestic international sales corporations—permits U.S. firms to establish subsidiaries that enjoy tax holidays on profits on exports.

The reduced tax burden on Canadian firms would also help them "to meet the increasingly severe competition from the new industrial giants that are emerging on the world scene, Japan and the expanded European Economic Community."

Mr. Turner said the recent international monetary crisis underlines the need to improve Canadian firms.

"It should be clear to all of us . . . that we will be better able to face international competition if we keep our industries strong, resilient and competitive."

An official said Monday the bills to implement the tariff cuts—which have been opposed by the New Democrats—would be introduced in the Commons when their passage seems most likely after discussions with the party House leaders.

Mr. Turner said in his speech that the government will monitor firms' use of the tax cuts, checking how they affect employment expectations of job creation as a result of the tax

Budget Slices $200 Million In Taxes off Consumers' Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Turner sliced a prospective $200 million or more off the Canadian consumer's annual bill Monday night by eliminating some sales taxes and cutting customs duties on a wide range of over-the-counter goods.

How much the ultimate buyer will benefit from immediately cost reductions will depend on how they are passed along the distribution line, and the minister warned that "Parliament will be watching for results."

The 12-per-cent sales tax, imposed on the factory value, is removed from all children's clothing and from the last remaining food items including soft drinks, confectionaries, chocolate bars and fruit drinks.

The food items represent retail sales of more than $1 billion a year while $250 million worth of children's clothing are sold annually.

The tariff cuts-which would be effective for a year but subject to individual restoration at any time before that-would involve imports of $1.3 billion a year, including many foods and consumer goods as well as meats, out-of-season fruits and vegetables, household articles, pharmaceuticals, sporting goods and toys.

On many items, the tariff on most-favored-nation countries such as the United States is wiped out altogether. Between 50 and 60 per cent of the affected imports are from the U.S.

Mr. Turner estimated that the combination of sales tax removal and tariff reductions would cost the treasury $190 million a year.

Items left are applied at the point where the goods begin their journey from the distribution system to the consumer. . . . Consumer purchases would boost this figure enormously for the ultimate purchaser. The tariff cuts are applied on the manufacturer's level or as duty-paid import price.

The budget also abolished a 15-per-cent special excise tax on a wide variety of cosmetics and toilet articles and from clocks and watches worth under $50 at the manufacturer's level or a duty-paid imports.

The toilet articles include toothpaste, lipstick, shaving soaps, hair sprays, deodorants, mouthwashes and powders. Ordinary soap already is exempt.

Mr. Turner said he had chosen to remove the sales tax on these categories because "food and clothing account for proportionately a higher percentage of the budget of lower-income households so that the tax on these products bears most heavily on those who are least able to afford it."

The tariff reductions will not apply to dairy products or eggs or to fruits and vegetables in the season when Canadian grown products are being marketed.

Also, the government seeks parliamentary authority to restore the old tariff rates at any time should circumstances warrant.

Libyan Jet Shot Down

TEL AVIV (CP) — At least 70 persons were killed and 13 survived whenea Libyan jetliner, ignoring orders to land, was hit by Israeli fighter planes today and crash-landed in the barren Sinai Desert, an Israeli spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the Boeing 727 was forced down when it did not respond to a call, in accordance with international practice, to land and also ignored warning shots fired by Israeli jets sent up to order it to land.

The spokesman said rescue workers were at the scene attempting to pull more survivors out of the wreckage.

It was the first time a Libyan aircraft has been caught in the Middle East dispute, and came only 12 hours after Israeli commandos returned from a raid on seven Palestinian Arab guerrilla bases in northern Lebanon.

The spokesman said the Libyan plane entered Israeli airspace 50 miles from the Suez canal over the Mediterranean coastline, and flew over Israeli military positions.

Israeli planes rose to intercept the aircraft and opened fire after the pilot ignored the orders to land, the spokesman said. The plane was hit and forced to crash-land in the desert about 12 miles from the Suez canal, he said.

Efforts to make contact with the Libyan plane failed 15 minutes, the spokesman said.

An official investigation has been ordered.

This is the first time any direct action with Libya has been reported, though Israel has long complained about it getting French Mirage jets, denied the Israelis under the embargo France imposed in 1968 on sending arms to any countries involved in the Middle East conflict.

Ottawa Outlay Rises Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Tuesday presented a preliminary forecast of spending and lending for the 1973-74 fiscal year of $19.3 billion amid indications that final figures will easily top the $20-billion level.

The preliminary estimate, usually a rock-bottom figure the government later exceeds, is up about $1 billion over the expected final total for the current year ending March 31. It is $2 billion more than the government originally forecast for 1972-73.

The spending estimates, tabled in the Commons Tuesday by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, were drawn up before Finance Minister John Turner presented his budget Monday night.

So these estimates of federal spending don't include the higher government outlays for such things as old age and veteran's pensions announced by Mr. Turner. Increases in the old age pension alone, were announced in the budget, are expected to take another $200 million on 1973-74 government spending that begins April 1.

There also is no figure in the latest forecasts for the amount that unemployment insurance might siphon from general government revenues during the new fiscal year. The only expenditure shown for this is an $885-million item, for which the funds already have been spent, tidying up the book-keeping to the end of the current year.

In the last year, the government scrapped the old special fund and paid unemployment benefits out of general tax revenues while the workers and employer and employee contributions flowed into the fund to close to $1 billion.

Total 1973-74 budgetary spending in the latest estimates is set at $18,303,121,765. With loans and advances amounted to $893,304,000 added in, the total figures to $19,196,325,765.

This compares with an expected year-end total by March 31 of $18,541,641,000 in budgetary spending, plus $1,808,779,000 in loans and advances for an overall figure of $18,687,870,000.

At the start of the expiring fiscal year, the government anticipated budgetary spending totlay of $15,749,301,169 plus loans and advances of $780,775,000 for a total of $16,530,080,169.

Lebanon Bases Raided By Israeli Commandos

The Israeli military command said "dozens" of guerrillas were killed. The toll reported by guerrilla sources in Lebanon ranged from 15 to 36, with more than 60 wounded.

Israel said its only casualties were eight wounded, but a guerrilla leader said: "Enemy losses were heavy, far more than the Israeli radio is admitting, and included a number of dead."

The guerrillas said the Israeli attack force numbered 350 troops and engaged the Arabs in "savage hand-to-hand fighting."

The Israeli command said the targets were guerrilla bases in two Palestinian refugee camps at which terrorists were trained for attacks abroad, including the three Japanese who massacred 26 persons at Tel Aviv's international airport last May and the Munich Olympics killers.

Premier Sa'eb Salam of Lebanon said the attack was "an outrage" and came after a time when the Israeli-Lebanese border had been particularly quiet.

Foreign Minister Khalil Abu Hamad said Lebanon will complain to the United Nations Security Council, but foreign ministry sources said a meeting of the council will not be requested.

Salam said that, so far, there were 12 known dead, but many persons were believed buried under the rubble of buildings destroyed by the raiders.

The Israeli military command said the bases attacked were inside the big refugee camps at El Bedawi and Nahr al Bared, five and 10 miles north of Tripoli and close to the Syrian border.

Israel said the commandos struck an hour after midnight and destroyed installations and buildings.

The Lebanese defence ministry said patrol boats landed the raiders and helicopters took them home. But some guerrilla sources said the Israelis came by helicopter and withdrew by sea.

A guerrilla communique issued in Beirut said that two Israeli warships bombarded the Nahr al Bared camp, killing "a large number of citizens, children many women and children."

It said: "At every opportunity, the Lebanese authorities attempt to skin their hands of the responsibility for the acts of terror carried out at a great distance from their territory.

"But, at the very same time, their country is serving as a base and a refuge for the planners and organizers and murderers of fleeing terrorists after they have perpetrated their acts of terror."

The Israelis said there are 3,000 terrorists based in Lebanon and it is the headquarters of the Black September movement, which made the attack at the Olympics: Al Fatah, the biggest of the guerrilla organizations and various factions of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which organized the airport massacre.

It was the first Israeli ground attack in Lebanon since Sept. 16, when a 36-hour sweep along the southern border hit 16 villages and killed 68 guerrillas, by Israeli count, in retaliation for the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes at the Olympic games.

Since then, the Lebanese border generally has been quiet. But guerrillas based in Syria continued active, and there were a number of Israeli air attacks on their bases.

Tabby Charger Fires

Belleville Bobcats' centre Peter Smrke fired more than just this one shot at Peterborough Lions' goalie Terry Watson in the opening game of the Metro Junior "B" quarter-finals Tuesday night. Wasson puts the stop on this goalgetting attempt while Lions' defenceman Gord McNevan gives him added protection, but he failed on a third period try by Smrke. The former juvenile centre provided the Bobcats with their fourth goal in a 5-4 victory over the league pennant winners, who are playing a best of seven series with the "Tempestuous Tabbies." Ceasefire Violations Increase SAIGON (AP) —The South Vietnamese government reported an increase in ceasefire violations again today, and Premier Pham Van Dong of North Vietnam accused the United States and the Saigon government of sabotaging the truce agreement.

The Saigon command said there were 29 more Communist violations of the ceasefire during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m., compared with 156 during the previous 24 hours. This raised the total reported by Saigon to 4,139 since the ceasefire began Jan. 28.

Pakistanis Had Toy Guns

Slaying of Two Youths By Police Stirs Debate

LONDON (Reuter) — A major controversy loomed today after police shot to death two Pakistani teen-agers who raided the Indian high commission building brandishing toy weapons.

The two dead youths and a 15-year-old boy shot in the leg apparently trying to hold high commission staff hostage in a protest action against India's detention of Pakistani prisoners of war.

But they were killed when one of their hostages dived through a window and notified police.

A police spokesman said neither of the youths, who were stocking masks and carried knives, a sword and acid spray and the imitation weapons, responded to police orders to throw down their arms.

Scotland Yard ch... ordered an inquiry into the shooting which has revived the controversy over whether Britain's unarmed police should carry weapons.

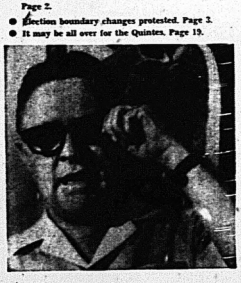
It was the second incident in recent months in which police have shot and killed raiders. Last December, a gunman on his way to guard duty at an embassy killed a bank robber.

Home Secretary Robert Carr backed the police action in a speech Tuesday in the House of Commons.

"Even if the guns were not real, the acid spray was real, the daggers were real and the sword was real," he said. "These were all used, and injured people."

The raid happened just as high commission staff were arriving for work Tuesday morning. The three youths rushed into the building and screamed at staff: "We are nothing for the money. ... We are here for the cause, you Indian bastards."

They demanded keys to the building, but before they could barricade themselves in, one of their hostages made his escape through the window.



A police spokesman said later the raiders were repeatedly told that the police were armed but they were urged to throw down their arms, which they did not do.

The 15-year-old boy was arrested after police took away a sword he had been holding.

Laotian Truce Terms Follow Geneva Accord

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The warring Laotian factions signed a ceasefire agreement today scheduled to take effect at noon, Thursday, or midnight EST tonight.

The terms are similar to those of the 1962 Geneva accord, which stopped the fighting in Laos for a time but brought no lasting peace.

In addition to the ceasefire, Interior Minister Phene Phongsavan said the agreement calls for:

—Formation of a provisional government of national union, with half the cabinet posts going to rightist and neutralist non-Communists and half to the Communist, Pathet Lao. Prince Souvanna Phouma, the 72-year-old neutralist premier who has headed the government since 1962, is expected to retain the post.

—Formation of a mixed political council to organize elections.

—Release of all prisoners and withdrawal of all foreign troops within 29 days.

—Supervision of the agreement by the same three-nation International Control Commission that was unable to supervise the 1962 agreement. It is made up of Canada, India and Poland.

Pheng also said Vientiane, the administrative capital, Luang Prabang, the royal capital, will be neutralized to guarantee the security of the government.

The agreement was signed after two days of negotiations over the power of the Communists in the coalit..n regime.

The text of the agreement was not made public immediately.

There also was no immediate announcement of when U.S. air attacks on North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces in northern and southern Laos will end. These troops have been police steady pressure on government forces in recent weeks, and U.S. B-52 bombers have been flying some 225 strikes a day against them from bases in Thailand.

The U.S. Pacific Command in Honolulu, which now makes all announcements about U.S. air operations in Laos and Cambodia, said strikes continued as usual in Laos Tuesday at the request of the Laotian government.

Defence Costs Rise

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain announced a sharp rise in its defence budget Tuesday and noted a steady increase in the military capability of the Soviet Union. A policy statement on the defence estimates for 1973-74, published today, gave the total expenditure as £3M billion (about $8 billion), £323 million ($1.2 billion) higher than in the previous year.

Hopes Dim

GENEVA (Reuter) —Diplomats held out dim prospects today for progress in the current session of disarmament talks after the Soviet Union insisted on the participation of France and China in negotiations for a ban on all nuclear testing. Soviet Ambassador Alexei Roschin told the opening meeting of the session Tuesday that all five nuclear states will have to negotiate for the cessation of nuclear tests.

Women's Status Is Issue

Indians Seek Exemption From Suit for 6 Months

Ottawa (CP)—Fearful of the outcome of a Supreme Court of Canada case, the Indian Federation of Alberta today asked that the federal government protect the Indian Act from court action for six months.

During that time, the federation said in a brief to Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, it will, in consultation with other Indians, draft a proposed new Indian Act.

The federation said that if the Supreme Court finds it is discriminatory for Indian women to lose their status when they marry whites "it could destroy any chance of our survival in this country as a distinct cultural unit."

The court starts Thursday to hear an appeal launched by the government against a Federal Court finding that a section of the Indian Act saying women lose their status in a mixed marriage is unconstitutional because it runs counter to the Bill of Rights. Indian men marrying whites retain their Indian status.

While the appeal involves only two women — Mrs. Jeannette Lavell, who married a white man, and Mrs. Yvonne Bedard, who married a white man twice after her marriage broke up — the Indian Act contains many provisions added to the Indian rolls as a result.

The federation said it was necessary to understand the Indian culture and traditions before yet another part of the white culture was imposed on them.

"In our way of life, it has always been the man who has had the responsibility of caring for his woman and family," said the brief.

"When an Indian marries outside of the band, we adopt the responsibility for his wife and family. Therefore, if we cannot marry outside of the band, we ask that this responsibility be removed."

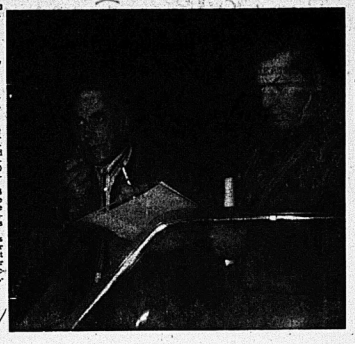
Indian land and resources were too limited to allow any change, the brief said.

To avoid possible court change, the federation asked Parliament to amend the Indian Act temporarily so it was not subject to the Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights should be amended so that nothing in the bill could adversely affect the treaty rights of Indians.

City Police Pay Boost Settled

Members of the Belleville Police Department have gained a 16 per cent increase in salary over the term of a new two-year work contract with the city.

One-half of the increase, or eight per cent, is for the one year, with the other eight per cent to be effective in 1974.



City police commission chairman James Driscoll, in announcing signing of the contract, said negotiations with the association were very amicable.

"Both the association and the police commission gave a little in the negotiations," he said.

Salaries for civilian personnel with the police department are still to be negotiated, while the salaries for the position of chief and deputy chief are not covered under the association contract.

Under the new agreement, 1973 salaries for police personnel are as follows: probationary constable $8,779; third class constable $10,629; second class constable $11,200 and first class constable $11,772.

Sergeants and detectives will receive $12,713 this year and $13,720 in 1974; Sergeant of detectives $13,537 this year and $14,620 in 1974 and Inspector $14,650 for 1973 and $15,822 next year.

North Park Sewer Construction Soon

Storm sewer installation in two proposed North Park St. housing subdivisions will commence soon.

This was indicated to city traffic committee members on Monday by City Engineer Wilbur Purcell, who said the two developers — Rollins Construction and J. L. Farrell Construction — expected to commence the underground work for their developments early in March.

He said it looked as though the two developers would cooperate by use of the same contractor. Farrell has approximately 50 lots for single-family residential construction while Rollins plans construction of townhousing in his area.

The subdivision storm sewers will be oversized to provide for drainage of surface water from North Park Street, through the n e x t - w e s t trunk sewer into the Moira just south of Lester's Dam.

The city will pay approximately $10,000 to the developers for haying their privately owned system oversized to take care of North Park St. water.

The North Park Street area has been the source of flooding complaints following heavy rains and the sewer installation will remedy this problem.

Relief Milking Scheme May Get Hastings Trial

In this age when the five-day, 40-hour week is an accepted fact for urban workers, one of the major complaints of their rural cousins, the dairymen, is that they are tied to their job seven days a week.

But good news for the hard-working cow custodians: there is a move afoot at the Stirling Agricultural Office that could see the milking chores looked after while the wee enjoy a weekend away frm the farm.

The idea is known as a relief milking service suggested at the Hastings Farm Women's conference last November. The Stirling agricultural office has been asked to assist in co-ordinating such a service in the county.

In this month's Hasti-Agri-Gram, the monthly newsletter published at the Stirling office, T. Wayne Martin outlined the proposed milking service and distributed a questionnaire to determine how many farmers might be interested.

Mr. Martin suggests that there are probably some areas on the farm with their father who would be able to do some part time milking for a neighbor wanting to get away for a few days.

Also, there may be young people in high school with farm experience who might be available for weekend milking.

Another possibility is that before possibility is that retired or semi-retired dairymen might be available to occasionally assist in a milking service.

A list of relief milkers and a list of dairymen requesting such a service might be put together. If this can be done, dairymen wishing a day or so away from the farm could contact a relief milker and be in his way, knowing the homestead chores were in capable hands.

Interested dairymen and possible relief milkers are asked to contact the Stirling office.

Although new in the Quinte area, the relief milking service program has been in use in Stormont County for some months.

members of the city traffic committee, who have been asked to do something about the matter.

The committee was told that the night truck traffic apparently originated from commercial enterprises along Sidney Street. The feeling was that the trucks should use Sidney and Dundas Streets rather than go along Bridge Street.

The matter was turned over to city police for investigation and report.

Boundary Commission Willing to Listen

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Critics of suggested federal riding boundary changes in Central Ontario Tuesday were told local community feelings will be considered as well as mandatory population standards before final proposals to change the province's electoral patterns emerge.

The reminders came from an authoritative source:

Two principal commissioners of the Federal Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario in Belleville for the fifth of eight public hearings across the province on suggested riding realignments.

Ontario Supreme Court Justice J. L. Wilson, commission chairman, said no final decisions would be made on electoral changes until opinions of the people in the constituencies are also known.

The fact certain boundaries already had been published did not mean they might not be changed to meet the wishes of people in certain areas.

Commissioner Roderick Lewis, clerk of the Ontario legislature, the province's chief election officer, said the commission was concerned with people as well as population statistics.

"We are not just dealing with numbers. We are dealing with people in the final analysis," he said.

However, creation of more federal seats — up to 93 from 88 — and different population criteria set for boundary redistributions had created "a new ball game" since the last redistribution in 1966, said Mr. Lewis.

As a result, it is impossible to retain many of the province's electoral districts as they now are.

But the commissioners' indications they were willing to listen to local reactions, and their questions to critics seemed to impress some of the protesters against the commission's first boundary proposals published Dec. 29.

Outside the main court room in Hastings County building, where the hearing sat, several expressed approval of the commission's attitude.

Kel Kincaid, president of the Hastings Progressive Conservative Association, who has filed a petition protesting proposed breakup of his riding don't envy your position. You are damned if you do — and you're damned if you don't."

Mr. Inrig's submission calling for changes in proposed Victoria - Haliburton electoral boundaries, was one of the lengthier, painstaking briefs presented.

No representatives spoke from the Quinte ridings of Prince Edward - Hastings, Hastings or Frontenac Lennox and Addington.

Thrust of most of the briefs emphasized that the suggested changes would disrupt traditional community associations by aligning populations in new voting areas and create communication problems.

Among the speakers:

W. Allan, MP, West Conservative MP, Victoria - Haliburton, whose riding now sprawls across four counties east-west of Peterborough, said parts of Ninpissing District and Renfrew county would be redistributed into a new constituency. He said an MP in the seat would have to represent areas that had no ties with his present constituency.

"People have become accustomed to the ties and association with their MP and their member of parliament — and they have fears of losing these," he said.

He suggested his riding remain as is — with the addition of Bancroft and its surrounding townships from north Hastings County.

—Bruce Glass, Lindsay, Victoria - Haliburton Liberal Association, secretary, warned the riding already had too wide an east-west spread. He suggested amalgation of many rural municipalities in various parts of the riding and the addition of six townships from Durham. This would give the riding a more north - south alignment fronting on Lake Ontario.

— John W. Wood, Peterborough, executive director, who called for inclusion of Peterborough rural municipalities into the Peterborough electoral district. The urban area had strong mutual community, social and historic identity.

— Jim Reynolds, Peterborough County warden, who asked that his county and the city electoral area be one unit, or at least some of the nearby communities.

—Roger Kirkpatrick, Northumberland - Durham Liberal Association president, opposed no change in the present Northumberland - Durham electoral district. "Partisan political advantages was not a factor since traditional federal patterns are "evenly split" between the major political parties. The request was based on "continuity and a community of interest" in the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

Stirling Society Elects Officers

The Stirling Agricultural Society annual meeting was held at St. John's Parish Hall Stirling.

Elected to the Fair Board executive were: president, Kenneth Mumby; vice-president, John Sheridan and Ralph Jeffs' secretary, Mrs. John Sheridan and treasurer, Maurice Clancy.

Elected to the Lady Directors executive were: president Mrs. Floyd Armstrong; vice-president, Mrs. Maurice Clancy; secretary, Miss Gerda Spry; treasurer, Mrs. Malcolm Sharp.

Quinte-area Spokesmen Not Happy With Plan

There were no spokesmen Tuesday for Quinte district ridings before the authority charged with redrafting federal electoral patterns in the province.

But one fact emerged:

Progressive Conservatives in Hastings riding have become the strongest proponents of keeping the constituency intact.

But, ironically, it'll fellow Conservatives in neighboring Victoria - Haliburton who are demanding a chunk of the Belleville - centred riding for themselves.

However, the decisive move rests with the Federal Electoral Boundaries Commission of Ontario, at some hearing in Belleville Tuesday opposing requests from the same political party — of different associations — surfaced.

The stand of the Hastings group is filed with the commission as a petition organized by Conservative riding president Kel Kincaid, of Madoc.

It's also supported in a brief by Hastings MP Jack Ellis who arrived back from Ottawa too late for yesterday's hearing at the Hastings County building.

Like most other ridings — including Hastings — Victoria-Haliburton has been proposed for alterations, pattern of which does not agree with constituency's Conservatives, the commission learned.

William Scott, Conservative MP Victoria - Haliburton, already has six of Hastings' northernmost townships — Bangor-Wicklow-McLure, Herschel, Monmouth, Faraday — in his political ballwick.

Some 13 of the remaining 18 are in Hastings riding.

But Mr. Scott and his association are suggesting six more of the Bancroft - area townships — Faraday, Dungannon, Mayo, Wollaston, Limerick, Cashel — be grafted on to Victoria - Haliburton.

The commission is proposing that all 18 townships stretching north from just below Highway 7 be included in Frontenac, Lennox and Addington. The loss would include Madoc and Marmora villages.

Mr. Kincaid said he has about 2,000 signatures on his petition protesting such a loss.

Although Mr. Kincaid did not address the hearing — since, he said, his application to do so had been filed too late — his submission with the petition warns that joining the townships with Frontenac, Lennox and Addington means the normal trend of community attachment will be drastically changed.

Riding residents are used to Belleville as a county seat, a centre of local government and "we view, as objects of other affiliations aside, people don't "want to lose their ties to Belleville and all Prince Edward to combine in a new constituency of Prince Edward - Hastings.

The Ellis brief says the MP does not object to Prince Edward's inclusion in any riding that includes the name Hastings. In fact both counties already have combined in some ridings. The United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

A Friendly Difference

Kel Kincaid, Hastings Progressive Conservative Association president and Wilfred Scott, Conservative MP Victoria - Haliburton, had varying points in common outside during recess of electoral boundaries commission hearings yesterday. Mr. Kincaid's group wants to preserve northern Hastings county township in riding.

Mr. Scott's local party association has suggested annexing six of Hastings' area townships into his neighboring constituency.

Adjournment Angers Ellis

Hastings riding was without a spokesman at Tuesday's Belleville hearing for central Ontario constituencies by the Federal Electoral Boundaries Commission.

Jack Ellis, the riding's Progressive Conservative MP, is blaming the commission for not waiting to hear his comments on proposed distribution of Hastings after he arrived to find the hearing adjourned.

Mr. Ellis was participating in an open-line show from Ottawa on Monday night's national budget with George Hees, fellow Conservative MP in neighboring Prince Edward-Hastings when the hearing opened in Belleville.

But, claims Mr. Ellis, he left word with his secretary he would be in Belleville by 2 p.m. and that this was relayed to commission secretary, Brian McCool.

The MP claims the commission approved his arrival any time between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m.

The hearing — with Ontario Supreme Court Justice J. L. Wilson presiding assisted by Roderick Lewis, clerk of the Ontario legislature and the province's chief election officer, opened promptly at 9.30 at the Hastings County building's main court room.

Mr. Ellis' name was called several times along with other spokesmen from local constituencies who failed to show or were late.

Mr. McCool made several attempts to contact Mr. Ellis during the hearing and informed the Hastings MP, Ellis was tied up in Ottawa on the radio discussion.

The inquiry had run its course by noon at which time the commissioners were told Mr. Ellis would arrive by 2 p.m.

Mr. Justice Wilson, noted the MP could present his submissions Thursday when the commission reconvened in Ottawa. But he adjourned the hearing until 2 p.m.

When the commissioners reconvened, they heard a presentation from another latecomer, Roger Kirkpatrick, Port Hope, Northumberland - Durham Liberal Association president. When Mr. Kirkpatrick concluded and there was still no sign of Mr. Ellis, Mr. Justice Wilson announced the commission for another 10 minutes to wait. Shortly before 2.30 p.m. the commissioners again reconvened. When the formal call for more submissions was made and received no reply from the empty court room, they adjourned.

Mr. Ellis claims he arrived at the county buildings at 2.50 p.m. to find the commissioners gone.

Obviously angered, he said he was on his way 150 miles to Belleville 60 seconds after the radio program ended at noon.

"I'm objecting to driving all the way from Ottawa here — and I frankly don't think much of their walking out on me.

He said there were other parties present who knew he would be speaking at 3 p.m. and were scheduled to turn up at the hearing and make supporting submissions.

Told Mr. Justice Wilson had said he could present his brief at Thursday's Ottawa hearing, Mr. Ellis replied: "I'm not sure I will. With their refusal in see me I can take it to the floor of the House of Commons. I'm not sure the commission is doing a reasonable job anyway."

CARS Will Run Campaign

The Prince Edward County portion of the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, at its annual meeting unanimously accepted a proposal of a fund-raising campaign to be held this year.

Unlike the Belleville portion of the society, it is not included in a United Way campaign and must solicit funds independently.

No information was available as to the goal of such a fund drive or a possible date.

The members of the executive, elected at the meeting are Chairman Richard Byers, past chairman Terry Sprague, vice-chairman Dan Rainey, treasurer E. R. Palmer, secretary L. G. Goddard, campaign chairman Mrs. G. G. Bradley, coin box chairman Jack Evans and medical advisor Dr. S. A. Sarles.

Mr. Turner's Budget

You don't have to be a politician or even an economist to realize that Finance Minister John Turner's budget is a political offering, conceived under the guise of minority government status and specifically the cocky New Democratic Party and its leader David Lewis.

As such, the budget fulfills expectations to a considerable degree. There is relief for taxpayers as well as additional cash for pensioners. It is a budget that is both expansionary and inflationary, but Mr. Turner evidently is counting on there not being enough of the latter to hurt the economy. What it means in terms of that other major bugbear, unemployment, only time will show. All we know is that in the kind of economic circumstances obtaining in Canada today jobs do not grow on trees. Nor do they become available in substantial numbers overnight. Furthermore, this would apply no matter who is in power.

In any event it is a budget that should appeal in the short-term to most of us and to most elements of the economy. What it does in the long term though is another matter. Memories are short and it is difficult to anticipate at this stage what the long-term benefits will be.

Finance minister Turner himself does not come over in the role of one who has all the answers. But in this he is no different than any other before him. Mr. Turner is a lawyer and as such would be expected to know something at least of money management. In a sense though he is like the rest of us — a waif in the economic wilderness.

The minister then is something of an enigma in this role (and is he really, as some are saying, prime minister incognito?) and is dancing, as others before him, in the dark and hoping his fiscal choreography will keep the people happy, himself in a job, and the government in power.

After the Fire

To escape from a fire with one's life is cause for gratitude, but to lose all one's possessions in the disaster produces an agonizing sense of deprivation too.

There was a fire like that in Ottawa recently. Like any blaze it had its own singular, awesome quality, but the human drama enacted was perhaps more interesting than most as we shall see.

Quick action by 17-year-old Lisgar high school student Paul Malin was credited with helping an 26 residents of the 70-year-old four-storey Chapel Apartments to escape without injury. Having smelled smoke he ran from door to door the whole building, two blocks from Rideau street, was ablaze.

All were alive, but the sense of personal loss was keen, not only for their homes but for possessions. Miss McDonald lost an antique collection and Captain Frank Malin (Malin Building fame) priceless art done in Europe and drawings from his youth.

Centenarian John McDonald saw things differently though. "I should have been at the Shriners' meeting tonight," he said, more concerned about that than over the loss of possessions.

At that age maybe, human values, such as the companionship of one's fellows, are of greater significance. Certainly they manifested themselves in the aftermath of the blaze. Judge O'Connor reportedly was wandering along the street, wondering what to do, when neighbors offered to take him in. Indeed, each of the 26 persons left homeless, had a choice of several places to stay during the night.

All this time the firemen had fought the outbreak and the only casualties of the whole affair were among these worthies. Several were injured.

That no lives were lost though was fortuitous. There will be heartache of course over what was lost — extensions of each personality, but there is a challenge too, even for those in the evening of their lives, to start afresh.

Highjacking Pact With Cuba an Example

Canada's Diplomatic Links With Communists Prove Useful

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canadian foreign policy—which usually takes much longer to define—than domestic policies, especially those required to cope with inflation, has not suffered from a slow or postponed implementation by our minority government.

Since October 30th and the dwindling away of the Trudeau majority, our department of external affairs has dealt with two key developments.

The first was the decision to send a Canadian observer unit to the International Commission for Control and Supervision in Vietnam—and then despatch it as soon as possible. The second was to conclude a Canada-Cuba treaty to prevent future air and sea hi-jackings.

In both of these priorities the first depending on the signing of a truce, the second on Cuban acceptance of such a treaty, have been successfully met by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and his department.

Neither one is going to affect the lives of too many Canadians, except the families of Canadian servicemen now in Vietnam in the first instance and at those in a future hi-jacked aircraft in the second if that treaty had not been signed.

Even in the second instance, a Canadian aircraft has not been hi-jacked to Cuba since December 29, 1971. But the Canadian initiative, taking edvantage of our direct diplomatic ties with Havana, is the important element.

Though the United States signed a similar treaty with Cuba the same day, it had to do so at "arm's length," through the Czech Embassy in Washington. In our case, it was done in Ottawa with Cuba's Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs as his country's signator.

This event gave Mr. Sharp an opportunity to express again the value of the direct Canada-Cuba relationship, with the unspoken thought, surely, that Canada took the lead on securing this vital treaty, as she did with another Communist country, and when she recognized the People's Republic of China.

Thus Mr. Sharp was able to make points in the onward flow of foreign policy as it had been defined during the first Trudeau administration. It's unlikely a Stanfield minority government with Claude Wagner presumably as a Conservative External Affairs Minister, would have hesitated too long on either of these issues.

But it certainly is fair to say that a Tory prime minister and external affairs chief would have delayed because of the newness of their position and the possibility some of the Conservative ranks might not have wanted to send out Vietnam observers from Canada.

There is a third and perhaps less critical development planned for the end of March, namely the visit of President Echeverria of Mexico to Canada. This has been in the works for a long time, but was delayed by the lengthy expectation of a Canadian federal election speculation about which began last winter.

Mexico is our middle power partner resting a little more securely than ourselves on the other side of the Americas giant. More securely because the Mexicans have been much tougher in their definition and implementation of laws restricting foreign ownership.

Mexico's national identity is as certain as ours is uncertain. And in our confronting and growing crisis of economic nationalism with the Americans, this visit will undoubtedly result in some clues from the Mexicans on how to cope.

Another Probe Into Our Costly Education Scene

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

There is to be another big adventure in education.

The most recent in the long, long series of reports we have had in this field, which started with the Hope Commission in 1945 and seems to have been continuing endlessly ever since, has now been completed and presented to the government.

And this one, the Wright - Davis report on the future of post-secondary education in the province contains more than the usual number of proposals for change.

With which all good - spirited citizens might offer a prayer — dear Lord this time please try and see that they go slow.

Education today is costing us a great bundle of money.

But almost certainly here in Ontario it is costing us more than it needs to. We are not getting, and have not been getting, the best value for the education dollar.

And a great deal of this waste or inefficiency, or whatever you want to call it, dates to the fact that with a lot of the innovation, of which we have had so much, particularly in the sixties we have started swimming before we really knew just where we were heading for or perhaps even if we could swim.

Community colleges are the prime example of this.

Started only in 1966 today we have 22 CAAT colleges throughout the province with some 60 campuses and a $600 - million investment.

There are better than 40,000 full-time students and an equal number taking part-time courses.

The colleges have proven they have a place in our educational system.

They provide a technical training which is needed in our industrial society of today and which the universities don't supply.

But anybody on the inside knows that to date they are extremely misled up, meandering and inefficient institutions.

There is a great duplication of courses, no uniform or even well-developed course programs (every school has a journalism course. And it is agreed most of them are pretty hopeless), there has been a lot of expensive equipment bought which is hardly being used, some buildings have been put up which are more magnificent than the colleges justify, and then there are some esoteric courses being taught which hardly belong in the public education picture — astrology and witchcraft are examples.

Another example is the Ontario Institute for Education. In less than 10 years this has grown into a huge organization of fifty people with a budget of $10 million a year and a palatial head-quarters on Bloor St., one of Toronto's luxury boulevards.

Again, OISE unquestionably has a job to do in our educational system. But it grew so quickly, tried to do so much in so much of a hurry, and has been in such constant controversy that it has been more often ridiculed than admired.

Finally, there is educational television, ETV, now known as the Ontario Education Communications Authority, started out to try and cover the whole province overnight. It was in mass programming before the schools were ready for it; before most had even an elementary supply of the expensive facilities needed to make use of it.

The consequence was that it got a bad name which it is now valiantly, and with some success trying to overcome.

Behind all these, and the other education misadventures of recent years, was hurry, hurry, hurry.

Local boards of governors were set up, many of them local politicians, and hardly before they knew it they had classes, students and a "college".

There was absolutely no attempt to test particular need in particular areas and most of all no effort to co-ordinate the over-all program across the province. The colleges all went their own way, like Topsy skipping across the ice.

With OISE there was the same rush. Let's get the show on the road. And a big show. Ditto with ETV.

What this has cost us as citizens is not known, and never can be known.

In all fases efforts are now underway to straighten things out.

But we do know it has cost enough that the earlier mentioned prayer is needed.

That this time the most reassuring word we could receive from the government is that with this new report it intends to go slowly, step by step.

For example, one of the recommendations is that there be a form of open university which through various means, including television, would offer higher education to all ages.

If we say that this is adopted on an experimental basis in one community or one area then we can say good — they finally are learning.

But if we are told that overnight the open university principle is going to be extended right across the province then about all we can do is shake our heads and kiss those dollars good-bye.

Deep icy ruts on W. Bridge St. Hill, have been impeding motorists considerably, disappeared as if by magic when sheared off by the heavy bulldozer blade.

Focus on Civil Rights

Grassby La Voix de L'Est:

The Civil Rights Foundation is launching a program to inform the Canadian citizens of their rights, to make them better understood and assure their application for the benefit of Canada.

The initiative by the Civil Rights Foundation is not useless because many people still don't know what their rights are in this country, one of the most free in the world.

But, should it not also be important better to inform citizens of their duties towards their country and co-citizens?

If many don't know their rights, still more ignore their duties and responsibilities.

Men do not shave their rights. They also have obligations.

The abuse of the rights of some are not respected it is because of the refusal or negligence of others to honor their responsibilities.

The Civil Rights Foundation would be doing more useful work by teaching all that they not only have rights but duties, which in a well-structured society, they cannot waive.

The foundation also plans a critical inventory of federal and provincial legislation in the field of civil rights. This inventory cannot be done without looking into account the duties of all citizens.

Robert Southwell, English poet, was hanged 318 years ago today—in 1595—the day after his trial for treason. He had been imprisoned and tortured for three years for the crime of being a Catholic priest. The law forbade any Englishman in the Roman Priesthood to stay more than 40 days in England, and Southwell, trained in Paris, volunteered to defy the ban as a missionary. He was beatified in 1929.

1929—Prime Minister Harold MacMillian arrived in Moscow—the first British head of government to do so since the Second World War.

1961—The Republic of Cuba adopted its first constitution.

Canada And the Olympics

Montreal La Presse: The fight over the Olympic Games has given way, in the last few weeks, to a game of hide-and-seek which serves to mislead rather than clarify public opinion.

Then games will suffer a $100-million deficit, Prime Minister Trudeau believes. The deficit won't go beyond $10 million, says Raymond Garneau, Quebec's finance minister. Both of them are wrong, replies Le Devoir. Mayor Jean Drapeau. "The Olympics can no more have a deficit than a man can bear a child."

Mr. Trudeau . . . wants to pass as the one who won't grant "any special federal contribution" to the Olympic Games in Montreal.

The prime minister contributes to making the games look like a Montreal and Quebec enterprise. However, it concerns an international sports demonstration. The games are the guest of a country through a city of that country, and not the guest of a city through a country.

Montreal needed Ottawa's permission to have the honor of organizing the Olympics: Montreal only offered the setting for the games; it acts in Canada's name.

The possibility of a $100-million deficit, if presented as frightful and scandalous. . . . Before yelling, the deficit of the same games in Mexico, Japan and West Germany should be known.

All the games have known deficits. They are a matter of prestige than revenues. We should have known about it before if we considered the cost of the prestige too high. Now, it's too late.

The games will take place. . . . Canada will reap advantages or disadvantages but it may have to pay the piper.

It is no matter in the future of things that the whole country pays for the games, and in reality that is what will happen indirectly through the special Olympic coins.

By a subtle and able game, the federal government will find itself supplying subsidies it had promised not to supply and that's the way it should be. Why then try to hide the truth?".

Firms and Union Deny Most Truck Drivers Steal

TORONTO (CP) — Transport company executives and teamsters officials have denied claims by a United States security expert that 86 per cent of truck drivers in Canada steal from their companies.

Bob Curtis, security consultant from Dayton, Ohio, told the annual conference of the Lumber and Building Materials Association of Ontario that Canadian stores lose more than $1 million a day in thefts and that employees steal more than shoplifters.

He said truck drivers are the most dishonest group of employees.

"These are wild statements without the slightest bit of proof," said Duke Thomson, an executive with the Central Conference of Teamsters. "I think this guy (Mr. Curtis) was trying to stir up some business for his services."

John Kennedy, a Kingway Transport Ltd. official, said that there is little theft by employees at his company, and the industry in general suffers no more of this kind of stuff than does any other business."

Award Is Not Income

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday that the $4,000 awarded a Barrie woman shot in the right eye in April, 1970, is not income, and ordered that no deductions be made from the compensation she is receiving.

Mrs. Ellen Elliott, then 23 and the mother of a four-year-old son, was deserted by her husband in Sept. 1971. She was granted $178 a month in general welfare assistance.

In February, 1972, the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board awarded Mrs. Elliott $4,000 as compensation for pain and suffering. She lost the sight of the eye after being struck by a shot fired from an air rifle. The offender was sentenced to eight years in penitentiary.

Mrs. Elliott was advised by Barrie's welfare administrator in April that when she received the first $200 of her award, her assistance benefits would be reduced by an equal amount. A board of review held that the payment was income under the General Welfare Assistance Act.

The woman, who was to receive the $4,000 in 40 payments of $100 apiece, appealed the board's decision.

The court of appeal, under Chief Justice George Gale, allowed the appeal and said Mrs. Elliott is to be reimbursed if any deductions have been made from her welfare payments.

Bilingual Courses Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 4,500 post-secondary students from across Canada will take part in six-to seven-week "immersion courses" this summer to familiarize them with their second language.

The agreement between the secretary of state's office and the council of ministers of education was signed Tuesday by State Secretary Hugh Faulkner and Dr. Maurice Richer, secretary-general of the council.

"This summer's program illustrates the success of our bilingualism program," Mr. Faulkner said in an interview later. "When the program began three years ago there were 1,200 students and this now has grown to 4,500."

The continuation of the summer language bursary program was announced earlier. It will cost about $3.5 million

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Two headless bodies have been identified as missing Santa Cruz co-eds, the coroner's office said Tuesday. QUEBEC (CP) — Legislation to prevent excessive rent increases during 1973 was tabled in the Quebec national assembly Tuesday by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette. Are men helpless around the house?

NOT husbands, anyway. At least they are not as helpless as grown sons, brothers, bachelor uncles, and so on. A husband who pitches in, whether his wife has an outside job or not, frequently gets more housekeeping chores as well that his wife—once she gets over being thankful—may wonder if it is right for him to take over some of the household duties she detests because they make her feel "trapped" at home.

Is everyone a little superstitious?

YES, even the person who deliberately walks under ladders, strides bravely forward though a black cat crosses his path, doesn't care about, much less spell trikidekaphobia (fear of the number 13). He exudes confidence and bravery with disdain at those who hedge by saying "knock on wood." Yet even a person who treats superstition with scorn and ridicule usually "touches wood" or its approximate if he rips too many days off his desk calendar.

Can a 'bad' child be rehabilitated?

YES: and the first step ought to be rehabilitating the relationship between the so-called bad child and his parents. In too many cases, the mother and father get off on the wrong foot in relating to their child. Let the youngster feel correctly get into some minor trouble, and unconsciously the parents blame themselves. This leads to reprehensible actions, as they believe their child is bad and they treat him as if he were.

Ann Landers
Sportsaholic Husband Has Wife Trying Harder

Dear Ann: I am married to a sportsaholic. Any advice for me? My husband is an executive, but seven days (or even nings) a week he must get in some sport—handball, tennis, golf, swimming, rugby, etc. When he isn't participating he's watching—football, baseball, hockey, etc., etc. Our sex life is on hold until after the 19 p.m. sportscast.

I've prayed, read sports magazines and books galore in an attempt to share his interest. No go. I've scrubbed floors and washed walls, taken odd showers, cried, begged, purchased black underwear and gone through negligee. I even went blonde. He didn't notice.

I have concluded that my husband doesn't care much for me and his children or he would take a little of that fantastic energy to build a good family relationship. He says I need to learn how to keep busy and had the nerve to suggest another baby. What do you think of the idea? I'm against it.—Another XYZ Insolate

DEAR XYZ: So he wants an other baby? One more for him to ignore, eh? I don't blame you for your lack of enthusiasm. As for what you can do to get him to pay more attention to you and the children and less to sports, I know of no cure for adolescent adolescence and the sick need to engage in activities that reaffirm his masculinity. Your guy needs counselling. He doesn't understand that the best expression of maleness is to be a good husband and father.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this for those insensitive individuals who can't carry on a conversation without getting so close that they spit in people's faces.

I have three acquaintances who do this. I try to avoid them but they belong to our church and seek me out every Sunday without fail. One of these people always has a cold. The more I move away, the closer she moves toward me. I like her but I hate to get sprayed in every conversation. I do believe one lady has trouble with her dentures and an impediment in her speech. How can I handle the situation without hurting anyone?—Too Close For Comfort

Dear T.C.: Move back in a less subtle manner when the showers begin. The moist conversationalist should catch on. If he doesn't, pull out a handkerchief and pat it over your nose and mouth. Move again—several feet away and say, "I hope you don't mind but I'm suspectible to colds and you're spraying me."

Dear Ann Landers: Our second child is due soon. The problem is how to tell relatives and friends not to be in the house waiting when we bring the new baby from the hospital. Also I don't want company dropping in the first day.

I know these people mean well but they get on my nerves. When our first child was born I had 15 visitors the first hour I was home. I was a wreck that night and had to go on tranquilizers. The baby became upset from being handled so much, and cried all night. I swore that next time it would be different. How can I make sure without being ungracious?—Second-Time Mama

Dear Mama: You probably can remember at least 12 of the 15 visitors who formed the reception committee last time. Phone them from the hospital and ask that they please wait this time until you are back on your feet.

As for the unexpected drop-ins when they arrive, ask them to take a peek at the baby and come back another time because you were just about to lie down. Remind them to phone first.

Need Conversation Bait? 'Consume' a Good Book!

I know couples whose very best fun is to discuss what they have read. In this way they have consumed some of the world's best biographies and philosophies.

The children are picking up the idea and now join the reading period when they can. I know one small girl who has become such a bookworm that she cannot resist taking her current book and hiding behind the curtain with it — especially when it is time for her to help with the dishes!

Getting completely familiar with the nearby library and making a habit of visiting it, picking out something highbrow once in a while, along with the who-done-it or fairy tales — this is one way to keep up with change. At least something new will be added to your knowledge and you'll have new conversation at table. A real good bonus for a little study.

Dear Doris: I write to a boy pen pal and soon his birthday will be coming up. I'm stuck on what to buy him.

We always exchange gifts and for the past four years it's always been either shaving lotion or L.P. records that I've sent him.

Do you think it would be all right to send him cuff links or what else I have in mind to send him?—He always sends me nice gifts so I hope you can give me some idea of what to buy. — Stumped.

Dear Stumped: Jewellery like cuff links are a bit personal for a guy you haven't.

He likes writing letters — at least to you—so writing paper or a good pen might do it. If he has a hobby pick a book on it or a subscription to a magazine he would enjoy. Or a pack for those L.P.'s you have been sending.

Mind you, friendship by correspondence can bring about a let-down when you meet, so don't put all your eggs in one basket. He is a friend, and one you know in a limited way, right now. And that is all.

Dear Doris: I have been asked to thank the speaker at a banquet. What do you say when you thank a speaker? — Just Plain Dumb.

Dear Just Plain: If you feel dumb, so do a lot of others. Then they short-change themselves by saying little more than "thank you" and sitting down.

A speaker likes to know that you have heard what he said. On behalf of your listening, by referring to a particular startling or new point he has raised; try to be convincing when you say he has started you thinking.

You need to listen well. Make a few notes. By no means attempt a recap of the speech; don't attempt to take issue with him; and by all means keep what you say short. Be sure he knows you appreciate the work he has gone to, to come to you and address you; and speak directly to him.

Friendship Kindled

New Canadians Attend International Night

New Canadians from countries such as Uganda, India and Australia were guests at the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club International meeting held Monday evening.

Colombe Both was chairman for this special annual event. Dorothy Ellis, Dorothy Brown, Ruth McMullen and Lois Brown assisted and introduced the head table guests.

James Staveley of Canada Manpower and Immigration was guest speaker and dealt mainly with the most recent Uganda Expellee Program. The speaker although officially retired was recalled to take over this recent program. Dorothy Brew n introduced Mr. Staveley.

In opening the guest speaker outlined the various programs undertaken by his department which involved the settling of Czechoslovakians, Hungarians, Tibetans and Ugandans. Although it has been a little over six years, since the immigration department became affiliated with Manpower, Mr. Staveley told of meeting people from over 40 countries, all of whom voiced their praise for the welcome accorded by residents of the Quinte area. He also mentioned that local service clubs had given him a great deal of help.

Aside from the immigration programs, Mr. Staveley has also contributed much time towards the students' manpower program.

Guests who accompanied Mr. Staveley were Mr. and Mrs. Balihar Manku, new Canadians from Uganda. During the question and answer period, Mr. Manku surprisingly answered a large number of questions regarding the economic affairs of his country and not political questions.

Mr. Manku also described the geographical features of Family Night

It was "family night" at the February meeting of the Wesleyen Women's Club of the Women's Institute with Mrs. Ken Cassidy as hostess.

The evening was turned over to Mrs. McMurray and Mrs. Arthur Holmes, program conveners for the 75th anniversary of the WI. They had made and decorated a cake in honor of the WI in historical colors.

"The WI Song" composed by Mrs. Arthur Holmes, as well as a skit and readings were presented.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. William Cassidy and Mr. M. O. Murray.

Fred Boaley received the lucky number prize.

Thanks were expressed to both Mr. Staveley and Mr. Manku by Ruth Pollard who also presented each with a token of appreciation on behalf of the club.

An informative candle-lighting ceremony was conducted by Dorothy Ellis Past President. The U. S. Federation candle was lit by Colombe Both, chairman. Lois Brown lit the International Federation candle, Dorothy Brown lit the candle of the future. A toast to the federation was proposed by Ruth McMullen. Members and guests also participated in the "lighting" ceremony.

During business, Bettie Anderson, chairman of the ways and means committee reported and brought forth three suggestions. These included: a fashion show, the sale of tickets on a trip for two to Las Vegas and also a 10-mile bike-a-thon is planned for May.

Zaire Discussed At Marmora WMS

MARMORA – A study on the republic of Zaire, formerly the Congo, was given by Mrs. Mawer at the February meet for Marmora Free Methodist Church WMS. After hearing this, six ladies decided to go on a Zaire safari (a skit) and provided some mirthful moments as they bedecked and rover laden with bags of goodies for the missionaries and then transferred to a boat for the final leg of the journey on Lake Tanganyika.

A lovely solo by Mrs. Walker, accompanied by Miss Verna Kemp concluded the program.

The president Mrs. Alex McPaul called the following meeting for February to order and asked that the theme song be sung, after which she called on Mrs. Murray Walker and Mrs. Harry Mawer to pray for the missionary work around the world.

It was announced that the speaker for the World Day of Prayer, which is to be held at Marmora Free Methodist Church, will be Miss Nancy White, pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Trenton.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Everett Barrons.

It was decided that, instead of giving the secret prayer partners a gift on their birthdays, 5 cents for every year of members' life would be donated to the missions.

Closing prayer was offered by Raymond Boner.

Mrs. G. Thompson, the new president for 1973, addressed the members and said her motto would be "Let me be a little kinder, think a little more of others and a little less of me."

Two charter members of the club were present, Mrs. L. Wannamaker and Mrs. P. Parliament.

Mrs. F. Bedell introduced Mrs. M. Harrison, Plainfield, who entertained members with music and games.

Bankers Advise 'How' and 'When' To Buy Consumer Credit

TORONTO (CP) — Consumer credit has become such a part of everyday life that the question for most people is no longer whether to use it but how and when.

The Canadian Bankers' Association has published a guide for the credit user offering practical advice on major financial decisions.

Some of the advice it offers:

A good credit rating starts with a savings account. The old rule of thumb—10 per cent of after-tax income should be saved—still applies.

Once a comfortable account is built up, a person should think about investing. One way to do this is through "lending to invest plans." Banks will loan money to buy stocks with good growth and dividend records and the stocks themselves become the loan collateral. Borrowing to buy Canada Savings Bonds is also a good investment.

Life insurance comes in different forms and, if bought with an eye to the future, may become a savings or income investment.

Houses and cars are the two biggest expenses for the average person. The prospective buyer should seek out bankers and real estate dealers and lawyers to determine the best method of purchase for individual need.

Just about everybody uses credit. But the trick is in knowing how much it costs. For example, a department store charge account usually costs about 1½ per cent interest per month or 18 per cent a year.

Almost every institution that offers credit on loans or

Queen, Philip to Visit Ten Centres in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip will visit 10 centres in Ontario this summer, starting June 25 with a tour of Ontario Place in Toronto.

A detailed itinerary of the tour, released Tuesday from the office of Premier William Davis, shows the royal couple will also visit Cobourg, Kingston, Kitchener, Cambridge, London, St. Catharines, Niagara, Waterloo-Cambridge area, and later in the day so St. Catharines. On the evening of June 26, the royal couple will attend the Shaw Festival at Niagara-on-the-Lake for a special performance of You Never Can Tell.

They visit Brampton June 28 and attend the running of the Queen's Plate in Toronto June 30.

On July 3, en route west from Prince Edward Island, they will visit Thunder Bay to open new government buildings and watch Canada's national ski team practise on plastic snow.

During their initial two-day Toronto visit, the couple will also visit city hall, the provincial legislature buildings, a community centre, and open new law courts at Osgoode Hall.

They leave by train June 27 to visit Cobourg and Kingston. The train takes them the next day to Ottawa.

No Sewage Said Involved In Overflow from Lagoon

GORMLEY, Ont. (CP) — E. P. Seagram, president of Hidden Valley Resorts Ltd., said Tuesday there was no sewage involved in the 4,000,000-gallon spill from a lagoon at the resort development in Huntsville area.

He said the resort had four lagoons where sewage was held for treatment until purified. Because of heavy rains last year, the lagoons had become full and the Ontario environment ministry was asked for permission to drain one into a nearby swamp. The ministry granted permission subject to water samples being clear, said Mr. Seagram.

Tests were made, he said, but the lagoon overflowed about 10 days ago before he received confirmation of the water tests.

Subsequently the ministry had notified him that the water was clear.

Muskoka District council was told of the spill Monday by district chairman Milton Tibbett who said it dumped sewage into Fairy Lake.

J. R. Barr, director of the environment ministry's sanitary engineering branch, said in Huntsville that tests showed the sewage was "not good enough to drink" but was cleaner than the effluent Metropolitan Toronto puts into Lake Ontario from some of its treatment plants.

Man Pleads Guilty To Conspiring to Rob

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — William Ferguson pleaded guilty Tuesday to conspiring to rob the Royal Bank of Canada at Windsor, Ont., of $1.2 million in December, 1971.

The change of plea followed two hours of discussion at the morning session among Ferguson, defence lawyer Norbert Lemier, of Montreal, Crown attorney Bruce Affleck of Oshawa, Ont., and Judge Wilfred DuPuis of Cochrane, Ont.

After Mr. Affleck withdrew charges of armed robbery and possession of stolen money, Judge DuPuis adjourned sentencing on the conspiracy charge to allow Mr. Losier to obtain medical reports on Ferguson.

Arctic Gas Intends to Seek Leave for Mackenzie Pipeline

TORONTO (CP) — William Wilder is sitting on a pipeline powder keg. He knows it and he's not especially worried.

In fact, he's pretty confident that when the details are finally gathered and released to the public on the proposed Mackenzie Valley natural gas pipeline there won't be any explosion.

Mr. Wilder is chairman and chief executive officer of Canadian Arctic Gas Study Ltd., a consortium of 25 companies —10 of them Canadian-controlled—hoping to build the pipeline to transport Alaska and Canadian Arctic gas to southern markets.

The pipeline is the biggest project ever conceived by Canadian private enterprise. It will cost more than $5 billion. About $25 million has been spent since 1967 on a variety of feasibility studies.

Canadian Arctic Gas intends to file an application with the national energy board this fall. Subsequent public hearings are expected to continue to late 1974. If approved, construction will stretch over three years and, Mr. Wilder says, there should be frontier gas in Eastern Canadian markets by the spring of 1978.

Mr. Wilder, 58, became chairman of Canadian Arctic Gas last September after resigning as head of Canada's largest investment house, Wood Gundy of Toronto.

It's natural that he should be saddled with probably the trickiest problem in the pipeline project—the monumental financing of the huge scheme that will have a tremendous impact of the Canadian economy.

Some of the sharpest criticism has been aimed at the economic side, the unknown effects the project's financing may have on the Canadian dollar, Canadian ownership, Canadian reserves of energy resources.

There can be no question about the long-term benefits of this project to Canada," Mr. Wilder said. "The task is to avoid any significant short-term adverse effects by means of careful planning. We are confident this can be accomplished.

Financial planning still is in a preliminary stage. But Mr. Wilder has publicly suggested financing for 20-year construction, through shares, and 80-per-cent debt, through bonds and borrowing. The target is for 51 per-cent Canadian equity ownership.

He said in an interview:

"We're talking about $1 billion worth of equity and I think a large portion of that will come from Canadian companies, Canadian financial institutions and the Canadian public. The balance may come from the companies in the consortium, of which some are American.

"The only limitation we can foresee in Canadian equity ownership of this pipeline will be the amount of savings that Canadian corporate and private investors choose to invest."

Mr. Wilder says the $4 billion of fixed income securities will likely be raised through the issuance of first mortgage bonds on a private placement basis, with funds drawn down over the three-year construction period, through suppliers' credits and through bank loans.

The sheer magnitude of the pipeline in terms of capital cost will mean that a large part of it will have to be financed outside Canada. There will be an upward push on the price of the Canadian dollar.

But, Mr. Wilder says, that argument overlooks the fact that Canadian industry will not be able to provide all the materials necessary for the pipeline construction. A substantial amount will have to be purchased outside the country.

"So you really have to offset the amount you are going to purchase outside the country with the amount you're going to borrow. One affects the other. So it may have a nil impact on the Canadian dollar."

Another problem is that whatever financing is done in Canada could overload the Canadian capital market to the point of forcing interest rates up, thereby attracting funds from the U.S. into the Canadian marketplace.

Mr. Wilder has no doubts whatever that the Mackenzie pipeline should be built in Canada's national interest. Although the U.S. export market is necessary to make it economic, the pipeline will ensure future natural gas supplies for multiplying Canadian demand in the 1980s.

Initially, half the 48-inch pipeline's daily output of four billion cubic feet will be Alaskan gas destined for the American market. Export criteria will apply only to the other 50 per cent tapping supplies in the Canadian Arctic and Mackenzie River delta.

"Don't prejudge it." Mr. Wilder said. "Give us a chance. Let us complete our studies and let us file our application and all our information at that time will be made public. But don't take a position today that it's no damn good, that it's going to wreck the Canadian economy."

A Toronto native who joined Wood Gundy in 1946, the year he graduated in commerce from McGill University, Montreal, he worked his way up in the investment house to become president in 1967.

"But I thought I could make a contribution to the country because I think it's in the interests of Canada that the pipeline be built.

"If the studies show this is going to have an adverse impact on the Canadian economy, or for some other reason it shouldn't be built and is not in the national interest, then we won't build the thing."

Heads Group

William Wilder is chairman and chief executive officer of Canadian Arctic Gas Study Ltd., a consortium of 25 companies — 10 of them Canadian-controlled — hoping to build the pipeline to transport Alaska and Canadian Arctic gas to southern markets. The pipeline is the biggest project ever conceived by Canadian private enterprise. It will cost more than $5-billion. About $25-million has been spent since 1967 on a variety of feasibility studies. Newfoundlander Labors In Order to Escape to Forest

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — "I work to make money so I can go into the forest—really, that's my life."

This attitude makes Bill Noseworthy of St. John's as good an example as any of the type of Newfoundlander who takes year-round advantage of everything the outdoors has to offer in this province.

The 38-year-old head of the psychology department at the Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases has a simple philosophy about hunting.

"I don't think you should fire at anything unless you know what it is—and unless you're going to eat it."

The same applies to fishing. At any given time there's a good stock of cariplin, trout, salmon, mussels, clams and probably sea-snails in the Noseworthy freezer. And there's always blueberry wine and partridge berry jam on the basement shelves.

Noseworthy, who stands five feet nine inches and weighs 190 pounds, also has strong ideas about how to stay alive in the wilderness and upon the sea.

In winter, he hunts seabirds in a 14-foot aluminum boat outside St. John's and in nearby Conception Bay.

Noseworthy figures it would be foolish to venture off the windswept winter coast alone. There's always a companion—and they tow a second 14-foot boat equipped with a motor, outboard motor and fuel.

They've found the best way to provide emergency heat is to quarter-fill a five-gallon can with sand and rocks. Outboard motor fuel—mixed oil and gasoline—creates a rapid heat when ignited in the can. The sand mixed with the gasoline removes the danger of explosion in the open.

The fishing season for native trout opened Jan. 15 and this, along with rabbit-catching, often draws Noseworthy up to 20 miles into the wilderness by snowmobile.

He won't go without a companion on a treacherous snowmobile. Both always carry snowshoes, compass, matches in waterproof containers, tools, axes, knives and flint.

Such precautions probably saved the lives of Noseworthy and a friend two years ago when one snowmobile broke down 20 miles from the nearest road during a snowstorm. Rather than risk coming out on one machine they stayed in the woods for two extra days to repair the disabled snowmobile.

Like some other Newfoundland outdoorsmen, Noseworthy has no use for snowmobile suits, an overall-type insulated garment worn nowadays by winter sports in most parts of Canada.

They tear too easily and are too hard to get about in.

A heavy-duty camper truck provides transportation and accommodation for Noseworthy, his wife Hope and their two children, Michelle, 10, and Craig, 8, during the spring, summer and fall.

He has nothing fancy in the way of big-game arms, just a rugged, converted army-type Lee-Enfield .303.

Noseworthy says he always hunts with a companion, and uses a set of walkie-talkie radios to maintain contact.

The radios have a range of about a mile.

"The radios are useful in tracking a wounded animals and you always know where your buddy is."

Noseworthy says Newfoundland is about the only place left where "you can be your own happy savage."

SAVE WITH POWDERED MILK

Reconstitute according to package directions it provides all the protein, minerals and vitamins of liquid skim milk, at about half the price.

Mix a quart at a time and keep chilled for cooking, baking and drinking. To make a beverage for drinking, mix half and half with bottled milk.

Skim milk lacks the vitamins A of whole milk. So provide vitamin A in butter, margarine, green and yellow vegetables, egg yolk and liver.

Allan Lawrence Fails in Bid To Call PM Before Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — The special Commons committee on food prices voted Tuesday not to call Prime Minister Trudeau as a witness, then listened to a delegation from the Manitoba government argue that food prices are not necessarily too high in Canada.

The committee also heard a delegation from the Canadian Consumers' Association call for stiffer competition legislation and question advertising methods used by major supermarket chains.

The vote against calling Mr. Trudeau passed by a narrow 8-7 margin when Liberal MPs, in a minority committee position, were supported by New Democratic Party members who just one day earlier had attempted to have the Commons order the prime minister to appear.

Allan Lawrence (PC—North Hamberland Durham) raised the subject when he, accused Mr. Trudeau of trying to upstage the committee's work by saying during the weekend that Canada would be crazy to impose price controls at this time.

The Manitoba brief, presented by provincial economist W. P. Jensen, said governments have shown "unwarranted preoccupation" with food prices and paid too little attention to other cost-of-living factors.

Police Chiefs Hold Meeting With London News Media

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Police chiefs of London, Windsor and Sarnia met Monday with representatives of London news media to discuss a proposed set of guidelines for the handling of news about police activities.

Used as a basis for discussion were guidelines produced by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs. News papers and the CBC had not been involved in preparing the guidelines.

Chief Walter Johnston of London told the meeting provincial organizations of police chiefs hope eventually to see guidelines adopted that are acceptable to local news organizations and police.

Last week Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, cautioned individual stations not to implement the guidelines worked out by the C.A.B. and the association of police chiefs.

Mr. Juneau said the CRTC considers independent determination of news as a primary requirement of each broadcaster's responsibility for his programming.

Chief Bob Cook of Sarnia, Chief Gordon Preston of Windsor, Managing Editor W. Ivor Williams of London Free Press and representatives of CFPL radio and television and CKSL radio attended Monday's meeting.

The chiefs conceded that much of the wording in the proposed guidelines had been taken from United States publications.

Mr. Williams said he does not think it possible to draft written rules that will work.

Chief Johnson said he feels guidelines can be drafted and agreed upon by provincial organizations representing police and news organizations.

But Mr. Williams said several papers cannot speak for broadcasters and TV and radio organizations would have to be represented separately.

"I don't think a national or provincial committee is possible at this time," said Mr. Williams. He said if guidelines are needed the drafting should start locally.

He added: "We're not accepting anything today anyway."

Chief Johnson said following the meeting he hopes to meet again with the London group.

If this meeting agrees on guidelines, they may be presented to the Ontario police chiefs' convention at Oshawa in June for provincial distribution and discussion by news and police organizations.

Chief Johnson said other areas in Ontario will hold similar meetings. A provincial committee of police and news media representatives had been appointed but had not yet met.

Man Seeks Release From Debtors' Prison

NEW YORK (AP) — A middle-age truck driver sought release from a debtor's cell Tuesday, saying he was being held under nightmarish conditions because he can't pay his family $125-a-week support on a $150 weekly salary.

Ralph A. Haddock, 39, of Bridgeport, Conn., said his wife sued for support for herself and five children, not to get money from him, but because she was told she could not stay on welfare unless she did.

"It was not her decision or desire to resort to family court enforcement procedures," said Haddock in a federal court petition seeking release from city prison, where he has been since Oct. 30.

Haddock said he now finds himself living "in constant fear of homosexual advances and physical assaults."

"I am nervous, unable to eat or sleep," he said.

Haddock said he separated from his wife and children July 30, 1971. Originally, he was ordered to pay them $110 a week, but he was out of work with pneumonia, and fell in arrears. He said the support order was increased to $125 a week to cover the arrears.

Port Hope Opposes Dump Plan

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — About 60 people jammed into council chamber Tuesday to protest a proposal by CP Rail to establish a dump for Metropolitan Toronto garbage in their community.

The majority of residents at the meeting said their prime concerns are water pollution, smell, and the future of two streams that flow through the area.

Wesley Bonnister, deputy reeve of Hope Township, told the group that council had not been officially approached with a request to establish the land-fill site.

However, he said residents should view the CP Rail display as a local motel before passing judgment.

Fred Massey, an architect and son of the late Governor-General, asked council to arrange a public meeting so that CP Rail could explain its proposal.

Land Banking Said Useless

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Government land banking is not the solution to high housing costs, Albert Fish, president of the Canadian Real Estate Association, said Tuesday.

Speaking at the 31st annual conference of the Ontario Real Estate Association, Mr. Fish said that if governments got involved in land banking, the evils of land speculation would not be eliminated.

Instead a new breed of speculator would be created—the government itself.

"My personal view is that governments cannot put fully serviced and useful land on the market any cheaper than the private developer," Mr. Fish said.

Not Comrades

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (CP) — Bulgarians, like all good Communists, address one another as Comrade—except for defendants in court. They must address the judge as People's Comrade because a purist does not communicate on a current basis with class enemies. Yugoslavia's Politika Express said.

Haggling House Passes Estimates

OTTAWA (CP) — After 18 days of haggling, the three opposition parties relented Tuesday and allowed passage of a $1.39-billion package of supplementary government spending estimates.

Approval came just two days before funds would have dried up in a number of government programs and caused a number of delays.

If the bill has not been approved by Thursday, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said cheques would have been delayed to 74,700 war veterans and 1,300 recipients of civilian war allowances.

In addition, he said, local Initiatives grants and a variety of manpower training programs would have been suspended.

From the outset, none of the opposition parties objected in principle to the bill. But they took turns—first the Conservatives, later Social Credit and the New Democrat—haranguing the government on a wide range of issues.

At one point, Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) was heard lecturing Public Works Minister Jean-Eudes Dube on the choice of rugs for two safe rooms used by the parliamentary restaurant.

After the bill was passed, the motes, a routine measure, gives the government authority to spend $250 million on capital-winter works projects, $300 million for manpower and immigration programs and $454 million on unemployment insurance benefits. Several smaller amounts also are included.

After the bill was passed, the House returned briefly to the debate on a government bill to renew the five-year partial banning ban which expired Dec. 31, 1972.

Raynald Guay, parliamentary secretary to Justice Minister Otto Lang, and Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) called for a return to capital punishment while Ed Nelson (NDP—Burnaby-Seymour) recommended total abolition of the death penalty.

H. T. Herbert (L—Vaudreuil) refused to take personal stand on the issue but said he approved a novel idea by one of his constituents who recommended a Canadian Siberia in the north where criminals could be sent to work at pipeline, airport and highways projects.

Debate on the capital punishment bill was interrupted Jan. 31 and, except for the short recess on Tuesday, probably will not start again until at least late in March.

The six-day formal debate on Finance Minister John Turner's budget opens today with speeches by top opposition finance critics.

Marc Cayer Home

ST. RAYMOND, Que. (CP) — Marc Cayer, the 27-year-old Canadian held prisoner in North Vietnam for five years, had a family dinner at home Tuesday night.

"We don't have anything special planned," one of his sisters, who did not want to be identified, said in a telephone interview punctuated by background laughter.

"We're all together again and we just want to be at home tonight," she said. "We'll have dinner and just talk."

All eight of Mr. Cayer's brothers and sisters were at the family farm in this community 25 miles west of Quebec City.

Only immediate family members were to be present at the gathering.

"Marc only wants to be at home tonight," his sister said. "He'll tell his story later."

The sister said several family members met Mr. Cayer at Quebec's Ancienne Lorette airport at 6:25 p.m. EST Tuesday.

They drove directly into the runway to meet a federal government aviation jetliner parked well away from the terminal.

Mr. Cayer did not speak to reporters before being whisked away home.

Mr. Cayer, an agriculture expert, was captured while working as a civilian at Hue during the 1968 Tet offensive in South Vietnam.

He was employed at the time by the International Voluntary Services, a private non-government organization similar to the U.S. Peace Corps.

He was released last week following signing of the Paris peace agreements.

Canadians in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Strat National Theatre Company of Canada opened in Moscow Monday night with King Lear and the Russian audience accorded the players an enthusiastic welcome.

William Hutt, an associate director of the Stratford festival who performed as the king, said backstage: "I was deeply pleased, and moved. It was one of those rare experiences."

White Still Hopeful Taxes Won't Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer John White said Tuesday he still is hopeful Ontario won't have to raise taxes as a result of Monday's federal budget.

Mr. White said the budget did not accede to Ontario's request for a nine per cent reduction by the federal government in tax rates, making "that particular solution impossible."

Ontario had hoped to take over four per cent of the tax vacated by Ottawa, leaving the other five per cent to reduce the provincial rate.

Mr. White declined to comment in detail on the budget, saying he would give Ontario's position at a news conference probably Thursday.

He said the budget was too important to Ontario citizens "for me to go off half-cocked on it."

"I want to completely understand the consequences of the budget ... to vote I make a statement."

Mr. White spoke in reporters briefly after meeting with Premier William Davis.

Hastings County Parents Agree Option Plan Not Tough Enough

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Quinte district parents want high schools toughened up.

Students are not being pushed hard enough in schools. They should have less freedom of choice in the subjects they study. English (meaning spelling, grammar and composition) and mathematics should be compulsory for two to four years, in high schools and final examinations should be reinstated for all students.

These and other conclusions will be carried back to Ontario's ministry of education following Tuesday night's survey of a sample group of parents from Belleville and Trenton schools.

About 50 parents — some volunteers, others chosen by the staffs of the secondary schools of the district — met in Centennial Secondary School's library to study the school courses of study and participation is part of a review of HSI now being undertaken by the ministry of education. It is sampling the opinions of students, teachers, administrators and trustees across the province on the controversial new credit system in high schools.

Jack Soetsinger and Jay Lackerbie, both consultants from Zone 9 headquarters of the ministry in Kingston, have so far taken unanimous views in two groups of students, four groups of teachers and the administrators and trustees in all the 11 boards in Zone 9. Tuesday night's meeting with about 50 people from Belleville and Trenton was the last survey they have made of parents. What Mr. Lackerbie termed "a message and pattern" emerged from the two-hour review of the credit system.

The parents present were against it.

Those present were divided into groups of five or six and each group submitted a written report at the conclusion.

Written reports from across the province will then go into Toronto, where they will be processed into a comprehensive opinion survey.

One group said the goals of HSI are too idealistic and are contrary to reality. This group wanted English made compulsory throughout high school and physical education made a compulsory, but a free credit course. It asked for a return to the separation between academic and technical department courses, where the lines of demarkation have been blurred off recent years.

Another group's spokesman drew applause when he said there are many dunces and not enough Indians in the school system." He called for a school of instructional technique for teachers.

He expressed the consensus of the 20 persons when he said guidance is important, but guidance teachers are not trained and are not qualified to advise on subject options.

A frequent theme of the reports was the need for standardized course content and report cards because of the mobility of many families in the province.

Most spokesmen said not enough is expected of students and they should be pushed or coaxed into taking more than the 27 required options for graduation diploma.

One women said the credit system encouraged class skipping and aimless wandering around throughout the school day.

Another spokesman said too many good teachers are taken out of classrooms and made administrators.

"Teachers federation must do some weeding and set higher standards."

HSI has been in practice throughout the province for a year. Although some counties, including Hastings, introduced the credit system, before the province made it mandatory.

The system was first requested by teachers. It is designed to allow students at all levels of ability to study the subjects at which they excel and drop those in which failure is probably assured. By this method, almost everyone can get a graduation diploma by taking a 27-credit high school course tailored to his individual talents.

The 50 middle-class, middle-aged men and women gathered at Centennial last night want less freedom of choice for their children. They want a return to the high schools that prepared them for the lives they are living now. They want a general course for the first two years of high school at least, with most subjects on the course compulsory. And they are genuinely concerned that their children will escape from school without enough fluency in language and math to enable them to survive.

How representative were they of the parents of the 8,000 to 9,000 students in Hastings county's secondary schools?

There was a greater representation of men than usually seen at school-oriented gatherings. Before the ministry's team arrived in Belleville, school principals were directed to select the seven requested from each high school area.

One secondary school staff member said four of the seven parents from his school had come forth in response to a notification sent to all parents. He was forced to hunt up the other three.

The proportion appeared to hold up throughout the rest of the sample group of parents. There appeared to be no parties present from Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc or North Hastings High School in Bancroft. Heavy fog in the early part of the morning probably was a factor.

Although the reaction to HS I was negative on the whole, there was no mistaking the parents' concern. They were still huddled in discussion after the meeting was dismissed.

Did their opinion correspond with that of the students, teachers, administrators and trustees sampled so far? The ministry's team refused to say, so as not to jeopardize further surveys. It will all come out in the final report — one that is sure to influence the outcome of Ontario's adventure in freedom of educational choice.

Trenton Seniors Bowling Along

TRENTON — Not quite six weeks ago, the Trenton Senior Citizens' Club started a bowling league unique to the town and already it's proving a resounding success.

League Captain Harry McKee of RR2, Carrying Place, said Tuesday there are close to 50 active club members playing each Tuesday afternoon on one of eight teams. Married couples have been split up, and each team is made up of mixed players.

They're having a fine time on the lanes. Several players haven't played before, but are finding the sport a good pastime. Scores don't matter much to most of them, but whenever they range in the 80s to 100s.

Mr. McKee said there are quite a number of club members who show up just to watch the bowlers. Some keep scores, others take dues, several just cheer the players on.

With all players being over 60 — that's a requirement of the club — there is some pretty sorry bowling. Sometimes, though, a senior bowler has a lost his or her old punch, and the balls take their own time getting to the pins, but no one minds.

Regular playing will conclude March 27, when the three-week finals start. When the unique seniors' league started Jan. 10 at D and A Bowl, 31 Dundas Street East, town and recreation department officials expressed the hope that the club bowling could continue next year.

Office space readily admia that the experiment is a success and looks to next year for the league's return. "They are a keen lot," he said.

Parent Has Plan

Loyalist College's director of extension has come up with a 13-point program to reform Ontario education.

Writing as a parent, H. J. Butterill, went to Tuesday night's review of HSI armed with a brief that expressed his discontent and recommended reforms. The 11-page document was presented to ministry of education officials conducting the survey of parent's opinion on high school credit courses.

Mr. Butterill deplored the immaturity and inexperience of the majority of teachers. Few teachers, he said, have sufficient experience in life to motivate and gain the respect of their students. He attacked the cult of academic qualificatdies as the sole criterion for teaching and the ignoring of experience. The substitute, he said, is to eliminate teachers' colleges and look for young people. Hire only those over 30.

He claimed that teachers' training colleges are "degrading" and an "exercise in frustration."

Mr. Butterill spent 20 years in industry as a metalurgist before taking teacher training. He has eight years' experience teaching high school and five years at the community college level at Loyalist.

He insists that "basic, core subjects" are essential. Teachers have rights, and discipline should be enforced even if legislation action is necessary. The strap is the only means of learning for some and should be reinstated.

Mr. Bütterill called for the elimination of teachers' training schools in favor of in-service training by experienced teachers.

He hit at the agreed problem of promoting seasoned academics to administration roles.

Mr. Butterill said the time has come to train school administrators in the same way hospital administrators are trained.

Schools should concentrate on basic subjects such as reading and math and return to the concept that education is work, not play — an activity."

He decried the fad to promote one method of teaching only, as opposed to the many methods used by experienced teachers and called for the ministry to "eliminate the Hall-Dennis syndrome."

Educational research should be done in the classroom by regular teachers, not by holders of doctor of philosophy degrees who have no teaching experience.

Finally, said Mr. Butterill, audio visual equipment is probably good but overused but the taxpayer can't afford it. It should be reserved for the re-education of adults.

New Varieties Illustrated

New varieties of shrubs, trees and flowers recently developed in Canada were illustrated for members of the Belleville Horticultural Society at their February meeting held Tuesday evening at the Harry J. Clarke School.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Knox Nurse of Brockdale - Kingsway Nurseries of Bowmanville, who showed color slides of the new varieties expected to be available soon to home gardeners.

Vice-president Harry Lambourne, filling in the absence of President Cecil Becker, reported that at a recent district meeting in Kingston it was decided to hold a one-day session of flower judging during May.

He said that an eight-day flower tour of Holland was available to society members and also noted that bus tour is planned for March 18 to the Toronto Garden Club flower show at the O'Keefe Centre.

African violets will be the topic of the March meeting.

Church Rifled In Break-in

Vandals who broke into the Christian Reformed Church Tuesday night, smashed a door and ransacked the office of the church's minister Rev. Stephen Tilley.

Nothing was taken during the break-in but authorities found papers all over Rev. Tilley's floor at the 21 Metcalfe St. W. church. Entry was gained by a basement window.

Development Protested Along Shores of Trent

FRANKFORD — A long time resident here has urged that the shores of the Trent River be more closely protected from developers than at present.

He charged that "commodores are coming in and buying land and we can't" purchase sites.

The authority's newly appointed resources manager, Bill Farley, [illegible] felt that developers cannot just march in, buy property and do what they like with it.

He said the ministry of natural resources is keenly interested in preservation, especially that area of the Trent, known as Percy Reach. "The whole Percy Reach area is an ecologically fragile area and the government is aware of its uniqueness."

The matter arose at the meeting when representatives of Colonius Development, a Rendale firm, spoke of their plans to develop their 900 acres of Percy Reach as a resort area containing a motel, rental terraced sites, a resource centre, marina and golf.

At this time the only hold-up in development plans since the company's purchase of the 900 acres, including Potts Island in 1968, has been rezoning. The area is at present zoned for conservation. Colonius has requested and received Brighton Township support for rezoning of the land to that of a resources area.

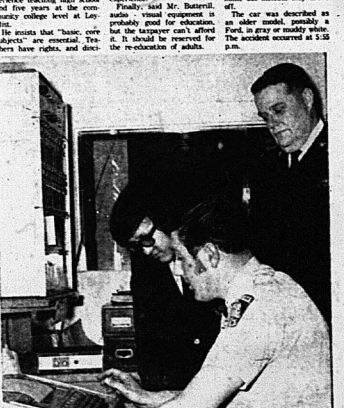
During the Dec. 28, 1972 meeting of the conservation authority in Brighton, plans for the development were placed in their hands and those of the Quinte Planning Board for study and approval.

At the annual meeting of fiscal conceptual plans of the project, as prepared by planning consultants for Colonius, were presented to the authority for future discussion.

Kinsmen Hear Youth Praised

High school commencements and university convocations are the places to find Canadian youth, Art Duncan, who for 26 years was director of public relations for Bata Shoe Industries Ltd., made the comment to Monday's Belleville Kinsmen Club meeting.

"You don't find Canadian youth on the street corners or in courts of vandalism," he said. "They're bigger and brighter and stronger than we were — they jump higher, run faster and do everything better than we did."



Mr. Duncan, now approaching 70, said he had no fears for Canada's future "not because we, their parents, made them that way.

"No father ever looked in a cradle without saying we'll make it better for you," he said. "The one thing we can't do is pass on a sense of appreciation."

Mr. Duncan said today's youth had never had to strive for what they have. "But they're what we've made them so we'd better be proud of them," he said. "They'll do a better job than us in politics, business, commerce and the professions."

"Let's not just complain about their indulgence in hard drugs and so on," said Mr. Duncan.

The thing we should try to develop among our young people is a sense of appreciation — if we can do that we have nothing to worry about for the future of Canada."

Mayor for a Week

Belleville's latest crown mayor of the week, Peter Young from Albert College, accompanied police station Tuesday as part of his fraternization program. Constable Robert Cooper demonstrated how the computer terminal in the police station retrieve data from the Canadian Police Information Centre in Ottawa. With them is Police Chief Douglas Crosbie. Sir James Dunn Collegiate Secondary School has joined Mr. Young as the second mayor of the week.

Driver Sought After Hit-run

Police are still looking for two men who drove off after knocking down a seven-year-old Hillcrest boy Monday.

The youngster, Ronald Wood of 7 Herman St., suffered a cut to his head. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wood.

The men were heading south on Centre Street when the boy suddenly ran into their path. The driver applied the brakes but could not avoid hitting Ronald.

A young girl who had been walking by told city police the men got out of the car and spoke to the boy. They said they would wait at the accident scene until he had returned from taking the boy home but instead, they drove off.

The car was described as an older model, possibly a Ford, in gray or muddy white. The accident occurred at 3:35 p.m.

Canadian Entries On Short End of WHA Scores

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four-Two was the big number on the World Hockey Association scoreboard Tuesday night, but not for the Canadian entries.

Quebec Les Nordiques and Ottawa Nationals both came out on the short end of 4-2 scores to Chicago Cougars and Los Angeles Sharks, respectively, while the surging Philadelphia Blazers posted a similar score over New England Whalers.

In the other game, Cleveland Crusaders moved four points ahead of New England in the Eastern Division race as Ron Buchanan scored the winner and set up two earlier scores in a 5-4 decision over Alberta Oilers.

Tonight Alberta visits New York Raiders.

Jan Popiel scored twice, Andre Gill kicked out 28 shots, and the Cougars prevented Quebec from getting back into the playoff hunt in the Eastern before 6,055 Quebec fans.

Rosaire Paiement and Rick Morris notched the other Chicago goals, Michel Harvey and J. C. Tremblay replying for Les Nordiques.

The Cougars opened a 2-0 lead and were never seriously threatened, paddling to 4-1 before Tremblay rounded out the game's scoring at 15:19 of the third period.

Third period goals by Fred Speck, his first for Los Angeles since being acquired from Minnesota Fighting Saints last week, and Alton White, his second of the game into an empty Ottawa net in the final minute of the game, nailed the Nats with their 35th loss of the year.

Brockville Nips Bears

Trailing 5-3 after two periods, Hull Festivals made the score 6-6 in the third only to lose steam in the third and drop a 9-7 decision to the Kings.

In the only other action Tuesday, Brockville Braves nipped Smiths Falls Bears 6-5 in Smiths Falls, but details of that game were not available.

In Hull, the Kings got three goals from Bill Sweeney, two from Rod Schutt and one each from Bob Wright, Lord Barrett and Dave Nixon.

Gilbert Lecavalier, with his 31st of the season, Simon Fraser Underhill, Pierre Dagenais, Jean-Pierre Menard, Earl Moulton, with the tying goal, Michel Charbonneau and Mario Meyer scored for Hull.

Next action is Thursday when Nepean Raiders visit second-placed Ottawa Rangers.

Jack Gibson, second highest scorer suffered a suspected broken cheek bone when high-sticked by Sharks' Jim Niekamp and will be lost for an undetermined length of time.

Third period goals by John McKenzie and Michel Plante also broke up a tight contest as Philadelphia where the Blazers, playing in front of 4,866 fans, jumped into third place in the east, one point ahead of New York. The Raiders are two points up on Quebec.

Guy Smith and Tom Webster had rallied the Whalers from a 2-0 deficit early in the third period before McKenzie notched the winner despite being harassed in his efforts by New England defenceman Rick Ley.

Buchanan's 29th goal of the season gave the hometown Crusaders a 5-3 lead at 6:21 of the third period. Joe Hardy, Ray Clearwater, Gary Jarrett and Bob Dillabough also tallied in front of a Cleveland crowd of 2,603.

PARK SIDELINED

NEW YORK (AP) — Defenceman Brad Park of New York Rangers will be sidelined for the next two National Hockey League games with a bruised right knee cap, the club said Tuesday. Park was injured during last Sunday's game against New York Islanders. He will undergo treatment in New York and miss road games in Los Angeles and Oakland.

Bruins Blitz Vancouver As Orr Regains Form

By IAN MacLAINE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins, jolted into reality by a furious blitz in the first period, rebounded from a 2-goal deficit Tuesday night to edge Vancouver Canucks 7-6 on goals by Bobby Orr and Ken Hodge.

Orr, Bruins' superstar defenceman who has been accused of slowing down in the wake of a succession of knee operations, and Hodge, often included in any mention of possible trades to strengthen the Stanley Cup champions, scored less than two minutes apart.

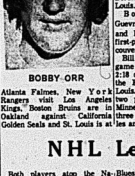
It was Orr's 18th of the year, despite a late start, and Hodge's 31st that overcame a 6-5 Vancouver lead and lifted Boston in within two points of second-place New York Rangers in the National Hockey League's East Division race.

The Canucks, a distant seventh in the East, ripped 19 shots at veteran Boston goalie Ed Johnston in the first period, beating him four times—three within a space of about four minutes.

The Bruins took a 5-4 lead into the third period but found themselves behind again when Gerry O'Flaherty and Barry Wilkins tallied unassisted goals 17 seconds apart, setting the stage for Boston's late heroics.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Flyers, with Bobby Clarke helping on four goals, snapped St. Louis Blues' home ice win streak at six games 5-3, while Pittsburgh Penguins rang up New York Islanders' 50th loss of the year, 4-0, behind the shutout goaltending of Jim Rutherford.

Montreal Canadiens, six points atop the East Division standings, are in Chicago tonight against the Black Hawks who hold a seven-point margin over Philadelphia in the race for first in the West.



In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs entertain fledgling Minnesota North Stars.

Greg Sheppard, Fred Stanfield, Phil Esposito, Carol Vadnais and Don Marcotte shared the other Boston goals as the Bruins, who had shaved Vancouver's early lead on Sheppard's first-period score, went ahead with four unanswered goals in the second period.

Esposito, who also picked up two assists, now has 81 points atop the NHL scoring race, eight ahead of runner-up Clarke. Clarke's 85 points makes him the highest scorer in the West Division's history, surpassing 84 compiled by Red Berenson in 1968-69 with St. Louis.

Bob Schmautz, Jocelyn Guevremont, Andre Boudrias and Barry Wilcox tallied the first-period goals for Vancouver.

Bill Flett's second goal of the game and 32rd of the year, at 12:18 of the third period, lifted the Flyers to victory at St. Louis. The loss left the Blues two points behind third-place Minnesota in the West and three points ahead of Los Angeles and Atlanta.

Bobcats Edge Lions 5-4

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

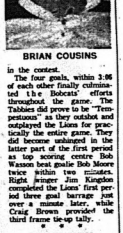
PETERBOROUGH — If hard luck comes in threes, then good luck must come in fives.

At least it came in fives for the Belleville Bobcats in their game against the Peterborough Lions Tuesday night.

Brian Cousins, who coach Moe Hunter did not expect to be playing in the 'Cats line-up against the Lions, scored the Bobcats fifth goal in the fifth period to break a 4-4 tie and give the fifth place club the opening game of the best of seven playoffs.

Cousins' goal in the second sudden death overtime period gave the Tabbies their first win over the Lions on the occasion of their fifth meeting. During regular season play, the Peterborough league pennant winners defeated the 'Cats four times, twice by 9-1 and 8-4 scores.

"Lavender and I were standing in front of the net with the goalie in between us," said Cousins after the game, "and Cootsy (Mark Coates) was in the slot with the puck. I got the pass from Lavender across the goal mouth and put it in."



Coates said that "the goalie was right out of his net" for the 'Cats' fifth goal. "I was out in front with the puck," said Coates, "one guy blocked it, and I turned around, and another guy came at me, so I put it through his legs to Lavender. Lavender passed it across to Cox for the goal."

Coates had been frustrated on a late first overtime period attempt by Peterborough's goalie Terry Wasson. Wasson came out of his net to put the stop on Coates on a charging break by the winger after he had beaten the Lions' rearguards at their own blue line.

The Bobcats, who played outstandingly as a team against the Lions, might, however, be accused of behaving like gentlemen if they are not careful. Coach Moe Hunter cautioned the players "not to retaliate" according to Tim Yohn who received a mild cutting at the hands of defenceman Jute in the first period. Yohn said after the game, "I didn't figure he'd get a lucky punch in."

Yohn took the roughing up as the Lions appeared to have the few scrapes in the game in which they used their bored elbows.

Defenceman Joey Edwards did some profuse bleeding after he went by left winger Paul Evans who "stuck out his stick and caught me in the mouth. It was worth it

The four goals, within 3:06 of each other finally culminated the Bobcats' efforts throughout the game. The Tabbies did prove to be "tenacious" as they outshot and outplayed the Lions for practically the entire game. They did become unhinged in the latter part of the first period as top scoring centre Bob Wasson beat goalie Bob Moore twice within two minutes. Right winger Jim Kingdon completed the Lions' first period three goal barrage just over a minute later, while Craig Brown provided the third frame tie-up tally.

KOREANSUNITING?

LONDON (AP) — North and South Korea, politically split since they were born more than war almost 26 years ago, may soon become reunited — at least the next World Soccer Cup—according to South Korean diplomatic sources here in London. The two Koreas have gone their separate ways in most areas of their political division. Diplomatic sources say, however, that talks are now under way to bring the two countries together in various cultural exchanges.

Nicklaus and Palmer Set for Tournament

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, bubbling with renewed confidence, are set to resume their head-to-head rivalry in Jackie Gleason's $200,000 tournament that opens the Florida portion of the PGA golf tour.

It's the first event on a four-tournament swing through Florida as the marathon pro tour shifts cross-country after a seven-week stay on the West Coast.

The site of the 72-hole event that begins Thursday is the par 72, 7,138-yard East Course at the Inverrary Golf and Country Club, where Nicklaus missed by one stroke of overtaking winner Tom Weiskopf last year for what was then the biggest prize on the tour, $52,000.

Palmer, then in the throes of a long and dismal slump, had scores of 80 and 79 in the final two rounds and beat just one man in the field.

The 43-year-old Palmer ended that slump in his last outing, however, using a return to his old putting stroke in beating Nicklaus for the title in the Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

NHL Franchise In Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Erwin Mercer, a Milwaukee businessman, said Tuesday he and a group of associates are incorporating for the purpose of applying for a National Hockey League franchise.

Mercer said his group would apply regardless of whether another syndicate, headed by realtor Marvin Fishman, succeeds in purchasing the Ottawa Nationals franchise of the rival World Hockey Association.

The Mercer group is backing a proposal to build a new sports arena with 15,200 seats for hockey on the County Stadium grounds. The NHL requires members to play in facilities of at least 15,000 capacity.

Senior Curling

Northern Ontario Still Undefeated

SUDBURY, Ont (CP) — Before Tuesday night's sixth round in the Canadian senior curling championship, skip Ralph Smith of Noranda, Que, said his rink is usually inconsistent.

A few hours later, the Northern Ontario representative belied that statement and took an 8-4 victory over Guy Chenail of Quebec City to extend his undefeated record to five games in the 11-rink, round-robin tournament

The Noranda rink—composed of third Glenn Mitchell, second Mel Shaw and lead Stan Brecker—has convinced British Columbia that Northern Ontario deserves first place.

After B.C. lost 10-9 to Northern Ontario in the fifth round, skip Roy Rose of Trail said: "They are definitely the rink to beat now."

"They beat us at our own game and there was nothing we could do about it. We took an early 4-0 lead and they kept coming on strong and stole a single point on the ninth to set up the win

Smith took advantage and we never could get back into the lead," said Rose, referring to shots he missed late in the game

"If they keep playing the way they are now, they could go right through undefeated."

Entering today's seventh round, the 38-year-old Smith led with a 5-0 record, while Rose was 4-2. With three wins and two defeats were Bob Cruikshank of Red Deer, Alta., Jim Murphy of Saint John, N.B., Dr. Bill McTavish of Winnipeg and Gil Brunnin of Saskatoon. At 2-3 were Dr. Wes MacDonald of Charlottetown and Chenail, while Pike was 1-4 followed by James Wilbur of Halifax and Ed Rhodes of Bramalea, both with 1-6 records.

"We're playing well now. In our association playoffs, we were better but in the Northern Ontario final we lost twice and didn't play well"

In other six-round games, Ontario stole a total of 13 points in a 16-3 win over Alberta, Manitoba defeated P.E.I. 10-6 and Saskatchewan scored six on the seventh and four on the 10th for a 16-4 triumph over Nova Scotia. The bye went to New Brunswick.

Other fifth-round results were: P.E.I. 12, Nova Scotia 4; Saskatchewan 8, Alberta 7; Alberta 9, New Brunswick 8 and Quebec 8, Manitoba 6. Newfoundland had the bye.

Leether Relieves For Weston

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Leether came on in relief for Weston Dodgers Tuesday night to keep their playoff hopes alive.

In the other game, Richmond Hill Rams beat Ajax 6-3 to take a 3-2 lead in their series. The sixth game will be played at Ajax Friday night.

Leether normally plays for the Weston juvenile team but was pressed into service after 15 minutes of the first period when Dodgers' regular netminder, Steve Hahn, gave up three goals in less than two minutes

Next game in the series will be played in the Wexford rink tonight.

Belleville Lacrosse May Join Association

Mike Finnegan presented the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association with a favorable report regarding his submission to the South Central Lacrosse Association requesting membership for Belleville teams in the league.

The first vice-president of the BMLA reported to the executive in their first meeting of the season Tuesday night that application for entry was well received at the SCLA meeting he attended in Whitby Feb. 11.

This year the BMLA is hoping to be able to hold clinics during April for players, referees and coaches in the game. Arrangements are being made with the Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association to that end.

Roy Payne, president of the BMLA, indicated a need for coaches, referees and conveners to help in the carrying out of a successful lacrosse season. Interested parties may contact Payne at 966-1628 or through the Recreation Centre.

Oops !

The Loyalist Lancers did not lose both of their weekend basketball games as reported in Monday's Intelligencer.

In the story featuring Kenno Dozono, a fourth dan karate instructor, which appeared in the Friday, Feb. 16 edition of The Intelligencer, the referee in whose home Dozono practices is Tim Williams of the OHA, not Les Williams of the BMHA.

Lakers Bounce Bulls

Chicago Bulls, literally blown off the court by Los Angeles Lakers in last year's playoffs, had lost 11 games in a row to the National Basketball Association's reigning champions—until tonight.

The Bulls, taking advantage of the absence of the Lakers' injured Jerry West, ran away from them in the fourth quarter for a 103-89 victory, the first by the Bulls over Los Angeles since Oct. 22, 1971.

In other NBA games, Boston Celtics beat Phoenix Suns 107-97, New York Knicks nipped Portland Trailblazers 119-106, Milwaukee Bulls turned back Cleveland Cavaliers 118-106, Buffalo Braves beat Kansas City-Omaha Kings 113-106 and Golden State Warriors defeated Atlanta Hawks 118-115.

The Lakers came to life in the fourth quarter to trim Chicago's lead to 78-75.

But Chet Walker, who led the Bulls with 25 points, led a surge in which they outscored Los Angeles.

The victory, New York's 49th of the season and one more than they got all last year, kept the Knicks within 3½ games of first-place Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 17 points in the first quarter as Milwaukee blew the Cavaliers off the court, racing in front 37-17 in the opening 9½ minutes. Abdul-Jabbar wound up sharing honors with Oscar Robertson, each with 28 points.

The sparkling of the Kansas City-Omaha attack, NBA scoring leader Nate Archibald, was on the bench nursing a bruised left knee. That was all the Braves needed to hand the Kings their fourth straight setback and a four-game spin of their own.

Herman Gilliam kept bringing Atlanta back, but Nate Thurmond's dunk shot and free throw with four seconds left provided Golden State with its winning edge.

Belleville Ladies Lose

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Shirley Pilson's Chatham Granite rink and Fern Irwin's foursome from the Toronto St. George's club, meet today for the southern Ontario ladies' senior curing title.

The two rinks remained the only unbeaten entries after Tuesday's play when Chatham downed Wiarton 8-4 and St. Georges routed Kitchener Westmount 12-2 and Oshawa 12-7

In other matches, Oshawa topped Toronto Donalda 9-5, Toronto dixie edged Gravenhurst 11-10, Unionville beat Lindsay 11-9, London defeated Belleville 12-2 and St Catharines romped 15-4 over Hanover; and Unionville sacked Dixie 8-4.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Can you give us particulars about Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum - where they are located in Detroit?

ANSWER: Located on Village Road and Oakwood Boulevard in Dearborn, Greenfield Village is a collective historical site with many homes and shrines moved from all parts of America. Open daily 9 to 6, June 15th through Labor Day; 9-5 Monday through Friday, Saturday and Sunday to 5:30, rest of the year. Closed Jan. 1, U.S. Thanksgiving Day and Dec. 25. Admission $2; children 6-14 years, $1; under 6, free. Horse drawn carriages with driver guide are $1.75 additional, and convey visitors through the village.

Historic houses range from one-room log cabins to elaborate dwellings, many of which were birthplaces of famous Americans. Among the homes included are those belonging to such people as William Holmes McGuffy, Noah Webster, the Wright Brothers, Luther Burbank, Robert Frost and Henry Ford.

The Thomas A. Edison buildings trace the great inventor's career, beginning with the Smith Creek Depot where he was thrown from a train in 1963 for accidentally starting a fire, to the Fort Myers, Fla., laboratory where he experimented with rubber production from American plants until 1936. Edison's Menlo Park, N.J., laboratory displays the world's first industrial research centre which produced the electric light, phonograph, mimeograph, telephone transmitter, radio tube and many other important inventions which contributed to the growth of electronics.

Village Green, centre of many early American communities, gives the impression of an authentic village although the buildings grouped around the green are of different eras and regions. Among these are the 1833 Clinton Inn, first overnight stage stop on the route from Detroit to Chicago; the Lincoln Courthouse where young Abraham Lincoln practised law from 1849 to 1847; an old country store, a town hall and chapel, and blacksmith's, pewterers', miller's and tinsmyer, glassblower and potter shops, which are a part of the post-industrial revolution era.

Henry Ford Museum, Village Road and Oakwood Boulevard, Dearborn, contains a vast collection of artifacts and memeitos of America. Replicas of Independence Hall, Congress Hall and the old City Hall of Philadelphia are connected by corridors, with the main exhibition hall at the rear. Open 9-6 June 15 through Labor Day; rest of the year 9-5 Monday through Friday, 9-6 on weekends. Closed Jan. 1, U.S. Thanksgiving and Dec. 25. Admission $2, children 6-14 $1 under 6 free.

American Decorative Arts Galleries display the development of American furniture and decorations chronologically from Pilgrim times to the 20th century. Included are examples of furniture, ceramics, silver, pewter, glass, pottery, clocks, textiles and paintings.

Henry Ford exhibit is a series of seven rooms dedicated to the memory of Henry Ford. Included are letters, documents, pictures and gifts depicting his life, first engine, first car and the redoubtable Model T.

Mechanical Arts Hall displays articles related to agriculture, craft, industrial machinery, steam and electric power, communications, lighting and transportation. The earliest cameras, television and radio equipment, 200 antique automobiles and a 600-ton locomotive are among the articles displayed.

Street of early American shops comprises five blocks of shops preserving tools and handiwork of pre-industrial crafts and trades. Many of the shops are in daily operation, demonstrating the vanishing trades of early America.

British Airline Plans $108 Trips to Toronto

LONDON (CP) — The British government has granted Laker Airways a licence to fly passengers on charter flights between London and Toronto at prices which the company says will be low enough to attract a return trip during the off-peak season.

Six airlines, including Laker as well as the state-owned British Overseas Airways Corp. and the independent British Caledonia Airways, were given government permission Tuesday to operate cheap flights to Canada and the Caribbean under the new advanced booking plan.

Opposes Teacher Quota

TORONTO (CP) — The President of Brock University in St. Catharines told Ontario's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism Tuesday that he would resign before agreeing to a quota on foreign teachers at his university.

James Gibson told the committee that in areas where the principal aim was communicating information, a Canadian staff member was not as important as in other areas. Mr. Gibson differentiated between teaching areas related to substance and those related to methodology.

He said much of Canadians' preoccupation with a native teaching faculty stems from an inferiority complex.

Education Parley Underway

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial education ministers met with three federal ministers Tuesday to discuss issues on secondary education programs that involve them all.

The future of post-secondary education rests on the outcome of some of these proposals," Francois Cloutier, Ontario minister of education, said following the closed one-day meeting.

The major issues discussed were manpower training grants from Ottawa, changes in current 50-50 cost-sharing arrangements for education of foreign students, proposals for direct student loan programs—which will come up for negotiation in 1974—and allocation of research money to universities.

"We thought it was important for the ministers to get together and talk about these things that are not just the officials," said Jack McNie, Ontario's minister of colleges and education.

The council of the ministers of education is also meeting since 1967, but this was the first time federal ministers from their departments most closely involved with education were included. The federal ministers were Hugh Faulkner, secretary of state and minister for the multiplex; Robert Andras, minister of manpower and immigration and Jeanne Sauve, science minister.

Mr. Faulkner said in an interview the meeting had covered a number of areas that "touched both levels of government."

Girl, Age 8, Wounded In Belfast

BELFAST (Reuter) — An eight-year-old girl boy wounded and in shock in hospital today after the end of a new round of Northern Ireland's violence ? which in two British soldiers were ambushed and killed.

The girl was found by soldiers lying on the pavement short after a series of shots were fired in the Catholic Ardoyne area of Belfast. Her lip appeared to have been bushed by a rubber bullet fired at close range, where it was found she had been shot.

The two soldiers died when their vehicle was ambushed by gunmen minutes from the area previously wounded. The incident happened in the Catholic Ballymurphy area of West Belfast.

In the Irish republic, armed robbers held up a Bellgrove-Dublin express train and escaped with $225,000 in cash and valuables.

Ministry Plans Park Programs

Tourists travelling the Quinte District next summer may leave with more appreciation of the region's history and character.

District inhabitants also could have interest in their home area perked up.

If so, the results will stem from programs now being planned in Quinte provincial parks next summer by the natural resources ministry.

Movies, slide shows and conducted walks are part of the presentations now being prepared by a new ministry unit to interpret the historic, cultural and nature backgrounds which have influenced development in various areas.

The Quinte district—with it contrasting Lake Ontario plateaus, drumlins and the northern bush of the Canadian Shield—is a prime example of the diversity of topics involved in the programs.

For instance: While visitors to Outlet and Sandbanks park may learning about the United Empire Loyalists or cheesemaking, those at Bon Echo and Sharbot Lake parks will hear about logging, mining, and minerals.

Park amphitheatres will be used for much of the programming — which will begin in June and run through to the Labor Day weekend, says a spokesmah at the ministry's Tweed district office.

At Sandbanks and Outlet Parks there will be trails and conducted park walks to show off examples of the area's geology, vegetation and wildlife.

How the environment influenced cultural and historical development of the area will be examined.

Special features include movies on historical heritage — with topics ranging from explorer Samuel de Champlain, the Jesuits among the Indians, the American Revolution, the Loyalists, and the Quinte background of personalities like John A. Macdonald. Early industries — cheesemaking, fishing, farming — will also be explored.

The same concept will apply at Bon Echo and Sharbot Lake.

Here themes will focus on geology, forestry, logging and mining — and the distinct social patterns that emerged as a result.

The programs are part of a new development in provincial parks' planning — the interpretive unit.

Its task is to define certain distinct areas where consistent environment — geology, vegetation — wildlife — has made unique contributions to development.

Awareness of such influences improves understanding on how "powerful a force natural environment can exert in determining the direction and quality of our lives," said the ministry spokesman.

Conversion to Bulk In Cards for Farmers

Rapid conversion from can to bulk milk shipping is expected in Hastings county during the next two or three years.

This is the expectation of Stirling agricultural officials who say the conversion is being forced by the fact that plant can washers in this area are generally in poor mechanical condition and the high costs of new washers and unavailable replacement parts make replacement or repair prohibitive.

In a report last week to Hastings County council, county agricultural representative Douglas Tipper said the high cost of trucking can milk will also be a contributing factor in the increased movement toward bulk milk.

Mr. Tipper said there were about 600 milk producers in Hastings with about 160 of these shipping milk to the Group I. The remainder, of which 115 are bulk shippers, ship industrial milk to the Group 2 pool.

Eleven per cent of the can producers have milk stores suitable for conversion to bulk milk, according to Mr. Tipper.

To help encourage conversion to bulk milk the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food is urging a capital grant program, makes available grants of 50 per cent for milk-house construction, bulk tank and milk pipeline purchases.

Council Moves to Ease Seniors' Parking Rules

Belleville city council has taken action to ease the parking space requirements for future senior citizen housing complexes owned by the Ontario Housing Corporation.

Action taken by city council has been to amend bylaw 6495 which in the city's B district would call for the provision of one parking space for each four dwelling units plus a parking space for the resident caretaker.

The bylaw, given three readings at last week's council meeting, has to have Ontario Municipal Board approval before it comes into effect.

The bylaw amendment resulted from a request from OHC asking that of 3 street parking requirements for a senior citizen complex be reduced to one for each four units instead of the 1.25 spaces now required.

The housing authority said that only 25 per cent of seniors own motor cars and claimed the normal parking requirement should not apply.

The OHC had applied for a zoning change for property on Bridge Street opposite the fairgrounds and for property on Wellington Crescent where a new senior citizen housing is planned.

Rather than make zoning changes for the two specific properties, the planning advisory board and council decided it would be more appropriate to make a general bylaw amendment allowing the reduced parking requirement for senior citizen housing in all parts of B district.

TV Considered

Village businessmen are considering televising promotion program — similar to one recently undertaken by neighboring Marmora merchants, Reeve Jack Reynolds said the merchants would have village council's full support in any project promoting the community.

Authority Seeks Law Enforcement

FRANKFORD — Some deputy Ontari conservation officers, without proper legal training for enforcement of laws, have "on occasions been very embarressing to the province," a provincial fish and wildlife supervisor told the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority at its annual meeting here.

Percy Swanson, who works out of the fish and wildlife office in Lindsay, said there are only 13 conservation officers in the province, plus more than 100 deputies. He charged that "some only want a badge so they can trespass or go fishing or hunting on private land. Some have never enforced laws.

"It's dangerous to give any type of badge to just any man," he said.

Mr. Swanson, who said he wasn't referring to all deputies, said "if I had my way I wouldn't have any."

He was speaking in response to queries put by Brighton Township deputy reeve Maurice Harvey's insistence that the growing number of wildlife sanctuaries in the province aren't adequately protected.

"It's foolish to spend ratepayers' money and then not protect their property. I feel there are more wardens or deputies needed," he urged.

In response to Mr. Harvey's and Mr. Swan's statements, Norman Patrick, director of the conservation authority branch of the ministry of natural resources, said the solution lies with local conservation authorities.

"The same type of vandalism that has occurred in parks is now happening in conservation areas," he told those at the meeting.

Mr. Patrick suggested the proper subcommittee of the Lower Trent Conservation Authority meet and examine certain regulations that if adopted, would give them the power to enforce laws.

One area resident mentioned a recent case when a provincial police officer was called in on a conservation area complaint, but didn't act. The provincial director replied that without adoption of regulations the authority cannot call on any law-officer to act on their behalf.

Lower Trent solicitor Bruce Kerton of Trenton requested that a set of draft regulations concerning enforcement of conservation laws on sanctuary land, be prepared and passed to him for study.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21 — April 19): The possibilities are so good, co-operation so possible that daydreaming is in order, in disciplined moments of restbreaks.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Being willing to confide and share with friends brings benefits in both your work and your leisure time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Nearly all aspects of your daily living are favored for pleasant repetitions of recent experiences. Friends are full of surprises.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Now it's your turn to call the shot, offer clues as to what comes next. Younger people will make good use of your help.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Be flexible instead of standing on pride. You have a good chance to confirm your previous judgments at first hand.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A little extra exertion is probable, will do you no harm. Pick up early and get out to see about neglected matters.

Libra (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): Step right up and lay claim to whatever you feel is yours, and for improvements wherever you have earned them.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Intuition guides you through a complex search, probable passing co-operation with people you aren't familiar with.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be ready and willing to move up at; it's time you led the group if you haven't been doing it often already.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Impulse now has enabled it primitive but valid unconscious guidance. Avoid making a role you can't fulfill later.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your place in the world is confirmed in subtle and overt manner. If it is not to your liking, decide to do something about it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Promote your ideas, explain them to distant personal contacts as well as to nearby friends. You run into some competition.

Opening lead—three of diamonds.

It is said that in war every new weapon gives rise to a counter-weapon — but, unfortunately, reason does not wholly apply to bridge. there are sometimes a number of situations where a conventional bidding weapon can be forced against its user.

Consider this deal where the bidding went as shown. South's two spade bid was not based on the normal compliment of 17 high - card points — generally associated with a jump-shift response — but his bid must be regarded as correct, considering the enormous power of his spades. He was on the verge of a slam the moment partner opened with a heart, and he announced the good news by the immediate jump-shift.

East's double of six spades, by contrast, was obvious overall. It requested West to make the lead that was first given sequence, it demanded that West lead the first trick won by dummy, namely, hearts.

The significance of the double was not lost upon North, who realized that a heart lead would be the worst possible prove fatal. So North very judiciously ran to six notrump and this contract proved unbeatable, without any opening lead. He lost a club trick, but that was all.

East was unfortunately in a position where, if he passed six notrump, he would very likely lead a diamond—which, if doubled, he was convinced the danger of chasing the opponents into six notrump. On the whole, East was probably right to double, for the North-South cards could have been so divided that neither opponent would be lodged after the double. In the actual case, East won a lost soul either way.

Diabetes Plainly Is Out of Control

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I developed diabetes at the age of 65. I tried to control it by oral medications and diet at first, then by diet alone and finally, three months ago, insulin.

I started out on 15 units of 1040, with a 26 G ½ disposable syringe. The results were fine the first month, but the last two months nearly all my urine tests have been four plus. I gradually increased the amount of insulin to 30 units with no visible benefit.

I have had excellent health all my life but am aware of the risks of diabetes. How can I control the sugar? Should I get a larger needle? What would happen if I discontinued the insulin? Is there benefit from the insulin on a partial basis even when the urine test shows sugar? — M.S.

Face it—your diabetes is out of control.

Usually diabetes that develops later in life is fairly readily controlled, but there's a difference between "usually" and "always."

Changing the size of the needle won't help, discontinuing insulin under any circumstances or circumstances could be catastrophic.

There are a lot of factors that can be involved when control of diabetes is bad, but let's start with a basic one. Are you sticking to your diet, or did you decide that when taking insulin you could forget about the diet? You can't neglect medication, whether by mouth or by needle, to do it all.

Are you overweight?

Have you, by any chance, developed an infection? That can cause loss of tolerance.

It is also possible that you have developed antibodies to insulin, which reduce its effectiveness. If so, you may need close medical supervision until things are straightened out.

Have you tried using an entirely different brand to inject the insulin, changing, for instance, from thighs to abdominal wall?

Finally, you may simply not be getting a large enough dose of insulin for your needs. Quite often a single dose does not suffice and a second (and usually smaller) dose every day is necessary for smooth control.

One thing bothers me especially. You write: "I gradually increased the amount of insulin."

If you are trying to handle this out-of-control diabetes by yourself, you are on risky ground indeed. If you haven't been under the situation to your doctor, do so at once. He knows the tricks of regulating cases like yours, and can determine whether you have developed complications that is interfering with the insulin action.

You need some sophisticated help.

Note to Mrs. L.M.: I would guess that those "boils" under the arms were cysts rather than boils. It is not that some deodorants can clog the pores and lead to such cysts; therefore, it is a common question by dermatologists when patients have such cysts: "What kind of deodorant are you using?"

Freeze Ends

Defence Expenditures To Increase Modestly

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence expenditures, frozen for the last three years, will be allowed to increase by a modest amount this year as the Canadian forces continue to make do with some elderly equipment, estimates released Tuesday show.

The defence budget had been frozen at about $1.8 billion for the last three years.

The estimates for the 1972-73 fiscal year show the expenditures will rise to an estimated $2.126 billion with much of the increase taken up by wages and inflationary increases in operating costs.

Capital expenditures are to increase $72 million to $283 million as the forces start moving toward replacing some worn-out or used up equipment and supplies—including ammunition.

Some of the $70 million increase could go toward purchase of a new fire support vehicle to replace the Second World War Centurion tanks now being used by the forces.

About $200 million is set aside for expenditures entailed in the search for a replacement for the aging Argus long-range surveillance aircraft.

But there is little in the estimates for replacement of the aging warships in the armed forces, some of them 20 years old. It had been reported that replacing these vehicles was a matter of high priority in the department.

The estimates show that wages for the forces, brought up to parity with the public service last year, will cost an additional $55 million.

The government is to spend about $7.8 million on CF5D two-seater training aircraft to be built by Canadair. Eventually the government will spend more than $11 million to replace 18 CF5s sold to Venezuela in 1971.

It also will spend $6 million on more CF5s, part of a $222 million co-going program and $4.5 million on improvements to a helicopter, part of a $24 million continuing program.

A major expenditure is $22.5 million for ammunition for the land forces, plus a few million more for the air and sea forces.

No additional money is set aside for peace or truce keeping. The Canadian forces decision to enter the Vietnam observer force on a 60-day interim basis came after the department had submitted its estimates to the cabinet.

If any additional funding is required because of this Vietnam commitment, the department would ask for it through supplementary estimates.

Meanwhile, the costs of the 60-day period would be met from the 1972-73 appropriations.

Peacekeeping and other "contributions to intertational stability," will cost the defence department almost $264 million in the forthcoming year, about $20 million more than the year now ending.

Debt Charges 14 Cents on $1

OTTAWA (CP) — Just about everyone borrows these days to buy the things he wants or do the things he wants to do but can't afford out of his regular income.

When he borrows, he creates a debt. Until he has paid it in full, he pays interest.

The federal government is no different, except that its debt is on a gigantic scale. It's been accumulating since Confederation.

Government estimates tabled in the Commons Tuesday show that of every dollar the government takes in for the 1973-74 fiscal year about 14 cents will go to pay the interest and other charges on its debt. That means that every Canadian—man, woman or child—has to contribute something like $94 a year to help the government pay these charges.

Paying the interest and other charges on this debt for 1973-74 will cost about $2.58 billion, up from $2.32 billion a year earlier. That's an increase of more than $263 million, but $396 million of that is accounted for by transfer to the public debt of some items which previously were charges against specific departments.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the total of Canada's public debt at the end of March, 1972, was $48 billion, the highest in history and double what it was 10 years earlier. Most of the debt is held by Canadians in the form of bonds and so on.

But the over-all picture isn't as bad as it first appears. There is another way of looking at the figures.

Gross public debt, for instance, consists of the total liabilities of the government. This consists of unmatured debt—such as unmatured bonds, treasury bills and notes—and other liabilities — such as annuity, insurance and pension accounts, deposit and trust accounts.

On the other side, some of the debt is in a form that generates income such as government advances to Crown corporations, agencies and departmental loan programs.

The return from these sources can be deducted from gross debt to come up with a net debt figure. On this basis, for instance, the 1972 total of $48 billion is whittled down to a net debt of about $18, billion—or about $872 for each Canadian.

This, in turn, cuts the annual carrying charges per capita to about $40 from $94.

More recent figures on the debt won't be available until after the current fiscal year ends March 31.

But Finance Minister John Turner said in his budget speech Monday that he expects a balanced budget for 1973-74 which would indicate little change in the debt position.

The 14 cents of every government dollar that goes to pay these debt charges is the second-largest allocation of the expenditure dollar. It is topped only by 28 cents for health and welfare costs. By comparison, defence takes 12 cents and economic development and support 13.

Although the debt at $48 billion is the highest in history, an expanding economy and growing population also puts it in another perspective.

As a percentage of gross national product—the total of all goods and services—the 1972 debt was about 19.2 per cent, the lowest in at least 30 years.

The trend since the immediate post-war years, when a huge debt was incurred, has been downward almost without exception.

In 1950, the debt was 71.4 as a per cent of GNP. This dropped to 33.3 per cent in 1960 and 21.2 in 1970.

Ottawa to Spend $2.43 Billion To Promote Growth, Make Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The government proposes to spend $2.43 billion during the 1973-74 fiscal year on programs of economic development designed to stimulate development and create jobs.

The total in estimates submitted to the Commons Tuesday is a decrease of $236 million from the expected spending for the previous year but still will take more than 13 cents of every government revenue dollar.

The 1973-74 expected spending is $2.67 billion or 14 cents of every dollar.

The programs are spread over a wide range of fields including agriculture, forestry, fisheries, mining, energy, foreign trade, labor and regional development.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said there will be particular emphasis on providing employment opportunities and development resources in all regions and sectors of the economy.

More money is provided for an inventory of proven and potential mineral and energy resources and additional funds are sought for the Department of Regional Economic Expansion (DREE).

DREE will get $331 million—compared with an expected spending of $268 million a year earlier—for a variety of projects ranging from assistance to the Nova Scotia coal industry to development of a sewer and water supply system in Brandon, Man.

The whole DREE program is aimed at providing work opportunities in areas that need them most.

The government said economic development of the North will proceed "with careful regard for its effects on the native people . . . and the environment."

For secondary industry, the estimates provide funds for small business incentives, export development and industrial research and development.

Postal Costs Will Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Post office spending in the coming fiscal year will jump a substantial 17 per cent, according to estimates tabled in the Commons Tuesday.

Health Estimates Are Tops

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal estimates show health department spending in total will rise this year by $289 million to $3.3 billion, continuing it as the biggest outlet for federal funds outside the finance department, which disburses such huge items as payments to the provinces and interest on the public debt.

Major increases in health outlays for the coming year are $115 million for hospital care and $33 million for medical care paid toward the cost of provincial insurance programs. That will bring the federal cost of these items to $1.66 billion and $732 million, respectively.

The increases are described as natural ones and do not involve any changes of policy.

A new health department item which did not appear in last year's main estimate is $10 million for the New Horizons program under which elderly people may qualify for workmaking projects. Following last year's announcement of the program, an estimate of $7 million was provided for 1972-73 activities.

Airliner Strayed

Israel Rebuked For Killing 105

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel was widely denounced today for shooting down a Libyan airliner in which more than 100 persons died.

President Nixon sent condolences to Libya and Egypt, a pointed rebuke to the Israelis. But a Lebanese newspaper charged him with hypocrisy, likening him to "a murderer who attends the funeral of his victims." Canada expressed "shock and regret."

Israel said its fighters fired on the Boeing 727 Wednesday because the airliner's French pilot refused to heed orders to land after flying over Israeli military installations along the Suez canal.

The death toll today apparently stood at 105. The Libyan airline said there were 112 persons aboard the plane, including nine crew members, and Israel said nine survivors were pulled from the wreckage. But two of the survivors—both women—died during the night.

The Israeli military command said 90 bodies had been recovered. The search for the rest was hampered by a sandstorm during the night.

The Libyan airline said five of the crew were French, two of the passengers were German and the others aboard were Libyans, Egyptians, Jordanians, Lebanese Palestinians and Sudanese. Two Frenchmen were among the survivors, the first officer and a steward.

The non-aligned group of countries at the United Nations in New York expressed "solidarity with the countries which have been the victims of Israeli aggression," and called upon "the international community to put an end to the aggressive policy of Israel."

The Canadian viewpoint was made known by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp in messages to Libya and Egypt.

"It was with shock and regret that my colleagues and I learned of the destruction of a Libyan civil aircraft in the Sinai peninsula on Feb. 21 and the attendant extensive loss of life," Sharp said.

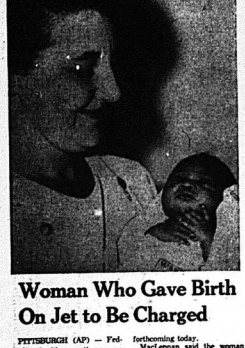
The Libyan government said Wednesday's flight originated in Tripoli; overshot Cairo airport, its destination; and, because of bad weather, strayed across the Suez canal into Israeli-held territory.

The plane was downed about 12 miles from the canal, which is approximately seven minutes' flying time from Cairo airport.

The plane's first officer, who was slightly injured and suffering from shock, was quoted by the Israeli newspaper Maariv as telling his interrogators:

"When we found we were in Israeli-held territory, we got very frightened; and we decided to try and get out of Israeli airspace without obeying the warnings."

The pilot also claimed the pilot of the airliner tried to fool the Israelis by lowering his undercarriage and pretending to begin landing. Then he suddenly turned east, gained altitude and tried to get away, Maariv said.



The Israeli air force planes chased the Boeing and, after firing warning rounds, shot at the plane's wingtips, Maariv said.

"The Libyan plane continued on its way while ignoring the Israeli pilots' instructions. Only then was the aircraft forced down, and it crashed," the paper said.

Woman Who Gave Birth On Jet to Be Charged

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Federal authorities say the woman who gave birth to a girl and then abandoned her in the commode of a United Air Lines jet will be charged under the heading of crimes committed aboard an aircraft.

The 24-pound full-term baby was found Monday night stuffed in an airplane toilet minutes after the plane touched down in Youngstown, Ohio, following a 37-minute flight from Pittsburgh.

Ian D. MacLennan, special agent in charge of the local FBI office, said the mother has been located and that arrest was forthcoming today.

MacLennan said the woman boarded the Boeing 727 jet in New Orleans Monday evening and flew here. She then changed planes for Youngstown.

United officials said the infant was discovered alive in the commode about 15 minutes after the plane landed.

An airline spokesman said employees were doing cleanup work when they found the baby jammed in the toilet with the umbilical cord still attached and only her head visible.

Nixon Predicts Increases in Food Prices Will Halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Wednesday his effort to halt the food-price rise will have a powerful effect in the second half of the year and bring the American consumer relief without cutting farm income.

In a countrywide radio message, the president also defended his cuts in the federal budget, saying they will "do more than anything else to protect your family budget."

Surveying a phrase from Franklin D. Roosevelt, Nixon wound up his address with the warning that "we could be wrecked on the rocks of loose fiscal policy" if the federal budget gets out of control.

In a prelude to his economic State of the Union report to be sent to Congress today, Nixon said he wanted to tell Americans how the economy affects them and their family budgets.

The president focused on the most difficult problem facing his economic policymakers—food prices.

The cost of living figures for January and February, when they are published, will "inevitably show sharp increases" because of large wholesale food-price increases in recent months, he said.

"In fact, we will probably see increases in food prices for some months to come," Nixon said, adding that the underlying cause is that food supplies have failed to keep up with the demand.

Recounting measures to expand supplies through the agriculture department, Nixon said they would stop the rise of wholesale food prices and eventually retail food prices.

"Unfortunately, they cannot do much about prices in the next few months, but they will have a powerful effect in the second half of the year," he said.

He said farm income is "higher than ever, and it will go even higher as we increase farm production."

Defending his cutbacks of some social programs considered popular in Congress, Nixon said: "These old programs may have appealing names, they may sound like good causes, but behind the fancy label often lies a dismal failure."

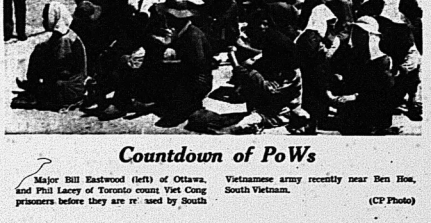
Tax Urged To Assist Book Firms

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario royal commission proposed today that sales tax be imposed on magazines and periodicals to help pay for a $1-million program of financial assistance to the province's book-publishing industry.

The proposal, among 70 in a final report of the commission on publishing set up in December, 1970, said an Ontario book publishing board should be established to administer the aid.

Its annual budget of a minimum $1 million would be financed by removing the five-per-cent sales tax exemption on magazines, but not on books or newspapers.

Smoking Cause Of Plane Crash



SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — A United States Navy jet fighter dived into an Alameda, Calif., apartment building two weeks ago probably because the pilot was smoking a cigarette, a navy board of inquiry has found.

The board of inquiry was told that there was evidence of a fire near the pilot's face mask that was fed by a steady flow of pure oxygen.

In laboratory tests, investigators started a similar fire, generating intense heat, using a lighted cigarette.

Navy regulations prohibit a pilot from smoking while flying, but navy officials admitted it happens occasionally.

The pilot, Lieut. Robert Ward, 28, was a heavy smoker and had two cigarettes during a flight briefing before he took off on a night training mission.

Trade Outlook

U.S., Canada Goals Alike

TORONTO (CP)—With the possible exception of agriculture, American and Canadian goals should parallel each other in demands for expanded and liberalized international trade patterns later this year, a high-ranking U.S. trade negotiator said Wednesday.

William Pearce, deputy special representative of President Nixon with the rank of ambassador, said world economic balance has shifted largely because of the emergence of the European Economic Community (EEC) and a strong, competitive Japanese economy.

In multilateral negotiations later this year in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), he said Canada and the U.S. should find common ground for seeking reductions in tariff and non-tariff barriers to international trade.

Probably the most contentious issue will be restrictions on agricultural trade resulting from a common policy in the enlarged EEC, joined by Britain, Denmark and Ireland this year.

Mr. Pearce told a symposium of the Canadian Export Association that under the common policy the three new EEC members, importers of American grain in the last decade, "are likely to become net grain exporters."

While Canada clearly shares our desire for wider markets and improved terms of access, I suspect we may differ in our approach to these issues in the forthcoming round of negotiations."

Central Canada Seen As Threat to Unity

TORONTO (CP) — Central Canada must shoulder the blame if Canada breaks up and the economic system breaks down, Saskatchewan Liberal Leader D. G. Steuart said today.

Mr. Steuart, speaking to the Empire Club, criticized what he called the indifference by Canadians in Ontario to the state of the nation and a lack of concern about the economic well-being of other areas of the country.

"And the greatest sinners of all are the citizens of Toronto."

Outlining the frustrations western Canadians, Mr. Steuart said there is little "sentiment . . . to put out of Confederation" and separatism is not a factor in the West.

"However, it is unfortunately true that there is a growing feeling against making any further accommodations to keep Quebec or any other part of the country in Confederation."

He said there are large numbers of westerners who believe Quebec and Ontario together, and who would not really care if either or both went their own way."

Mr. Steuart said the West's complaints are real, serious and of long standing.

He cited freight rates under which canned food can be shipped from Vancouver from Toronto for $2.66 a 100 pounds while it costs $2.75 to ship the same amount to Regina.

"That may seem logical to the railroads but it certainly baffles the minds of most westerners."

Convict Used Hobby Shop To Make Counterfeit Bills

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — A convict who said he used prison hobbyshop materials to counterfeit $20 bills at the British Columbia Penitentiary got 15 temporary leaves while serving time in that institution, Saskatchewan penitentiary officials said Wednesday.

Saskatchewan penitentiary director Tom Ellis said Gordon Dean Rose's records showed he got 15 passes, mostly for two or three days, from B.C. penitentiary authorities between April 26 and June 19 last year.

Rose, 42, of Vancouver, is serving a four-year sentence here. He was arrested by Edmonton police last Oct. 16 and later pleaded guilty to charges of forgery, uttering forged money and possession of forgery equipment.

Budget Night Next Month

PICTON — Prince Edward county councillors Tuesday entered a finance session reportedly to discuss salaries following their regular meeting.

County warden Russell Thompson said a budget will be brought down at the next regular council meeting on March 28.

Tuesday's caucus was the second for the 1973 council, which met in a closed session earlier this month and passed a bylaw to finance construction of a new county home for the aged.

Consultants retained by the county to prepare a report on solid waste disposal in Prince Edward presented a progress report on their survey to date during the closed meeting.

Purse Snatched

An elderly Chatham Street woman was accosted on Ann Street Wednesday night, Belleville's first purse snatching of the year.

Mrs. Mary Royall, 72, was walking along the road just before 8 p.m. when a youth, whose age she estimated at between 16 and 20, grabbed her purse from behind.

Mrs. Royal''s arm was through the strap and she fell to the ground, scraping her knee. The youth escaped with the purse containing valuable papers and $25 cash.

Accident Prevention Key Is Involvement

Involvement in accident prevention at all levels of an industry was repeatedly cited as a prime factor in the elimination of industrial accidents by panelists at Wednesday night's meeting of the Belleville and Trenton section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

Panelist John Inch, industrial entineeer at Proctor-Lawyt Division of SCM (Canada) Ltd., Picton, said strong management backup at his plant ensured dangerous situations were promptly corrected.

He also described a system of monthly safety inspections carried out by different staff members each time. "This means if gets a new look each time and if we can get everyone to take part, it creates a lot of interest in safety," he said.

Department foremen backed up by different employees each month to carry out safety checks was the basis of a system described by panelist Harold Keefer, safety co-ordinator and manager of special products at Central Bridge Division of Toronto Iron Works Ltd., Trenton.

Mr. Keefer said foremen at his plant were often chosen to handle the accident prevention role on their own and the involvement of other men had created an interest in safety issues. "All our men are now safety conscious," he said, "in fact, some are getting overbearing about it."

His company also operates a $50 a department safety draw for departments showing no accidents in a month. "Last month we had no accidents," said Mr. Keefer. "It acts as quite an incentive."

Foremen are sent to personal communication courses as well as safety courses by Delore Sofiak, Belleville, according to panelist John Thomson, personnel manager for the company. "By putting more onus on our foremen and teaching them to communicate better — this has worked," he said. He reported a radical drop in accident rates since the company began the new approach in 1970.

Mr. Thompson said most of his company's safety concerns were really "housekeeping" problems. "Anything really serious everybody can see," he said. "So now we're trying to improve our housekeeping."

The onus is also on foremen at Pyrotenax Canada Ltd., Trenton. Panelist Charles Rowbotham, company safety co-ordinator, said his role was to instruct the foremen and ensure they instructed the men under them in safety procedures.

"The responsibility rests with the foremen for training new men, making them feel at home and making them aware of their new environment," he said. Safety complaints had to be taken to foremen and then to him if an employee felt the foreman had not taken strong enough, or fast enough, action. Mr. Rowbotham said foremen enforced company safety rules and ensured personal safety equipment was worn.

Topic of the panel discussion was Safety Committees. Panelists had different attitudes toward safety committees and favored different mechanisms to promote safety on the job, depending on the needs and organization of their own companies. One point of agreement, however, was that the greater the concern for safety at all levels, the less likely were accidents

Trenton Air Disaster Scheduled for Tuesday

TRENTON — Trenton is situated next to a large military airport. Planes are flying in and out at almost every hour.

What would happen if a large passenger jet were to crash into a heavily populated district of the town?

Next Tuesday, a simulated exercise creating on paper just such a tragedy, will go into effect to test the reactions, responses and preparedness of residents and various town departments and officials.

The entire plan is being organized through the offices of the Emergency Measures Organization and its commander, Col. Angus Duffy of Belleville.

Commenting on the forthcoming exercise, Col. Duffy said Trenton has become well known for its interest in emergency plans. He said the town was one of the first Ontario municipalities to enact a peacetime emergency bylaw on March 6, 1972.

Trenton's emergency plan was circulated throughout Ontario and used as an example," he said.

During the exercise this coming Tuesday, officials of the emergency measures branch of the department of safety, plus co-ordinators from other municipalities will witness and study Trenton's on paper disaster.

On paper, the disaster will occur this way:

At 7.30 p.m. on Feb. 27, Col. Duffy will be motoring through Trenton at the exact moment a large passenger jet, carrying 190 people, will be spotted crashing into College Street School.

The resulting "tragedy" will result in the deaths of all jet passengers and crew, and injuries to 300 residents. Fires created by the "crash" will leave 400 homeless, the explosion disrupting water, hydro, and telephone services in Trenton.

In constant radio contact with local fire departments and his Belleville EMO headquarters, Col. Duffy will dispatch an alert to the Trenton Fire Department which in turn will contact the emergency control group in the town. This group consists of the mayor, police chief, Trenton Memorial Hospital, and all senior officials in all departments and agencies that have an emergency role.

An emergency headquarters will be established at Marmora Street Senior School. At the school, members of four area citizens' band radio organizations — the Masters Club, Tri-County GRS Radio Club, Quinte Amateur Radio Club and EMO radio operators — will set up 10 stations to dispatch and receive simulated reports from the welfare centre, municipal offices, Quinte area EMO headquarters in Belleville, town department heads, casualty posts, police, firemen, the hospital, and to surrounding municipalities as well as EMO district headquarters in Peterborough and the EMO offices in Toronto.

Unlike a complete disaster exercise, with ambulances transferring "patients", police directing traffic and the hospital handling injured people, all but the communications program will be carried out on paper within the school.

Once all people concerned have arrived, Col. Duffy will organize a series of discussions, headed by a lecture he will deliver, using maps and charts to explain the function and composition of the emergency control group.

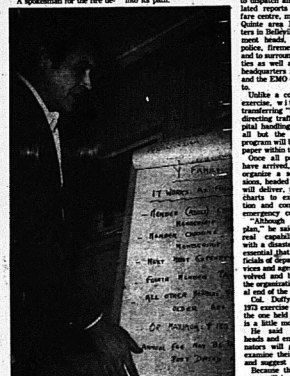
"Although we have the plan," he said, "we have any real capability of dealing with a disaster situation, it is essential that at least key officials of departments and services and agencies would be involved and be familiar with the organizational and functional end of the plan."

Col. Duffy explained that 1973 exercise is different from the one held last year. "This is a little more advanced."

He said the department heads and emergency co-ordinators will get a chance to examine their role, assess it and suggest improvements.

Because the simulated disaster will involve an aircraft, CFB Trenton's operations officer will be notified. An officer will attend the exercise-meeting at Marmora Street School to explain the role the base's disaster response team could play in the event that such a tragedy occurs.

Curious Drivers Hamper Firemen



PICTON — Firefighters from the Bloomfield - Hallowell fire department were hampered by curious motorists Tuesday as they rushed to answer a call at Mountain Lake Farms on Loyalist Road. Pumpers were followed by the public as volunteers responded to the alarm.

The small blaze which was caused by an overheated space heater in a drive shed on the property of C. H. Franklin was extinguished when firemen arrived.

A spokesman for the fire department said last night that several of the volunteer firefighters were caught in "almost a traffic jam" as they jockeyed to pass trailing drivers.

He said the fire department would appreciate the public's co-operation when an alarm rings.

A Picton fireman said yesterday morning that his truck was nearly cut off by a careless motorist in Cherry Vlei who ignored the engine's siren and crossed an intersection into its path.

YMCA Spokesman

Dr. Doug Horne, president of the Belleville Family YMCA, told Tuesday's Belleville Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting his board enjoyed "a very good relationship" with United Community Services at the present time. Whether they want us back in the United Appeal, or whether we want to go back in, depends on UCS," he said. He also told the club an "out-reach" Y program was under way for a minimum of four areas in the city.

Homes for Aged Discussed

Municipal officials from the county of Hastings, Belleville and Trenton met in informal session Tuesday to discuss the need for more homes for the aged accommodation in the southern part of the county.

Attending the meeting were Hastings County homes for the aged committee members O. W. Larry, Trenton clerk-treasurer, County homes for the aged committee chairman S. J. Carr of Montegate township was unable to be present.

Mr. Bateman said today that the meeting with Belleville and Trenton officials was strictly informal with no conclusions or recommendations.

"Each of the other municipalities was advised of the homes for the aged accommodation problem and they will report to their respective councils," Mr. Bateman said.

At last week's county council meeting, Reeve Carr said both county homes for the aged at Belleville and Bancroft were operating at or near capacity.

Under the present county agreement, Belleville is entitled to the use of 75 beds at Hastings Manor while currently there are 99 residents from the city in th heome.

The town of Trenton, which has no capital involvement at Hastings Manor has five residents occupying beds.

Council Endorses Loyalist Course

PICTON — Prince Edward county councillors last night voted to endorse the principle of a firefighting school at Loyalist College to service the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association.

The proposal was described as "a must" by Picton reeve James Reid, who stressed the firemen must be well trained.

He said local taxpayers meet "a further drain" when firefighters are required to travel to Pembroke or Arnprior for instruction.

Reeve Bird told council the course at Loyalist College would be free of charge but transportation costs and board for those enrolled would require pytment.

Authority to Ask For More Funds

TRENTON — Conservation is a costly business and last year the bill for the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority stood at almost $224,000.

And at $221,119, the estimated 1973 budget is down only slightly from the costs of maintaining conservation projects such as the Warkworth dam, Sager Oak Hills, the Proctor Park area, the Kings Mill area, the Hourds area, Goodrich Wild Life Sanctuary, the Trenton Green Belt, Alnwick Acres, the 401 Glen Miller Strip and the Seymour area.

To make ends meet, the conservation authority is asking member municipalities for $2,000 more than last year — a total of $40,000.

Most of the remaining funds necessary to operate the full conservation program will come from provincial grants.

The Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority is made up of 17 member - municipalities with a total population of close to 51,000. The members are: the towns of Trenton and Campbellford, the villages of Frankford, Stirling, Brighton, Hastings, Colborne, and the townships of Sidney, Hustingdon, Rawdon, Alnwick, Brighton, Cramahe, Haldimand, Murray, Percy and Seymour.

Historic Home

Reporter Ian Robertson's story on the Proctor House in Brighton filled us in, and in fascinating detail, on the background of this historic home, the family that lived there and the business empire that included the shipping to Brighton of a variety of goods.

Only three weeks or so ago we had noticed the imposing pile on a rise while entering Brighton along the steep and pleasantly wooded route from 401 and on our way to Presq'ile's winter wonderland.

The widow's walk from which John Proctor used to watch his ships come in through a giant telescope reminds us of a spooky paperback story set on the coast of Maine which we read recently. As it is, the Proctor House is said to be haunted too.

Since the article appeared there has arisen a problem as to title, apparently jeopardizing restoration work now in progress. Involved in this situation are the federal government (through the Local Initiatives Program) the Lower Trent Conservation Authority and a group called Save Our Heritage Organization which seeks to restore the residence as a historical site, museum and community centre.

The issues have already been documented, following a meeting of the conservation authority in Frankford and we would only say it is our hope these difficulties will be resolved and the home preserved for the purposes stated.

The preservation of historic places such as the Proctor House is an initiative that should be supported where it is found practical to maintain them. In Britain such a program has been under way for many years, through the purchase of historic homes as well as parts of the countryside and coastline and their protection from any undesirable development.

This is accomplished through a body called the National Trust and one wonders if some similar central authority might not be established, thereby eliminating the sort of juridical problem that obtains now.

Road Sanding

A recent report on winter road maintenance in Hastings county offered seemingly conclusive information. On the one hand a roads and bridges committee finding indicated that due to freezing rain and ice conditions, sanding operations had proved more costly than in previous years.

On the other hand, it was stated that due to lighter snow accumulation there had been savings for the maintenance department to keep within its budget for winter control.

One way or another though the sanding of roads is a matter concern to all. A Prince Edward resident tells us that sanding on his county road has been carried out more promptly this winter than in the past when conditions were much worse.

In Thurlow township on the other hand at least one resident is unhappy about the situation. In a letter on this page today a township ratepayer complains that one has "to beg to get anything done and then it is very little." And this on a busy county road presenting hazards not only to motorists but to youngsters on their way to school.

It is something for township and county representatives alike to think about — and take remedial action.

Pact With Cuba

It appears that governments in this part of the world are at last coming to grips with the problem of hijacking. The United States and Canada have both signed agreements with Cuba aimed at bringing those who hijack planes or ships to justice. As it is the security measures now in effect at most airports seem to be paying off, for we have not heard of any hijack attempts for some time. It is too bad all these measures were not taken long ago. Hijacking has cost the airlines lives as well as thousands of dollars in delays, diversions and landing fees.

Balance-of-Power Anomalies

NDP Has Best of All Political Worlds in Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — While it is altogether wrong, and a negation of the fundamental principle of parliamentary democracy that the majority should rule, David Lewis and his New Democrats are in the cutest "Heads - We-Win - Tails - Everybody - Loses" position.

The 31 New Democrats are just so snug they can laugh when they call David Lewis "Prime Minister," and watch the Conservatives, Liberals and Social Credit members squirm in helpless frustration.

They hold less than one seat in every seven in the Commons and they took them with even a smaller percentage of the national vote.

They have no representation in Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Alberta or the Yukon — seven of the 12 provinces and territories electing members of Parliament.

Federally, they are in a minority where they do have representation: in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

It is such nonsense to claim that the NDP is a national party — in representing less than half the territorial and provincial voting blocs — that the New Democrats make no pretence at it.

What wounds them most deeply and haunts their empty dreams of power is their continuing wipe - out in French Canada.

Not only does Prime Minister Trudeau take his policy cues and legislative guidance — or else — from "Prime Minister" Lewis, but Conservative Leader Stanfield too must take the NDP into account in planning opposition strategy.

And the most maddening thing is that both Liberals and Conservatives has to be the unhappy knowledge that if the NDP plays its parliamentary cards carefully it can not lose.

If the Liberals bring in good legislation as they promise — tax cuts, pensions and lots more of other politically attractive measures — the New Democrats can vote the credit.

In fact, they already do.

Far from the day after the election "Prime Minister" Lewis laid down the law that the Liberal minority do as he ordered if it was to cling by their socialist fingernails to its hyper-precarious power.

So if the legislation is politically rewarding and warms the hearts of the voters, the NDP takes the bows and goes into the next election as the party that brought it all about.

But if the Liberals are not generous enough in NDP judgment with tax cuts, pension increases and federal spending in all levels of social legislation, the New Democrats in righteous wrath can turn the rascals out.

And again take the bows.

It does not matter to "Prime Minister" David Lewis that federal spending already is so wildly out of hand that it is as big — perhaps the biggest — factor in inflation.

It matters only that it be further and vastly increased.

If it is not — if certain tax cuts, pension increases and spending on social programs generally do not satisfy the New Democrats — they can cry "not enough" and that will be the end of the Liberals.

The socialist gestapos may compel Finance Minister Turner to go beyond generosity, further inflating the economy and deflating the dollar.

Should he not bow, or at least bend to NDP wishes, the New Democrats then go into the next election as the champions of all the taxpayers. As pensioners and all other beneficiaries of the national treasury.

The New Democratic heroes who turned out the penny-pinching Liberals.

It is mad.

But it is the way it is.

Canada's Diplomatic Ties With Communists

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Prior to the 1968 election and during his first government, Prime Minister Trudeau was under strong attack from many Canadians, ethnic organizations for his close personal and foreign policy associations with Communist countries.

Some of these, such as the 1968 fall visit of Yugoslav President Tito to Ottawa, and the even more dramatic appearance and attack on Russia's Kosygin on Parliament Hill in the same year were understandable.

Some prominent Canadians, not from strongly anti-Communist Slavic communities, asked aloud why the Prime Minister invited heads of oppressive Communist nations to Ottawa before President Nixon. Nixon did come later of course, in April of last year.

Prime Minister Trudeau's disarming offhand remark during his Soviet tour comparing the KGB—Soviet secret police and intelligence service — to the RCMP in the kind of duties they performed, was the only known comment which almost lost him the election last October.

At the level of foreign policy formulation, Canada's relations with several countries of the Communist world have proved beneficial to us and permitted the United States to make moves, especially toward China and Cuba, which she might not have done otherwise.

The development most often cited in this regard, was Canada's recognition of the People's Republic of China in the fall of 1970, a move which probably made easier President Nixon's opener with Peking last winter.

For Canada, it made possible a Chinese effort to try and balance the $1-billion sales of Canadian feed grains to China since 1960 when Peking held a big Chinese industrial trade fair in Toronto last summer to promote Chinese products.

In the last few months we have seen Canadian initiatives at work with Cuba, during joint efforts by ourselves and the U.S. to sign extradition treaties for the prosecution or return of hijackers.

Again Canada has been able to serve Washington's and Western interest power at a key point in diplomacy. The United States has had the difficult job of working through Swiss and Czech diplomats in order to get agreement with Havana on such a treaty.

The fact that Secretary of State Minister Mitchell Sharp, with no fanfare, announced our recognition of North Vietnam. The reason given by the ministry was to make negotiations easier for Canada in dealing with Hanoi as a participant in the International Control Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) in Vietnam.

As Mr. Sharp commented, this also means Canada is the only one of the four member nations, (the other three are Poland, Hungary and Indonesia) which has formally recognized both Vietnams. Canadian recognition of South Vietnam was extended many years ago.

China, Cuba, North Vietnam. In each case, our moves were made with concern for our own national interests—and to benefit international efforts at reapprochement between the United States and Communist countries she does not recognize officially.

In the larger, more important area of east-west diplomacy, such moves should have wider implications in our dealing with Washington which is becoming increasingly more intransigent where Canadian interests are involved.

Ministerial Ties Here Are Now Much Closer

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With regard to Brian Amaron's report under the heading Belleville Ministerial sees Catholics," Protestants join, there seems to be a misunderstanding (whatever that means) at that meeting. Catholics and other Protestants can hardly be called "traditionally rival faiths" as they both belong to the same faith, Christianity); the Belleville Ministerial Association is one body of several Christian groups, including the Salvation Army, which welcomes membership. The Ministerial has a warm fellowship, and takes a positive approach in providing radio broadcasts through the courtesy of CJBQ, church services, in various denominations, to Hastings Manor and the Hospital, as well as other community services.

The article is unfair and misleading in that those who have something negative to say (obviously the minority) are quoted at length, while those who hear no fault with the inclusion of the Roman Catholics receive little or no mention, although some were telephoned by the reporter.

The fact is, Rev. R. A. Bonboy for example, a man whom I have often seen at a meeting of the Ministerial in over the years, is unfair. Perhaps he found it difficult to work together with fellow Protestants, never mind Roman Catholics. He is missing the point anyway. The Ministerial is a working group, whose aim is to promote co-operation and understanding among its members, and service to our community". The Bible states "I am Christ, and the truth, and life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" — Matthew 2:1.2.

The truly wise are still coming to Jesus. He was the answer then, He is the answer now and forever.

We must, however, respect the feelings of others, and allow them the right to withdraw if they feel they must. But for one think that it is a great thing to finally have all churches represented in the Ministerial Association. It is long overdue. (A spokesman for another conservative city like Belleville, Ont., suggests that we can find ways to promote the same fellowship we had with an Ecumenical Group, and Roman Catholic clergy that we have had in years gone by.)

The negative facts emerged in Mr. Amaron's article. But the outstanding fact is that the Ministerial Association is now an active association open to any clergyman or other religious leader in the community, whether he has a church affiliation, his views or his doctrine. No one is excluded. This openness, I suggest, is cause for great joy.

In the new story "Some Opposition" it appears that a number of the Ministerial were interviewed to assess their reaction to the abolition of the Roman clergy in the Ministerial Association. It was one of those interviewed by telephone by staff reporter Brian Amaron.

Mr. Amaron quoted me concerning my reaction to the article, namely impossible to report fully a 15 minute conversation in such a story which must include the views of many people.

My remarks explained and modified some of the quoted material. But, again, I realize that an entire conversation could not be published.

Incidentally, if you look up Canada Statistics, you will find that the Ecumenical Assemblies of Canada is one of the "Big Five" and has been for the two decades!

Letter Is Criticized

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to tell H. D. E. Powell who wrote 'Strike Vote' that his letter was a very poor one. It used up the space of two paragraphs to say nothing. The only impression that came to me was that Mr. H. D. E. could use some instruction on letter make-up.

If you don't agree with the views of others, for goodness sake say so, whether you do or not that those who read your letters will have a chance both to form opinions. I'm not out to you that resorting to sarcasm is anything but a sign of ignorance.

It is distasteful tome to write in this fashion. I despise the use of sarcastic criticism, but your second paragraph you challenged the. Editor for subbishing letter at the same time offering it yourself. This is not consistent.

I refer to Mr. Hockley simply because you noted his name. I am interested in Mr. Hall's and everyone should be. I read every one of them with great interest. I certainly don't agree with all Mr. Hall thinks. But I allow him entitlement to that thinking. If I should choose to answer one or more of Mr. Hall's letter, I would make every attempt to use the courtesy and restriction knowing that, once in the paper, a subject is offered to everyone who reads it and is interested.

Cut out the sarcasm. You and everyone. Offer some intelligent suggestions for a change.

Provincial Tax Site

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

The first decision to be made here as a result of the federal budget is whether or not Ontario income taxes are to be increased.

Finance minister Turner, of course, through lowering the federal take has given the province room for this to be done.

The central assumption is that the provinces will take advantage of the opportunity.

Our provincial leaders have said consistently that they need more money and the recent meeting of finance ministers they were just about as blunt as one possibly could be on this point.

So that even if only for the sake of consistency it would seem we can look for increases in our Ontario taxes when the provincial budget is opened next April.

At the same time all provincial treasurers will face some tight-rope walking when considering tax moves.

For Mr. Turner has keyed his budget closely to employment.

The main reason he has given for lowering taxes is that this will make more spending money available on the market and therefore will increase employment.

Any province that takes back part of the tax reduction for itself will therefore be open to the charge that it is going against this employment policy.

And in a federal election campaign, which it seems we will almost certainly have sometime in the fairly near future, some embarrassing punches could be thrown at the premiers.

However probably the most that this means is that the provinces will have to go easy. They almost certainly will take what they figure they can get, without endangering themselves, in the way of new money.

Aside from the political problem he may be faced with, there would have been one very welcome piece of news in the budget for the treasurer of John White.

This would have been the very strong hint given by Mr. Turner that he is willing to turn over to the provinces in a large sum much of the money now provincial budgets spend on programs such as health insurance.

Québec started the demand for this but recently Ottawa has been almost as insistent for it.

Rural Road Sanding

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

After reading the published details of the Hastings County meeting in Thurlow paper I have only one question. "Where have they put too much sand on the roads?"

For one live on a county road where you have to beg to get anything done and then it is very little. I was told that the county couldn't put salt in with the sand as it would put them over their budget. Without salt the sand is as well keep their sand in the pile.

The set up in Thurlow to me is very puzzling. Some roads are maintained by the county and others by the township. We pay our taxes to Thurlow so why not have them look after our roads? They couldn't do any worse.

I think if the head man would have to travel on these dangerous roads a few times he would see what I mean and maybe help us for more safe driving.

Not only motorists are in danger but small children going to school have to walk along the sides of this much - traveled road. Would it be a shame if one of our innocent children lost his life for the sake of keeping within the budget of not spending a little bit for salt to be mixed with our sand?

I do hope a few people who have influence with the council will take a few minutes and think about this.

A THURLOW RATEPAYER

Indians Gather in Ottawa For Woman's Status Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of Indians are in Ottawa today to witness the beginning of a Supreme Court hearing which already has pitted them against one another and promises to divide them more when it's over.

The issue is whether a woman born an Indian should retain her official status as an Indian when she married a white or a non-status Indian.

The government, through the Indian Act of 1952, recognizes about 260,000 Indians in Canada and accords to those officially registered as such the right to live and own property on reserves as well as special health, welfare and educational benefits.

Women who marry non-status or non-native men and their children lose these rights. Many, depending on the particular tribe, are discouraged or forbidden to set foot on the reserve and deprived of burial rights there.

There are an estimated 300,000 non-status Indians, among them status women who married non-status or white men. Indians knocked off the official government lists for any of a number of reasons—including those not being there when the Indian agent was counting—and their descendants.

Treating the points of law involved before the Supreme Court is Jeannette Corbiere Lavell, a 29-year-old Ojibway who lost her treaty rights in December, 1970, when she married a white man.

In October, 1971, the Federal Court ruled that to deprive her of her status was a contravention of the Bill of Rights.

The government is fighting that decision, supported by most of the major of treaty Indian associations in Canada, who fear that the Indian Act which gives them special status will be destroyed if even one part of it becomes subordinate to the Bill of Rights, which argues the equality of all Canadians.

But another group of Indians—less numerous, a little less organized and less financially padded—also are here to speak on behalf of Mrs. Lavell.

Most of them are women who lost their status by marrying outsiders. They are supported by Metis and non-status groups as well as a number of largely-white women's organizations. Also they claim 250 supporters, they admit feeling the pressure of an estimated 900 Indians who are here looking for an upset of the Federal Court Lavell decision.

Monica Turner, a non-status Indian who is offering a personal intervention in the case says that while the women in her group held bake sales and bingo games to raise money to come "the secretary of state has conveniently made it possible for all these Indian chiefs to come to Ottawa at this particular time to meet, with the help of the department of Indian affairs."

The Indian affairs department, she says, claims they are consulting with the people regarding the case.

But as far as Mrs. Turner is concerned, the government is ignoring one side of the story—the side of those not officially registered as Indians, and providing the other side with an expense-paid trip to Ottawa to support its case for the duration of the hearing.

The two main organizations supporting the case are the Native Council of Canada, an association of Metis and non-status Indians and the Committee for Indian rights for Indian women, of which Mrs. Turner is national co-chairman.

In a brief to Indian affairs minister, the Indian Association of Alberta argued: "In our way of life it has always been the man who has had the responsibilities of caring for his woman and family. . . . Because our lands are so limited and our resources so poor it would have been economically impossible to absorb too many new people."

Fears that white men who marry Indian women would pour onto the reserves, take control of their land and crowd out other Indians are ridiculous says Mrs. Turner.

The reserves are just as flooded by white women and their children, she said.

Some reserves, she said, allow their women to remain on the reserve with their non-Indian husbands. But the men have no property rights and no say in the affairs of the reserve.

The women fighting on behalf of the Lavell case express a variety of reasons for doing so.

As far as the chiefs and most treaty Indians are concerned, they are merely gold-diggers, trying to cash in on government benefits.

Coffin of Petain Returned to Tomb

PARIS (AP) — A military plane returned the flag-draped coffin of Marshal Philippe Petain to his traitor's tomb on a lonely island off the Atlantic Coast today even though it may cost the French government rightist votes in the National Assembly elections next month.

The coffin was found Wednesday night in a garage in a northern suburb of Paris. It had been left there by a group of rightists who stole it from the Ile d'Yeu Sunday, hoping to force the government to bury it in the national military cemetery at Douaument with the other defenders in the First World War Battle of Verdun.

Police are holding at least six men suspected of complicity in the plot, including Herbert Massol, an ultra-rightist candidate for the assembly, and Francois Broux de Cassan, a minister of information in Petain's Vichy government.

Jacques Isorni, Petain's lawyer at his treason trial, accused President Georges Pompidou's government of getting the marshal's remains back by dupplicity. He said the government had intimated to Pétainist circles that, when the coffin was found, "it would be placed in a location of honor while the family decided the location of the grave."

"It was a deliberately false indication."

Although Petain was convicted of treason for his collaboration with the Nazis after the French surrender in the Second World War, a sizable rightist faction has for years demanded that his body be transferred from the island of exile where he died and that he lie among the men he led at Verdun. But a burial with honors for Petain would antagonize the many Frenchmen for whom the wounds of the Vichy era are still open.

In returning the body to the island, the Gaullist government probably chose the lesser evil. The Petainists it angered are not likely to vote for the Communist-Socialist coalition that is the government's biggest threat in the election. But concessions to the Petainists might have driven some of the anti-Petain voters to the leftists.

Massol, 36, said that he organized the theft of the body.

Police said the six-cleat, oak coffin, weighing more than 1,750 pounds, was put in a rented truck after it was taken from the tomb on the island, ferried to the mainland early Monday morning and transported to Paris. The newspaper France-Soir said it was to have been taken to Douaumont but "political arguments and logistics" intervened.

World's Problems Global

OTTAWA (CP) — The world's most pressing problems are global in nature and solutions also must be looked at from a global viewpoint, Dr. Alex Kling, member of the Club of Rome, said Wednesday.

The problems of over-population, vanishing energy resources, food, shelter, education, medical care and pollution are all interwoven, said the British-born director of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

And these problems must be tackled on a world-wide scale and with long-term goals in mind "if we are to make a life that is decent for the future instead of going toward catastrophy."

Gas Truck Explosion Closes 400

TORONTO (CP) — A fantastic rush-hour traffic jam developed on roads north of Toronto today as all six lanes of Highway 400, Ontario's main northern expressway, were closed off by police after a gasoline truck blew up, severely damaging an overpass bridge.

Engineers working on the bridge estimated traffic might be possible on 400 later today.

The explosion, about 10 miles north of Metropolitan Toronto city limits, also closed off busy Maple side road and its bridge.

OPP at Barrie and other points diverted the usual Highway 400 traffic down highways 27 and 11 which parallel 400. At Toronto, northern traffic also was being detoured.

Engineers were trying to determine how King Highway 400, one of the most heavily used roads in the province, needed to stay closed because of the damage to the bridge.

Work Limited

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Jean Paul Dronin of Ottawa, three of whose patients died after he operated on them to treat obesity in 1971, has been barred from performing such intestinal-by-pass operations but can continue his practice.

The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons explained in its January report released Wednesday the decision of its discipline committee in the case.

The discipline committee directed that Dr. Drouin's name be erased from the register of the college, but placed on the special register "with full practice privileges except that he not be entitled to perform intestinal by-pass surgery for morbid obesity."

Dr. Drouin also was required at the end of one year to present a written summary of all surgery he had performed.

Aid Pledged

TORONTO (CP) — Some federal government aid can be expected for foreign students attending Canadian universities and colleges, Ontario's minister of colleges and universities said Wednesday.

Jack McNie told a seminar at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education that the federal government is moving interest in financing the education costs of foreign students.

FERN GUINDON

Talks Asked

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Labor Minister Fern Guindon asked representatives of five elevator companies and the International Union of Elevator Constructors Wednesday to resume negotiations here Friday morning.

Mr. Guindon said in a news release that Mr. W. H. Dickie, assistant deputy labor minister; Victor Scott, director of the ministry's conciliation and mediation services; and Jack Sopranzini, assistant director, would assist in the mediation talks.

Negotiations were adjourned Feb. 8. At that time, K. M. Tuff, chairman of the industry's negotiating committee, expressed "disappointment and frustration" over the union's rejection of new proposals.

18 Arrested

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A total of 18 persons were arrested Wednesday in this city and North Bay in a series of drug raids by the RCMP.

Patronage

QUEBEC (CP) — A Liberal cabinet minister confirmed Wednesday he had received a letter shortly after election of the Quebec Liberal government in 1970, asking for names of contractors who should receive preferential treatment in awarding of government contracts.

Raymond Mailloux, minister without portfolio, told reporters outside the Quebec national assembly the letter had been written by a civil servant who was the subject of an inquiry the next day and was transferred to a new post.

3,000 to Work on Plant Airport

MIRABEL, Que. (CP) — The number of workers at Montreal's new international airport here is expected to soar to 3,000 by the fall as construction on the $315-million, first phase moves into high gear.

About 400 workers were at the site 35 miles north of Montreal in mid-February, with the number expected to reach to 1,500 by the summer.

An airport spokesman said work under way includes municipal services for the 3,900-acre airport area in preparation for the first phase which includes two runways, a terminal building and administration and hotel buildings.

The spokesman said construction is close to schedule.

About 40 per cent of the final paved surface of the main runway has been completed. The 2½ mile runway runs through what was once farmland—part of a total 85,000 acres expropriated by the federal government around Mirabel, formerly Ste. Scholastique.

The undersurface for the second runway is ready for final concrete surfacing to begin in the spring. Work on the runways is halted during winter months.

Four Children Die

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Four children, the oldest six, perished early today when a fire destroyed their two-storey frame home three miles south of this Lake Huron town about 40 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

Four adults and a baby escaped without injury.

Dead are: Sonia 6; David 5; Shannon 3 and Shawn 2, all the children of Alan and Audrey Campbell.

The four dead children were the only persons upstairs. Their parents, with eight-month-old Douglas, escaped, along with James Campbell and his wife Carol, brother and sister-in-law.

Lake High

TORONTO (CP) — Rising water levels in Lake Ontario pose a threat to shoreline properties, an executive meeting of the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Conservation Authority decided Wednesday.

Chairman Frederick Wade said the seriousness of the situation "can't be over estimated."

The authority executive voted to ask the Ontario government to be prepared to give emergency financial aid if waterfront properties are damaged between now and June.

Water Burns

EDMONTON (CP) — Sharon and Richard Weigelt knew something was wrong the day the tap water caught fire in their home.

Mrs. Weigelt, working in her kitchen at North Cooking Lake, about 20 miles southeast of Edmonton, turned on the hot water tap. A flame, shot from her gas stove and ignited the water.

Officials say an underground coal bed covers much of the area and about 40 per cent of a sample of water taken from a tap was methane, a natural gas.

Mr. Weigelt now carts home five gallons of water from Edmonton three or four times a week.

Will Talk

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — If the United States cannot meet the commitments it made under the Great Lakes anti-pollution pact, "Canada will talk and talk loudly," the head of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission said Wednesday.

But Louis Robichaud, here to speak at a brotherhood banquet, said that except for the possibility of a couple of months delay "I can't see the possibility of President Nixon going back on his word."

Beat Boy

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A provincial policeman who beat up a 13-year-old boy who made an offensive gesture at him was fined $200 Wednesday in provincial court.

Constable Arvid Allee pleaded guilty to assault. He also faces charges under the police Act.

GM Alcoholism Grant Called Great Advance

By PETER KIERNAN

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Researchers and workers in the field of alcoholism have applauded a $20,000 grant from General Motors to the Alcoholism Recovery Institute as a step in the "coming of age" of business community attitudes toward alcoholism.

"When a conservative company such as GM is willing to publicize the problem of the working alcoholic, it is a giant step forward," said a member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

The institute, an affiliate of the National Council of Alcoholism, will use the money toward research in methods of treating alcoholism and toward publicity aimed at getting more firms to develop their own alcoholism programs.

"We have 4,818 New York companies alone with more than 100 employees," said Dr. Nicholas Pace, president of the institute. "Less than 50 of these have alcoholism programs."

Calling alcoholism the "sad and silent illness," he said companies and unions across the country still are largely in the dark ages in their attitude toward problem drinkers.

"They're afraid to have their names linked with problems," he said.

Japan Ready To Extend Aid

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan is ready to extend all forms of official and private economic aid for reconstruction in Indochina now that a Vietnam ceasefire agreement has been reached.

But moves are likely to be cautious, in view of criticism of Japan's rapid economic inroads into the United States, European and Asian markets.

Japan at present has diplomatic relations only with South Vietnam, but is ready to establish ties with the north as well, should the separate existence of the two states be confirmed.

Opposition and pacifists who condemned Japan's alleged cooperation in the Vietnam war through the U.S.-Japan security treaty now are expected to step up demands for abrogation of the treaty and removal of U.S. military bases in Japan.

They claim the raison d'etre for both treaty and bases has been lost with the ceasefire, which followed Japan's normalization of relations with China as well as U.S rapprochement with the Soviet Union and China.

Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, in welcoming the ceasefire, said Japan's international responsibility would be greater than before and she would do her best to live up to overseas expectations.

Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira said earlier this month that Japan would increase its bilateral aid to Indochina immediately after a ceasefire was signed and was ready to participate in multilateral aid programs.

He said the government had earmarked $700 million as a revenue fund in the national budget for the 1973 fiscal year starting in April—which is yet to be approved by parliament—from which contributions to any multilateral plan might be drawn.

The government has also appropriated $1.5 million in the budget to help refugees and war sufferers in North and South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos in the form of medical and food supplies.

Official Japanese survey teams are likely to go to Indochina soon for feasibility studies on projects there.

Japan has so far made commitments to four projects to help South Vietnamese stability, shelving some other projects which might have helped war activities.

Japanese enterprises have also expressed their readiness for positive co-operation to both South and North Vietnam to help reduce trade imbalance.

Fire Brigade Badges Presented to Girl Guides

Fire Brigade badges were presented to Karen Quinn, Nancy Saunders, Niki Tsouroulis, Kelly Nolan, Joan Kingston, Sandra Livock, Penny Markwell, Maria and Staroula Tsouroulis, Cathy Russell, Louise Bond, Janet Nolan, Eva Zamanis, Glenna Sommerville, Susan Bernery, Janet Cunningham, Mary Lou Craig and Carolyn Fairborn. Staroula also received her Collectors and Bakers; Niki — Collectors; Maria Tsouroulis and Louise Bond, Bakers; Laurie Collyer, Homemaker and Little House Emblem.

Laurie Collyer was then invited to climb the road to receive her All Round Cord. Each Patrol Leader challenged her for each stage of her Guide career since flying up from Brownies. Lt. Russell then invited her to light candles for the three stages; tenderfoot, Challenge Badge and Challenge Emblem.

Then Laurie lit a candle for our Founder, Lord Baden Powell; our World Chief Guide, Lady Baden Powell and on behalf of Co. 1 for all the Guides of the World. Capt. Kirkman then invited Laurie to light her last candle for her All Round Cord and challenged her to go forth into the Guiding world and earn the badges required to become a Guide who wears with pride the Canada Cord. Mrs. Collyer then pinned on Laurie's All Round Cord. On behalf of the Company, Cathy Russell presented her with an All Round Cord Pin.

Continuing on with our Thinking Day theme, Carol Bone served the attractive guides questions in order that our guests might learn about the Girl Guide Movement; why we celebrate Thinking Day; and the purpose of the World Friendship Fund. While singing "Our Chalet", the Guides came and presented their pennies to the World Friendship Fund and lit a candle on the Thinking Day cake which was decorated with the Guide symbol of a trefoil. Everyone clasped hands together as links in the friendship chain among Guides over the world as Lt. Russell led in prayer.

Guests were invited to join in with games. Refreshments were served by all with Carolyn Fairborn, Janet Cunningham, Mary Lou Craig and Nancy Saunders acting as hostesses.

'Stewardship' Discussed At Bridge Street UCW

"The stewardship of kindness and compassion" was the theme of the winter Joint meeting of all units of the United Church Women of Bridge Street Church.

Mrs. Grace Anderson was in charge of the program and conducted the worship service.

Mrs. F. Burrows of the Central Vancouver Bureau was the guest speaker and followed the stewardship theme. She emphasized that values are placed on what is believed. Money is then spent accordingly. It was noted that others' values influence everyone at some time, giving an unclear picture. Christians must share their resources and time with those less fortunate, both at home and in the mission fields all over the world for success.

Miss Myrtle Reid, president, thanked the speaker.

The members for Mrs. Kitcher's unit had on display a box of children's underwear that had been donated to the Central Yukon teer bureau after an appeal had been made at an earlier date.

Refreshments were served in the parlor.

Agriculture In India Discussed

Agriculture in India was the topic of the Study Book for Unit One of the Westminster United Church UCW held on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Perry Hamilton and Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton were in charge of the Study Book.

Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton also contributed a piano solo.

It was announced that the unit had recently catered to the Hog Producers of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties banquet for 60 members.

Women's Institutes Make Better Life for All

Buying bread 'sans' wrappers and unpasteurized milk is something from the past, but without the help of the Federated Women's Institutes, it would be still possible to purchase these today.

Celebrating its 78th birthday this year, this organization has a membership around the world.

The Ontario division of the Federated Women's Institute has a total membership of 30,000 women.

Belleville area, subdivision 5, representative Mrs. Clifford Barber meets twice a year with other board directors in Ontario to discuss resolutions for their organization.

For one week in April, 40 provincial board directors in Ontario will describe their subdivision's resolutions which could range from snowmobile legislation to invisible thread.

"The resolutions we make refer to the goodly number of commodities," said Mrs. Clifford Barber, Board Director of Subdivision 5 in the Women's Institute.

Following this convention, all resolutions made will reach higher levels in the provincial government. Ministers will receive letters informing them of the outcome from the meet.

The examples of the bread wrappers and pasteurized milk are a few of the many successful achievements for the Federated Women's Institute of Ontario.

Manufacturers to politicians are involved in the institute's resolutions. The government has asked Women's Institute members to sit on the Food Council and participate in other governmental functions which involve women.

Choose Unwisely

TORONTO (CP) — Th new credit system in Ontario high schools, which allows students to choose their subjects freely, may be harmful to many young people, Jean Aceti, principal of Carson - Falconbridge secondary school and a member of a provincial advisory committee on the credit system, says many students are being "shortchanged" today, because they are being allowed to take courses that are too easy for them. "Many are not willing to challenge their potential," she said.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Is the 'silent treatment' harmless?

NO, It is one of the most insidious devices in human relationships. And when two people impose a nonspeaking curtain, the damage cannot be assessed since they are cutting themselves off from the vital need to talk to each other. As Dr. Sander salves off from the vital need to talk to each other. As Dr. Sander salves off from the vital need to talk to each other. As Dr. Sander sal

Meat-Cutting Course Includes One Woman

But Sister Jean Ann Jedric, enrolled in Lethbridge Community College's meat-cutting course, doesn't think "it's that unusual for a woman to be a butcher."

Sister Jean Ann, with the Sisters of Charity in Halifax, has been in Alberta four years, taking two diploma courses at Northern Alberta Institute of Technology in Edmonton—one a course in commercial cooking, the other in dietary technology.

"On the first day, they looked a little surprised when I walked into class, but nothing more than surprised," she said.

They were hesitant to talk with her when the class began but "when a few of them swore around me and I didn't faint, they figured I was quite regular."

"Now they tease me like they tease each other, putting bones in my pocket, or throwing pieces of fat at me.

"If they want help with a hind-quarter, they just say: 'Come on sister . . .' Or if they think it's my turn on the saw, they give me the saw."

Sister Jean Ann said that although she "sticks out like a sore thumb in the LCC meat-cutting course, a lot of women work in packing plants, and women have been working behind the meat counters of supermarkets for a long time."

NOW Feminists Demand Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feminists have ended a national meeting where their founder urged them to take the sex revolution to men, lesbians demanded their civil rights and delegates were told to transform rhetoric into action.

It was well into the night when the National Organization for Women (N.O.W.) disbanded its sixth convention Monday with a march on the White House.

The more than 2,000 delegates approved resolutions urging that prostitution laws be dropped, divorce laws be improved and child-care facilities be expanded.

It was the largest meeting yet for the front-line feminist organization in the United States.

At the outset, President Wilma Scott Heide said N.O.W. had to make the transition from a paper strategist about changing society to actually doing it.

N.O.W. has been at the forefront of the effort to ratify equal-rights amendment and has pioneered in improving the job situation for women, including winning $38 million payments for women employees allegedly discriminated against by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

In the last two years, N.O.W. has established national committees in more than two dozen other areas in which the organization considers women at a disadvantage, from credit availability to university, promotion and hiring habits to divorce laws to labor unions and religious institutions.

N.O.W. founder Betty Friedan said the women's-liberation movement is so strong it can afford to take care of all the unfinished business and to force the world to look at men "not as instruments, not as sex objects, not as bread-winners-but as human beings, our brothers."

The convention adopted a lesbian resolution calling on N.O.W. to support civil-rights legislation to "end discrimination based on sexual orientation, especially in the areas of housing, employment, credit and finance, child custody and public accommodations."

Smuggled in Boot

Bootlegging, the smuggling of illicit liquor, is an old name which goes back to the days when liquor was concealed in the large sea-boot of the smuggler.

Women — Read on: University Accused of Sex Discrimination

VANCOUVER (CP) — Is it discriminatory to study sex discrimination in the hallowed halls of the University of British Columbia?

That's just one of the questions raised in the wake of a report on the status of women on the big university campus that cites the male-dominated UBC administration over the coals, contending there is rampant bias against women in almost every area.

The report was sponsored by the university's Women's Action Group and written by Sheilagh Day, a former English department instructor. It said UBC discriminates against women in virtually every area and recommended further studies.

The report urged UBC to require its academic and administrative departments to keep a running statistical tab on each sex on such things as promotion, hiring, dismissal and tenure status.

William Armstrong, UBC's academic vice-president, saw further statistical studies of this nature as a subtle form of discrimination in itself.

But he said he doesn't disagree with one finding of the report, that UBC pays women later than its women for persons with comparable training, work experience and rank.

"I can't argue with it and these are things that need investigating. I'm sure the president himself will be concerned about this. The faculty association should be too."

Highlights of the report:

—Female faculty members are paid considerably less than men in every academic department—up to $2,915 a year less than their male counterparts in the faculty of medicine;

—UBC President Walter Gage's permanent committees are composed of 364 men and only 39 women;

—Non-teaching women staff members earn an average of $1,744 less annually than their male counterparts;

—UBC educates fewer women than men and last year women constituted 39 per cent of the undergraduates, 29 per cent of master's program students and 17 per cent of PhD candidates.

Mr. Armstrong said there are more men than women on the faculties because a great many more men than women apply.

"It's almost inevitable that if you get 10 to 20 times as many applications from men as you should show up in the balance of people you hire as well," he said.

He said there are fewer women full professors than men—six per cent as opposed to 29 per cent—because women have only recently enrolled in graduate courses in considerable numbers.

Without statistics on applications, said the report, it is difficult to say whether this figure represents university policy or the kind of choices women make for themselves.

The report wanted UBC to make it easier for women to choose university. It said: "At the moment the university punishes women for not being men. Like its medieval forbears, the university is structured for the benefit of the young male who can afford an uninterrupted four to eight years between the ages of 18 and 26."

The report said those are the years when most women start their families: "Women's life rhythms are different from men's."

The timing of women's educational needs and the timing of their intellectual work-ing contributions are different from men's.

Comprehensive child-care facilities would alleviate some of these problems, the report said.

One university response to the work of the Women's Action Group has evoked criticism from Mr. Armstrong.

The university senate has approved the first UBC credit program in women's studies. Next fall, a maximum of 60 second-year arts students may take a study program of readings from anthropology, English, psychology and sociology. A spokesman said approval followed two years of work by the women's group.

Visitation Reports Given At Hastings Manor

Mrs. Bertrand, president of Hastings Manor Auxiliary, welcomed everyone at the regular monthly business meeting on Feb. 19.

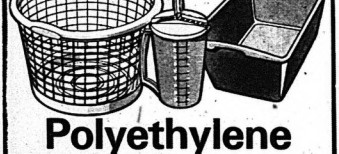
The usual business was conducted with all reports being presented. More than 30 visits were made, and 15 rose bowls sent to manor patients in the Belleville General Hospital during the past month.

It was reported that bingo cards are being purchased for use at the Manor, as well as extra mirrors to be installed in the various rooms of the residents.

Requests from the craftroom were for ribbon, lace, white egg cartons and small artificial flowers.

Birthday cards for March will be sent to residents by the auxiliary members and Victoria Avenue Baptist Church Women.

The next meeting will be held on March 19.



Residents who had a February birthday were treated to a party with Mrs. Mary Cudenfelt, 97, and Mr. John Goodwin, 96, as the oldest guests.

Britain's Postmen On Trial

LONDON (AP) — Britain's giant post office is on trial. Caught in the grip of inflation and facing huge operating losses, it has been deluged by complaints—after trying to save money.

Critics say the British mail service is the worst in 100 years. Supporters of the post office call it the most advanced in the world and say the introduction of complex, automated systems will make it even better.

"I received a reply to a letter posted in London to South Africa before a letter I sent at the same time to an address less than a mile away arrived," complained one London businessman. "How crazy is that! Perhaps I should send all my mail via South Africa."

The post office has total control over communications in this country. Every letter, every cable, every telephone call, as well as radio and television broadcasts, passes through the post office monopoly.

In 1969 the British post office became a nationalized industry, a public corporation divorced from government control.

The new corporation was watched with interest by experts from many countries. There was considerable fanfare with expressions of confidence here that the public corporation would combine traditional high standards and transform financial sickness into a good year.

But as the country's biggest employer with a work force of 200,000, the post office was particularly prone to inflation. Predictions of profit quickly dissipated and were replaced by gloomy years of a loss during the 1969-73 period of about $317 million.

The latest crunch here came during the Christmas period. A big cut in overtime and the employment of temporary staff, aimed at reducing costs, backfired on the officials. Millions of greeting cards posted well before the deadline failed to arrive in time for Christmas. Many still hadn't arrived by New Year.

Thousands of customers were hopping mad over the delays.

Sir William Ryland, post office chairman, issued a public apology, saying: "It is right for us to try to save money, but not at the expense of standards."

But the Christmas delays only highlighted continuing difficulties.

A post office users' national council was set up by the government to monitor activities and to act on complaints from the public. Its latest report says an independent survey showed that speed and reliability of mail delivery were deteriorating generally.

B.C. Sacred Mushroom Users Are Taking Lives in Hands

VANCOUVER (CP) — People who experiment with the "mind expanding" qualities of a common British Columbia mushroom are taking their lives in their hands, says provincial botanist Adam Szczawinski.

The scientific name for the mushroom is Amanita muscaria, but it is more commonly known as fly agaric or the sacred mushroom.

Mr. Szczawinski is concerned with the growing number of drug-oriented people who are interested in the mushroom.

"Anyone who experiments with this mushroom is fool," he said. "We don't know yet what after-effects it has on the body or brain. An overdose can be deadly."

Known for at least 4,000 years for its hallucinogenic properties, the mushroom was widely used by the ancients as an aid to divining the future or as a means of becoming intoxicated.

The mushroom is about 12 inches wide. It is brilliant scarlet or orange and covered with creamy warts.

Mr. Szczawinski said a number of other poisonous mushrooms are found in B.C.

The panther agaric, another member of the Amanita family is one of them, he said. It is also hallucinogenic and can be identified by its pale yellow-brown or dark brown skin and whitish warts.

The death-cap or Amanita phalloides has been reported in B.C. but has not yet been scientifically identified, said Mr. Szczawinski.

This mushroom is an eastern one which has spread west to California and north to Seattle.

It grows to a height of 14 inches and has a distinctive brassy-green color on its top, he said. It seems to favor the moist humus of hillside oak forests.

"Just a tiny bit of this mushroom, the size of your fingernail, is enough to kill you," he said. "If you ever pick one up, you should wash your hands immediately."

Mrs. Szczawinski said Vancouver Island is one of the province's most prolific mushroom gardens where half of the North American species can be found in woods, fields or backyards.

The number of poisonous species is small compared with the number of edible species and it doesn't take much trailing to become familiar with the dangerous ones, he said.

Drug Offences Show Increase In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP) — Drug offences increased in Nova Scotia in 1972 and the offenders came from every social and economic level of the community, RCMP report states.

For the first time, liquid hashish appeared in the metropolitan Halifax area along with the more commonly seized drugs—hashish and marijuana. Lesser amounts of LSD and methamphetamine, or speed, were seized.

The report says offences detected under the Narcotic Control Act increased by 39 per cent to 376 of which 149 were successfully concluded.

There were 81 offences under the Food and Drug Act, a decrease of 19 per cent over 1971. Many of these cases were successfully prosecuted.

The report says the most pronounced age group involved in drug offences continued to be between 16 and 25. More than 40 per cent of the offences involved persons in this age category.

The report mentioned "grave concern" over the presence of so-called "hard" drugs as heroin and cocaine. There was no major problem but "mere presence" was cause for the concern.

PCs and Socreds Rush Motions Of Non-confidence in Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons settled Wednesday into a six-day debate on the new government budget, the only flurry arising from the Conservative and Social Credit rush to get in amendments they hope will bring down the government.

With the New Democrats abstaining, however, that result seemed unlikely.

The Conservative motion proposed by financial critic Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) condemns the government as failing to propose measures to cut unemployment, curb inflation or increase Canadian participation in domestic business and development.

Rene Matte (SC—Champlain) proposed an amendment, berating the government for failure to include in its budget direct financial assistance to municipalities and steps to reduce the national debt.

Passage of either amendment at the end of the debate would bring down the minority government. However, NDP financial critic Max Saltsman confirmed NDP support of the budget.

The $19.3-billion budget for 1973-74 was made public Monday night by Finance Minister John Turner. The government's fate rides on its acceptance by Parliament.

The 31 NDP members in the Commons can swing the vote in favor of the government, and Mrs. Saltsman indicated they intend to do just that.

The NDP holds the power balance among 109 Liberals, 107 Conservatives, 15 Social Credit members and two independents in the 264-seat House.

Wednesday's debate had Raynald Guay (L—Levis) and Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) occupy their allotted time with pleas for resurrection of the Canadian dream to rise.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Turner's budget includes $900 million already pumped into the unemployment insurance account for 1972-73, and Mr. Turner said Mr. Stanfield was deliberately confusing figures.

Mr. Stanfield said that in his previous budget Mr. Turner had predicted creation of 330,000 jobs, but his new budget aims at only 200,000 new jobs. Mr. Turner accused Mr. Stanfield of having a "selective memory," and denied having mentioned 330,000 new jobs.

Mr. Saltsman emphasized that NDP support for the new budget implies no commitment to corporate income-tax measures still to be considered from the last May's budget. However, some of those measures can be implemented by cabinet order, avoiding a Liberal-NDP confrontation in the House.

Mediators Join Rail Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Bargainers for Canada's two major railways and 55,000 non-operating employees resumed contract talks Wednesday with the aid of two federal mediators.

The bargaining committee of the Associated Non-Operating Employees decided at a meeting earlier in the day to return to the table as Labor Minister John Munro had requested.

Talks between the non-ops, Canadian National and CP Rail broke off Friday. Mr. Munro Tuesday delegated W. P. Kelly, assistant deputy minister for industrial relations to aid Art Gibbons, director of conciliation and arbitration, in the negotiations.

Talks between shopcraft workers, firemen, trainmen and conductors and the railways also resumed. They were suspended Fri— on the non-ops talks broke off.

The union seeking a new two-year contract to replace the one that expired Dec. 31 and are asking for increased wages and improved pension, job security and sick leave benefits. The railways are seeking work rule changes.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1973

Licence Office Braced For Rush

With six days to go until deadline, 40 per cent of driver's cards in the Belleville area still have not purchased new plates for their vehicles.

On a provincial scale, the same percentages roughly apply, with 1,621,000 plates sold leaving about 37 per cent still in the packing crate.

George Olsen, operator of the distributing outlet in Belleville, said this year was much the same as others and didn't know if there would be a mad rush.

"We get really busy around lunch hours and particularly on the weekend," he said. The bureau will be open from 9 a.m. until 12 noon on Saturday.

The remaining 6,000 drivers who have not bought their plates will have to do so before Feb. 28 or face the prospects of not driving or going to court.

Five extra people have been hired to handle the flo of drivers which is expected to be a flood by Saturday.

No more than 50 such requests were received by the 14 office. If drivers do not order special plates with desired initials and numbers, an additional charge of $25 was levied, plus the cost of the plates.

While the cost of license plates has gone up this year it could be worse. If you owned a tractor trailer unit which when loaded had a gross weight of 5 tons. For the two tin plates to be placed at each end, it would cost you $2,021.

Pleads Guilty To Car Theft

TRENTON (Staff) — A 23-year-old Trenton man pleaded guilty to a charge of car theft in provincial court Wednesday, and was sentenced to 15 months in an Ontario reformatory by Judge R. C. Jackson.

Leonard Phillips of 6 Front St., Trenton, was arrested Jan. 25 by Whitby, Det. police after he was stopped for a routine car check and couldn't produce ownership papers.

The car, a 1964 Pontiac, was found to have been stolen from Dwidoss Pontiac Buick Ltd. of Trenton.

Helping Out Heart Campaign

Karen Little, 13, first year member of the Belleville Collegiate Institute Keyette Club, (at left) and Cathy Donly, 18, fourth year Keyette, get their heads together in preparation for a week of door-to-door canvassing for the Canadian Heart Foundation's a nnual campaign. The BCI Keyette Club has taken on the job of canvassing in an area bounded by Church, MacDonald, Dundas and Bridge Streets. After the Foundation reported it could not find anyone to cover the area. Campaign Chairman, Mrs. Robert Brain, said she was thrilled. "The kids are filling in where the older people aren't — I don't know what we'd do without their efforts." Campaigning will be February 26 to March 3. Target is $10,000.

Quinte to Plan Ahead

The time to dream dreams has come round again as the organizers of Quinte 1984 plan for further study of what this district should be like 11 years from now.

A group of organizers decided at last night to sponsor day-long seminars in the spring on four aspects of life in the future — the work ethic, environment, leisure and education.

Purpose of the Quinte 1984 exercise is to bring citizens of the community together to share information and draw up a blueprint of what they want in the future.

The initial seminars were held in November. The spring discussions will concentrate, on a deeper investigation of each topic raised then. They will be followed by further discussions in the fall. The wrapup will be the formation of action groups to begin steering the community toward the reality participants have agreed upon for 1984.

The entire work ethic in business, industry and the professions will be the t opic March 17. Steering committee members chosen last night — and more will be added later — were Jim Wiseman, Charles Gray and Mr. and Mrs. William O'Rourke.

The question of the environment will come up April 14. Committee members are Doug Sword and Ward Carson.

May 12 is the date for the discussion of leisure with a steering committee comprised of Gordon Row and Dave Smith.

Education will wind up the spring series with Mrs. Kay Diesen, Mrs. Annetta Brown, Bert Gerling and Mr. and Mrs. Ward Carson comprising the committee.

One of the sessions is expected to be Loyalist College, where the first Quinte 1964 conference was held.

The conferences on the future are a joint venture of Loyalist College and United Community Services.

Swimming Pool Community Asset

PICTON — A public swimming pool can become a catalyst affecting all aspects of a "completely new community," according to Jack Lacey, who addressed the pool fund drive in Wallace-burg two years ago.

Mr. Lacey last night addressed members of the Quinte Isle swimming pool committee at Bowen Hall to detail his successful campaign.

He pointed out benefits of a community pool stating that the Wallaceburg school, once idle in the evenings, now welcomes about 200 persons who participate in fitness programs each night. The pool was built in the school a nd approximately 200 persons join participants in sports and games every evening.

Mr. Lacey said the pool improved his community's relationship with surrounding municipalities and 25 per cent of enrollment for its swim comes from outlying areas.

A five-man economic development committee was formed after the swimming pool was built to act on applications forwarded by ratepayers for community betterment. The committee volunteered its help to council in response to major ideas and complaints heard from contributors to the pool project.

Mr. Lacey observed the secondary school students in Wallaceburg pledged $25,000 to the pool. Service clubs also responded to the project.

A manpower pool was established in canvass for funds and special appeals were made in the community's professional men. A federal grant of $30,000 also boosted the pool fund when coupled with a $15,000 provincial grant.

Payroll deductions were set up in plants where canvassing of employees was prremitted and a similar plan was followed with downtown merchants.

Mr. Lacey said he worked full-time for eight months to raise the money needed for a pool.

"What you have to have is a benevolent dictator," he explained.

He urged members of the Quinte Isle pool committee to consider the project as, "business, pure and simple" and stressed the need to accept pledges made over a period of time.

The speaker was invited to Picton to advise the local pool committee of how his community realized its project. A swimming pool has been under consideration h e r e since 1965 but plans have remained tentative.

Recently the Picton Rotary Club formed a committee to obtain cost estimates and first submitted figures of $13,000 to $15,000. Under these c osts is soured to approximately $20,-000 and it was decided a pool was a major undertaking requiring full community support.

1,200 Licences to Go

PICTON — The Picton licence bureau yesterday reported the sale of 2,200 plates for cars and station wagons as the February 28 deadline approaches.

Approximately 1,200 vehicles in the area will be registered before the end of the month, according to a bureau spokesman. Cost to license a five cylinder vehicle is $23 while a six cylinder model can be licensed for $32. All eight cylinder vehicles can be licensed at a cost of $40.

Although 1973 sales to date are "slightly ahead" of sales last year, it was believed the increased rate could be attributed to newcomers to the community.

Scouts Awarded Chains, Badges

Jack Ellis, Member of Parliament for Hastings, was guest of honor at last night's Scout Week father and son dinner held by the Second Belleville Scout Troop at Christ Church hall.

With Arnold Welch, district commissioner for Boy Scouts of Canada, he presented gold, silver and bronze chain awards to 11 Second Troop Scouts.

Richard Gaudet and Peter DeGery were awarded their gold chains, second highest scouting award to the pathfinder qualification. Silver chains were presented to Peter Carleton, Stephen Lloyd and Lino Ossana. Owen Mahaffy and Ian Chambers received bronze chains and citizenship badges and Don Turner, Ron Phillips, Greg Johnson and Rick Phillips received bronze badges.

After the presentations and dinner, Clyde Pope of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, spoke about fire prevention and safety. He also provided printed materials and showed a film dealing with problems faced by firefighters in a riot situation. Action footage of the Watts, Los Angeles, riots held the attention of scouts and fathers alike.

Are (city) doctors referring their patients to hospitals outside the area? Or is an assistant administrator, John Kinsella of the Kingston Whig-Standard, do all local women want their babies?

In 1971, the abortion committee at BGH approved five legal abortions. That year there were 1,261 live births at the hospital. In 1972 the abortion figure dropped to three and there were 1,121 live births.

The provincial average is 11.2 legal abortions for every 100 live births. For the first six months of 1972, the latest period for which statistics are available, the number of legal abortions performed in Ontario under the provisions of the Criminal Code had increased 35 per cent over the number in the same period in 1971.

On the basis of the provincial average, Belleville might have been expected to have had 141 legal abortions in 1971. Instead, it had one of the lowest abortion rates in the province.

The figures for Trenton are proportionately higher.

In 1971, Trenton Memorial Hospital reported 18 abortions and 407 live births. The figures rose in 1972 to 31 abortions and 372 live births.

But, although doctors accredited to BGH have performed only eight abortions in the last two years, Mr. Kunetsky said "relatively few" who have applied to the abortion committee have been refused.

Both Trenton and Belleville have abortion committees. This is a body comprised of 3 doctors, none of whom perform abortions themselves. Under the provisions of the Criminal Code, the committee must rule on each abortion application. If the committee decides that continuation of the pregnancy endangers the life or health of the applicant it can grant permission for the operation. A woman applying for an abortion must appears before the committee — her doctor states her case and approval is dependent on his presentation.

Belleville's statistics begin to come into focus when the figures for the Quinte General Hospital are studied.

KGH performed 488 abortions in 1971.

It stood fourth in the province in 1971 in the number of abortions performed and was surpassed only by Toronto, Hamilton and London.

KGH spokesmen are quick to point out that their abortion patients come from a wide area stretching f rom Cornwall to Trenton. About 20 Belleville women were admitted in KGH in 1971 and another eight were referred from Trenton.

Belleville's abortion rate is among the lowest in the province. according to a survey conducted by the Sault Daily Star in Sault Ste. Marie. The questionnaire participated in the survey.

Another participant was the Kingston Whig - Standard, which observed that of Belleville's 1,121 live births recorded serving an area of about 80,000 people, 186 are Roman Catholics.

Purpose of the Sault Star's survey was to break abortion statistics down by area and learn if daily newspapers serving the areas are giving an honest picture of what is happening. Although each hospital in the province forwards monthly reports of the number of abortions it performs to the Ontario Health Insurance Commission, it is the ministry of health's policy to issue only the totals for the entire province to the public.

Reporters Anrita Dahlin and Nan Rajkovich of the Star found the abortion capital of Ontario is London. About 4,-000 babies were born there in 1971 and a total of 1,200 abortions were performed.

London and Hamilton account for about half the abortions performed in Ontario in 1971. Toronto General Hospital and one-tenth of the provincial total that year and Toronto East General Hospital did one-sixth.

As a woman moves north, it becomes increasingly difficult for her to procure an abortion. In the 48 miles between Sault Ste. Marie and Thunder Bay there are five general hospitals, none of which have abortion committees.

"Statistics gathered from hospitals throughout the province indicate that it is almost a hell for a woman to obtain a legal abortion in Northern Ontario as it is in Quebec," write reporters Dahlin and Rajkovich.

Policy-makers on three of the eight northern dailies appear to reflect their communities' attitudes. They refuse to print abortion statistics on the grounds of bad taste.

The low abortion rate in hospitals outside the larger Ontario cities poses some questions, suggest the Sault Star reporters.

If a city's hospital reports a low number of abortions per 1,000 births, many years women are still going to back street abortionists, to Toronto or to New York itself. Are poorer women making do because they can't afford to travel?

Accomplishment Outstrips Money

It's a low-keyed campaign, but the fight against social injustice is waged year-round in Belleville by the Central Volunteer Bureau.

The nature of its w ork makes confidentiality essential, so the bureau's activities are better known in the statistical roundup at Queen's Park than among the people of its own community.

Occasionally the bureau, and its director, Ruth Burrows, surfaces for legal purposes.

One such occasion occurred recently when a board meeting was presented with audited statements of expenditures.

The Central Volunteer Bureau operates seven programs for the socially disadvantaged. They range from a day nursery for multi-handicapped children to a program to teach illiterate adults to read.

Total cost last year, because most of the effort was free, courtesy of volunteers, was $2,732. The money came from the allocation from the United Community Services appeal. From the Valentine's Fund and from a $75 donation for handicapped children.

Training dozens of volunteers to make their unique contribution costs $2.25. And the training program offered for next October's Bureau charges of $5 were more than double the cost of volunteer training. The bureau lists 655 active volunteers in its files.

Advertising was limited to $3. And the cost of delivering nutritious meals to needy families came to $50.

Snowmobilers' Prizes Grow

WAUPOOS — Prince Edward County snowmobilers have donated more than 40 prizes of $5 to $15 toward the Waupoos Snowmobile Club's ride to raise funds for St. John's Church.

Proceeds of the e v e n t, which will be held this Sunday, will be donated toward a heating system for the church.

A minimum of $5 in pledges is required before a participant can qualify to start the 40-mile course through North Prince Edward County.

Hot drinks will be provided guards will be stationed at all road which must be crossed.

Cash prizes will be awarded to the three entrants with the most money pledged. First prize is $50, second prize $30 and third prize $20. A special prize for the entrant completing the course closest to a predetermined safe time will be awarded.

Snowmobiles will leave the Waupoos Carefree Cemetery at, at noon Sunday. For details of the snowmobile-a-thon information persons may contact Frank Wright at 475-2881 or Dick Wilkinson at 476-2842.

Town to Ask Edict Lifted

Deseronto will ask the provincial government to lift its "boil water" edict issued in 1962. Mayor James Sharpe said at the last town council meeting. The town of 1,800 has been under order to boil its poor water for longer than any other municipality in Ontario. Plans for a water filtration plant have been rejected because of the high costs involved.

Company's Neighbors Complain About Smoke

A group of residents from the lower Coleman Street area is complaining about the nuisance of smoke being discharged from chimneys of the international Hardware plant in their district.

The group has complained to Mayor Robin Jeffrey and to plant management authorities in Peterborough.

Spokesman for the group said yesterday that Mayor Jeffrey promised to look into their complaint and indicated that a petition would be raised, if necessary, to get action.

"It (the smoke from the lock company) rises all over the downtown area," the spokesman said. "It stinks."

But one Mary Street resident who says she lives as close as anyone, doesn't feel that the smoke from the local factory is anything to worry about.

"I have no reason to kick," she said. "People who have moved here knew the factory was here when they came."

She admitted, however, that the smoke did get a bit dirty when the plant was getting ready for casting operations.

The Mary Street resident said she had more complaints about smoke from brothers that that from the lock plant.

"I am afraid to burn rubbish for fear of getting into trouble, but that doesn't seem to worry other people," she said.

Robert Temple: Stepping Down

Robert Temple will not seek another term on the top executive post of Hastings Liberal Association.

The former MP, and one of the most prominent Liberal politicians in the Quinte district, said he will not stand for another term as riding association president.

Mr. Temple has been president of the association for most in 1968 with creation of Hastings riding following redistribution—since 1971. However, he remains on the new executive as past president.

The Belleville lawyer has been active in Liberal politics all his life. His public career began in the early 1950s when he was elected a city councillor. Shortly after, he became one of the youngest candidates ever to seek the mayor's office.

Politically he also was Liberal party secretary in Hastings South a constituency later abolished when Hastings riding was formed. In 1962 he first sought Commons election and won the 1963 general election to regain the riding for the Liberals until 1965.

Aside from the election of officers and other business, next week's meeting will hear from one of the newer Cabinet ministers in the Trudeau government — Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner, of Peterborough.

Scout Week Presentation

Islanders Lose Ernie Hicke

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — The luck of the last-place Islanders is all bad.

Take the case of Ernie Hicke, last week general manager Bill Torrey traded veteran defenseman Arnie Brown to Atlanta Flames for a second-round draft pick.

The trade seemed fair enough since Brown was unhappy with the fledgling National Hockey League Islanders, and Hicke figured to bring the New York club some much-needed scoring punch.

Hicke, a native of Regina, had 4 goals and 26 assists for the Flames while Brown had only four goals for the Islanders. The Flames are fighting for a playoff spot in the West Division while the Islanders have been eliminated in the east. Both are first-year teams.

Hicks was traded by Atlanta last Tuesday. In his fifth game for the Islanders, he racked up his right knee and will be lost for the season.

Meanwhile, Torrey sold Jim Mair, a hard-shooting defenseman, to Vancouver Canucks on Monday for a reported $50,000. Mair, 26, of Schumacher, Ont., came to the Islanders from Philadelphia Flyers in the expansion draft last June.

Several NHL clubs, interested in buying "insurance" for the playoffs, have been talking with Torrey. But his wares are limited.

Coach Earl Ingarfield, exasperated after his Islanders lost their 10th game Tuesday night, said glumly:

"I can't play for them. . . . I don't know what else I can do."

Perhaps Ingarfield might take up from Minnesota North Stars who seem headed for the playoffs in the West. The Stars use a training aid in their workouts. They block off one net with a sheet of plywood that has holes in each of the upper and lower levels.

There probably is no harder worker in the NHL than Phil Esposito, who leads the league in scoring with 38 goals and 55 assists. Besides his regular shifts, Esposito takes on power-play and penalty-killing assignments for Boston Bruins.

Some of his supporters feel he may be overextending himself.

"The more I play the better I feel," he says. "I'll stay out there as long as Bep wants me to." The Bruins have won seven straight under coach Bep Guidolin, but their defences fell apart in the 4 wins over Vancouver.

Since he took over from Tom Johnson, Guidolin has been hearing down on one subject—checking.

"The biggest thing is backchecking," he says. "That is something everybody on this team is going to be aware of."

Bruins Shake Seals

By IAN MacLAINE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Wednesday's California earthquake almost rocked New York Rangers out of their wild berth on second place in the National Hockey League East Division.

The Rangers, in Los Angeles to meet the Kings, were outscored by the jolt at 6:45 a.m., but it wasn't until 19:50 of the third period at night they were able to savor a 4-3 victory that held their two-point lead over the surging Boston Bruins.

The Bruins kept pace with an easy 6-2 victory over California Golden Seals at Oakland. Both clubs, however, failed to make any ground on Montreal Canadiens who saddled West Division-leading Chicago Black Hawks with a 4-2 loss.

Elsewhere, Atlanta Flames' playoff hopes flickered when they were held to a 3-3 tie at Toronto by the Maple Leafs while St. Louis Blues romped 5-2 over Minnesota North Stars.

The tie lifted Atlanta above fifth place in the West, one point ahead of Los Angeles, but they now trail St. Louis and Minnesota who share third spot, by four points.

The Canadiens, who maintained their six-point lead over the Rangers, visit Detroit Red Wings tonight while Pittsburgh Penguins entertain New York Islanders and Vancouver Canucks are at Buffalo Sabres.

And the Kings, striving for a playoff spot, almost had him diving for the exit through most of the game as they opened 1-0, 2-1 and 3-2 leads before the Rangers rallied.

Jerry Butler's first NHL goal early in the final period and Jean Ratelle's 31st of the season with 18 seconds left in the game kept New York's three-year mastery of the Kings in tact.

The streak includes 15 wins and four ties in 19 meetings between the two clubs dating to Jan. 18, 1970.

The Bruins were riding a 6-0 lead, en route to their ninth victory in 10 games under new coach Bep Guidolin, before California newcomer Stan Weir broke rookie goaltender Ross Brooks' bid for a shutout at 18:19 of the second period.

Derek Sandgison scored twice in the first period as Boston ripped five goals, past goalie Gilles Meloche in an 18-shot barrage.

Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins scored one goal and one assist in the Bruins' 6-2 win over California Golden Seals in Oakland Wednesday night. The two points boosted his National Hockey League scoring lead to 10 points over Boston Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers.

Braves, Bears Try to Lose

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Don Swayne flew 1,200 miles Wednesday to coach Brockville Braves in a Central Junior Hockey League game as Smiths Falls and was told by the team's executive his services weren't required.

He watched from the stands as both teams made a mockery of hockey—Smiths Falls players scored goals on them selves—in an apparent attempt to be dropped into the league playoffs against first-place Pembroke Lumber Kings.

Swayne, general manager of the second-level club, said Tuesday he had planned to return early from his holiday to help in the absence of coach Ralph Hurley.

He said he arrived at the game about five minutes before faceoff and was told I was not needed to go behind the bench."

"As a result, I resigned from the Braves' club as of last night."

The resulting 6-5 score for Brockville endangered the future of both clubs when John Rinkes, CJHL secretary who attended the game, said he will recommend they be suspended from the league playoffs

The two teams are jockeying for position with the season's schedule winding up this week, and neither wants to finish in third place to face the high-flying Lumber Kings who have won 45 and tied four of 53 games

At least three of the Brockville goals were scored in the third period by Smiths Falls player-George Thompson and Mike Defalco on direct shots and goaltender John Bak who directed the puck into his own goal

The charade was called by referee Dick Cordick with 10 seconds left in the game He telephoned, then mailed his official game report to league president Norm sanders of Brockville

Sanders said Thursday night he had not received the report but would not comment officially until he had had an opportunity to review the matter

Rinkes, however, told Swayne he would recommend to league governors that both teams be suspended from the playoffs

Pistons Pop Lakers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Playing without Jerry West, Happy Hairston and Keith Erickson, Los Angeles Lakers bowed to Detroit Pistons 105-99 Wednesday night and lost more valuable ground to the idle Boston Celtics in the race for the best record in the National Basketball Association, which could prove important come playoff time.

It's only the second time all season the Lakers have dropped three in a row and it left them 3½ games behind Boston record-wise, although they still have a comfortable 9½-game lead over Golden State Warriors in the Pacific Division chase.

Elsewhere, Phoenix Suns snapped Baltimore Bullets, six-game winning streak, 107-96, and Houston Rockets went on its biggest scoring binge of the season in walloping Seattle Supersonics 130-107.

With Bob Lanier scoring 15 of his 25 points in the first 16 minutes, the Pistons raced to an 85-56 early 16-point lead. The Lakers closed the gap to 84-82 early in the fifth period, but Curtis Rowe, John Mengelt and Don Adams combined for 12 straight points to break it open once more.

Charlie Scott and Dick Van Arsdale scored 27 and 26 points, respectively, as Phoenix broke a four-game losing streak by downing the Bullets in Baltimore for the first time in three years.

Rudy Tomjanovich led Houston over Seattle with 27 points.

Regina Taking Her First Steps to Olympics

By AL SABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Excellence in any sporting activity is a difficult if not impossible thing to gauge. To an objective observer, for example, Mark Spitz's acquisition of seven gold medals for the United States at the '72 Munich Olympics could be the embodiment of that quality of sportsman who is the best.

But subjectively, the American swimmer may have felt that he did not "beat his gal" enough to shave a single tenth of a second from his winning time in the butterfly competition. This, however, is not useless conjecture, as Spitz, in his person, became the ideal, towards which he spent four long years after the 1963 Olympics trying to achieve.

Both his subjective desire to excel in his chosen sport and objective coaching and criticism put Spitz at the top of the Olympic triangle seven times with a gold medal hanging from a ribbon around his neck.

Spitz pursued his Olympic dream, but there will be others, and there are others—one of whom lives and goes to school in Belleville.

Regina Armenas, a 17-year-old Quinte Secondary School student, can be called an "Olympic hopeful" in the parlance of the press, but she is more than simply a subject for a conveniently available slot.

Regina, who is the star player on the Quinte Saints senior girls' volleyball team, hopes to make the 1980 Olympic Canadian national volleyball team.

"It's a fantastic dream," said Regina, "and it seems so tasky, so far away. But volleyball is just fantastic. People look at me and say 'you're weird, how can you dedicate yourself that much? It's just a game'."

But both of Regina's coaches Ann Rice and Grant Collet consider their grade 11 player, as someone who possesses talents above those of girls on their own team and those of other volleyball teams in the Bay of Quinte League.

"She has a special superb talent," said Collet, "I detected a real talent in Regina when I first saw her. I don't expect to run across someone with her potential again. She's tall, strong; is a good jumper and has an athletic instinct. She possesses an intuitive instinct to feel a situation in advance and be at the right place at the right time. Under fire, her performance proves tremendously, and the better is the competition, the better she gets."

Collet, who has coached volleyball for seven years, possesses a seemingly boundless enthusiasm and faith in the talents and potential of Regina. He has arranged for her to attend from October through December the Wednesday evening three hour practices of the Queens Golden Gals volleyball varsity team coached by Donna Gallagher, one of Canada's sports resource personnel, and a teacher in the School of Physical and Health Education at the university.

Ann Rice, who teaches physical education at Quinte, and her choice was volleyball. "I want it to be my life. I have more interest in it and I get more enjoyment out of it. I guess I can safely say that I'm better at it than I am at other sports. I don't mind pressuring myself in volleyball, because it's myself that applies the pressure.

"It's taken people a little time to understand her decision," said Collet, "they don't understand that she doesn't owe it to the school to play if she happens to be good at a sport. A distinction has to be made between 'for the sake of the individual' and 'for the sake of the school'."

Regina, who now is concentrating solely on volleyball, was under pressure from other coaches in the school who wanted her to concentrate on their particular sport. When playing basketball at the beginning of the year, Regina "didn't want to play, but wanted to practice with the senior boys' team, who provide a little more than the girls' team. There's a more to help the less strong people.

"Regina has a keen sense of the game, and she'll work her heart out," said Mrs. Rice, but she "has to improve in strategy, and that comes with playing with better teams. I think that given a good coach, and given a chance to play with good teams she can do very well."

"You just don't have other teams to play with," said Regina, "and you don't get long rallies of play." Coach Collet also lamented the fact that the Bay of Quinte region was unable to supply the kind of competition that would hone the skills of his star pupil.

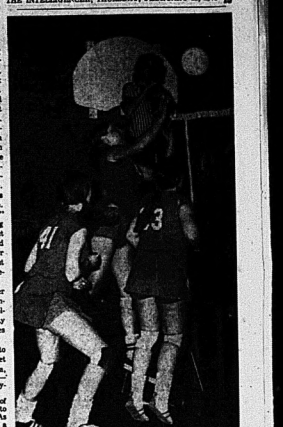
"The Quinte senior volleyball team is performing as well as I can expect for the kind of natural talent they have," said Collet, "but which is not outstanding material." Nodding in the direction of Regina, sitting across from him, Collet said, "this is outstanding material. She's a typical thoroughbred champing at the bit."

"I wouldn't want anyone to misunderstand the comment regarding the rest of the team or the talent of the team," said Collet, "we are better than we were last year when we won COSSA."

Besides the lack of solid competition in this area, Collet faced another problem in providing for the further training of what he believes is championship material in Regina. Having taught her as much as he was capable of, he sent her to Queen's this year, while next year, the university "will be the centre of her volleyball life."

Though Queen's will become the centre of her life, it is not the centre of the volleyball action in Canada, according to Collet. "If you don't live in Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal or Winnipeg, then you don't have access to the national coaching. You can't be available in time for the training periods. It is difficult for someone in a smaller town, such as Belleville, to break into more national attention. Selection of the national teams is very political, just talent doesn't mean anything.

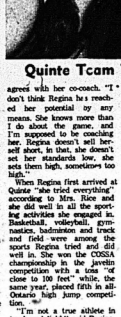
"That means a proper selection of a university with a volleyball background within an area of a volleyball centre in Canada, such as Vancouver. This means a force Regina to move from Belleville. It's a big stake, but there's the possibility of a big gain. The dream is not impossible."



"It's a big step — leaving Ontario," said Regina, "but there's a lot of doubts and hopes involved. My mother wants the best for me, but she is afraid of the consequences."

On the other hand, "her father told me that he entrusted her to me," said Collet, and the responsibility which he does have he takes seriously.

"I know that I'll have to give up a lot of things to get to that goal," said Regina, "I'll have to sacrifice a lot— my time and other enjoyments."



On the other hand, one of the things Regina has had to acquire is a thick skin. As Collet said, "she is under a great pressure because she is supposed to be a star." She has to live up to the mantle imposed upon her by other people, as well as suffer with the pressure she applies to herself to perform up to what she believes are her own capabilities.

Regina said that "just because you're here (this recruiter), people who I though were friends, snap and cut at me." The girls of the volleyball team, according to Collet, have now "grown up" and overcome a lot of pettiness" directed at Regina. "They've joined together long enough to decide that they like each other."

Airborne Tap Over

Regina Armenas goes up into the air to put the volleyball over the net in one of the 11 Bay of Quinte league games that the Quinte senior volleyball team has won. Janet Whalen (41) and Diane McBride (33) provide the backup for the 17 - year - old grade 12 student who has helped the Quinte team to a loss free season this year.

agreed with her co-coach. "I don't think Regina has reached her potential by any means. She knows more than I do about the game, and I'm supposed to be coaching her. Regina doesn't sell herself short, in fact, she doesn't set her standards low, she sets them high, sometimes too high."

When Regina first arrived at Quinte "she tried everything" according to Mrs. Rice and she did well in all the sporting activities she engaged in. Basketball, volleyball, gymnastics, badminton and track and field were among the sports Regina tried and did well in. She won the COSSA championship in the javelin competition with a toss "of close to 100 feet" while, the same year, placed fifth in all-Ontario high jump competition.

"I'm not a true athlete in track and field," said Regina, "I didn't practice, and anything I do I want to do my best in. I was depressed at one time, because my coach said that playing several sports was not fair to the other kids on the teams."

Regina made the decision to concentrate on one sport and her choice was volleyball. "I want it to be my life. I have more interest in it and I get more enjoyment out of it. I guess I can safely say that I'm better at it than I am at other sports. I don't mind pressuring myself in volleyball, because it's myself that applies the pressure.

"It's taken people a little time to understand her decision," said Collet, "they don't understand that she doesn't owe it to the school to play if she happens to be good at a sport. A distinction has to be made between 'for the sake of the individual' and 'for the sake of the school'."

Regina, who now is concentrating solely on volleyball, was under pressure from other coaches in the school who wanted her to concentrate on their particular sport. When playing basketball at the beginning of the year, Regina "didn't want to play, but wanted to practice with the senior boys' team, who provide a little more than the girls' team. There's a more

Teacher's Tumbled

The Teachers, who led the Quinte Hockey League bestof-seven semi-finals three games to none, couldn't seem to get off the ground against Reid's Dairy in the fourth game of the series.

The dairymen chalked up a 3-0 lead before Doug Jodoin was able to put the Teachers first goal at the 6:37 mark of the third period. The slow start cost them a 4-2 defeat decision and a missed opportunity at winning the semi-final series four games straight.

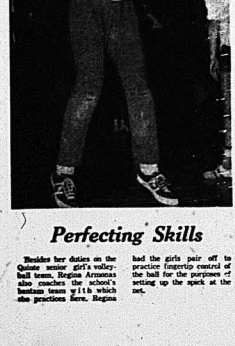
Two goals by Ron Goodfellow and a single by Bob Woodike gave the dairymen the lead while a lully by Bruce Tompkins at the 8:30 mark of the third frame completed their scoring. Mike Dullack scored the Teachers' final goal in their first playoff loss.

Quinte Wins Curling Title

Barry Ray skipped the Quinte Secondary School rink of brother vice Roger Ray, second Paul Tummon, and lead Steve Bennett to the Bay of Quinte Curling Championships at Tweed Wednesday.

The Quinte curlers were the only rink in the eight team competition who came out of the meet having won all three of their games. Quinte defeated OSD and Bayside 11-2 and 7-5 respectively in eight end games while having gone 10 ends to defeat Trenton 7-6.

The third game went "right down to the last rock" according to Bob Harris, staff curling supervisor.



The Quinte rink, along with runner up Trenton, and consolation round champion Moira Secondary will be curling at the Tweed Curling Club Saturday, March 3 in the Central Ontario Secondary School Association competition.

Borozov Set For Track Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Valery Borzov blushed and fidgeted when an American reporter asked him whether it was true that after the Munich Olympics he had bragged that he was the world's fastest human.

"I never said that," the Soviet sprinter replied through an interpreter.

"It is not for me to say who is the world's fastest human. The people must decide that."

If Borzov didn't say it, others did after he ended America's long-time Olympic sprint supremacy by scoring a gold medal double in the 100 and 200 metres last year.

Once you could spot a visiting Soviet athlete easily. He wore baggy pants, frayed shirts and squeaking shoes. When he smiled, he would almost blind you with gleaming steel teeth.

No more. Borzov, a 183-pound six-footer, was attired in blue jeans, button-down shirt and fur-lined suede jacket. His hair was modishly long. His teammates could be mistaken for young Americans.

They are Yevgeny Arshanov, silver medalist behind Dave Wottle in the Olympic 800; Vladmir Abramov, a gangling high-jumper who has done seven feet, 3¾ inches, and attractive Lilmlla Bragina, world record-holder and Olympic gold medallist in the women's 1,500 metres.

Lismlla, 26, wearing a Jane Fonda shag hair-do, showed a good portion of her shapely thighs beneath a blue miniskirt. The country is being invaded by Soviet teams. The boxing team already has been here. Little Olga Korbut and her fellow gymnasts are due any day now. They will be followed by the basketball team and later in the spring a team of Soviet wrestlers.

But they are a new breed, these Soviet athletes—sharply dressed, articulate, with many speaking several languages, and with a good sense of humor.

"Well, that should solve Hagar's problem. He was wondering how he could extend his vacation here!"

Woman Jockey Shines

PHOENIX (AP) — A petite brunette who says she couldn't do anything else, has compiled a record as an apprentice jockey that many male veterans would be proud of.

Martha (Muffie) Mauger, daughter of a New York insurance executive, has won nine races at Turf Paradise, including the first one she rode.

"This is my life," says the 21-year-old, 101-pound jockey. "I couldn't do anything else. It's a lot of hard work, though. It takes a special kind of person, someone with a lot of heart.

"It's a dangerous sport. When things are moving so fast, you can get badly hurt. You have to be someone who can sit cool and make the right move at the right time."

That, apparently, is what Miss Mauger does. It's becoming pretty well known here that she will stick in there with the best of them and will take chances with the veterans.

Miss Mauger, U.S. junior jumping champion as a teenager and an accomplished equestrian, wandered into New York's Belmont Park one day and talked her way into a job as an exercise girl. When the season closed, she followed the circuit to California. There a trainer agreed to take her contract and opened the doors to Turf Paradise.

"People here have been very good to me," she said. "The other jockeys couldn't be nicer. Their language gets a little sharp sometimes, especially on the turns."

Keeping her slender, 5-foot-1 figure in shape, she says, is a chore.

"I can eat a lot more than lots of the guys can, but I still have to catch my weight," she says.

Olympic Deficit Under Discussion

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An anticipated deficit forecast by commissioner general Roger Rousseau for the 1976 Summer Olympics at Montreal and that tabled by Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa Wednesday showed a $200 million discrepancy.

Rousseau, speaking at a news conference in Toronto, said federal government economists agree the most any deficit could run would be $22 million.

He said Montreal has already advised the federal government that any deficit for the Games would be picked up by the province of Quebec and the city.

But a federal treasury board report, tabled by the prime minister in the Commons, anticipated a $217 million deficit from the Games when federal costs of $45 million, are included.

Rousseau, contacted at his Montreal home Wednesday night following his return from Toronto, refused to comment on the Ottawa report until he had had an opportunity to review it.

The Comite d'Organization des Jeux Jeux Olympiques (COJO) organizing committee for the Games, announced last month the 1976 production would cost $310 million and predicted there would be no deficit.

The federal finance expert, in their report Wednesday, said operations costs would be higher than the COJO estimates, and that sources of revenue would raise only a fraction of what the COJO expects.

They anticipated costs of producing the Games would be between $390 million and $439 million, including capital and operating costs of about $333 million, expenses of between $34 million and $62 million under existing federal programs, and increments costs of $45 million incurred by various federal departments.

The latter includes use of RCMP services, armed forces personnel, extra immigration personnel and similar expenditures.

Major sources of revenue from the Games are expected to be the issues of specially-minted $5 and $10 coins, stamps, four lotteries and gate receipts.

Rousseau said the coins, which will hit the buyers' market this fall, are expected to bring in revenue totalling $250 million, the lotteries are expected to realize a $32 million profit and the stamps an additional $10 million.

Treasury board experts predicted total revenues of about $180 million—$100 million from coin sales, $30 million through the lotteries, $10 million from stamps, $9.3 million from ticket sales, $5 million from sale of television rights and $1.5 million from other sources.

The board figures forecast the Montreal Games operation would wind up $170 million in the red and to this figure must be added the $45 million in "incremental costs" for federal programs and services.

The financial experts say the anticipated $217 million deficit could increase since the estimate "does not provide for major cost escalations due to unforeseen events."

Outside the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau said he had received assurances from Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa that the federal government would not be saddled with the deficit resulting from the Olympics.

He said the Quebec groups had been advised of the treasury board's predictions and concluded: "Let them take their chances."

Rousseau, in Toronto, said the chances of the Olympics being staged in other communities than Montreal or Kingston, Ont., were slim.

He said relocating events around the country must first be decided with the International Olympic Committee (IOC), "usually with the international sports federations, strictly with the sanctions federations. This is further complicated by the fact, that we have to have the location approval before we can say yes or no."

St. Catharines, Ont., and Burnaby, B.C., have both indicated they consider holding the rowing programs and Toronto has expressed interest in holding some of the preliminary events of some sports.

Montreal, however, said the idea of the Olympic Games is to have them in one city and one region.

The Montreal area, he said, is prepared to meet all the facilities except sailing which requires deep waters and wind conditions. Kingston, he said, meets these conditions.

CFL All-Stars Meet In June

HAMILTON (CP) — The Canadian Football League Players' Association announced Wednesday its annual All-Star game will be held here June 27.

George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders, association president, and Gerry Patterson, executive director, made the announcement at a news conference.

The All-Star squad, to be selected in a ballot of CFL coaches, goes against the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

Patterson said the All-Star team will likely be announced at the CFLPA's annual meeting here in mid-May. Also at that time, Patterson said, the association hopes to announce what progress it has made in negotiations regarding controversial rules which restrict player movement between the CFL and National Football League.

He said the association has made an appeal to the NFL via the NFL Players' Association, for withdrawal of the NFL rule which forbids a player to join an NFL team if he has played with or participated in a CFL club's training camp in the same season.

The controversial rule came into effect last year with an immediate effect on such players as Ticats' Joe Zuger who had planned on moving to the Detroit Lions in the NFL after the Tigercat kicker bid for a starting role after training camp. Zuger had to sit out the year as a player and will not get into the NFL with the Lions until this summer.

Patterson said the rule also restricts young players in the United States who might want to come north for a CFL tryout but are afraid of being trapped should they fail to make the roster of the CFL club.

Reed said the CFL and NFL players' association have been working together on this and other common problems and he expects members of the NFL Players' Union will be here in May for further discussions.

Patterson said the association this year hopes to improve on the record $61,000 it earned in last year's All-Star game in Calgary, the game profits which go to the association's pension fund, were only $5,700 for the 1971 game in Montreal and $33,000 from the first game held at Ottawa in 1970.

Gillman Offered Post

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler owner K. S. (Bud) Adams said Wednesday he has offered Dallas Cowboy assistant coach Sid Gillman the job of general manager of the National Football League Oilers.

Adams said the Oilers received permission from the Cowboys to discuss the job with Gillman, a former head coach and general manager of San Diego Chargers.

"He came in last Saturday and we got everything pretty well covered," Adams said. "It's down to a matter of having the lawyers getting it all in black and white."

Oiler owner said the decision was made to seek Gillman, 61, after "several high-level conferences to see how we could turn the Oilers around."

"This is all still premature," Adams said. "We have talked to him, but nothing is final."

Present general manager John Breen would step aside and possibly take another position with the Oilers if Gillman accepted the job with the club that had 11 of 14 league games.

Lalonde Asks Smoke Firms Give Tar, Nicotine Figures

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde has called on cigarette manufacturers to give tar and nicotine figures on cigarette packages, cartons and vending machines.

A statement from Mr. Lalonde's office said the tar and nicotine figures for 79 kinds of cigarette said:

"In this way smokers could have the information at the time of sale or from their friends and not be depending upon periodic press releases, brand popularity or whether or not sales of a brand were promoted."

The statement said nicotine and tar contain cancer-producing and irritating chemicals.

It said the levels of the two substances have been reduced substantially during the last two or three years in some brands but there has been little progress in reducing the levels in some heavily promoted or well-known products.

Mr. Lalonde said the feasibility of reducing tar and nicotine content has been amply demonstrated, adding: "I hope that maximums will be progressively decreased."

The smoking minister reiterated his department's position that is safer not to smoke at all. He asked manufacturers to decrease promotion of high-tar brands and asked that new brands avoid the higher tar ranges.

Levels of widely-known and widely-available high-tar products should be reduced as rapidly as possible.

The statement concluded that lung cancer, "one of the major smoking diseases," is the leading cause of cancer deaths for men and men and women combined.

It was second only to heart attacks for men in the 45 to 64 age group and was responsible for the deaths of almost 24,000 Canadians in 1971.

The tests for tar and nicotine were made by Dr. W. F. Forbes and Dr. J. C. Robinson of the University of Waterloo, Ont.

The statement has this statement at the end of the figures:

"Smokers should not be concerned about small differences in tar and nicotine levels between brands. Generally, but not always, nicotine levels increase or decrease with tar levels.

"Smokers are reminded not to rely on the brand of cigarettes as the only way to reduce the inhalation of cigarette smoke constituents like tar and lungs.

"In addition to nicotine and the tar which contains cancer-producing and irritating chemicals there are several toxic and irritating gases in cigarette smoke.

"About four per cent of the gases is carbon monoxide. The gases may not be reduced along with tar and nicotine levels."

It said there are several ways of reducing the amount of smoke a smoker inhales.

These include lengthening the period between cigarettes, lengthening the period between puffs, not inhaling, removing the cigarette from the mouth after each puff and lengthening the size of the butt discarded.

The figures:

Tar and nicotine figures are expressed in milligrams per cigarette.

War Ends in Laos

ceasefire after more than two decades of warfare in Laos began today, and United States bombing in support of the Vientiane government's forces stopped several hours before.

The effectiveness of the ceasefire was not expected to be known for some 10 to 15 days, since communications in much of the mountainous, jungled, kingdom are primitive or non-existent. But been making in the Laotian government troops were reported engaged with North Vietnamese units around the southwest rim of the Plain of Jars up to the time of the ceasefire. It was not known whether the fighting continued after midday.

There was considerable doubt in Vientiane that the forces of the Communist Pathet Lao and their North Vietnamese allies will stop the drives they have brother, Prince Souphanouvong, panhandle, through which the supply route from North Vietnam to Communist forces in South Vietnam runs.

"There were still several hot areas in the south yesterday," said a colonel in the government intelligence office.

The ceasefire began 25 hours after the signing in Vientiane of a peace accord between the Vientiane government headed by Prince Souvanna Phouma and the Pathet Lao, whose titular leader is Souvanna's half

Sharp Approves Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — Michel Gauvin, head of the Canadian ceasefire delegation in Vietnam, has taken the right approach by criticizing events since the Vietnam ceasefire agreement was signed, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Wednesday.

"I think he has been very wise at this time in making it clear that he expects better things of the International Commission includes observers from Canada, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland.

Meanwhile, Defence Minister James Richardson said it will cost Canada about $500,000, excluding normal pay and benefits, for the initial 60-day period the 290 Canadian observers are in Vietnam.

The information was contained in a written return filed by the minister in response to a question from Adrien Lambert (SC—Bellechasse).

Cayer Had Welcome News

TORONTO (CP) — Marc Cayer, 10, When Mr. Cayer said his best friend in the camp was Mr. Henderson, "we almost fell off our chairs," said Mrs. John McNab.

There had been no way of knowing whether Mr. Henderson was alive since he disappeared in Vietnam Jan. 31, 1968.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Tony Curtis Wednesday obtained custody of his daughter, Kelly Lee, 16, from his former wife, actress Janet Leigh.

Superior Court Judge Charles Woodmansee signed the order after Miss Leigh, Curtis's first wife, consented to the action.

Last Nov. 13, Curtis received custody of his daughters, Allegra, 6, and Alexandra, 5, both by his second marriage to German actress Christine Kaufmann.

His now is married to the former Leslie Allen of Boston. They have a son, Nicholas, 2.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police stopped the showing of the film Deep Throat at its opening here Wednesday, confiscating the film and arresting the theatre manager, police reported.

Everett Chandler, police prosecutor, said he sat with about 75 patrons of the movie before ordering its showing halted.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A judge Wednesday dismissed an obscenity charge brought against a Rochester, N.Y., theatre chain in connection with the showing of the film Mona.

Judge Alois Mazur cleared Lyell Theatre Corp., ruling that the prosecution had failed to show the film had anything to do with the showing of the film at the Backstage Theatre here. Lyell operates the Backstage.

At the same time, the judge refused to dismiss an obscenity charge against the theatre's manager, Earl Lynge, 45. Hearing the case is a six-man jury, which has viewed the film in court.

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuter) — Twenty-one persons were arrested here Wednesday night on charges ranging from assault to abusive language during the Rolling Stones second concert in the city, police said today.

The arrests followed violent scenes at the British rock group's first concert here Tuesday night when 4,000 fans clashed with police as they tried to storm the stadium where the Stones were performing.

Violence flared again Wednesday night when 5,000 persons assembled outside the stadium. Police said officers moved into the crowd during the concert after being pelted by food, bottles and cans.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley used a karate-like blow to send an interloper sprawling from the stage after the man swung at him during a performance Wednesday night, a hotel spokesman said Wednesday.

Four men mounted the stage as 1,750 persons watched Presley's Monday performance at the Hilton Hotel, the spokesman said. Presley knocked one off the stage, receiving a standing ovation, a member of his band tackled another and the two others retreated, the spokesman said.

No injuries were reported and Presley did not press charges.

Vaudeville Returning On Radio

TORONTO (CP) — Draw the heavy curtains, dear, and straighten the doilies on the sofa in the parlor.

The O'Connor sisters are coming to call, and we're going to have a grand time recalling the good old days of show biz.

The O'Connor Sisters—Vera, Geraldine, Kathleen and Madeleine—were in the great days of vaudeville, which went out of fashion in the late 1930s. They're living in retirement now at Aldred, west of Toronto.

But with the encouragement of CBC radio producer Doug Byers, they came out of retirement recently to record their reminiscences and 13 of their songs with another show business veteran, pianist Horace Lapp, now 72.

An hour-long program—There's No Business Like—is broadcast by the CBC AM radio network on Friday night, and again on the CBC FM network Saturday, Feb. 23 and 24. It will be part of the series, The Entertainers.

Ferry Travel Up

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Travel between Nova Scotia and Maine by a Canadian National ferry is becoming more popular.

C. J. Farrell, director of CN ferry services, said the ship Bluenose carried 90,456 passengers between Yarmouth, N.S., and Bar Harbor, Me., in 1972, an increase from 88,040 in 1971. The number of vehicles carried increased to 28,224 from 27,251 during the same period.

Chicken Count

QUEBEC (CP) — There were 23.3 million chickens and hens in Quebec as of June 1, 1972, an increase of 2.5 per cent over the previous year, the statistics bureau said.

Allowed to Cough

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — A Granby resident, suffering from the flu, decided to see a doctor and left wishing he hadn't. The remedy—no more smoking, no more cold drinks, no spending, no skiing, and no late nights. However, he was allowed to cough, the doctor said.

Film Grant

REGINA (CP) — A Local Initiatives Program grant of $28,225 has been given to Information Schizophrenia to produce an educational film about the disease. The film will be designed to promote public standing of the disease, which the Canadian Schizophrenia Foundation believes is largely misunderstood by the public. Information Schizophrenia will be formed by a group of independent Regina film-makers who have been working with the foundation.

There's a little Z

in all of us.

(and you get it for as little as $2245*)

Datsun goes to extremes to build the car you need. Above, the Race Champion: our fast, fabulous 240-Z. Below, the Economy Champion: our zippy 1200 sedan. Worlds apart? Look again. The Z has all-steel unibody construction. Slick four-speed stick shift (or optional automatic, at extra cost). Reclining vinyl bucket seats. Safety collapsible steering column. All included in the price. But so does the 1200. Our point? You get quite a lot of 240-Z engineering in even our least expensive Datsun. It may be all you really need.

*Datsun 1200 2-door sedan: $2245. Suggested retail price F.O.B. Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal, Halifax warehouses. Local freight, licence, provincial tax, if applicable, extra.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, Feb. 23

Aries (March 21-April 19): Relationships suffer as conditions distract you from the accomplishments. Experiments at work cause confusion.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Those you know well continue their usual, predictable ways—concentrate on people and things you don't know so well.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be alert to others' moods—you might not like them, can prevent trouble by being on the look-out now. Know your priorities.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Take the creative course wherever there is a choice; and in nearly everything, there are subtle choices today.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Almost any play you make for more attention builds your exposure budget a bit. You have enough going for the time being.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Renewal of contact with people of like interests is first priority. New developments are important to your progress.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your gestures look promising, but not enough for scattered proceeds and confidential information amongst friends.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The lighter you keep your mood, the better. Check facts, correct any misunderstandings to get going into personalities.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Whatever errors you've made lately come back for correction, redemption. All in good faith and patience, no recriminations.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The one area where you cannot safely scrimp is your share in family and community enterprises. Use your common sense.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Moderation includes giving others plenty of time to think out their own versions of the story. Add to your reserves.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Making sure you have correct information, adequate directions is half the struggle. Sidelines tant to your progress.

One-dog Open Sleigh

A little bit reluctant to play the of a reindeer, this old hound dog gives his master a hard time over providing a free sleigh ride along the frozen Rideau Canal in Ottawa. However, the chase finally ended and following a command that made the old canine cringe, the novice Santa Claus hopped aboard and away they went. (CP Photo)

School Thefts Common Today

By DAN SLOVITT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Someone always suffers from a theft.

If it's equipment stolen from a school, the taxpayers must pay for it and the students have to do without until it can be replaced.

When thieves take a wallet or an article from a student's locker, that student bears the costs.

And when this happens and a particular school or college is continually theft-ridden and security measures are tightened, all persons in the school feel the pinch.

Theft in schools is a part of life almost every day, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates.

NEWFOUNDLAND

Thefts are prevalent at Memorial University in St. John's, although a reorganization of the university's security force has helped in curtailing some. Police said most items stolen are those easy to dispose of for money and the thefts looked like ordinary burglaries.

P.E.I.

Thefts are not significant at Colonel Grey high school in Charlottetown although principal Wendell Horton said there are "one or two unfortunate cases where someone loses a fair amount of money," usually the result of carelessness on their own part. Thefts from cars on the campus lots of University of Prince Edward Island, also in Charlottetown, prompted the acquisition of a patrol car for the Tidemother campus security force.

NOVA SCOTIA

After hour break-ins in schools in greater Halifax will cost more than $30,000 this year, said Arthur Conrad, director of education services for the school. St. Mary's University loses about 200 books a year, valued at some $4,000, while general thefts at Dalhousie University have reached to some $5,000.

NEW BRUNSWICK

Thieves have taken two $200 chairs, a coffee table, ashtrays, doormats, fire extinguishers and drapes this year from the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton. Thefts are on the rise at the university and extra security patrols have been put in force. Chief security officer C. F. Williamson blames the thefts mostly on students and off-campus thieves. The district school board in Saint John is attempting to cut down on thefts by having cleaning personnel and in some cases security men in school during overnight and portions of weekends.

QUEBEC

Vandalism and theft cost the Catholic school commission of Montreal $202,000 for the last school year. The commission blamed the disputes, the majority playing no sports, with no hobbies or with no way to expend their energy constructively. The Quebec City school commission has placed extra security guards and additional lights in places prone to theft.

ONTARIO

Metropolitan Toronto police report 271 break-ins at area schools in 1972 and of the $281,594 spent as a result of break-ins, most of it went to repair damage caused. It cost $22,665 to replace goods damaged beyond repair. There were 48 break-ins reports in schools in the Sudbury area with property loss amounting to some $24,000. The cost dropped considerably fthin the $99,000 necessary the previous year.

Sharp Hopes For UN Rule

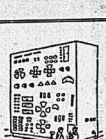
OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp flies to Paris tonight for the international conference that is purported to guarantee the peace in Vietnam. But informed observers expect little more from the meeting than a rubber stamp on the Jan. 27 ceasefire agreement.

Mr. Sharp said Thursday he seeks a single specific from the conference—establishment of "a continuing political authority" that would be responsible for the peace settlement.

That authority, he said, is an absolute requirement for Canadian participation on the International Commission of Control and Supervision beyond the initial 60-day government commitment that ends next month.

It is unlikely the conference, which starts Monday, will agree to Canada's first choice for that authority, the Security Council of the United Nations, Mr. Sharp said.

But he did not know whether it would accede to the second choice—UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.



Officials have indicated Canada also would accept a continuing extension of the conference, to which the supervisory commission could report.

Mr. Sharp said he would make no commitment at the conference to maintain Canadian involvement on the commission beyond the 60-day limit.

"I should think that will not be decided until before mid-March."

Officials said "it is pointless" for the supervisory commission to report ceasefire violations only to the parties to the treaty—Hanoi, Washington, Hanoi and the Viet Cong.

They say the commission as a fire alarm, with authority needed at the other end to hear the warning bells.

Ex-premier Of Quebec Dies at 57

MONTREAL (CP) — The heart problems that troubled and shortened the political career of Jean-Jacques Bertrand caught up with the former Quebec premier Thursday despite major open-heart surgery to save his life.

Mr. Bertrand, 57, Union Nationale premier from Sept. 28, 1968 until April, 1970, died Thursday after a two-hour operation earlier in the day and six hours of surgery Wednesday.

The Wednesday operation at the Montreal Heart Institute involved taking healthy veins from his legs and grafting them to replace congested heart vessels.

He was first elected in 1948 and, during his 20-year career in the national assembly, held four cabinet posts before he became premier in 1968 following the death of then Premier Daniel Johnson, also of a heart attack.

Even though he suffered a heart attack in 1968, Mr. Bertrand was pronounced fit for the leadership.

Lake Level Won't Exceed 1952 Record

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has moved to protect farmland threatened by high water levels in Lake Erie.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whalen said in a news release Thursday that the government will spend more than $1.3 million to repair damaged dikes in the townships of Harwich, Pelee and Mersea. The dikes were breached in a November storm.

In the Commons, the government was under pressure to take immediate action to deal with the high water levels in Lake Ontario, Lake Huron and Lake Erie.

Environment Minister Jack Davis said water levels may rise "another foot or so" this spring, but will not go higher than they did in 1952. He said the Great Lakes water level board began meeting to discuss the issue in Chicago Thursday.

Pipeline Blast Leaves 4 Dead

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A series of thundering explosions in a liquid petroleum pipeline sent flames shooting hundreds of feet into the air and killed at least four persons, authorities reported early today. Others were injured.

Two automobiles and a truck on a nearby roadway were destroyed by the blast 30 miles southeast of here.

Four persons were brought to hospital here with burns.

Dayan Bars Probe

Jet Attack Not Ordered

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Technical experts began a search today for the "black box" flight recorder from the Libyan airliner in which 106 persons died after it was forced down in the Sinai desert by Israeli jet fighters Wednesday.

But Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan announced Thursday night that there will be no formal inquiry into the disaster.

Civil aviation authorities indicated that they hope the black box, which records technical data of an aircraft's movements, might throw some light on why the disaster occurred.

At a news conference, Dayan expressed his deepest sorrow at the downing of the Libyan plane but said the great puzzle was why the pilot had ignored Israeli signals to land.

Dog Food Best Buy

OTTAWA (CP) — A Vancouver-area mother of seven, who cuts into her monthly $300 food budget to cover emergency expenses, quietly told the special Commons inquiry into rising food prices Thursday that it must act quickly or risk having "people starving to death in the streets."

Marjorie Hartling of Burnaby, B.C., head of the National Anti-Poverty Organization, said people living on today's welfare rates can daily afford little more than four soyabeurgers—"they taste a little like beef"—if they are single, two bones or kidneys if they are a small family or two large cans of dog food if they live on a pension.

The dog food was the most nutritious, she said.

Blunder Seen

STONEY CREEK, Ont. (CP) — Sam Platt, chairman of the Ontario Tender Fruit Growers Marketing Board, says the reduction in tariff rates on processed fruit products Canada exported in the federal budget is an "international trading blunder."

"These concessions have been made ahead of the . . . talks on tariffs (with the United States) and we have thrown away any bargaining position for negotiating reciprocal benefits," Mr. Platt said in a statement Thursday.

The Israeli pilots acted within their orders, he said.

At noon Israeli authorities handed over to Egypt the bodies of victims. Israel radio reported that two boats of the Suez Canal authority were helping to transfer the coffins across the canal to Egypt.

The Israeli Air Force commander, Maj. Gen. Mordecai Hod, told reporters that his pilots opened fire on the Libyan Boeing 727 only when it became clear to them that it was trying to escape under suspicious circumstances after refusing to obey orders to land.

The two Israeli Phantom pilots who intercepted the Libyan airliner after it wandered off course more than 50 miles over Sinai were presented to reporters for questioning. They were not identified.

One said he had fired a cannon burst in an effort to damage the plane when it ignored a request to land at a nearby airfield but he had no intention of shooting it down.

It appears the airliner tried to land in sand dunes about 12 miles inside Sinai but crashed and burst into flames as it touched down.

Correspondents who visited the scene found bullet holes in a wing and tail section but those in themselves did not seem enough to have caused the crash.

A tape recording of the last words from the French pilot of the Libyan plane to the control tower at Cairo airport was played back at a news conference in Cairo Thursday.

"I guess we have serious trouble with heading (direction) and compass," the pilot said.

"There was a pause. Then he said dramatically" . . . We are shot. We are shot by the fighter. We are shot by the fighter."

Egypt has asked for an international investigation into the tragedy and claims that Israel to prove its claims that efforts were made to persuade the pilot to land.

Israel Asked To Clarify Air Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp says he will ask Israel "to clarify the reasons" for shooting down a Libyan airliner Wednesday.

More than 100 persons died in the crash, which Mr. Sharp told the Commons he learned about with "shock and horror."

In reply to questions Thursday, he said the details of the events that led are obscure but it is all too clear that, by a conscious act, up to 108 civilians died. He said Terence Sheehy (NDP — Toronto - Greenwood) then asked he be an impartial inquiry to establish the facts. He didn't want this incident to be a cause of escalating difficulties in the area.

What form any Arab reply to the Israeli action might take is still a matter of speculation but it is understood that contacts are under way between the Libyan and Egyptian governments with a view to co-ordinating their attitude.

The armed forces of both countries—and those of Syria—are under the command of Egyptian War Minister Gen. Ahmed Ismail in the Federation of Arab Republics.

Observers said some spectacular action by Palestinian commandos, or Libyan volunteers who have joined their ranks, against Israel could not be excluded.

Rose Home After Two Years' Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Rose returned to his home in Montreal Thursday after two years in jail, vowing to continue his fight for the independence of Quebec.

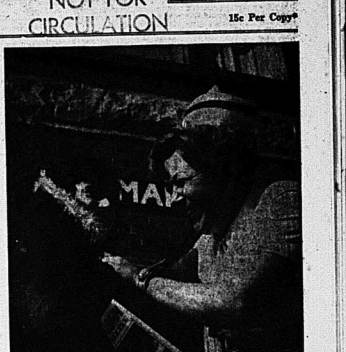
Rose was acquitted Thursday of murdering Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte in October, 1970.

Less than two hours later, he was released on condition he remain in the province, keep the peace, not communicate with witnesses at his trial and report to court March 5 to have a trial date set for the remaining charges facing him.

Mr. Justice Claude Bisson of Court of Queen's Bench said he did not see any reason to refuse Rose a conditional release as the charges are minor and not explicity after the fact and detaining Mr. Laporte against his will—were "relatively less substantial" than the previous charges.

Complicity after the fact of kidnapping is punishable by up to 14 years in prison. Forcible confinement carries a five-year jail term.

It was Rose's third trial on charges stemming from the October 1970 kidnapping and murder of Mr. Laporte.



He was acquitted at his second trial on the kidnapping charge in December after his first kidnap trial ended in a hung jury.

The verdict Thursday came after 13 hours of deliberation by the jury of nine men and three women.

Palmprints and fingerprints found in the house where Mr. Laporte was held and the car in which his body was found, testimony identifying Rose as a resident or visitor to the home and a strand of hair, were all the threads linking Rose to the murder.

In Court and Conference Indian Status Argued

OTTAWA (CP) — Debate on who should and who should not have Indian status raged in the Supreme Court of Canada and on Parliament Thursday and will continue on both fronts today.

The issue is whether Indian women lose their status when they marry white men. The court case this week brought hundreds of Indians to the capital and both debates of the issue are represented.

Indian women who have lost their status claim that male-dominated Indian brotherhoods from all provinces and Yukon Territory won't allow them to put their case before the brotherhoods.

Chiefs from Alberta and representatives of other provinces say that if the women win their case, then the powers of protection Indians enjoy for their culture, tradition and lands will disappear.

Still feeling flared among the hundreds of Indians living up for the 40-odd seats in the Supreme Court courtroom Thursday.

Harold Cardinal, president of the Indian Federation of Alberta, told the Commons Indian affairs committee he has the green light from Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien to hammer out a new Indian Act which will clarify the issue of Indian status.

Indians should decide the question and not white men, he said. He undertook to discuss the matter with treaty provincial approval before bringing the proposed act back for government and parliamentary approval.

In the Supreme Court Borbon Kellock, counsel for the Six Nations band of Indians at Brantford, Ont., said the court should not uphold lower court rulings in Semmens v. Local, now 1 Six Nations, and Mrs. Yvonne Bedard who is trying to get back to the Brantford reserve.

Both lost Indian status through marriage. Both were returned to the Indian roll by Federal Court order.

Mr. Kellock told the judges they may as well strike out the entire Indian Act if they find that the section dealing with membership offends the Bill of Rights.

He said the Six Nations before Confederation ruled that women marrying outside the band no longer were Indians.

The clause was placed in the Indian Act in 1868, he said, in conformity to Indian practice.

He couldn't believe that the Bill of Rights enacted in 1960 was meant "to tear up history."

Ear Wax Is The "Sneak Thief of Sound"

Many hearing problems can be due to excessive ear wax. One way that ear wax can impair your hearing is in the holes being the ear canals your nose and throughout your body eventually form a barrier and prevent the wax from getting out. This, of course, will also diminish sound reaching the ear drum.

If you do suspect a hearing problem of any kind, the first step is to consult your physician in order to find out the cause. Should he find a build up of ear wax there are products he can recommend to remove existing wax, prevent build up, and help your hearing once for hygiene.

Music Lovers Rally Behind Concert Group

Belleville Community Concert Association will remain operative.

The announcement by association president R. J. Ord will be sweet music to the ears of city concert goers who last week were told the BCCA was in financial crisis and ready to fold immediately.

Cause of the emergency was a serious decline in members — whose fees are the association's only source of income as mounting costs threaten local concert-music presentations by visiting artists.

Faced with the first deficit in its 28 years of sponsoring live - quality music in the city, the association executive last week took a referendum among its slightly more than 600 members. They were asked if they wanted the association to stay or fold.

Some 285 members returned the questionnaire — only four of these suggesting the association shut down.

Mr. Ord said the executive considered the result sufficient justification to carry on.

As a result, a new membership drive will be launched March 5 and plans for the 1973-74 season begun.

He estimated the association needs a total membership of about 850 to be viable.

"We've been given a reprieve and I would hope the association can continue to perpetuate itself," said Mr. Ord.

After last week's referendum he believed it was "quite evident" to members that the association needed their support in renewing memberships and finding new members.

Under proposals approved by the membership include slight increases in season individual fees to $10 for adults, $5 for students and a $25 family plan.

The concerts also will continue to be held at Belleville Collegiate auditorium.

1,500 Delegates Expected At Electric Equipment Show

Belleville has been chosen as the site for Canada's largest display of equipment used by electrical utilities personnel.

The announcement was made in the Four Seasons Hotel Wednesday by the president of the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities Don White.

The equipment display, scheduled for May 9 and 10, will feature the products of more two to three hundred Canadian suppliers and will draw delegates from utilities offices from all parts of Canada. Representatives are also expected from some of the United States.

The equipment display will not be open to the general public but, explained Mr. White, the city will derive several benefits from the exhibition through commerce generated by visitors.

It is expected at least 1,500 delegates will be in the city for the two-day show, to be held in the fairgrounds.

The $1 Million package of equipment is expected to generate up to $4 Million in trade during the exhibition.

"This is one of the few chances the utilities have of looking at equipment and comparing it without going all over the country to do it," said Mr. White, manager of North York Hydro.

Belleville's Chamber of Commerce will also be active in the exhibition. The chamber will be looking after refreshments and conference guests and will handle the catering facilities on the exhibition site.

Several councillors, the mayor and related professionals from the city attended the function last night to view slides of the previous five fairs and the best tentative plans for the Belleville segment.

Grants Approved After Questions

PICTON — Prince Edward county council grants to the Wellington and Picton arenas were queried before approval Tuesday by Picton reeve James Bird who suggested they "go up and up each year."

Council's finance and personnel committee has approved a $10,000 grant to the Picton arena and a $8,254 grant to Wellington arena and was seeking the final approval of council.

Committee chairman, Wellington reeve Robert Boyce, said the Picton arena has taken a town incentive program into consideration and the additional dressing rooms and a new referee's room will be built. A new hot water system also was needed.

Reeve Boyce said the arena commission was aggressive enough to take advantage of the LIP program for work which was urgently required.

Reeve Boyce said the Picton arena commission submitted "a very, very thorough" financial steatment.

Reeve Foster commented that in 1969, when he was county warden, he predicted subsidies soon would be necessary for both arenas in Prince Edward. He sought support for the motion to approve the increased grants.

Keith MacDonald, reeve of Hallowell, said both arenas boast "high calibre" commissions and he cautioned council support is needed or "we will have these buildings back on our hands."

Picton deputy - reeve Ross Cronkwright, who has been on the Picton arena commission, said it might "get by" without a grant if the ice were rented to outsiders. Because the arena is operated primarily for community use, however, the grants are needed to support it.

Council agreed to adopt the minutes of the finance committee meeting approving the two arena grants.

Registry Office Again Studied

PICTON — Improvements to the Prince Edward County registry office through a welter works incentive program were considered by county council at a special meeting last month.

Members of the council session forwarded during Tuesday's regular meeting, said a resolution and additions to the registry office would be made at county expense. The Ontario government would repay these costs in monthly rentals. Council has agreed to study this proposal.

A grand jury report made earlier this month recommended renovations or renovation of the registry office since its facilities are inadequate for present needs. Similar recommendations have been made in previous grand jury reports.

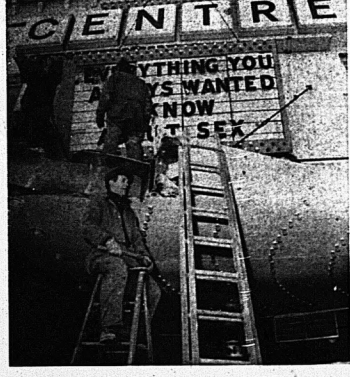
Hastings Loses Plow Match Bid

Hastings county has lost out on its bid to host the International Plowing Match in 1977.

Instead, the match will go to Frontenac, which hasn't been the site of the big match for more than 30 years.

Hastings last year bid for the 1977 match at the association convention in Toronto and its bid was again repeated this year by Kenneth Mumby of Rawdon township representing the Hastings County Plowmen's Committee. Kent county also had a bid in for the 1977 match.



Frontenac County's application was a last-minute entry, but the Kingston committee made certain that its request was heard.

A full booklet made the trip to Toronto, supporting the application with hoopla bands and a presentation outlining the press media facilities which would be available to publicize the event.

Hastings county was host for the International Plowing match in 1961, the five-day event being staged at the Conference and Arthur Vermilyea farms immediately north of the city.

All I Wanted to Know Was.....

Former Trenton resident Frank Smith, now in Toronto, (atop ladder) brought his work crew to town yesterday to relocate the Centre Theatre's billboard. Repairing the lettered sign from the theatre marquee was a tricky business and a few of the letters fell of several businesses. In Picton during the wrong times. Placing the sign on the front of the building is in compliance with a 1967 by-law curbing overhanging signs. To have gone into effect Jan. 1, 1972, the by-law will be in force by the end of next week after council postponed it at request of Aldenshire Carpets.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Corporation of the City of Belleville will apply to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, at its next session, for special legislation to provide that By-laws may be passed by the said Corporation to provide for an annual retirement allowance to the Clerk of the said Corporation during his life, and to the surviving spouse during her life, pursuant to section 239 of The Municipal Act RSO 1970 Chapter 284, as amended, notwithstanding the requirement of said section that an employee during his life shall have had a least twenty years continuous service with the municipality.

Tough Break

There is something rather ironic or paradoxical in the contrasting fortunes of Dr. Henry Kissinger, key Nixon aide and peace negotiator, and Captain Michael Heck, ex U.S. B-52 bomber pilot and war hero.

Here are two men who have served their country well, but while one has reached perhaps the peak of his career with the conclusion of yet another diplomatic mission — one coming in the wake of the Vietnam peace treaty and including a meeting with China's Chairman Mao — the other has been quietly discharged from the U.S. air force.

Captain Heck was one of the men whose B-52 "marauders" helped the United States toward a point where Dr. Kissinger and his North Vietnamese counterparts could reach a mutually-acceptable agreement which also fulfilled for the Americans the prerequisites of "peace with honor" which they had sought for so long.

On his third tour of duty, Captain Heck flew nearly 200 missions either as a bomber pilot or as forward air controller. On December 27, with 175 missions behind him, the 30-year-old pilot apparently had a crisis of conscience. The Christmas ceasefire was over when he decided "the goals do not justify the mass destruction and killing," and refused to fly any further missions. He appealed for conshie status as a conscientious objector and was assigned to administrative duties at his base in Thailand while his fate was decided.

The word now is that Heck returned to an air force base in Louisiana last Wednesday and was discharged the following day. The much-decorated airman is quoted as saying he had been given his discharge under "less than honorable conditions" which he described as being the equivalent of an undesirable discharge.

Before returning to the U.S., and while talking about his decision, Heck said "anytime you bomb on the massive scale we did there are bound to be bombs off target. . ." Taking evasive action against missiles could account for error and, he added, "there are also certain inherent errors in any bombing equipment. . ."

Here was no draft dodger, but Heck might just as well be at this stage. In a sense he "blew it" — his career that is, just when the whole show was about over. Yet it appears he is at peace with himself, with his own conscience. Some will argue that this is all that counts . . . yet if everyone backed out of the latter duty as Captain Heck did, wouldn't it be letting down the side? There come to mind some words ascribed, we understand, to Sir Winston Churchill: "In war you don't have to be nice — you only have to be right." War may not be right, but if you are at war then you might as well try to win. In Vietnam no one won, but all things considered — the bombing included — led to a truce. Captain Heck and a host of other servicemen played their part — just what role is in hindsight.

Dr. Kissinger meanwhile has no such problems. He too has served his country well, but for him the ball game was different, maybe even a little easier. Both he and all the Captain Hecks had much the same end in view, but now that it has been accomplished, the Biblical passage about all things coming alike to all men does not seem to fit.

Israeli Error

Past Arab atrocities notwithstanding, the shooting down by the Israelis of a Libyan civil airliner seems to us to have been neither strategically necessary nor morally excusable. In this case it is the Israelis, of whom we had thought better, who have seriously compromised prospects of a settlement of the sad, mixed-up and long-drawn out confrontation between Arab and Jew in the Middle East.

March 31 Deadline For Recommendations

Commons' Committee on Food is Working Against Time

By RON ADAMS
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Commons' special committee on trends in food prices has only until the end of March to present an interim report to Parliament, presumably telling the government whether it should consider controls on some or all sectors of the food industry.

But spokesmen for the parties admit they are skeptical about the committee's chances of coming up with useful recommendations in less than two months.

Committee chairman Bud Collins (Lib-Sarnia) says he is determined to try to make the committee work, but the suspects the Conservatives may be willing to discredit the committee and therefore discredit the government that formed it.

Conservative Allan Lawrence, the former Ontario cabinet minister who now represents the rural Northumberland — Durham riding, says he, too, has suspected from the beginning that the committee was "a delaying tactic" to give the government an excuse for inaction in rising food costs.

And New Democratic Party agriculture critic Michael Cassidy shares some of Mr. Collins's distrust of the Conservatives' motives, says she wonders "just what can be done" in two months.

At the same time, all three spokesmen say they are encouraging their members to give it their best efforts.

Mr. Collins said he doubts that the two-month deadline will be met, although Ottawa seems to formulate firm recommendations on an issue as politically sensitive as price controls. But, he said, if the evidence warranted it, the committee could probably recommend strongly that the government consider controls on a particular sector of the food industry, or even take the opposite tack, warning that controls should probably not be imposed at this time.

Mr. Lawrence says he does not think the results will be even that positive.

At best, he said, the committee members will make a political beginner on the desirability of price controls.

"I don't think we are going to have the evidence in two months to come in with workable and realistic recommendations," he said.

Mr. Lawrence, who is chairman of the Conservative caucus committee on consumer affairs, said he still believes his party's original proposals were better. The Tories had proposed amendments to the motion setting up the committee that called for a final report after three months, not two. They also said "a short, sharp committee" which could review existing evidence already collected by a provincial department that could rely on food producers, processors or retailers to provide briefs and stories, and pull it all together.

But the Tory motion failed to muster a majority to do that, he said, and the fact that the committee could expect to continue indefinitely after it presents its interim report relieves the urgency of the study.

He said he and the other nine Conservatives on the 25-member committee are proceeding "on the chance the committee might produce something".

Mrs. MacInnis says the three-member NDP contingent on the committee is "totally surprised" about getting as much information as possible out of the hearings of the group, hopefully following through with recommendations.

Ideally, in her view, that action would be the establishment of a price review board where the consumer and corporate affairs department that could rely on food producers, processors or retailers to provide briefs and stories.

That body would have the power to roll back prices it considered unjustified.

She is an advocate of food price controls and says that other countries which have established with price and income "freezes", have retained controls on food even when other sectors were "unfrozen".

Mrs. MacInnis sees the committee as a chance to get a foot in the door. Even if price controls do not follow directly, it can at least focus public attention on the areas where prices are out of control and influence how much.

Because of the time limit and the uncertain Parliamentary situation, the committee will do all of its interim work in Ottawa.

It will not hear personal representations and individuals, although brief written submissions have been invited.

It will not travel across the country, or outside Canada, at least until the interim report is completed.

And whether it survives its own internal political bombshells, and the challenge, the party spokesmen have at least one basic common premise.

As Mr. Collins put it, the committee already knows it costs too much to eat those days.

"We know prices are up — every shopper could tell us that," he said. "What we have to find out is why."

Israel Is Arms Exporter and Producer

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

It will come as a big surprise to many that Israel, major purchaser of aircraft and weapons from the world's largest armament-producing country, is herself in the arms export business.

Earlier this month Israel Defence Industries, a state manufacturing consortium, told the Israeli Government publicly launched Israel's first missile carrier gunboat. Previously, Israel had bought three hydrofoil-based coastal warships from France, until General de Gaulle's 1969 arms embargo prevented their delivery.

The unprecedented publicity given to the new gunboat was bet to tell the French Israel could now build her own naval warships, but to tell the world Israel could supply them. Present Israeli Navy plans call for construction of three more gunboats at about $10 millions each.

And an even larger production line from foreign orders would make their new warships that much less costly to the Israelis.

By publicizing the new vessels, Israeli Defence Industries is soliciting foreign orders. In effect, they have been arms builders and sellers in the world market for years, but Israeli politicians' troubles with such Third World African states as Uganda and the Sudan, are based on accusations that the sale of arms to these countries that rebel groups have been armed with Israeli guns, ammunition and grenades and military vehicles.

The new gunboat, called the STOL (Short-Take-Off Landing) aircraft which is to be fitted with distinctly Canadian, has also been designed and developed for foreign buyers by Israel Defence Industries, at lower down payments than the arms purchasers raise than De Havilland Aircraft of Canada can offer aforesaid for their STOL models.

An Israeli aircraft industry, which claims it will soon produce a copy of the very complex French Mirage 4 tactical jet fighter, has been offering light aircraft, similar to the Cessna, for sale either as military trainers or for use in the civilian area as crop dusting.

The ever-shrewd Israelis have also been quick to see how they scatter the world for their arms manufacturing and sales. Israeli Aircraft Industries buy their jet engines from Britain's Rolls Royce.

As foreign suppliers resupply an Israeli business, often under licence, the Israeli economy benefits. In the event of future events, Israel's quickly-growing state defence and aircraft industries have borrowed and perfected foreign designs and are equipment adaptable to their own needs.

And as people in the world, with the Vietnam War now over, have been using so much foreign military equipment in their own civil battles as has Israelis. Now that they have tested all their weaponries and equipment in battle, they can now offer domestically-built models to the world's armies market.

Israel is believed to be offering her modified weapons and military equipment at very low cost to poor Third World nations, like the former Biafra, which have no money to buy arms for war or warring neighbors.

The identical situation in Israel's sister State, Israel's defence spokesmen also justify the domestic arms industry with the export potential because the world's large arms producing countries are in many countries facing overwhelming odds.

Aussies Seek National Anthem

Manchester Guardian

By dropping "God Save" and offering a revised text something to sing in her place, Australia has apparently resolved a problem to a country — the composition of a sensible national anthem. Too often such compositions are simply invitations of ephemeral mediocrities, deeply felt, no doubt, but not to be sung in a thin voice by anyone in an empire at its apogee of what has gone before should warn the heroics of the pitfalls.

Ritual images abound. Lincolnshire thins to sea itself as "where the church bells freely ring" and Australia to "our land girt round in beauty." Historic figures loom gigantic. For Andorra it is Montserrat, the Great Mother and for Australia "the land we love." Scenery.

Tucked away in second verses are some curious sentiments. "We've boundless plains to share" describes less recently — to our knowledge — than the days when we found their politics frustrate their knavish tricks." Romania sang "We've boundless plains to share" with "the Soviet people, our liberators" but also dotted on Leninism or "our guiding star."

Violence and defiance are constant themes. Newfoundland sings "We're strong and free" spoiling their aural and semantic resonance with "we're sons of freedom." Quebec acknowledges, with rare modesty, that "in us his people God has placed a mighty faith." Egypt by contrast strikes a note of unmitigated aggression in its opening: "O my country, my land I swear by the Nile and Pyramids, arsenal and all art, for victory number one." Spain, of the bay on the Spanish Coast, Denmark's "King of the North" and her "Ye seamen in mist and storm" and Sweden's "I'm a true northerner" and Austria's number two "Advance, brave Austrian!" has also been represented, for it contains partners rising references to Allhun, and Switzerland's "Fatherland, Fatherland

Indians' New Act To Reflect Future

OTTAWA (CP) — Harold Cardinal, president of the Indian Federation of Alberta, told the Commons Indian Affairs committee Thursday that when a new Indian Act is drafted by his group, it will reflect not only present but the future Indian needs.

The results of such a proposal—to be drafted in consultation with Indians in other provinces—may necessitate translated into legislation by the federal government.

But Mr. Cardinal said his group would question the value of any new policy drafted "without Indian participation."

Some of the needs he cited were: Creation of a legislative base for Indian administration policies over the next 20 years, a means of providing land security, clarification of who determines the rights to Indian status and creation of a statutory base for Indian bargaining powers.

Mr. Cardinal said he will recommend by the report of the Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien in 1971 proposal to be draft a new Indian Act within one year.

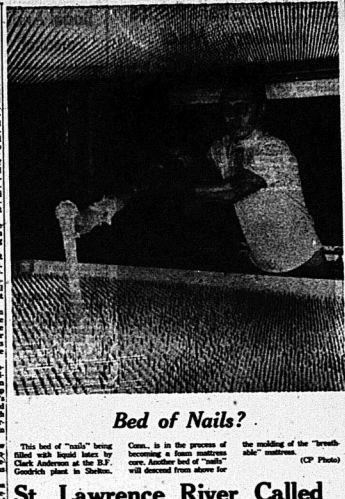
"I think the response in our meeting with the minister was positive. The answer seems to be that money was available for work to take place and that agreement can be reached among bands across the country."

The meeting with the ministers was prompted by fear that the outcome of a Supreme Court of Canada case involving Indian chances for survival as a cultural group by "eroding rights to land."

The court started Thursday to hear an appeal by the federal government against a Federal Court finding that a section of the Indian Act saying women who lose their status in a mixed marriage is unconstitutional because it runs counter to the Bill of Rights. Indians marrying whites retain their status.

Indians feel a judgment in favor of the two women involved—Jeannette Lavell, a Cayuga who married a white man, and Mrs. Yvonne Bedard of Iroquois Indian descent who married after her marriage broke up—could add thousands of Indians to the Indian rolls. They feel their land and resources are too limited to allow such a change.

Most Indians feel many of these problems could be solved by the introduction of a new Indian Act drafted entirely by Indian people. They have asked the federal government to protect the Indian Act from court action for 18 months.



But Mr. Cardinal said there would be no consultation with the native people regarding areas covered by treaties.

"We can't tell the Metis not to come to Ottawa" he said. "The Metis people in my province chose the status of Canadian citizens and the provincial government is the governmental responsible for their affairs."

Mr. Cardinal met with most of the PFA's national proposals. But he said they would be opposed to any legislation, to recognize different needs of Indian people in different areas.

Mr. Carruthers said any new Indian Act would have to include a "Manitoba section" designed to meet the province's unique needs.

Mr. Carruthers said Manitoba government is willing to delegate autonomy at the local level and suggested a system over its financial responsibility to a board of Indians which could administer federal funds throughout the province.

St. Lawrence River Called 'Sordid' 'Abhorrent Legacy'

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The St. Lawrence River was labelled a "sordid" and "abhorrent legacy" that has been clogged with weeds and waste.

Ernie Laishley of Cornwall, town seer Cornwall, told the provincial resources development policy committee meeting here Thursday he has "seen a ten retch from the stench after cutting a hole in river ice to fish.

He told seven cabinet ministers that a combination of industrial, municipal and engineering feats have laid the river low.

Mr. Laishley said a dam on the St. Lawrence Seaway has stopped old Mother Nature's spring cleaning program.

He said that prior to the harnessing of the long South Raquette tributaries for hydro power transmission line from Quebec to Toronto in winter. At spring breakup, a great surge of water would burtle the flues down river, "inevitably clearing and scouring the channels and shallows on their way."

Before construction of the seaway dam, the river was "the far biggest commodities but now nobody drinks the water and the fish and wildlife are leaving the district."

Only the main shipping channel, about 220 yards wide out of the total three-mile river width, is dredged.

He said the province should begin an immediate river cleanup in the Cornwall area, a work which present municipal sewage facilities could not handle down the seven cusecs.

"Nature would then be left to cleanse the waters herself," he said.

Labor Minister Fern Guindon told the meeting Mr. Laishley's description was "startling and sad" and the word-for-word evening proposal interested him greatly.

Deliberate Plan Seen To Keep Towns Small

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — early season told the ministers and their senior staff members that there is a need for diversification in order to keep industry into their areas.

Dr. D. Gibson, MPP for Smiths Falls, said his town of 9,000 is having difficulty attracting industry and said more help is needed from government to help.

He said the town is negotiating with an industry that will employ a hunt but it is "virtually tied up with the Ont. Hydro for field jobs. He said small northeast communities are under the same pressure.

Dr. Gibson said the districts also feel the brain drain and lose out on the "cream of the crop" to the bigger areas.

Dr. Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, said he places a high priority on getting industry into the northern part of the province. Dave Cornwall on vacation from Ont. Hydro is now under the same pressure.

Mr. Bennett said the province is attempting to find out, through a survey, what is attract industry.

Several delegations from the district to the area.

Committee to Ask McNie To Explain Hiring Statement

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's hyper and universities, was rejected legislature committee on public accounts refused Thursday to summon Cabinet Minister Jack McNie to explain statements attributed to him last month about opportunities of university graduates.

Only seven of the 11 committee members — four Conservatives, Donald Bennett (PC—Simcoe East), Gordon Carton (PC—Muskoka) and Richard Ferrier (PC—Cochrane North) — voted for the hearings which were to have been a re-hearing of a committee decision on drafting a report for the government.

But Dennis Timbrell (NDP—Wentworth) got a motion that he be allowed to call witnesses to be decided upon later, and bring in the report.

The committee in order to get a quorum to the hearing quotes for the report, which was defeated 6 to 3.

Richard Smith (L—Simcoe Centre) said he has already decided that he has already decided that he has already decided that

Sleepy German Town Has Diamond Exchange

IDAR OBERSTEIN, West Germany (Reuter) — A small town in Germany is to become the world's largest first central exchange for all precious stones—from emeralds and amethysts to diamonds and rubies.

Nearing completion in this sleepy town, wedged in a valley 31 miles southwest of Frankfurt, is a massive 22-storey building which will house what the Chamber of Commerce here calls one of the "world's first diamond and precious stone exchanges."

Well before the scheduled opening last November, diamond and precious stone dealers from many countries signed for all the 1,000 office places in the building, taking up roughly four-fifths of the available space.

The list of countries to be represented here ranges from Afghanistan and Argentina to Zambia and the United States.

Members of the newly-founded Idar Oberstein Diamond and Precious Stone Bourse go to great lengths to stress that the new exchange is not aimed at rivalling the London dealing in the 2,000 tons now existing in fortwers. New York, London, Amsterdam, Tel Aviv, Milan, Vienna and Johannesburg.

Dr. Rex Guenther, manager of the bourse, said: "We simply wanted to fill a gap. So far, a major shopping for stones must do it in the land way by travelling the 53 countries where precious stones are found.

"Here, a trader looking for a selection of stones will be able to walk from office to office, comparing stones and prices."

Though bourse members are reluctant to give even a vague estimate of the value of the cut and raw stones of all sizes, colors and shapes that will be kept in supply Guenther said it was "immense."

"There will be few buildings in Germany where such riches are amassed," he added, "not even in Schatz major banks."

This is not surprising in view of the fact, that a top-quality one-carat diamond will cost the trade buyer up to $1,987, with a two-carat stone changing at around $8,237. Emeralds are even more costly, with a one-carat stone of the finest quality changing hands for up to $2,825.

The carat in the equivalent of 205 milligrams and, as the late Jim Fitzpatrick, creator of James Bond, once said: "You can carry enough diamonds in your inside leg to set you up for life."

Belleville General Hospital's Future Discussed at Auxiliary Meet

The future of the Belleville General Hospital including the Edith Cavell School of Nursing was the subject of Phillip Rickard's, Executive Director of the Belleville General Hospital, speech to the Hospital Auxiliary at their Tuesday, Feb. 20 meeting.

Mr. Rickard reported that the building program was completed and there are several problems. The diagnostic departments of the hospital have had an increased number of tests carried out, Mr. Rickard gave reports of the rising number since 1967 of x-ray examinations, laboratory tests, electrocardiographs, pulmonary function tests. The rise in these tests according to Mr. Rickard affects the money and space requirements in the situation.

Another problem the guest speaker introduced by Mrs. H. G. Harvey noted was the Emergency Department. Financial restrictions imposed by the provincial government is another problem. The parking situation and health care at the provincial level raises other problems for the future. The importance of home care is now stressed. This service will be developed to a much greater extent in the future.

Mr. Rickard noted the move of the nursing education to community colleges. Future decisions will be necessary regarding the nurses hostels and the new building which will become available to the hospital and the Board of Governors.

Mrs. P. M. Till thanked the guest speaker.

During the business meeting it was reported that the new Coffee and Gift Shops are doing well and are much appreciated by the public, patients and staff according to Mrs. S. B. Bochnek. However, they would be most grateful for the services of more teenagers and adult volunteers either on a regular basis or spares. She presented a cheque from the Coffee Shop for $1,200 and one from the Gift Shop for $1,200.

Mrs. Bochnek then called on Mrs. S. C. Angus, in the absence of Mrs. Bonnie Mc Kinnon, bandicraft chairman of the gift shop, to give a report. She stated that she had patterns of stuffed toys and some for bedspreads were out if any of the good sewers and knitters would be willing to assist.

Mrs. Ashley then announced that Mrs. Ben E. Burley and her committee in charge of the planning and decorating of these shops would carry on in this capacity.

The Opportunity Shop on the Market Square also had a very good month, Mrs. C. A. Campbell convenor reported presented a cheque for $1,500 being the shop's profits for the month of January.

Mrs. A. B. Duffy, reported that 128 members had paid their 1973 membership and that there were 30 new members, Mrs. Ben E. Burley, Bulletin editor showed the bulletin sent out this month.

Mrs. George M. Wilson, Chairman of the Hospital Volunteers report showed 22 volunteers gave 273 hours in service. There were 201 patients visited, 1482 articles of distributed and 682 books circulated by the library cart.

Mrs. Allan Hall had a display of tray favors used on Valentine's Day. Other attractive favors were made by the guides and members of the Uganda District (1st Rosin, 1st Stirling, 1st Corbyville, 1st Pontiac) also the Bells Belleville guides.

Mrs. E. Stewart convener of puppets, reported that her committee had kept supply of puppets in the Pediatrics ward at the hospital.

Mrs. M. C. MacLeod, chairman of the Samaritan Cupboard reported that the cupboard was well stocked but requested knitters to assist with baby sets.

The President, Mrs. C. D. Ashley announced that the annual Dinner Dance would be convened by Mrs. S. B. Bochnek.

Mrs. M. C. macLeod, convener of the Annual Luncheon then gave her report. She thanked her able committee, Mrs. J. M. Locke, in charge of tickets, Mrs. J. R. Sisson of the gift shop handcraft committee who provided sweet frees for the table decorations, Mrs. Kenneth Bird who played background music and Mrs. Graham Fields who helped with pre-luncheon arrangements. She also expressed the auxiliary thanks to Mr. Brougher, Food Manager of the B. G. H., and his staff who provided such a delicious meal and Mr. Turner and the housekeeping staff for all their assistance.

Hot Potato Salad

Potato Facts From Specialists At the Ontario Food Council

All potato bags must be labelled with the name and address of the packer or shipper, the grade, the weight, and the words "table potatoes". Marking the potato variety on the package is optional at the present time.

"Table crop" potatoes are available from approximately mid - September to the first frost and then all winter from storage. These mature potatoes have a thick skin and long storage life.

Potatoes should be stored in a cool, dark place to prevent greening, shriveling and sprouting. The best storage temperatures are 45 to 50 deg. F., for long - term storage, and 50 to 70 deg. F. for short-term storage. The storage atmosphere should be well ventilated. Poor ventilation may result in darkening of the potatoes after cooking.

Refrigerator storage is not recommended because temperatures below 40 degrees change potato starch to sugar. The result is a change in flavor and an undesirable dark color when potatoes are fried.

Calorie counters often avoid potatoes because they are "fattening". They needn't — a medium sized baked potato (100 gms) contains 90 calories.

With the exception of barbecuing, it is generally conceded that potatoes taste best when left unwrapped.

Ann Landers
No Thank-you Note? Forget the Next Party

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a couple moved next door and we became friendly. I showed the woman where the best markets were, the choice cleaning shop, the hair stylist and told her all the little things a new neighbor needs to know.

When she entertained for the first time we were invited. It was a beautiful party for their friends from Europe—church pages and all the trimmings. Three weeks later they gave a dinner for my husband and me to show their appreciation for our help. They invited four couples bridging in-sorts of our closest friends.

Last night (and this is not sour grapes, Ann) they gave a very large party. The cars were lined up for a block. One of their guests got his car in our driveway which I thought was rather rude.

This morning I jokingly mentioned it to my neighbor and added, "It looked like quite a party. How come we weren't invited?"

She replied, "I wasn't sure you enjoyed the last two parties. I never heard from you."

I told my husband about her remark and he said, "I believe she has a point. Why didn't you drop her a note?"

I think they are both crazy. Do you believe a next-door neighbor should expect a gold engraved thank-you note? I'd feel like a fool writing a letter to the woman next door. Sign me—Snubbed In California

Dear S.: A written thank-you note need not be in "gold," but it is certainly in order when a party is given in your honor. If you didn't want to write a note you should have telephoned the following day—and perhaps sent flowers.

If I sound like a moth-eaten square, forgive me, but too many of the old customs are being dropped these days and I think it's a shame.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of an 18-month-old child. I'm sure millions of other young mothers have the same problem, so please print my letter and tell us what to do about it.

Since Jimmy was old enough to walk, strangers have been giving him candy, chewing gum and money whenever we are in a supermarket, or even on a bus. Jimmy is a boy is very cute and friendly and says "Hi" to everyone. His expression, "He never met a stranger," was made for this kid. If Jimmy was a diabetic or had some allergies he would be in serious trouble. Why don't adults think about such things? It so happens that Jimmy is a healthy child, but this business of getting so many gifts has spoiled him to the point that now he expects things and doesn't even say thank you.

Will you please tell the well-meaning public not to offer a small child a piece of candy or money? Thank you. Ann—Mother Of An Overly-Gifted Child

Dear Mother: My advice is for you, not the "well-meaning public." As the mother of this child it is your responsibility to see that he or she may be permitted to accept gifts from strangers. When someone offers Jimmy candy, gum or money, you should say, "Thank you for your kindness, however we don't allow him to accept gifts from strangers." The "something-for-nothing" philosophy is already too deeply instructed in our young people. Misguided generosity only serves to promote it.

Makes 4-6 servings.

Canned Tomatoes Good In More Ways Than One

Canned tomatoes are a year-round good buy. Their bright color and low price will cheer up the cook and brighten up the meal, say food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Since the time of the French Revolution, the "gourmet of summer" or "apple of love" has been a popular and versatile vegetable. Today, its multiple uses inspire winter meals with garden-fresh flavor. Add a can of tomatoes to beef, chicken, pork, veal, fish or pasta to create exciting, nutritious and economical meals for family and friends. Use tomatoes just as they come from the can or drain well and use instead of fresh tomatoes. Serve them right from the can with a sprinkle of sugar or a dollop of sour cream or with a garnish with a bay leaf or a dash of garlic salt.

LEPROSY INCREASING

TORONTO (CP) — Despite modern medicine, leprosy is increasing faster than there are means and staff to remedy it, the Leprosy Mission Canada in Toronto said. Fewer than three million of the more than 15 million cases in the world are under treatment, the mission said.

He paid his dues. But PWP president Tony Rosa refunded his money when he saw them together.

Rosa was right. They were wed five weeks later.

They have a lot in common. Five children each. The husband — William Hendrix — has four girls and a boy. The wife — the former Lyn Udell — has three girls and two boys. Together they have a pair of 13 - year -olds, one 22-year-old, a pair of 10 - year - olds, an eight - year - old, a six - year - old, a pair of four-year-olds, and a two - year old.

They'll roll nowadays in a five-bedroom house in Manteca but are looking for a ranch. They'll need it.

Their apartment did not disturb the kids. They were gaining pals, not just parents. — The Single Parent.

Writer of Your Mind
by JOHN COWELL

Must parents take 'no' from a child?

NO. Still not all, the mother and father should investigate why they are getting such defiance from their child when he is told to do something. First, they should try not to show they are startled by such an answer (the child will be secretly pleased that he can get them aroused). Then the parents should see why their youngster is rebelling. He could be trying to tell them indirectly that he feels rejected.

Can ambition get out of hand?

CERTAINLY, and the danger is not merely that an excessively ambitious person could become a flitter; or that ambition can urge someone to strive for something beyond his reach. Perhaps the greatest danger is that ambition can so consume a person that he will overlook the things in life that can give him the most pleasure, for instance, many family activities and projects for the future to put off coping with his present anxieties.

Does a wife hold a marriage together?

NOT by herself, that's for sure. Or at least, a wife shouldn't bear the sole responsibility for keeping a marriage on a straight course of happiness and contentment. Sometimes a husband, however, thinking he is considerate and thoughtful, shows by his acts, and isn't too disagreeable, he's done his bit to help his marriage. Yet he is the first one to say, "Gee, we never do anything for excitement around here any more."

Save Vitamin C In the Potato

Potatoes supply more nutrients in proportion to amounts than do most foods with such modest calories. Potatoes do contain calories (about 90 for a medium potato), but their claim to fame is the fact they are an excellent source of Vitamin C. Proper storage, preparation and cooking of the potato will retain vitamin C, say food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Vitamin C is a sensitive vitamin, destroyed by exposure to heat, high temperature and oxygen. A potato stored in a cool, dark area will retain the vitamin C, whereas a potato stored for a long period in a warm bright area will lose this precious vitamin.

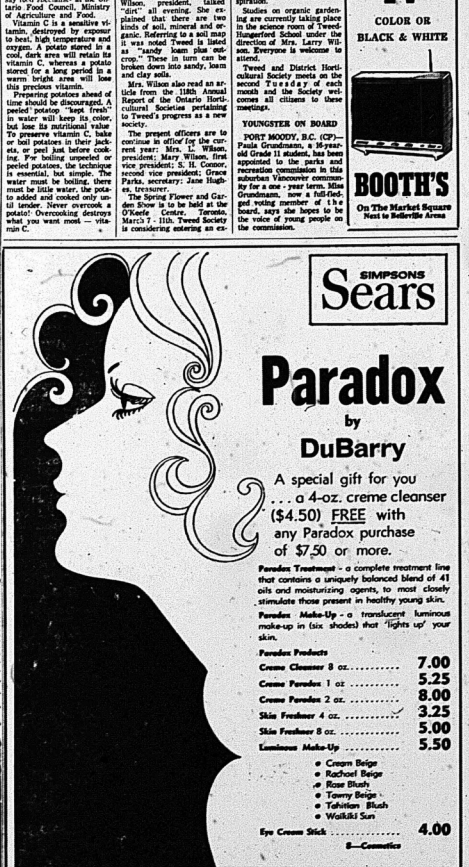
Preparing potatoes ahead of time should be discouraged. A peeled potato "kept fresh" in water will keep its color, but has its nutritional value. To preserve vitamin C, bake or boil potatoes in their jackets, or peel just before cooking. For boiling unpeeled or peeled potatoes, the technique is essential, but simple. The water must be boiling, there must be little water, the potatoes must be added and cooked until tender. Never overcook a potato! Overcooking destroys what you want most — vitamin C.

Soil and More Soil At Horticultural Méet

At the first 1973 meeting of the Tweed and District Horticultural Society, Mrs. Larry Wilson presided, talked "dirt" all evening. She explained that there are two kinds of soil, mineral and organic. Referring to a soil map she was noted Tweed is listed as "sandy loam plus outcrop." These in turn can be broken down into sandy, loam and clay soils.

Mrs. Wilson also read an article from the 118th Annual Report of the Ontario Horticultural Societies pertaining to Tweed's progress as a new society.

The present officers are to continue in office for the current year: Mrs. L. Wilson, president; Mary Wilson, first vice president; S. H. Connor, second vice president; Grace Parks, secretary; Jane Hudgets, treasurer.



The Spring Flower and Garden Show is to be held at the Recreation Centre, Toronto, March 7 - 11th. Tweed Society is considering entering an exhibit in the show in the "Mall-In Section" division "Beachcomber" and or "Oriental Inspiration."

Studies on organic gardening are currently taking place in the science room of Tweed-Hungerford School under the direction of Mrs. Jane Hall-Wilson. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Tweed and District Horticultural Society meets on the second Tuesday of each month and the Society welcomes all citizens to these meetings.

Ontario to Lose $25 Million By Ottawa's Income Tax Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario budget. Treasurer John White said Thursday the province will lose $25 million in revenue from personal income taxes as a result of new fiscal policies announced Monday night in the federal budget.

Asked at a news conference what impact the loss will have on Ontario's ability to collect more revenue without raising taxes this year Mr. White replied: "Well, $25 million is a great deal of money."

Mr. White brings down his own budget April 12 but refused to be pinned down on whether he is considering tax increases to offset an anticipated $1.1-billion deficit for the province in the next fiscal year.

"Talimply do not know at this stage of the game."

He said alternatives to tax increases would be to cut government expenditures or raise more money through loans. But he said Finance Minister John Turner's budget has left Ontario with no new avenues for raising revenues.

The federal budget provided for a five-per-cent maximum reduction in personal income taxes with a $120 minimum benefit. Ontario had actively sought a nine-per-cent reduction which it could have used to reduce taxes in the province by five per cent.

But Mr. Turner's budget had provided "no net change insofar as fiscal stimulus is concerned."

Sargent Urges Check on Spending

TORONTO (CP) — Newspapers were urged Thursday by Eddie Sargent, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Grey-Bruce, to keep a close check on government spending.

"This check is needed more than ever in Ontario today," he said in an address to the Ontario Provincial Dailies Association.

It was a challenge to newspapers, which Mr. Sargent pictured as "the sole auditor of expenditures and performance."

There was "fantastic overstaffing" in the civil service. As much as $240 million could be saved by wholesale firings.

Mr. Sargent also called for full public disclosure of all political donations, especially disclosure of donations by firms doing business with the government.

Such a step would "stop the trafficking in selling licences to do business with Ontario's biggest firms."

Schools' Future Limited

"The Fifi is breaking up, that old school gang of mine."

If education needs a theme for the next five years, it's phrase of the old tune.

Enrolments are declining at the rate of five per cent a year in elementary schools. The number of students in secondary schools will rise steadily for a few years before falling off as today's youngsters reach grade 9. But this hike is partially offset by the dropout rate of the over 16-year-old students. It is reported to have doubled this year in some areas.

Because families are having fewer children, Hastings county board of education this week announced the closing of four schools.

The 30 pupils in Gilmour Public School will be bused to Coe Hill in September.

Shannonville Public School's 42 pupils will be bused to Tyendinaga Central school next year. The central school has been built in 1967 and now has 322 pupils. The construction at Shannonville, had it remained open, would have dropped from 51 pupils now to 42 in September. Tyendinaga, which had 429 pupils in 1970, will drop to about 369 next September, even with the infusion of Shannonville's pupils.

Point Anne school to be closed this year, has 76 pupils. This will drop to 65 in September. Its kindergarten through grade 8 pupils will be bused to Douglas Atkins School. This will help fill up Douglas Atkins, whose enrolment is falling off alarmingly. The grade 7 and 8 pupils from Douglas Atkins will be sent to Harry J. Clarke in a senior school in the city.

West of the Moira, the picture changes.

While it is untrue, as one wit suggested at Thursday night's meeting at Queen Alexandra School, that "they're more fertile over there," the number of elementary school aged children is rising in Parkdale and West Park Village. The reason is new housing developments and the turnover in the bulk of the city's young married couples with small children.

It looks now as though Hastings county board of education will be faced eventually with an addition to Parkdale School and a new school in West Park Village.

In Belleville, construction of multi-unit highrise makes no impact on the school system. The school serving the most recent apartment highrise on Bridge St. East braced itself for an influx after units began renting. The building produced one pupil.

Cots OK

PICTON — Employees of roads department will be living down on the job in future with the approval of county council.

With the $125 purchase of four rollaway cots for the roads department, requested by Picton Reeve James Bird, council was assured there'd a been no error. County engineer Donald Clark said employees working on standby shifts had been lying on truck seats at the base to get extra rest. The cots were bought to provide comfortable accommodation when stormy weather necessitate late working hours.

This is How It's Got to Be

Hastings county school board chairman Mac Smith was surrounded by anxious parents last night after he broke the news Queen Alexandra School will be closed in June. The announcement was difficult for Mr. Smith — Queen Alex was the school he attended as a child, and his children received their elementary schooling there.

Licensed Drivers May Not Be

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

A change last summer in the licensing of convicted impaired drivers has left the courts, police and public in a quandary.

Judge J. L. Clendenning of Belleville provincial court regularly advises guilty persons to consult their lawyer if they are qualified for a restricted licence under the amended Criminal Code of Canada.

For police, the new law means certain motorists on the road are unable to produce a licence on request. A driver pulled off to the side can refer to a judge's sentence, telling the legal aspect of his position behind the wheel into a verbal debate between himself and the puzzled officer.

And the public is no better off. Drivers who have been told they may go on the road between prescribed hours are suddenly required to forward their licences to the Ontario government, leaving them to the unenviable position of wondering which side of the law they stand on.

The problem arose July 15 when the federal government decided to alter the Code, giving individuals convicted of impaired driving the opportunity to drive when it was necessary for their livelihood.

But the provincial government, which according to the Canada North American Act has final say on road matters, has not amended the Highway Traffic Act. As a result, guilty drivers still receive notices to surrender their licences about a month after they are convicted.

Prior to the change, first offenders in Ontario automatically lost their licences for three months, except in cases where damage or injury resulted when the prohibition would last six months. This situation often resulted in truck drivers sitting idle and working wives abandoning their jobs to chauffeur husbands back and forth to work.

Now, persons found guilty from job locations can apply to a provincial judge to drive a car to reach work. A truck driver or delivery man is eligible to continue on the job, even if he can only take the wheel of a company vehicle.

"They have to bring the provincial legislation up to date in line with federal changes," says Belleville lawyer Peter Ticktin. "In Toronto, where the provincial legislature is located, they don't realize how much hardship is created."

Mr. Ticktin maintains the amendment is a dispute in where public transportation is not readily available for the individual who has lost his licence.

It's extra important here," he says, "A car is essential," and points out that the revised regulations — "long overdue" — do not apply to persons convicted more than once. Habitual drinking drivers, therefore, are still kept off the road.

Another lawyer, Robert Gibson, has a dispute in now before the Ontario Court of Appeal. He wonders if it is the right body to deal with the matter.

"The federal minister of justice and the attorney general should talk it over and arrive at a decision," he said.

Policemen have already taken action. At the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police meeting in Quebec City last August, a resolution was drafted recommending the two governments develop a uniform method of recording partial prohibitions on the licences themselves.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, also attending the association's traffic committee, said such a step would go a long way to alleviating problems for police.

This way, the driver would have instant proof of the conditions under which he is allowed to drive. As it is, we've picked up some charges of errors from their lawyers."

The Belleville police position, the issue was brought to the attention of Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Hamilton, who told the Belleville Police Association.

Another question that has yet to be resolved concerns insurance. Does a motorist driving with the federal government's OK but without provincial approval still qualify for coverage if he is involved in an accident?

"We haven't yet run into this problem at our office," commented Ian Robertson of D. D. Crosby Insurance. "It's almost a legal item."

The Insurance Act of Ontario states that a policy is suspended while the driver is without his licence but lawyer Ticktin says "to the driver "would probably bend over backwards" if such a case came before him.

Air Cadet Leader Gives Up Position

TRENTON — Wasil Sador has stepped down as chairman of the 784 Sqdn. Civic Club, the sponsoring body for 784 Squadron (Air Force City), Royal Canadian Air Cadets at CFB Trenton.

Until a new chairman is elected, vice - chairman Robert Turner will carry on leadership duties. As well, the club must find a new squadron commanding officer after retirement of Captain J. C. Benham earlier this month. Lieutenant J. Allen Smith, squadron adjutant is former commanding officer, is filling in for now.

The job of commanding a squadron of teenage air cadets is a demanding one. There is lots of weekend and night work involved. The right man will be chosen for his good character and a sound administrative mind.

During the command of Captain Benham and Mr. Sador, the squadron has been able to develop a cadet training camp on Wanaminsa Lake near Bancroft, has rebuilt a four - seater aircraft, and provided a glider winch for use in launching the glider on summer days. Donated to the provincial committee for the use of cadets across Ontario and Canada. As well, the squadron purchased a 54-passenger former school bus for its use in transporting the boys and girls to their flying activities.

The present chairman for the sponsoring committee will be selected early in March.

Watermain Work Resumes in Spring

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Dig up a road. Resurface it. Dig up again — it's an old story that's often repeated.

And Trenton town council and the Public Utilities Commission are worried about just such an occurrence happening on Dundas Street-East when workmen finish work facing the street. Motorists have been playing 'dodge the potholes' fo the past several months, and work isn't expected to begin until April.

Some time ago, town workmen began repairing a watermain that runs under the road. Last year, council budgeted $9,000 for the job. To date, 20 per cent of the work has been done and the town has already called a halt rather than spend the additional $25,000 - $30,000 anticipated.

The cost was to have been $13,000 to work on the 2,500 foot main. But if the job continued while frost was in the ground, the costs would have more than doubled.

A letter to the PUC from Daman and Smith, consultants, said if work on the watermain wasn't completed, the Dundas resurfacing project — Lightfoot Construction Ltd. might be delayed a further three to four weeks.

The consultants requested the town complete watermain work.

Commissioner chairman James McDonald, reporting to the PUC Thursday, said he informed the contractors "at this time was it important that this work be done.

"We did it as a safeguard to you as the contractor and for ourselves as owners."

The commissioners agreed that watermain work should not be done until the spring. They felt that once gravel is laid and curbs are in, they would run a test of the line before Lightfoot applies an plush.

Members Gave $118,881

Members of Calvary Temple contributed $118,381 to their church in 1972 through tithes and free will offering, treasurer Alan E. Haw reported at the business meeting Wednesday night. Of this amount $30,000 was designated for missions.

Major capital expenditures included paving and lighting of a large parking lot and building new wall to-hall carpeting in the main auditorium and new furnaces in the Christian Education Building. The balance in the mortgage account is now $14,000 and it is expected to be liquidated by early summer.

Rev. Ira E. Leach gave the report on the Sunday School, Crusaders and young people's departments. The staff of 43 includes Sunday School teachers office staff, bus drivers and superintendents.

Deacons elected for 1973 are George Kinsley, Paul LaRue, Ronald Bedore, Vincent Tracey, Jessie Carr, Harry Smith, Earl Parks, Robert Noyes, Charles Farr.

Good Day for It

Warm sun and bright, day Thursday made for ideal outdoor work conditions for the city public utilities' repair crew on Dundas St. West.

Economics Force School Board To Shut Down Four Schools

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

With only "no way" and "We don't want it," parents of Queen Alexandra School pupils heard last night that their school will close permanently in June.

Declining enrolments have forced the Hastings county board of education to close four schools at the end of the academic year. Doors will shut forever at the end of June on pupils in Gilmour Public School, Shannonville and Point Anne public school and Queen Alex.

Queen Alex's 415 pupils will be bused next September to Queen Elizabeth, Harry Ainsworth and Sir Winston Churchill schools. Although Queen Alex would have had many more pupils next September than it will accommodate, the other three east hill schools would have had 419 vacant pupils spaces.

The Belleville area, with the fastest building population is that bounded on the north by the CN tracks, on the south by the bay, on the west by the Moira River on the east by Herchimer Ave.

About 150 parents heard Queen Alex's death sentence pronounced in the school auditorium Thursday night by superintendent Glen Watson, board chairman Mac Smith and director of education Eric Runacres. They presented the board's reasoning behind the board's decision.

One of the objectives of the school board is senior public schools (grades 7 and 8) for all pupils in the county.

"Nothing has been done in Belleville since this board was formed," said Mr. Watson.

Queen Alex could be renovated to bring it up to the standard of other senior elementary schools in the system but it will not happen. Even if the ministry of education will not permit renovations or additions to a school when there are as many as 419 vacant pupil places in neighboring schools. And it takes a $100,000 annual mortgage on a 61 - year - old school located on less than six acres of land. Queen Alex occupies a 2¾ acre site.

To back up these facts, the school board decided to turn Queen Elizabeth, on the corner of Macdonald Ave. and Macdonald Gardens, into the biggest school for the area. Queen Vic, on Pine St., across the 401 — old school will take about 100 of Queen Alex's kindergarten through grade 6 pupils and Sir Winston Churchill school on Macdonald Ave., near Pine St. will take the remaining 100.

Teachers and principals will be absorbed within the system. And for the first time, Belleville pupils will have to be bused to school, starting board chairman Mac Smith and director of education Eric Runacres. They presented the board's reasoning behind the board's decision.

Teachers and principals will be absorbed within the system. And for the first time, Belleville pupils will have to be bused to school, starting next September, points in their home neighborhoods.

Once the move has been made, the board will apply for permission for necessary additions on Queen Elizabeth to accommodate home economics, industrial arts and other senior elementary school subjects. Mr. Runacres said it would require 18 to 20 months for approvals and construction.

To accommodate all the area's senior elementary school pupils in Queen Elizabeth, the board will have to "offload" 8 QE pupils next year by changing boundary lines.

Parents' reaction to closing the school was negative. They viewed almost their entire system "freezing to death" at collection points as they waited for buses. They were apprehensive about safety and supervision during school lunch hours. They clung to the tradition of a school that has served three generations of Belleville families and they worried about the safety of the Queen Elizabeth neighborhood once a hospital parking lot is established on the south end of its school yard.

"What are you going to do with this building?" asked one man. "Sell it to Rollins for another highrise?"

Mr. Smith said the board has made no decision about the fate of the building. After the meeting he said it was his personal opinion Queen Alex would remain in the hands of the school board.

To every other plan proposed by parents to save Queen Alex by closing other schools, the administration had to reply that there was no way the ministry of education would allow closure of a modern school in favor of retaining a 61-year-old building.

Underlying the school closing question was that of the value of senior elementary schools. Several parents said their children learned more industrial arts and home economics at home than they did at school. Others said the wrench to another school at the grade 7 level was a hardship for their children.

The sense of community Queen Alex gave to its neighborhood was more important than the state of gym floor's, said one parent.

"Inspectors in public schools are not the buildings or equipment, but the teachers," said another.

If anyone emerged a winner Thursday night it was Queen Alex's staff. The parents' praise for them gave the teachers top marks.

"I am horrified at the state the building is in," said a mother, "but I have never heard a criticism about the school."

OSD Opens New Infirmary

Built in 1894, it also is the second-oldest building on the school's grounds — after the superintendent's residence.

There were four young students in the infirmary yesterday as the aging facility was closed out. They were moved to the new facility to the new infirmary, where a front-entrance design spaces rooms and facilities around a central nursing station, making supervision easier.

With its own kitchens, it is a self-contained unit, including a dispensary, dental clinic, examination room and audiological installations.

Construction began last winter on the new infirmary, linking it on the OSD's junior school building. The construction was deliberately planned. Any infirmary activities throughout the year are youngsters down with common childhood infections such as measles, colds. In bad weather they can be transferred to be cared for more comfortably.

As for the 79-year-old Gibson Hospital, current plans call for its demolition, say OSD officials.

Mr. Bateman said he was informed of his appointment by Ontario Mayor Steve Benoit, who was named to succeed Mr. Scott as association president.

The appointment of Mr. Bateman as director continues representation from the Quinte district on the AMO.

Cable Must Pay Toll

By IAN ROBERTSON

TRENTON — Trenton Public Utilities Commission won't buy the latest proposal of Cablevue Belleville Ltd. for leasing power poles.

At a utilities meeting Thursday, commissioners turned down a request by Cablevue for billing based on a per-pole charge of $5.10. Last month, the PUC voted a increase any local rentals in Cablevue from $2,000 to $5,000 for use of the commission's poles to carry the television cable lines.

Thursday, Truman Pratt, general manager Doug Manlow and PUC solicitor Jim Bowerman compared to the 1972 PUC bill of $2,000 the commission would have received if Cablevue paid $2,500 Cablevue services 1,000 per cent of Trenton.

Commission chairman Charles Hilton asked: "We've taken a licking for four years. I don't see anything wrong with $5,000 or $7,000.

If Cablevue signs a new contract with the PUC that contain an annual climbing clause of $400 to account for increased cable customers. At the end of the projected five-year contract, Cablevue would be paying $7,000 for the service.

Mayor Duncan McDonald asked what happened if the firm did not agree to the PUC decision. Mr. Hilton replied "according to the agreement, they have 30 days to take the lines off our poles," to which Mr. Manlow added, "Or we take them down and bill them."

Jan. 1, 1973 marked the termination of a five-year contract between the PUC and Cablevue. The decision to stay with the January decision was reached after almost a half hour of debate among commissioners.

TORONTO (CP) — The Criminal Injuries Compensation Board of Ontario Thursday awarded $4,820 to a 78-year-old Bell ville widow who witnessed a murder-suicide 21 months ago.

The award was made to Hazel Barrtrage because of the ordeal she suffered when she saw her niece Patricia Salisbury shot and killed by her husband, Norman Eldon Salisbury. Salisbury committed suicide with the same shotgun.

The board was told the woman was splattered with blood and had powder burns from her wig in her face as she stood close to her niece.

Dionne One Man Gang As Red Wings Tie Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of the players Detroit Red Wings are counting on to put them into the National Hockey League playoffs this season is Marcel Dionne, and the flashy centre isn't disappointing them.

Dionne, who set a scoring record for rookies last season with 77 points, got all three goals Thursday night as the Detroit's 3-3 tie with Montreal Canadiens, last-ers in the NHL's East Division.

With the win, the Red Wings, fifth in the East, kept pace with fourth-place Buffalo Sabres in their fight for the last playoff spot.

The Sabres, four points ahead of the Wings, dreested Vancouver Canucks 3-1 while Pittsburgh Penguins blanked New York Islanders 2-1 in the only other games Thursday night.

One game is scheduled tonight, New York Rangers playing California Golden Seals at Oakland.

Dionne, the league's outstanding rookie in the 1971-72 season, had the Detroit club in scoring with 77 points. His deadeliest goal of Thursday's game came in the latter half of last season contributed much to the club's efforts.

This season, except for a little indoor-outdoor relationship with coach Johnny Wilson who thought he was "going all hollywood" and benched the schedule Dionne has continued his fine playmaking.

His three goals Thursday night put him 21 for the season, three more than his goal output last year. He is also atop the league in scoring his points-total for last season.

Two of Dionne's goals were on power plays and the other was unassisted in the first goal came at 15:53 of the first period after Guy Lafleur had given the Canadiens a 1-0 lead.

After Jim Roberts scored less than two minutes later in the second period to put the Canadiens ahead 2-1, Dionne scored his second power-play goal but Yvan Cournoyer countered to knot the tie at 3:18 of the third period, scoring on a pass from Frank Mahovlich.

Dionne's goals were his second and third performance since joining the Red Wings from the St. Louis Black Hawks in 1971-72. His first, last year, was also against the Canadiens.

MARCEL DIONNE

The Sabres got a goal and an assist from Don Luce in handing the Canucks their 35th loss in 63 games. Luce's goal, the first in the game, came in the first period when he took a pass from Jim Schoenfeld and skated in on the puck past goalie Ed Dyck.

Jim Lorimer, playing his first game for the Canucks after being received from New York Islanders, tied the score 89 seconds later, blasting a 25-foot shot past Sabres' goalie Roger Crozier.

But Norm Gratton, a recent addition to the Buffalo lineup, gave Buffalo the go-ahead goal in the second period. It was Gratton's third goal in four games since joining the Sabres from Atlanta Flames.

Larry Mickey put the other Buffalo goal midway through the third period as the Sabres won their fifth straight game without a loss.

Pittsburgh moved into a sixth-place tie with Los Angeles Kings in the West Division with the win over the Islanders, but they are only four points away from the fourth and final playoff berth.

Al McDonough scored the winning goal, his 28th of the season, to give Pittsburgh the victory. Craig Cameron for the Islanders and Dave Burrows for Pittsburgh had scored earlier.

Canada Represented At Track, Field Meet

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — Canada sent a mini-Olympic team to compete today in the U.S. indoor track and field championships, billed as the largest gathering of Olympic winners and finalists since the Munich summer last year.

The U.S. Nationals, as they are known, are sponsored by the Amateur Athletic Union. Heats in several events will be run in the morning and afternoon, with finals in the evening.

Nine Canadians are entered in track and field events, headed by bearded Grant McLaren, the distance runner from the University of Western Ontario in London.

McLaren, second in the indoor 3,000 metres last Friday, faces strong opposition from Australian Ed Sneddon and Crawford.

Olympic champions Valery Borzov and Ludmila Bragina of Russia, Poland's Henryk Szerejkowski and U.S. stars Rod Milburn and Andy Williams will also be competing.

Szerejkowski, dubbed the Polish Elvew for his roughhouse tactics, runs against Marty Liquori, the U.S. miler who will be putting his 13-race Garden win streak on the line in the mile. Liquori missed the Olympics because of a foot injury.

Borzov, one of four Russians competing, will try his hand at the 60-yard dash where Americans Herb Washington is among the top sprinters entered. Borzov was winner of the Olympic double in the dash last year.

Bragina, Olympic 1,500-metre champion, will defend his U.S. title in the 880-yard hurdles.

Mrs. Bragina, Olympic 1,500-metre champion, will defend her record holder, and Glenda Reiser of Canada, in the final at Munich. Glenda broke the world record also in that race but still was last.

Claude Ferragne of the University of Montreal, with a win and a second-place tie for his efforts in two previous Madison Square Garden meets this winter, will face the strongest field of the season in the men's high jump.

Abigail Hoffman of Toronto is entered in the women's 880-yard heats with U.S. champion Cheryl Toussaint, Dell Glass, another member of the Toronto Olympic Club, and Jacqueline Pagé.

Liane Jones of Saskatoon will attempt a women's double in the high jump and long jump while Debbie Van Tuyckom of Toronto switched to the long jump.

She did not enter her specialty, the high jump, because she is working to improve her technique in the high bar and felt she was not ready to enter it here.

U.S. champion Steve Smith, unbeaten indoors this season, will try his world record of 18 feet, one-quarter inch in the pole vault. Bruce Simpson of Pointe Claire, Que., will have his work cut out for him in the vault since Smith barely misses at 17 feet or better.

Canada Nipped

PUEBLA, Mexico (CP) — Mexico defeated Canad a 2-1 Thursday in the preliminary round of the fourth junior international soccer tournament.

Mexico, the defending champion, won its group round-robin and advanced to the semi-finals along with Canada.

Jesus Sandoval scored the first Mexican goal at 35 minutes of the first half after dribbling around fullback Jeri Sinn and shooting with such strength that the ball hit goalkeeper Andre Hebb in the chest before going into the net. Oscar Padilla scored the second Mexican goal after 10 minutes o f the second half.

Canada's goal came on a penalty kick by Mark Queen after 26 minutes of the second half.

Mexico defeated Nicaragua 7-0 Sunday and Canada tied Nicaragua 1-1 Tuesday. The three countries played in one group, Guatemala, the Netherlands Antilles and Cuba were in another group.

The semi-finals are scheduled Sunday and the finals March 6 at Puebla.

Blazers Move to Third With Win Over Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Danny Lawson, a fugitive from the Montreal Canadiens League one week and twenty times a 50-goal season was a rare happening, has reached that milestone in the new World Hockey Association.

Lawson scored the winning goal Thursday night, his 50th of the season, to give Philadelphia Blazers a 6-5 victory over Ottawa Nationals in WHA action. He thus became the first player in the new professional league to score 50 goals in a season.

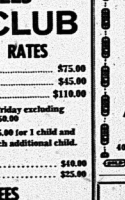
Lawson, who scored only 15 goals in 78 games with Buffalo Sabres of the NHL in the 1971-72 season, was signed by Philadelphia last July. But since joining the Blazers and playing on a line with Andre Lacroix and Jim Harrison, he has blossomed into a scorer.

He has had three four-goal games so far this season, Oct. 12 against Cleveland, Dec. 20 against Chicago and Feb. 20 against New England.



His 50th goal Thursday night came with just under two minutes left in the third period and it gave Philadelphia its win over Ottawa.

The victory lifted the Blazers into third place in the East Division, one point ahead of New York Raiders, who were idle.

Don Borgess scored twice for the Blazers and Don O'Donoghue and Herriman and Michel Plasse once each. Plante's goal, midway through the second, was disputed strongly by Ottawa.

It cost Philadelphia's Johnny McKenzie tangled with Ottawa's Guy Trottier along the boards. Although McKenzie was assessed a minor penalty, he managed to flip the puck out in front of the Ottawa net where Lawson fired it home. The referee first disallowed it a goal and then changed his mind.

Gerry Cheevers and Wayne Carleton each scored twice for the Nationals with Bob Charlebois getting the other Ottawa goal. Third-period goals by Quebec

Lancers' Goalie Faces 65 Shots

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Scot McFadden just failed to pull a university hockey game out of the fire for Windsor Lancers Thursday night.

McFadden kicked out 65 shots as the Lancers still lost 5-4 to Western Ontario Mustangs in their Ontario Universities Athletic Association game.

McMaster Marlins defeated Brock Badgers 8-6 in the only other game played. A Wayne Lothrop goal for Marlins was re-scheduled for tonight.

Western goalie Mike Mancini had an easy time of it, facing only 16 shots.

McFadden gave up only two goals in each period and managed to face 22 shots in each of the first two periods and 29 in the third.

Pete Fraser scored two Western goals, Dick Dodderidge, Dave Robinson, Dennis Farwell and Rick Smith had one goal each.

Don Wilson, Jim Gratto, Frank Rosar, Dave Georgs and Ejay Queen scored for Windsor.

McMaster and Brock wound up their schedules at St. Catharines, where the Marlins led 3-0 after the first period and 4-3 after the second.

Dave McCulloch had two goals for Brock and Rick Pickles, Murray Mark, Ken Tyler, Rick Dzeck, Dave Hamilton and Ken Pearcie one each for McMaster.

Frank Mazzei led the Badgers with three goals. Jiggs Engemann, Vito Scaringi and Frank Mazzei had one each.

Re-scheduling of Thursday's Waterloo Lutheran - Waterloo game for tonight forced league officials to move tonight's Waterloo-Guelph game to Saturday night.

So tonight's other games, the unbeaten Toronto Blues play at Laurentian and Carleton visits Queen's.

Doyle Misses Slide to 'Home Base'

The name of the game is to stop the puck, not the player, from going into the net, but it appears that Belleville 'Bobcats' goalie Bob Moore can do both, as he stopped Lions' Rick Doyle on the centre's first period'shot. Moore however failed to keep another of Doyle's attempts out of the net later in the period as the bantam age centre tallied Peterborough's second goal in their 5-2 defeat at the hands of the Bobcats. The "Tabbies" were victorious in their second outing against the Metro Junior B league leaders in the best-of-seven quarter - final playoffs.

Solid Blueliners Give Bobcats Second Win Over Peterborough

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

During regular season Metro Junior "B" hockey action, coach Moe Hunter would, on occasion, complain about the lack of defencemen in front of goalie Bob Moore. He can no longer make that complaint.

Not only has the defence kept the Bobcats in their quarter-finals playoffs against the Peterborough Lions, but they have been a key goal scoring factor in the two wins the Bobcats hold over the heads of the league pennant winners.

Just as Wally Dashard, whose regular slot is as a backliner, scored two goals and assisted on another in the Bobcats' first overtime 5-4 victory in Peterborough, Tim Yohn provided the Cats with the same figures in Thursday night's 9-2 win over the hurting Lions.

The Lions may be going through a transformation into "cubs" as they have failed to win their last four games, two in regular season play and two in playoff action. The Lions failed to take wins off Western-leading one 4-3 outing the other game 2-2 for the longest winless run of games they've had all season.

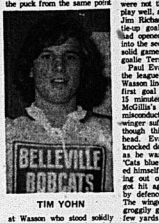
Yohn's goals had a great deal to do with their fourth loss, as the Bobcat rearguard scored the third go-ahead and the fourth goal for an insurmountable lead of two.

Yohn's first third period goal came when Cats' centre Rick Meagher fed the puck to the defenceman on a power play opening that left Yohn "wide open by Wasson" saw the shot" drill red at him from 50 ft., got a piece of it, but didn't get enough" to stop the shot.

The Lions' netminder did not appear to have seen Yohn's goal as he made a gallant attempt began at the Peterborough blueline, which did not hear the sound effect of the tally on approximately 1,000 home town fans, one of the biggest crowds the 'Cats have drawn to the Jubilee Arena this season.

Yohn's shot zipped between the legs of Wasson as he was going down to attempt to gain a better view through the screen of Lions' defencemen in front of him. Centre Peter 'Smrke and right winger Mike Watt provided the spade work on the goal as collectively they stole the puck from a Lions' winger trying to freeze it to the boards.

After some sloppy defensive work in their own end, the Bobcats charged over their blue line later in the third period and Yohn again proved to be the originator of a goal. The burly defenceman fired the puck from the same point approaching the series "a game at a time. You're just not going to roll over a team as good as Peterborough is."



The coach was pleased with the performance of his defencemen in last night's contest as he said "all five defencemen played well. They played to the limit the whole time."

But the defence, which included Doug Edwards and Dave Taylor in the lineup, were not the only Bobcats to play well, as Mark Costes and Jim Richardson who scored lie-up goals after the Lions had opened a 2-0 lead going into the second period, played solid games in front of Lions' goalie Terry Wasson.

Paul Evans, left winger on the league's top scoring Bob Wasson line, scored the Lions' first goal and was followed 15 minutes later by Steve McGillis's goal. Besides his unbecoming penalty, the Lions' swinger suffered another blow, though this one was to his head. Evans was hit and knocked down by Dave Taylor as he was skating over the 'Cats blue line. But he picked himself up, and while recovering out of the Bobcats end got hit again by Bobcat rookie defenceman Neil Turner. The swinger fell to the ice, groggily got up, skated for a few yards, and fell again.

The doctor diagnosed the swiftness of the check seemed to spark the Bobcats to a renewed effort against the Lions Evans, was not seriously injured, however, as he skated in the later part of the game.

The Bobcats, with a two game edge in the best of seven playoffs, will be seeing action tonight at the Peterborough Lions' home ice Saturday while returning to Memorial Arena Sunday for fourth game 8:00 p.m. start.

Madoc Players Meet Celebrities

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

TORONTO — Peter Ramsay of Madoc doesn't know what it is to walk without the aid of crutches. The 22-year-old at times uses a wheelchair to get around. He has never been able to walk on his own. But yesterday, he stood tall among an array of sports personalities here.

Peter would love to be able to play hockey. He can't, so he does the next best thing. He's manager-coach of a minor league team in Madoc, where he's so popular with the village youngsters, the club's roster has grown to 24 players.

To him, his handicap is something he has learned to live with. He is more concerned about the health of his elderly mother. Mrs. W. Ramsay; the fortunes of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club; and the opportunity to learn a trade so that he may become a wage earner, as a step toward a feeling of independence.

ok through the efforts of Clarke Rollins, MPP, Hastings, and Ray Burris, proprietor of Ray's Sports Shop in Madoc. Peter realized the dream of a lifetime yesterday. Together with his minor hockey players and assistant coaches Peter White and Jim Nickle Peter made his first visit to Maple Leaf Gardens where the group was allowed to watch the NHL team in a closed session.

Gardens publicity director Stan Obodiac gave his visitors royal treatment and had them seated in the reds, directly behind the Leaf players' bench. He went out of his way to bring hockey celebrities to Peter's front row seat for a chat.

Since the Atlanta Flames had practiced just prior to lunch, Peter had the opportunity to meet coach Bernie Geoffrion; general manager Cliff Fletcher; defencemen Arnie Brown and forward Billy Mc-Millan. Subsequently he talked over several rolls of hockey tape to the minor league coach.

"You're doing a great job, keep on plugging away," Geoffrion told a beaming coach Ramsay.

Leaf vice-president Frank "Ting" Clancy, just returned from a scouting mission in Western Canada where he was taking a look at several Junior prospects, explained he was very happy he got back in time to meet the Madoc contingent.

"So you work behind the bench on crutches, eh?", said Clancy.

"Don't you ever feel like throwing them out on the ice?"

Before he had to leave to "let on I'm working", Clancy told Peter whenever he wanted to come up for a game to "just let me know, I'll look after you."

Leaf coach Johnny McClellan and centre Darryl Sittler also visited briefly with Peter Boddie George Ferguson, a Trenton product, took the time to say hello to Peter and Mr. Rollins for a photo.

Then it was off to the Parliament buildings where Mr. Rollins treated everyone to a catered beef dinner and a guided tour. It was Mr. Rollins who finished on pushing Peter's wheelchair during the lengthy tour. The young hockey players gave rapt attention to regardless points by Parliament Guide Trish Hargand while she explained in detail the procedures in the Chambers. And there was a lively question and answer period.

Back at the Gardens, a visit with former wrestling great Whipper Billy Watson rounded out the day's activities. Watson's long career was ended about 15 months ago when he had both legs severely injured in an accident. Still on the limp and making use of a cane, Watson assured his listeners he is progressing very well.

Watson stressed the point that it is alright to strive to win but not if it means deliberately injuring an opposing player.

"Play hard," he emphasized, "but always be sportsmen."

He had some harsh words for smokers.

"Do people have to be hit over the head before they realize smoking it detrimental to their health? Good athletes are soon on the way down if they don't remember to keep in top condition and smoking is one of the worst things you can do," he said.

For years, the former wrestling star has been interested in helping "crippled kids" and after his own mishap, he is even more determined to give all the time he can to the handicapped youngsters.

Naturally, he and Peter hit it off like old friend. Watson feels the handicapped person needs to be involved. Peter Ramsay is involved and he's going places.

Geoffrion Meets Ramsay

Peter Ramsay gets words of encouragement from Atlanta Flames' coach Bernie Geoffrion when the two met at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens Thursday. Peter took his Madoc minor league hockey team to watch a Maple Leaf practice. Shown with them is Clarke Rollins, MPP, Hastings, who was instrumental in the Madoc contingent making the trip.

Chargers Get 10th Win

The Centennial Chargers senior basketball team maintained their hold of the top spot in Bay of Quinte action Thursday night as they defeated the Trenton Tigers 61-60.

They downed win many games, but they lose a lot of close ones," said Centennial's coach Brent Faulds of the Tiger team. The Trenton high school dropped their 11th game of the season to the Chargers who hold down first spot with one win ahead of the Quinte Saints.

The Trenton record against the Centennial dribblers, however, is a respectable one as they lost their other regular season to the Chargers by only four points. In pre-season exhibition play the Tigers gave the Chargers a clawing as they defeated them by a 16-point margin.

The Tigers nearly did the same in the third quarter in last night's game according to Faulds as they earned a 39 - 15 point spread to give them a 53-43 lead. "They just destroyed us in the third quarter," said Faulds.

"It looked like they'd repeat the exhibition win over us last night." said Faulds, "but we came back with a man-to-man, full court press in the fourth quarter. The other guys just couldn't cope for when Murphy and Miller were fouled out at the beginning of the fourth quarter."

Yabe Parmakszesian led the Chargers in their tenth win of the Bay of Quinte regular season with an individual scoring effort of 20 points, while Dave Dent (15), Brian Murphy (12) and Al Miller (9) added further marks to the victory. Garvey with 18 points, Mitts and Yates with 14 and 12 respectively netted the Centennial boards for double figured scoring marks.

The Centennial midget basketball team did not have as much trouble with their Trenton counterparts as they defeated the Tigers 65 - 36 to maintain their second place lead over transfer behind Quinte Secondary. The Chargers hold a 10-2 won-loss record for the season.

Dave Long with 12 points, Tony Lattone (9) and Doug Cadwell (8) were the top scorers for the Chargers.

The Centennial - Trenton junior game ended with the Chargers on the short end of the scoreboard final of 73-66.

"Personally, she's good at figure skating! She goes steady with an accountant!"

Three Share the Lead In Canadian Seniors

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Jim Murphy's confidence and composure in favor of Manitoba created a three-way tie for first place in the Canadian seniors curling championship Thursday night.

Ralph Smith of Nepanda, Que., representing Northern Ontario, Roy Stone of Trail, B.C., and Dr. Bill McEwish of Winnipeg entered the final round with 7-2 records.

Murphy, skip of the New Brunswick rink from Saint John, was fourth with a 6-3 mark after he whipped Northern Ontario 10-5 in the 10th round of the 11-rink, round-robin tournament.

At 6-4 were Bob Cruikshank of Red Deer, Alta., and Gil Strutson of Saskatoon. Dr. Wes MacDonald of Charlottetown was 5-5, Guy Chenail of Quebec City 4-6, John Pike of Grand Falls, Nfld., and Ed Rhodes of Brampton, Ont., both 3-7 and Geod Bauld of Halifax 1-8.

The 13th-round draw had Saskatchewan meeting Quebec, New Brunswick playing Newfoundland, Manitoba meeting Northern Ontario, Manitoba taking on Nova Scotia and B.C. against Alberta. P.E.I. got the bye.

A playoff involving two rinks would begin this afternoon and one involving three teams would also start in the afternoon with the second game Saturday morning.

In other 10th-round games, Manitoba edged Ontario 8-7 on an extra end measure, Alberta defeated Newfoundland 12-3, B.C. upset Saskatchewan 10-8 and P.E.I. beat Quebec 9-5. Nova Scotia had the bye.

Ninth-round results were: B.C. 9, P.E.I. 7; Northern Ontario 8, Alberta 7; Manitoba 13, New Brunswick 5; Ontario 10, Nova Scotia 2 and Saskatchewan 12, Newfoundland 5.

After Murphy virtually lost his title chance when he was whipped in the afternoon record set by Dr. McEwish, the New Brunswick skip said:

"It was more scared of Manitoba . . . than I am of Ralph's rink.

"Don't get me wrong. I am not trying to take anything away from Northern Ontario . . . however, I think we play a style of game which can beat them.

Thursday night, Murphy said: "We played our type of game, they just got behind and we stayed pecking on the pressure."

Murphy generally sticks to his relaxed game which worked to perfection and forced Smith to concede seven times in the game, going after rocks which New Brunswick left in the house. In the earlier sessions, Northern Ontario stones formed no guards.

Murphy got all his points on four end-rock-ons on the first, two on the third, stole two more on the fourth and picked up four on the sixth.

The Manitoba-Ontario game featured a 4-rock steal by Rhodes on the 10th end which reversed the two points Stone scored in the extra end.

Rhodes tied the game at 7-7 when he raised his own rock through a port for shot. The rock he raised was over into bit on the eight-foot for second shot.

He made a similar raise on the extra end but Dr. McEwish threw to his rock on the four-foot circle to force a measure.

Dr. McEwish said at first he wasn't going to worry about his second stone because he thought Manitoba still had shot, despite Rhodes' rock.

"I almost threw it away because I figured Ed's raised shot hadn't been far enough in to shot rock . . . I almost lost it."

B.C. had tabbed 4 after three ends against Saskatchewan. However, Saskatchewan threw on the fourth and stole a single point on the fifth for a 5-4 lead. He won the game with a five-ender on the sixth.

Shooting Stars Are In

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Lacrosse Association announced Thursday that Toronto Shooting Stars will remain a member of the National Lacrosse League for the 1973 season.

Shooting Stars owner Ray Torresan announced last year he would not continue to operate the club but the OLA announced the club was to have been taken over by a group headed by Harry Reynolds of Toronto.

Reynolds announced he has hired Ken Crawford, a player on last season's Shooting Stars team, as coach of the Toronto club which opens the 1973 season May 13.

The rules for the league for the first time are Brampton Excelsiors, last year's national Senior A champions. Other members returning are league champion Branford Warriors, Peterborough Lakers and Brooklin Redmen.

Bucs Nip The Kings

OSAWA, Neb. (AP) — John McGlocklin bit two straight baskets from the baseline in the second span to lift Milwaukee Bucs to a 116-113 overtime victory over Kansas City-Omaha Kings in the only National Basketball Association contest Thursday night.

McGlocklin's effort gave Milwaukee a 103-101 lead in the final minute. Louche Allen converted the Bucks' second of a jumper with 42 seconds left.

Nate Archibald, playing despite a bruised hip, scored all nine of the Kings' points in the extra five minutes. Archibald missed a game in Buffalo Tuesday night and played only the first 15 minutes in Sunday's game at Detroit, finished with 43 points.

Central League Shaken

OTTAWA (CP) — The saga of the Central Junio r Hockey League took two more turns Thursday as the result of a questionable 6-5 victory by Brockville Braves over the Bears in Smiths Falls Tuesday.

Brockville won the game after Smiths Falls players scored three times on their own selves in protest when a team from facing the powerful Pembroke Lumber Kings in the Eastern semi-final playoffs that start Tuesday.

Neither wanted to finish third, but the strategy accomplished Brockville in third place and Smiths Falls in fourth, from where they both face second place Ottawa Rangers.

The first move Thursday was suspension by the league of Smiths Falls coach Hal Rockburn and assistant coach Ken Valliquette, who handled the game for Scotty Turnbull, and of Brockville assistant coach Lyle Wood.

Then, as a result of pressure from the three Ottawa-area teams—the Rangers, Hull Festivals and Nepean Raiders—league president Norm Saunders of Brockville has called an executive meeting Saturday in Brockville to review the situation.

One suggestion for consideration at the meeting—made Tuesday in Smiths Falls by league secretary John Rinaldo immediately after the game—was that the two teams be suspended for the playoffs.

It is considered likely that Pembroke Nepean and last place Hull would be elevated to the playoffs if that were done.

Also considered likely were further suspensions, this time of players most closely connected with the questioned goals.

What the Stars Say

By JEAN DIXON

Saturday, Feb. 26

Aries (March 21-April 19): Give some thought to what seem to you limits or problems; seek technical advice on how to resolve them.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Leave financial manoeuvres out of your weekend; concentrate on social outings or at least the symbolic forms of travel.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Reach out to share whatever you have that is good with your friends and loved ones, expect but nothing in return.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Tidy up your work situation; take care of pending routines first, then turn your attention to domestic affairs.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Get an early start, catch up on your favorite sports, hobbies. Your speculative interests offer brisk excitement.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Skip quibbles over past details, concentrate on arranging your finances, settling accounts, reclaiming things you've lent out.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The plan, personal excitement over what you do means more than the actual details or even much of the reasons for it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have people waiting to see what you can and will do. Use your intellect and strength to move promptly.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can sell almost anything material or abstract today, so you should think about what you really want to promote.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be generous where you value the contact. It's a day for indulging whims and speculative urges, up to a limit.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It may take all day' to get your affairs straight, but there's a long and interesting evening indicated.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Friends who drift away will come back when their experiences run a full cycle—let them go, grow in the meantime.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three X's, three for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the letters are different.

Arm May Not Tell Blood Pressure

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why is it only a doctor or nurse seems able to get a blood pressure reading from my right arm?

The only thing the doctors have told me is, "Don't worry about it." I do not think that is a acceptable answer. I am 76. —F.H.P

You didn't mention how long this has been so, but if you aren't having any trouble with the arm—and you don't say so—perhaps the best advice is just that, "Don't worry about it."

There are several possible explanations. There may be a constrictive defect in the artery serving the arm, or there may be pressure on the artery from an excess rib on the right side of your neck, or pressure from one of the large muscles in the front of the neck, or even pressure on the artery from a tumor.

In the last named case, I am sure you would have symptoms other than inability to get a blood pressure reading.

As to the others, I would have to assume that, since the arm remains healthy, enough collateral circulation has built up so the arm gets adequate blood flow—but you do not have a strong pulsing of blood through the main artery.

Evidently the various doctors agree that lack of a blood pressure reading does not indicate that your right arm is not getting enough blood flow from other sources. That being the case, I would think that you have no cause for alarm, and that trying to obtain the exact cause would be an academic question but not of any genuine value to you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A man in a health food store bought a large amount of a product known as sea salt. I asked him what for, and he said if you have a water-retention problem it keeps it away.

I have been on a salt free diet for several years, and if what the man said were true, why don't doctors recommend it instead of salt substitutes, since this product tastes like real salt!—Mrs. M.A.N.

Because sea salt is real salt, and it won't prevent water retention. It will make it worse.

For the most part, I think the "health food" fads are harmless, and if you want to go in for them—well, it's your money and your choice.

But giving you the idea that "sea salt" is for you is distinctly not harmless. It's dangerous for you.

The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
1♠	Pass	2♠	Pass
2♥	3♠	Pass	4♠

The bidding has been:

West leads the seven of hearts, declarer playing low from dummy. What is your plan of defense?

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Hearts. North leads the jack of spades. How would you play the hand?

♠ A 10 9 8 2
♥ K 5
♦ 10 3 2
♣ 7 4 2

1. Your first play should be the ace of hearts, and then you make this play the contract is likely to go down. West's seven is obviously his fourth card, and it will hold the trick if you play the deuce on it. By ducking the first heart you preserve your chance to partner that the seven was your penultimate heart. You want him to win the trick if he wanted him to shift to a club at trick two.

But if you were to win the opening lead with the jack of hearts, a third round of the suit stymied after ruffing the fourth heart in your hand leaded something like this:

♠ K J 10 9 7 6 5
♥ A Q 8 6 4
♦ K 9 8
♣ A J 10 8 3

Forest Rape Charge Aired

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Ghosts of rapacious 19th-century timber barons returned Friday to haunt seven cabinet ministers already undergoing a barrage of questions and demands from farmers, municipal politicians and plain disgruntled Ottawa Valley taxpayers.

The ministers, members of the government's resource development policy committee, learned in two days of hearings in this community 30 miles southeast of Ottawa that political dialogue in eastern Ontario must listening to sharp, bitter complaints about garbage, sewage, land use, government inaction, red tape—and rape of the area's already-depleted timber resources.

"Commercial interests are raping the forests in a manner which can only lead to a disastrous wasteland in a very short period," said Peter Hoekstra, a Dalhousie Township landowner and part-time tree farmer.

Elm, maple, poplar, butternut and hickory forests are falling rapidly and "when they go there's nothing left," he said.

Mr. Hopkinson said in a later interview that operators buy timber rights from farmers already hard-pressed by economic conditions.

"Then they come in with a couple of skinner skidders and huge transports and a couple of men with chain saws, and in a couple of months there will not be a single stick standing.

"They just leave the slash lying there. The don't re-seed. The land is left to regenerate itself, if it can."

New Trial For P. Rose Is Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyer Robert Lemieux said Friday that Paul Rose, now serving a life sentence, left the house where Pierre Laporte was held three days before the Quebec labor minister was killed.

Rose, convicted of two life sentences for the kidnapping and murder of Laporte, did not return to the bungalow in nearby St. Hubert but learned of Mr. Laporte's death by telephone, Mr. Lemieux said.

The lawyer, holding a joint news conference with Jacques Rose, Paul's brother, demanded a new trial for Paul Rose and amnesty for what he called political prisoners in Quebec jails.

Jacques Rose was acquitted Thursday of the October, 1970, murder of Mr. Laporte.

Canada to Quit Vietnam Unless Authority Named

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday that if the Paris conference on Vietnam does not set up a body to take responsibility for the peace settlement, Canada will quit the supervisory commission that monitors the ceasefire.

He said the government is sticking to its demand for "a functioning political authority" to which the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) would report.

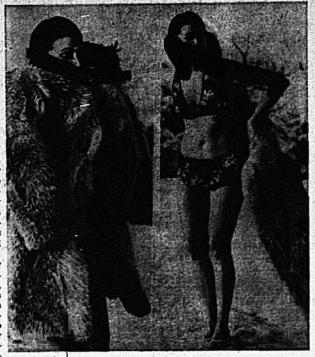
"Without it, I do not believe that I could say to the people of Canada that the job we are asked to do, the burden which Canada is being asked to bear, is worth it."

The government limited its commitment to the ICCS to 60 days following the ceasefire.

Mr. Sharp made his statement before leaving for the Paris conference, which opens Monday.

French and English Versions Of Bill of Rights Differ

OTTAWA (CP) — The English-language version of the Canadian Bill of Rights says certain rights exist and continue to exist "without discrimination" as to race, color, religion or sex.



But the French-language version of the bill doesn't include the word discrimination, a fact Toronto lawyer Edward Greenspan learned during an argument he presented Friday to the Supreme Court of Canada on the appeal involving the rights of Indian women.

Like most of the lawyers before him in the appeal, Mr. Greenspan used the word discrimination a number of times. Suddenly Mr. Justice Wishart Spence interrupted him to inform him that the word doesn't appear in the French-language version of the rights bill. And the French version has as much authority in court as the English version, added the judge.

Mr. Greenspan, appearing for Anishawbekwek, an Ontario organization representing Indian status rights, asked the court to adjourn until Monday "so I can consult someone who knows the French language better than I do."

The legal effects of the omission, if any, might be known Monday when the high court resumes hearing the government appeal seeking to restore a provision of the Indian Act which says Indian women who marry whites lose their Indian status.

The provision was wiped out when the Federal Court of Appeal confirmed the Indian status of Jeannette Lavell who married a white man.

Bombing Resumed In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — The United States has resumed limited bombing in Laos and the Vientiane command has claimed more Communist violations of the ceasefire agreement.

A spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command in Honolulu said nine U.S. B-52s attacked enemy positions Friday in southern Laos where the government had been forced to retreat from the town of Pak Song. There was no word on whether there were further strikes today.

Friday's bombing attacks came at the request of Premier Souvanna Phouma, who claimed North Vietnamese-backed Communist major offensives in both the north and south after the ceasefire took effect at noon Thursday.

The air strikes by the B-52s were compared with the daily average of 200 strikes by U.S. planes of all types before the ceasefire.

Libyan Jets Said Hunting Airliners

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libyan jet fighters have been flying patrol missions over the Mediterranean with orders to shoot down Israeli El Al airliners wherever they encounter them, a Lebanese newspaper said today.

Al Yom, which has close contacts with Egypt, quoted reliable Arab sources in Beirut as saying the move was decided by Col. Moammar Kadafi's ruling Revolutionary Command Council to avenge the downing of a Libyan jetliner by Israeli fighters Wednesday.

The report, if true, would have no immediate effect since the Israeli airline has been grounded by a strike that began Wednesday.

A Libyan embassy spokesman in Beirut declined to comment on the report.

Al Yom said Libyan Mirages intercepted a Trans World Airlines plane over the Mediterranean Friday and questioned the captain about the aircraft's identity and course.

The paper gave no other details, and a TWA spokesman in Beirut said his office had "received no word of such an incident yet."

TWA has regular flights from Europe to Cairo and Tel Aviv.

Reuters news agency reported that Libyan sources denied that Libyan war planes have been ordered to shoot down El Al airliners.

Reuters said the Libyan sources questioned on the report, declared: "It is utterly baseless and has no foundation."

Israeli Action Illegal Says Aviation Official

MONTREAL (CP) — The director general of the International Air Transport Association (IATA) said Friday the shooting-down of a Libyan airliner by Israeli fighters, killing 106 persons, was unjustified by international aviation law "even in a zone of conflict."

Knud Hammerskjold, in a news release issued here, also said the "technical and operational circumstances" of the incident must be investigated. He suggested a "neutral commission," to which IATA might offer a technical observer.

International law does not permit "such a degree of violence, for whatever reason, even in a zone of conflict, against passenger aircraft enjoying the status of civil aircraft," the statement said.

IATA has no direct jurisdiction over military aviation operations and Mr. Hammerskjold's statement admitted that governments are "exclusively competent ... to establish the underlying facts."

"If asked to do so, the director general would be willing to consider the assignment of a technical observer from the IATA secretariat to such a neutral commission with the task of reporting to the executive committee and the director general (representing the international airline industry."

Mr. Hammerskjold expressed "deep concern" over the "deplorable incident" ... that took the lives of over 100 innocent passengers."

The airliner was shot down Wednesday. Libyan authorities said it became lost and strayed over the Sinai peninsula area, crossing Arab-Israeli military positions on the Suez Canal.

The IATA statement said an international investigation of the incident hopefully would "ensure that international law is respected and established procedures followed in circumstances are adequate ..."

IATA looked for recommendations for ensure that "that recurrence of such incidents cannot take place."

Surplus Assailed

HALIFAX (CP) — A marked upturn in Nova Scotia's economic fortunes contributed to an increase over projected provincial revenues in 1972, Finance Minister Peter Nicholson said Friday in bringing in his 1973-74 budget.

It was this increase in federal and provincial revenues that opposition financial critics suggested should lead to tax cuts or additional allocations for public works to relieve unemployment.

Conservative financial critic Dr. T. J. McKeough said the government was getting richer while the people were getting poorer. Tax cuts should have been included in the budget.

Dayan Says Recorder Shows All at Fault

TEL AVIV (AP) — Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said today the flight recorder in the wreckage of a Libyan airliner indicated all parties involved in the tragedy were at fault.

He said Israel welcomed an international investigation and suggested a "test line" between Egypt and Israel be set up to avoid similar incidents in the future.

Dayan was speaking to a news agency correspondent after he was briefed by Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. David Elazar, and the air force boss, Maj. Gen. Benjamin Peled.

Elazard admitted he gave the order to shoot down the plane.

The plane was shot down near the Suez Canal Wednesday with a loss of 106 lives. The incident has stirred an international furore.

Dayan said now that the three recorders of the so-called black box had been examined "we have more or less what happened."

He said he felt what happened was the outcome of three elements of error by the Libyan pilot itself, the Cairo air control and the misinterpretation of events by the Israeli people.

The Israelis traced the last two Libyan flights, the original flight and called it "a combination of misunderstanding and confusion and a lack of co-

'Responsibility' Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said Saturday the United States' worst-hearted impatience should be blended with level-headed common sense to cope with the nation's human problems — poverty, hunger, discrimination, ignorance and disease. In the fourth of a series of country-wide radio addresses on the State of the Union report, Nixon said too many of the federal government's social programs during the past decade "amounted to dismal failures." He said, a policy of fiscal responsibility needs to be implemented to reform the federal programs.

Immigrants Smuggled

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says 2,745 persons were arrested by border patrol police in 1972 for trying to enter the United States illegally from Canada. The newspaper says the smuggling of immigrants into the U.S. is a growing racket.

Interest Rate Rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Federal Reserve Board has raised its interest rate charged member banks a half percentage point in a credit-tightening move designed to halt inflation. The board announced Friday night its discount rate will go up to 5% per cent from 5 effective Monday.

Shells Kill Ten

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners killed 10 Vietnamese today when their shells struck near a conference room of the Joint Military Commission (JMC) and hit a building that was being remodelled for the International Commission of Control and Supervision. Field reports said the shellings occurred at Tri Ton, a district town 125 miles southwest of Saigon in the Mekong Delta. Six of the dead were school children and two were teachers.

U.S. Firms Turning To Europe

WASHINGTON (CP) — An exhaustive study of world trade trends, produced by the United States Tariff commission, shows that giant, U.S.-based multinational corporations (MNCs) are turning their eyes—and their money—away from Canada and toward Western Europe.

The 1,200-page report, entitled Implications of Multinational Firms for World Trade and Investment and for U.S. Trade and Labor, was produced for the Senate finance committee and its subcommittee on international trade.

It covers the five years between 1966 and 1970 and concentrates on the relationship with seven major trading partners—Canada, Belgium-Luxembourg, Britain, Britain, Brazil, West Germany and France.

The MNCs under study—the report does not name them—are industrial giants based in the U.S., with affiliates in the seven areas and elsewhere.

Across all manufacturing, declines in the affiliates' employment in Canada roughly equalled increases and the MNCs' share of total Canadian employment declined but less fell slightly—by one percentage point.

"Canada was the only country of the seven in which such a drop occurred. It reflects the MNCs' shift of the focus of their growth-oriented investment away from Canada and toward other areas, chiefly Western Europe."

Car Disputes

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Harewood, manager of the Toronto Automobile Dealers Association, Thursday outlined a self-policing system aimed at arbitration in dispute between new car dealers and customers.

Faced with the prospect of government warranty enforcement, the association has moved to protect itself, Mr. Harewood told a meeting of consumer groups.

If the dealer-involved cannot settle the matter, the buyer could not settle it himself, he explained, the association would decide if arbitration is warranted.

The association's judgment would be binding on the car dealer, but a dissatisfied customer would still go to court.

The association, which represents 320 of the 365 new-car dealers from Oakville to Oshawa and north to Bradford,

Tax Tips

Working Mothers Get Tax Break

For further information, call the District Taxation Office. If you live in a toll area, ask your long-distance operator for Enterprise 0-6000 and your call will be placed without charge.

Q. I understand that "working" mothers will now be permitted to deduct the cost of baby-sitting fees from their income. What will be the effect of this change, and are there any limitations upon the amount which can be deducted for child care expenses?

A. The general effect of the child care provision is that where a mother has her children cared for so that she may engage in other work, she will be allowed to deduct the cost from her income from that work, within certain limits.

Q. Are child care expenses deductible for all children, regardless of their age or is the age of the child important at all?

A. Yes. Expenses are deductible for children who are under age 14 at any time during the year or, if the child is over 14, he must have been dependent upon his parents because of physical or mental infirmity.

Q. What kind of expenses are deductible?

A. Deductible expenses include costs of baby-sitting and day nursery care, and up to $15 per child per week for lodging paid at boarding schools and camps. If child care expenses are to be deductible, they must be for care in Canada; furthermore, payments for such items as clothing, transportation, education or medical care are not considered to be child care expenses.

Q. Must I keep receipts for child care expenses?

Yes. Deductions claimed for child care expenses must be supported by receipts. The name and address of the person to whom you make payments for child care must be provided on all receipts. Except for an organization such as a day nursery, the Social Insurance Number of the recipient must also be included on the receipt. You will not be required to attach these receipts to your return but you must keep them in the event the Department wishes to inspect them.

Q. How much may be deducted for child care expenses and does it matter to whom the payments are made?

A. A taxpayer may deduct the amount actually spent on child care provided it does not exceed the least of:

— $200 per child; or

— $2,000 for the family, or — two-thirds of the taxpayer's earned income for the year.

There are two further requirements regarding the person to whom child care payments are made. First, child care expenses are not deductible if they were paid to a person claimed as a dependant for tax purposes by either of the parents, or to a person under 21 who is related to either parent by blood, marriage or adoption. Secondly, any allowable deduction for child care expenses must be supported by a receipt which indicates the name, address and Social Insurance Number of the person to whom payments were made.

Q. Can a father deduct baby-sitting fees from his income?

A. Child care expense can be deducted by the person who, during the year, he was single, widowed, divorced or separated or had a written agreement. He may also make the deduction if the mother is incapable of caring for herself or the children or she is confined for 14 days or more to bed, hospital, wheelchair, mental home or prison. The father's deduction is limited to $15 per week for each child up to $60 per week. The same limitations of $200 per child or $2,000 per year for the whole family also apply in this case.

Q. When the father and mother both work, can either of them claim the child care expenses.

A. No. When both parents work, only the mother can claim the child care expenses.

Q. Can a mother hire her older child as a baby sitter?

A. The rule is that a mother cannot claim the amounts paid to a person who is under age 21, and related to her or her husband by blood, marriage or adoption.

Skindivers Going to School

Attractions of the underwater world and the growing popularity of skindiving have prompted a night school class which will begin 9 a.m. March 4 at the Quinte Kinsmen Community Swimming Pool.

The 250 courses will give a total of 12 hours of lecture time and 12 hours in the pool.

Written and pool tests will lead to national and international certification.

Instructor Tim McLaughlin of Scarborough is a member of the Underwater Council who has conducted courses in many Southern Ontario centres.

Air tanks and regulators will be provided for the students, who must take along their own swim suit, towel, notebook, mask, fins, snorkel, a weight belt with four pounds for weights and a tankback.

The course is open to anyone over 16 who can pass a pool test March 4 and a medical by March 25. A $25 deposit is called for at the first class or at registration, open the next two Tuesdays and Saturdays at the pool. Boys and girls aged 12 to 16 can also take the course if a parent or guardian accompanies them to the pool for class sessions.

Separate School Grant Gives Visual Aid

Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board has received a $42,000 provincial winter works grant.

Part of the money will be used to build a third Trillium board room on the headquarters building at 158 George St., in Belleville.

The basement now used for board accommodation, staff lounge and offices will be turned into an audio - visual centre.

The grant will permit the painting of exteriors of some schools.

Some personnel will be hired with grant money. An assistant audio-visual technician will be employed to assist with the centre.

An electrician and a plumber will be employed to survey all schools in the system and make a report of the needs. And a landscape gardener will visit all schools and will make recommendations on landscaping to improve the exterior appearance of the buildings.

Queen Alex Closing Protested

Opposition to the closing of Queen Alexandra School this June is solidifying into community action.

A meeting for ratepayers will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the school to organize protest of the closing.

Hastings county board of education announced Thursday night that it will have to close the school because of declining enrolments. The 400 students who would have attended Queen Alex next fall will be bused to Queen Elizabeth, Queen Victoria and Sir William Churchill schools.

A steering committee met Friday night at the home of George Fisher to organize opposition.

This morning a spokesman, Mike Pierce, said Sunday's meeting at the school will determine the strength of the opposition and plan further action. The Loyalist College student and local group plans to attend the Hastings county board of education meeting and city council, both on Monday.

Mr. Pierce said Queen Alex children will "lose out" with the closing of their school.

Plans call, he said, for kindergarten to grade 6 pupils to be transported to Queen Victoria School, another 61-year-old building.

Queen Vic is only marginally better than Queen Alex, said Mr. Pierce. The school is not used in the winter and heating the offices and halls into them at the school at noon will be to their advantage.

The senior students, those in grades 7 and 8, will be bused to the Sir William Public School on Macdonald Ave. But there are no home economics and industrial arts facilities in Queen Victoria and it will be about two years before they can be built.

The only way the pupils can get shop is to go to Moira Secondary," said Mr. Pierce.

"The school board's reason for closing Queen Alexandra is its need to fill student spaces in the other three schools" said Mr. Pierce. "If the spaces must be filled before government grants can be obtained to improve facilities in Park Dale School, it is overcrowded in the west end and the board has to guess all the time. Grants are operating to capacity to get grants for construction of new schools.

However, Mr. Pierce said a petition circulated last Monday morning that $700,000 of this amount is designated for a new gym and only $50,000 is needed for renovations.

Mr. Pierce said the trustees suggested a solution Thursday night, that the Winston Churchill School, whose pupils are within walking distance of Queen Elizabeth.

However, officials repeated the unfeasibility of this statement by adding there is "no way" the government would permit a school to close a 30-year-old school and renovate a 61-year-old building. Moreover, to bring Queen Alex up to five standards specifications have been estimated by contractors' consultants at $750,000.

Mr. Pierce questioned the board's estimate of future pupil population in the east end. He said the population is now declining, but the adult density is increasing with the construction of high-rises.

"As those buildings get older the less children in," he said. He suggested that the area of growing pupil density in the future will probably be the Queen Alex neighborhood.

"If parents keep getting a house in this area because of the quality of the school and I'm upset," Mr. Pierce concluded.

John Doran and his class of senior students at the OSD spent some time discussing the merits of the Youth Development Plan inaugurated by the ANAVIC. This was followed by a study of the Youth Development Medallion especially designed for this association. At the conclusion of these studies the students were asked to write an essay on their discussions.

Past Dominion President J. C. Lundberg on behalf of the ANAVIC, donated medallions to be awarded to the three top essayists and Mr. Doran made the presentations to the winners on Tuesday, Feb. 5 and expressed the hope that the essays would be published in the OSD Magazine.

The members, especially the Old Guard, would like to wish a slightly belated Happy 77th Birthday to Jack Hall, retired sports editor, George Carver.

This should be a sellout both nights, Friday Feb. 22 and Saturday Feb. 24. Better get your tickets at the bar and don't procrastinate or you'll be told "There hain't no more". Despite the below zero weather there was a good crowd on hand last Saturday to enjoy the warmth and comfort of the Tartan Lounge and the tuneful melodies of the Troubadors with everybody shooting it up and having a very good time. The Ladies' Open Darts tournament held at the Legion Hall, a total of 27 teams competed from all over this part of Ontario. From the east came four charming ladies to represent No. 72 Auxiliary of Iona Station. Little did they, they scored, they conquered. Led by their captain, Marcie Hamilton, who certainly set a fine example as she won a beautiful trophy for a high score of 140, Pat Broderick, Helen S. Jacque and Peggy Wilson stormed the ramparts from noon until 8 p.m. and, tired but triumphant won the top spot. Each was presented with a lovely engraved silver tray and $15. Cde. Flower Judging To be Organized

PICTON — Philip Dodds, past president of the Ontario Horticultural Society has been named chairman of a special committee to study and organize, if necessary, a judging school for flower enthusiasts.

Mr. Dodds said the appointment was made when he attended a meeting of 19 horticulture societies of district three in Dundas last Sunday.

The former news editor observed that a highlight of the meeting was a decision to urge all municipalities to adopt an official flower as Ontario adopted the trillium as its emblem.

In the village of Cherry Valley, Mr. Dodds said the co-operation of residents, has promoted the petunia as a community symbol. The horticulturalist advocated other flowers such as marigolds, roses, geraniums and lilacs should be adopted by other Prince Edward municipalities. He suggested North Marysburgh should ask residents could plant clumps of lilacs along the Creasy road to create a scenic drive.

Mr. Dodds also is interested in securing support to a suggestion that "Herd" church services which would feature flower banked altars and sermons based on a floral theme. He said that 26 years ago in Cherry Valley he organized and preached such a service to promote beautification.

Antique Painting Mystery Addition

PICTON — Inn on the Bay, a stone castle with a romantic past has added a new hint of mystery through an unusual painting.

Mrs. Robert Ingarfield, a co-owner of the inn, explained that last summer she and Mrs. C. H. Franklin, owners of a large Prince Edward area farm called to visit the castle.

The couple impulsively decided that they had a painting which belonged with the magnificent decor of Inn on the Bay and asked to donate it.

The painting, an original purportedly by a Scotsman named Duncan, is unsigned. A huge work of art measuring more than five feet by eight feet it has been hung in the ballroom.

The subjects of the artist were a mother and child. The youngster, a little girl, is shown with a battledor in her hand. Battledor and shuttlecock apparently was an olden day term for the game now called badminton.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin also gave a battledor to the Ingarfields and it is displayed on a mantle above the dining room fire place. The battledor is shaped much like a small paddle and is crafted of wood.

The Scottish artist who reputedly painted mother and child is believed to have six paintings hanging in the Edinburgh gallery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ingarfield are curious about the painting's origins and hope through research to learn more about the artist.

The art work requires some restorative work but still remains arresting in its muted tones of plum, brown and grey.

Picton "Castle" Becomes Elegant Inn on the Bay

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton's first mayor, Philip Dufferin, QC, was a practical man who scoffed at building castles in the air. In 1842 he purchased a farm house on Bridge Street and erected it consecrated the incomparable Castle Villeneuve.

His home remained in the Low family until 1893 when it was offered for sale in a booklet titled Picturesque Prince Edward and today still exists in much of its original splendor on Inn on the Bay, an elegant dining room.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ingarfield of Picton and Mr. and Mrs. James MacDougall of Toronto Inn on the Bay has become a popular tourist attraction since its official opening last June.

The 25-room castle, built in the French Gothic style, features a huge ballroom measuring 30 feet by 60 feet, and two dining rooms complete with romantic atmosphere. A boutique stocked with unusual gifts and handicrafts is open year 'round for tourists and local shoppers.

Dinner at Inn on the Bay includes a visit into Prince Edward's glamorous past at no additional charge. The wide entrance hall of the castle is lighted by a Gothic style windows with frosted centre panes bordered with miniature insets of colored glass. Two knights of yore pose ready for battle on pedestals in the hallway.

The dining rooms retain several antique pieces which were part of the original low home, among them a Tiffany glass chandelier and several marble top and small tables. A magnificent fireplace is the focal point of the main dining room with windows overlooking Picton harbor. The boathouse is adjacent.

The ballroom, used by the Prince Edward Historical Society for its Centennial Ball in 1967, has been restored and is resplendent in blue, white and gold. A grey marble fireplace lends charm and warmth on chilly days. The ceiling of the ballroom originally was covered original-ly in a fresco in shades of pale pink and blue created by a French artist exiled from his homeland. Today it is painted in white and gold for a dramatic contrast with pale blue and gold wall covering.

The renovation of Castle Villeneuve was undertaken by the Ingarfields and the MacDougalls approximately one year before the grand opening.

Its owners hope to expand facilities next summer in order to provide overnight accommodation for guests. Boat docks near Inn on the Bay along the shoreline of the harbor also number among planned improvements.

This winter, Inn on the Bay is open each Friday and Saturday for evening meals and on Sundays for smorgasbords. Special events are catered through the week.

Castle Villeneuve, a proud relic of Prince Edward's early days, seems to have adapted to its new rule as one of the county's prime tourist attractions with ease. As Inn on the Bay, all of its old elegance has been emphasized and preserved for enjoyment by tourists and local residents.

Landmark Yields Venerable Weekly

Wreckers demolishing 150-year-old Simpson's Tavern knew they were working on a venerable building.

But they were surprised Thursday to find a document still inside that is almost as far removed as the structure itself.

Called Mackenzie's Weekly Message, the four-page relic is filled with news from around the world and advertisements for Toronto merchants.

Workmen from the demolition firm of M. W. Hayman discovered the paper while knocking down the two-storey Simpson building that once drew early Belleville residents to the Dundas-Front Street intersection.

An Smallsburgh antique dealer who retrieved the paper says it was tucked and found days in Paris before crossing the channel by ship for London. The packaged tour costs each student $285.

Landmark Yields Venerable Weekly

He also said, after further investigation, that William Lyon Mackenzie, who led the Upper Canada Rebellion in 1837 and was subsequently exiled to the United States published the newspaper in the Elgin Buildings on Toronto's Yonge Street.

The dealer, who declined to give his name, said the paper was not for sale.

Women at Work

Could women really make a better job of things were they given greater say in our society, or at least put on a more equal footing with men in the business of running this perplexing world?

If women — in Canada at any rate — are underachievers, is it simply because they have not been afforded adequate opportunity? In other words, if so much time were not required for the raising of children, who knows what additional contributions could be made by women.

Of course many women still manage to achieve prominence in a man's world — such as Sylvia Ostrey, head of Statistics Canada, who recently was the first witness before the special Commons committee on food prices, and Madame Sauve, the new federal science minister. There are others too, but it is nevertheless clear by and large that women here are not as involved in business and the professions as they are overseas.

• • •

According to figures released by Toronto real estate broker Gibson Willoughby Ltd., who incidentally employ almost as many saleswomen as salesmen (in 1972 total earnings of the women exceeded the salesmen by $52,000) and published by columnist Dennis Braithwaite, the majority of doctors in the Soviet Union are women while in Canada only 10.5 per cent are. In Finland, most dentists are women; in Canada less than 15 per cent are.

Of all employed women in Canada in 1970, one in three, according to this survey, worked as a clerk, only one in 33 as a manager. Moreover, in 96 per cent of jobs, men are paid more than women; in 52 per cent of jobs, the difference in favor of men is 25 per cent or more.

Conversely, Braithwaite adds to these figures the belief that women are better fitted for anything more than the notion that girls usually get the best marks and win all the academic prizes "because they concentrate harder, have more orderly minds and are more conscientious than the boys. . ." He suggests that only marriage and the raising of families prevent them, from following through.

Well now we are not sure that women would be all that much better suited to the many roles now filled by men, but where feasible and where they are qualified we are certain the work scene and professional life would benefit from a greater fusion of their sex.

As it is, women are more involved in these spheres than may be supposed. Women doctors and dentists may be in the minority here — and we know for example that women graduates are almost non-existent on national radio and television — but in business and professional life they are becoming increasingly active.

In Kingston for example an extensive newspaper survey has revealed that women paid by the taxpayers' money, like men in similar spheres, do not fall on wage scales. Women councillors at Canada Manpower for instance, often without degrees or special training earn up to $12,000. At the prison for women guards made as much as $10,700. Some other women's salaries in that community: $14,000 or so for the administrator of the social services department as half and around $19,000 for a couple of women professors at Queen's, not to mention a lady in real estate who as a top saleswoman earns more than $20,000 annually. A woman captain in the armed forces earns more than $11,000. And so on.

One of the Manpower counsellors admitted, "we're overpaid, we're getting comparable community salaries," such as the until recently $1.65 minimum wage of sales clerks — now up a shade to $1.80.

• • •

Women then are very much involved in the work force and are earning good money in many instances as the figures show. Air stewardesses incidentally are another group who earn up to $10,000 or more. It is not every man who earns this kind of money. Meanwhile the heading on Braithwaite's article is worth noting: "It's a waste of women to keep them at home." Many women are proving the truth of this statement. Provided the welfare of children, where involved, is not compromised, it can make for happier and more stimulating family life all round. There will be those of course who disagree and in the ultimate, it is a matter for the families themselves to decide.

Government Spending Irks Fledgling New Brunswick MP

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — "What has happened to the value of money in this country?" asks Conservative MP J. Robert Howie of New Brunswick's York-Sunbury riding.

As freshman parliamentarian, long involved in both provincial and federal politics, for the Maritimes — but new to the national capital — he asks the question in some wonder, even, perhaps, in awe.

But he is not asking about inflation, because like everyone else, he knows the federal government's massive tax-and-spend policy is rippling a nickel off every discounted dollar.

Mrs. Howie can tell him all about that every time she goes to the supermarket and watches in dismay the shrinking dollar cutting less and less food into her shopping basket.

The latest thing MP is talking about the way he sees the government "splashing the money around Ottawa," as he views it, is the $4,000 cost, what the administration likes to call the "spending process".

He got his first clue when he moved into his new office in the Confederation Building, former base of the Finance Department, on which Public Works is "splashing" $5-million - plus to make MPs more comfortable.

Every one of them, in the Centre and West Blocks and the redecorated Confederation Building, is getting two-room offices.

Some, with parliamentary seniority, have three spacious rooms with highrise views.

A shuttle of six buses ferries them up at the door of the Confederation Building, where they stand outside in comfort of overhead heating no matter how savage the weather, and runs them up Parliament Hill to the Centre Block.

Rugs, furniture are all new, and every office and every room-size lounge has tropical plants that come at maybe $30 per copy at the florist, and are dusted, fertilized and sprayed by a specialist who makes a weekly trip from Toronto to manicure the greenery.

"Gee," exclaimed J. Robert Howie as he strolled down the corridor from his "office to the rotunda lounge and fingered the deep luxurious chesterfields and chairs, covered in a striking black and white check, "I hope none of the boys from New Brunswick come up and see this.

"They won't like it a bit, because they know — and man, do they know — there are much better ways to spend the money."

But what really hit J. Robert Howie between the eyes — and he can see it every time he steps out of his Confederation Building office — is the near-$40-million federal extravaganza of Place du Portage, a new government highrise department-office complex.

The building itself was estimated by Public Works at an initial $15-million, but will go higher before the staff moves in.

The underground garage beneath the complex, providing 2,500 parking spaces — at $4,000 each — carries, figure it out, a starting price tag of $6-million.

Now get that — parking spaces for federal employees at $4,000 apiece — when the government's own National Capital Commission is publicly campaigning against what it calls the "pollution" of free car parks, provided as a civil service "fringe benefit."

Then if you have a $13-million - plus building and an $8-million underground garage you have to have interchanges and ramps for the cars. And that is costing another $5-million.

So there sits Place du Portage in all its river-front magnificence on the Hull shore while most of its civil service tenants live in Ottawa.

How to reach it?

Build a bridge, of course.

A bridge which Senator George McIlraith, former Public Works Minister, 33-year parliamentary veteran and known on Parliament Hill still as "Mr. Ottawa," protests "begins nowhere and ends nowhere" and costs an initially estimated $13-million.

Now you have an office tower, underground garage, interchanges and ramps and a bridge and when you add it all up it is just $40-million. And like many more, because you know how estimates escalate with every passing day.

But hold it. What about launching the project? Hire a Montreal publicist, of course, and pay him $120,000 to flaunt what J. Robert Howie thinks might be better hidden.

"Forty million dollars," he croaks, "beautiful! Do any of these guys up here know what $40 million means to the Maritimes, or the West, Northern or even sections of your own Eastern Ontario?"

Newsman Is Detained in Rhodesia

By KEVIN DOYLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Imprisonment of a leading white correspondent in Rhodesia may have some marginal effect on Rhodesia's relations with neighboring South Africa although, in a bizarre fashion, it may also serve the immediate aims of Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith.

Peter Niesewand, a free-lance correspondent who worked in Salisbury for the BBC, a British newspaper, Reuters news agency and others, was detained in prison under Rhodesia's Emergency Powers Act.

The arresting order was signed by Justice Minister Desmond Lardner-Burke, godfather of Niesewand's wife, Norma.

He is the first white Rhodesian to be detained since Garfield Todd and his daughter Judith were imprisoned last year. Todd remains under house arrest on his farm and Judith has since left the country.

Niesewand's detention may have its first diplomatic impact in South Africa, where he was born, and in Britain.

Reasons for his arrest have not been disclosed. But it is generally assumed he will be considered him a hostile critic of the white government's racialist policies and a threat to his autocratic style of rule.

Basically, what the South African government may fear is that Smith's decision to arrest the leading Rhodesian correspondent for overseas organizations will bring down the wrath of all governments in the United Nations who oppose minority white domination of African states.

This already has happened with Smith's Jan. 9 closing of the border with Zambia, allegedly to curb a threat from black guerrillas based there. The border has since been reopened but Zambia refuses to resume movements across it.

The question that may concern South Africa is whether Britain because, under international law, Niesewand is a citizen of the British colony of Rhodesia and has the right to claim the assistance of Westminster.

Faced with these probable repercussions, observers are asking why has Smith acted against Niesewand even before the controversy over the border closing has died down?

The most logical answer at this stage seems to be that Smith's moves are directly related to his desire to reach a settlement with Britain on the constitutional issue without giving too much ground.

He appears to be trying to prove that he is in complete control in Rhodesia before talking either to the African nationalist movement or to the British. He also seems to be responding to extreme right-wing opinion in Rhodesia which favors the toughest possible action against dissident blacks and whites.

Many observers believe Smith is trying to mollify right-wing elements in order to prepare them for a settlement bid. He may also be undertaking a "purge" of his most outspoken critics before making any conciliatory moves towards the blacks and towards Britain.

Hazards of Snowmobiling

Ottawa Journal

The mere suggestion that snowmobiling is anything but a highly desirable sport, an invigorating pastime at all events a form of recreation which one shouldn't knock without first trying, inevitably brings the charge that the outsider simply doesn't understand snowmobiling or its enthusiasts. Perhaps, for it is obviously difficult for those for whom winter is skating on the canal, skiing in the Gatineau or simply a brisk walk in the mid - morning frost to find any attraction in the speed, noise and smell of snowmobiling.

Partly it is a matter of personal likes. Those who do not share the appeal of the snowmobile should grant the right of others to enjoy the sport.

But what society should not tolerate about snowmobiling is the toll it takes: 118 Canadians killed two winters ago, 81 last year and already 70 this winter; six dead in two weeks in the Ottawa area alone, including the shocking death of two deaths in one family in a space of four days.

We can understand the Queen's University professor, himself a snowmobile enthusiast, who worries because a survey last summer showed that 502 snowmobile operators had been involved in 591 accidents, and that by his calculations,

By-Law For Belleville

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Within the next few days, City Council will be presented with a new set of proposed by-laws governing the operation of snowmobiles within the limits of the Corporation of the City of Belleville. These proposed by-laws are the result of weeks of discussions at meetings with the executive of two of our local snowmobile clubs, the Recreation and Raceway Association, members of our municipal planning aldermen and an open-minded and hard working city solicitor.

We look into serious consideration all previous letters and complaints about snowmobilers and their machines received in previous years, and it should be noted that almost without exception these complaints stem from the fact that unconcerned drivers of continuously noisy children and teenagers to operate snowmobiles for hours on end for mits without regard for traffic, safety, peaceful enjoyment of property. Streets and school yards become dangerous and sidewalks become ideal trails. Those of us who are genuinely concerned about the safety and the rights of others who do not particularly realize that this is a prime problem and have therefore drawn up what is the new proposal to council, a clause limiting the age of snowmobile drivers to 16 years and over and then only if that driver has in possession a valid driver's licence. We feel that this will eliminate approximately 99 percent of our problems.

The "Dumbells" with Red Newman, Pat Rafferty and all the old gang, will be at the Griffin Opera House next week.

Frank Gallagher, Tweed, spent the weekend with his parents here.

Muriel Patterson, Albert St. has returned home after spending a vacation in Brockville.

there is one accident for every 143 hours of machine use by snowmobilers.

What we cannot understand is why the snowmobilers themselves are not pressing for safer machines, why the Ontario government has taken years to get around to studying seriously the snowmobile hazard, and why a select committee of the Ontario Legislature set up last June had taken all summer, fall and winter to study — at $50 a day for committee members — the problem. Snowmobiling is here to stay. The job for our federal and provincial governments is to see that the machines are better built, the rules and regulations more strict, and education far more widespread. Had it been done with the haste the situation deserves, lives might have been saved this winter. That of the three deaths in one family in a space of four days.

Wolves Defended

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

The much - maligned brush wolf, a small cousin of the Canadian timber wolf, has found a defender in W.C. Barrie, livestock evaluator for North Dumfries Township. There were times in recent years, Barrens when Ontario stopped paying a $25 bounty on brush wolves.

Since the bounty was stopped on Dec. 14, says Mr. Barrie, he has seen no evidence of animals being killed or tracked by brush wolves in North Dumfries.

Biologists have found, by examining stomach contents, that wolves most often get one and one half of their daily diet by eating mice. When brush wolves in a farming community work at reducing the population of field mice they are being friends to farmers with crops in the ground.

Taking the price off the head of the brush wolf, and giving him a better chance to survive, helps preserve nature's balance in a way that can help the land animal at the top end of the food chain.

Child's Virtue Not Innocence But Tolerant Inquisitiveness

By REV. GORDON C. SMYTH

John de Gerson (1363-1429) lived in a time when Europe was afflicted with a deep internal fear. It looked upon all of the Holy Roman Church and the Holy Roman Empire, the two supreme creations of the Middle Ages, could be shattered. Upon then like that French theologian, chancelor of the University of Paris, to offer help for church reform, there fell the task of finding a healing of "the Great Schism".

This began in 1378 when two rival candidates, Urban VI and Clement VII, disputed the papal throne. Germany supported the Council of Pisa (1409) which claimed to depose the two existing "popes" and elect a third. After it became apparent that this had merely produced three "popes" instead of two, the Council of Constance assembled in 1415. Gerson attended and played a major role. Efforts to reform ecclesiastical authority were accepted. The schism was ended by the "resignation of two of the "popes" and the deposition of the third.

Weary of the conflicts of the time, Jean de Gerson sought rest for the remainder of his life days within the seclusion of a monastery. Here, we are told, he preferred the friendship of children to the company of men with him to the chapel also in order that they might attend their tiny white hands in the prayer, "O God, have pity on your servant who is also in Germ-ish."

Well, there are times when we too grow tired of adult company. There is within it all something of the heart of the child, something that experience threatens to destroy, but which still thirsts for the fountain of childhood.

We turn to those whose lives are still untarnished by the flame and smoke of selfish ambition, whose faces are still free of hypocritical smiles. Unfortunate is the adult who cannot enter into his side the spirit of childhood. Jesus said of children, "For to such belongs the kingdom of heaven". As a matter of fact, he put it stronger. On one occasion he even turned become like children, you will not enter the kingdom of heaven" (Matthew 18:3)

What are the qualities of the child that are so essential to the Christian life? I have an idea that many may recall the famous painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds, and say "innocence". But I get a protest as the innocency of a child is based upon experience and immaturity, that does the kingdom of God. The individual who is "good" because he has never experienced to the power of evil is unlikely to be much of a Christian.

Nor is it the naive acceptance of what he is told that makes a child our model. And yet so often unwavering faith is considered a virtue. But it just cannot accept the position that our Lord expects Christians to believe this or that simply because the Church or the Bible says so. Each of us must develop his God-given mind to come to God's truth; Credulity is no mark of a Christian.

Then, what model does Jesus by saying, "Truly, I say to you unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter

The child's virtue is not innocence but tolerant inquisitiveness. Who has not known child to ask questions? He has a firm, almost dogmatic conviction that everything has an explanation. He seems to feel that his happiness depends on knowing it. Open up to him directness and haste as possible.

What parents have not been bombarded with these inquiries, "Why should I do that?" "Where did I come from?" "Who made God?" Yes, and what fundamental questions they are! They fascinate the child's mind We have lost something most precious if they do not fascinate our "adult" minds more.

Then there is the sense of wonder. The world of a child is a wonderland, full of fairies and angels. But as we grow older these become remote. Only the ogres and witches remain. More's the pity. Gilbert K. Chesterton recalled long and hard with doubt. Afterwards he wrote, "mysticism makes men sane; mere logic drives them mad". Is it not a pity to be sane on so many points?

Unless we turn and become like children, sharing their yet-mystery filled spirit, we will never enter the kingdom of heaven. But if we turn, "whatever way the winds do blow, our hearts will be glad to have it so." For you and I are in the care of a Father God, and ours the peace that surpasses knowledge.

Films Stress Changes From Sex to Violence

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most interesting characteristics of motion pictures, the broadcasting and film division of the United States Catholic Conference says violence is the dominant ingredient of the North American screen.

"There is a notable shift from the earlier preoccupation with sex to a new dimension of emphasis on violence," says Rev. Patrick J. Sullivan, longtime director of the agency.

It issues a fortnightly collection of reviews, the Catholic Film Newsletter, which offers a balanced estimate of new movies for potential viewers, whatever their faith.

The service has been described by other experts such as the show business weekly Variety as one of the most informed guides to worthwhile movie-going for adults and youngsters alike.

In any case, it's a far cry from the church's old Legion of Decency office, abandoned in the early 1960s and which rated movies mainly on whether they contained nudity or profanity.

Although freed of such approaches, the present-day service still ranks films for their suitability for various ages, but on a basis of their underlying theory about life, including its harsher aspects.

"We're seriously concerned about encouraging content in the film media that brings out its best potential," says Father Sullivan, whose staff of lay analysts includes those backgrounds in history, communications, psychology, education and philosophy.

The interdenominational broadcasting and film commission of the National Council of Churches, made up of Protestant and Orthodox denominations" also puts out a regular evaluation of movies, called Film Information.

It avoids judgments about the "morality" of views, but makes a serious assessment of their worth from a Christian perspective. It says, however, its evaluations are made by individual theologians and critics.

In contrast the Catholic Film Newsletter reaches its estimates through consensus of its widely backgrounded staff and a board of consultants.

In its year-end report on the current state of the movie industry, the church agency says:

"Moviegoers have on the whole had it with the more explicit displays of sexual materialism.

Now "they are buying, or at least putting up with the next trend toward super-graphic violence."

"Violence—in action, in language, and as an acceptable if by-product—derived—has come into its own on the American screen."

The "prevalence of violence and its desensitizing effect" reflects conditions in society itself, the report says, but adds the movie industry bears a heavy responsibility for "contributing to an anti-social "romanticizing of bloodletting and mayhem" without any legitimate purpose.

"Perhaps we are at a turning point," the report adds hopefully. It says that certainly there must be the "starting increase" of screen violence, the shrinkage of the movie-going population and boredom of the public, the film industry may rediscover the source of the peculiarly distinctive appeal of motion pictures and their ability to move and enlighten and entertain.

Father Ben Honored, Famed for His Voice

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Rev. Benjamin Kuhn has a virtuoso voice which can sound sensational at one moment and laughable the next.

Last year, a convention of liquor dealers in Albany heard that resonant voice, as did a group of bankers at Lake Placid, an assembly of farmers and ranchers and a fraternal order of black Roman Catholics in Washington, D.C.

Father Kuhn, 67, makes more than 100 speeches each year in a dizzying schedule of public appearances.

Father Kuhn—or Father

Eldorado

ELDORADO — Mr. and Mrs. Garry Bailey, Oshawa spent a recent weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith.

Mr. Ray McAdams is ill at home after spending two months with Mr. and Mrs. Wilber McAdams and family of Regina.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hannah and daughter of Mississauga turned home from their honeymoon trip. Mrs. Hannah is Gene General Hospital.

Mrs. Frances Busby has respent some time Rose with Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Boyle recently.

Duty Calls

During the French regime in Canada, adult males were required to participate in militia exercises and to do monthly drill.

Ben, as he is called at Siena College in suburban Loudonville, looks like a modern Friar Tuck, with his pink face, sparse white hair and 200 pounds swaddled in a brown habit.

Father Ben came to Siena with six other Franciscans when the school was founded in 1937. He watched it grow from a tiny community housed in an old farmhouse to a college with 2,000 students.

Father Ben believes millions of persons have heard him speak over the years on such topics as automation, integration and the Egyptian situation.

He prefers the personal appearance rather than television evangelism.

A testimonial dinner in Albany recently paid tribute to Father Ben's 40th anniversary as a priest and raised $5,000 to establish a mathematics chair at Siena in his name.

Students Hike Nature's Trails As Classroom Walls Vanish

By BONNIE KING
Staff Reporter

If a teacher has never been outside the four walls of her classroom how can she teach something which relates to nature?

Wayne Brooks, co-ordinator of out-of-door activities for the Hastings County Board of Education questions the validity of any teacher in this situation.

"I believe if I'm teaching my class about a river delta, then we should visit one. That is the same for trees, animals, or anything that has to do with nature."

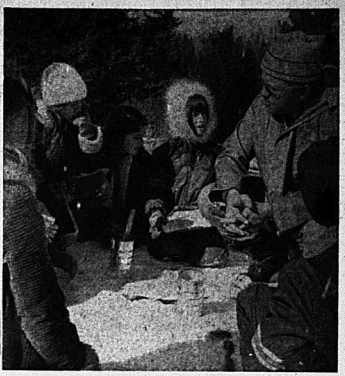
The H. Frenk Outdoor Education Centre off Highway 33 south of Plainfield, which Mr. Brooks operates provides the highest standard for Outdoor Education in the Hastings county. A joint effort has been made by the Moira Conservation Authority and the Hastings County Board of Education.

The 230 acres of land which include an hour and half nature trail and portable classroom provides the more than 6,000 students in this area with an education or natural environment.

This property donated free of charge to the Board of Education is approximately within 30 miles driving distance for 90 per cent of the students who participate at the education centre.

From Jan. 9 until now, more than 1,300 students in the Hastings County have up to the present time attended a day-session at this educational centre. This includes Marmora, Madoc, and the areas south in the country.

March 2, a maple sugar bush will be available for the students at the elementary school level.



Because of the sophistication for high school level students, it is easier to cater to the elementary children. The cost of equipment would be too much.

Mr. Brooks estimated that more than one-half of the students in the elementary schools in the Hastings County will benefit from this out-door education centre.

O'Hara's Mills will be the next study for students.

"Some days, we have more than 100 students visit us here," said Wayne. "The students are divided into groups. Some go on the nature trail, others learn how to use snow shoes, while others learn about the snow and its freezing factor with salt. Out-door cookouts are also enjoyed along with the winter trees, birds and winter animals. Health nurses attend these sessions to aid when necessary.

Mr. Brooks has always been interested in the Outdoor education program for students. Before Wayne began working with this project for the Hastings County Board of Education, he was a high school principal in Trenton where he now resides.

One Way of Learning

Why not learn about snow outdoors? Wayne Brooks of the H. Frenk Outdoor Education Centre near Plainfield, illustrates how salt absorbs heat when it melts snow, and consequently the temperature drops. Students from Earl Prentiss Elementary School in Marmora, grade 5, enjoyed Friday at this educational centre.

Firmer Bust Exercises

Diet or no diet, most women could use a firmer bust. Try this easy exercise. Work well, but don't expect Hollywood starlet results.

Grasp both your wrists firmly and raise your arms to shoulder height in front of you, bending your elbows.

Slowly push your hands down your arms toward your elbows as hard as you can. Release.

Try this 10 times the first day and increase this number by one every day.

Thigh Reducer

Stand up straight, feet together, with arms at your side. Raise one knee as high as possible, then grasp the knee and shin with your hands. Keep your back straight. Now pull your leg to you as tightly as possible, but the muscles in the thighs tighten up! Repeat it with the other leg. Try for four times with each leg the first day and increase that number by one each day.

Ontario Wild Rice Native Delicacy

Wild rice is a native delicacy say Food Specialists at the Ontario Food Council. Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Its history is rich with Indian lore, it grows in natural stands in the north-western region of the province of Ontario. This edible, annual, reed-like grass grows to a height of up to eight feet in protected shallow lakes and streams.

It is harvested by the Indians during late August and early September in the season they call "the month of the wild rice moon". Usually, the rice is collected by teams of two Indians, one paddling a canoe through the beds, the other bending the plant over the canoe with a stick and flailing the stalks with another stick, thus knocking the grains into the bottom of the canoe. The grain is cured for about a month after harvesting. During this time it turns quite dark and is then threshed, cleaned and packaged for your table.

Outdoor Snow Lesson

Hiking, outdoor barbecues and lessons on nature are a few of outdoor experiences children in Hastings County Elementary Schools learn on a first-hand basis. Notes are still taken while the children absorb the laws of nature. Teachers and students alike learn and enjoy when they visit the H. Frenk Outdoor Educational Centre where Wayne Brooks encourages involvement in nature.

In an era when horses were the main means of transportation, where men concerned with their welfare?

That men were is confirmed in Belleville's Daily Intelligencer of 1909 in the Special Industrial Souvenir number, and pays tribute to one horse lover, as follows:

"Among the horse owners of Belleville and vicinity, there is propably no man better known than D. H. Ackerill, V.S., whose office and consulting room are on Front Street, and whose home is on John Street, North."

"Dr. Ackerill is a native of Belleville, having been born in the year 1861 in the house in which he still lives. He was educated in the public and high schools of this city, and then took a course in the Ontario Veterinary College, Toronto, from which, in 1879, he received his diploma as Veterinary Surgeon."

"Dr. Ackerill has, by his well-known skill in his profession, built up a large practice and is, in addition, government inspector of live-stock, and has been veterinary for the School for the Deaf since it was built."

"He was married in 1887 to Miss Elizabeth A. Addison and has three children, Mary Mabel and Hilda. His wife is the daughter of the late John Addison, of yachting fame, builder and designer of the 'Minnie A' the fastest 3rd class yacht in fresh water in her day.

"In fraternal circles Dr. Ackerill is particularly interested in the Sons of England, the National Society and the Church of England.

"He is also an elocutionist of marked ability and was once called "The Coming McCullough" on account of the powerful tragic and dramatic fire evidenced in his elocutionary work.

"Dr. Ackerill is a specialist in Veterinary Surgery, and as an operator stands high, having a record of 30 years experience. His practice extends from Oshawa in the west to Brockville in the east, and as far north as Madawaska, and is kept busy from morning till night.

"His horse and cattle remedies, 'Ackerill's All-round Liniment' and 'Ackerill's Powders' have a high reputation, and are sold by druggists and blacksmiths everywhere."

Critical Father Causes Depressing Situation

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have three children, ages 10, 8 and 7. The girls are all at the top of their classes, but my (only male child) is now hearing threats from his teacher that he'll probably fail.

He thinks he has to compete with his dad and that he won't seem to think at all. He has a math teacher for the first time this year and can't seem to grasp it. He does well in his reading and can learn spelling words as long as he has an deadline to meet and doesn't think about his teacher.

Our doctor has him on Vitamin B because he'd get bouts of depression and cry and cry and would unreasonably insist that he was no good or could not achieve anything. He gets considerably more praise at home than criticism, though I must admit that my husband used to be heavy on the criticism, and during the last year while my father was ill and in his effort to change, John has got bad case of these depressed spells. — Help.

Dear Help: Your last paragraph tells the story. John's father thought he had to demand perfection and went about it the wrong way: the critical way.

At nine, John has some pretty firm ideas about his own worthlessness. It was the very fact that his father's change in attitude, like for the better, proves the usefulness of loving praise.

His fear of a male teacher is a carry-over from his fear of his dad's. Talk to the teacher and give your husband a pat on the back for his efforts at understanding his boy and carrying his share of the load.

Dear Doris: I have been trying to find out where one can have cosmetic surgery done. I am thinking of face-lifting.

Also, is it very expensive and how effective is it? — Freckles.

Dear Freckles: Your family doctor is the one to refer you to the centre near you where plastic surgery is being done. Or ask at your local academy of medicine.

It is an expensive business, largely dependent on the skill of what needs doing. It is not usually a medical insurance item unless it is "medically indicated".

People whose living depends on their personal attractiveness find it well worth while, as face-lifting can last from 10 to 15 years, your face, and the marks of surgery themselves are almost invisible.

But remember, you can change your looks with good grooming, good nourishing food, and a determined effort at regular skin care, facials you give yourself, hair care. And rest. Also remember that a face - lifting job does not last forever.

The best face-lift I know costs effort, not money. Practise smiling. We are a sober lot.

Dear Doris: You mention Canadian resources to help solve problems. I would certainly appreciate any direction you could offer on these, and related matters. — Troubled.

Dear Troubled: When I speak about Canadian resources to meet people's needs, it is because I cross our country regularly and keep in touch with them.

You may have noticed that most syndicated columns come to us from the States, and they are aimed primarily at that American audience of readers. And why not? But you cannot beat the U.S. writers for versed in the helps to be had in Canada for Canadians. Needs and laws differ in many ways.

(Putting it down on paper helps — In a letter to Doris, a Canadian journalist with a master's degree in social work — in care of this newspaper.)

BENEFITS INCREASED

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Public assistance benefits paid to local residents increased by 44 per cent last year to $68,500, Kay Jensen, director of social service, attributes the increases largely to the increase in rents throughout the city. He said low - rental accommodations aren't available in the supply needed, so families receiving public assistance must be placed in high - rental suites.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE

Proclamation

"Ontario Heart Foundation Week"

FEBRUARY 26th to MARCH 3/73

This is "Heart Function Week". During the week of February 26th to March 3, 1973, the Belleville Chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation will launch an appeal for funds.

Heart disease can affect each of us. The disease can be and is being, controlled but this is only possible through medical research and an informed public.

The rate of progress towards the elimination of heart attacks and strokes depends on the funds available to involve with the qualified and dedicated people who undertake this work in our university hospitals. In Ontario, your Heart Foundation has spent over a quarter of a million and a quarter dollars in grants-in-aid and fellowships.

Had it not been for the concerted drive in heart research over the past few years, life expectancy in Canada would not be as high as it is today. Many thousands of Canadians owe their lives to the doctors and scientists who have devoted their time and talents towards a better understanding of the cause of the heart and circulatory system.

THEREFORE, by the virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I do hereby proclaim the week of February 26th to March 3, 1973 as —

"ONTARIO HEART FOUNDATION WEEK"

ROBIN JEFFREY,
MAYOR.

DATED at the Mayor's Office
this 26th day of February, 1973.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CORWELL

Can guilt cure a 'goof-off'?

If might if the person who continually lets others do what he is supposed to do suddenly "reforms." But that is not likely to happen. The "goof-off" has made a lifestyle of ducking responsibility. He has no compunction that others have to work harder, because he refused to do his share. If he ever gave it a second thought, the goof-off would argue that those who cover up for him do it to punish themselves for their guilt feelings.

Are table manners worth an argument?

NO, especially if scolding the children over the way they eat will upset them and perhaps deprive them of the nourishment they need. That doesn't mean children should not be taught good table manners by example nor should they go uncorrected. Just continue to show them decent table manners, but make sure they realize they are full-fledged members of the family—bad manners and all.

Should a roving eye get socked?

NO; not as long as it keeps moving. Once the roving eye of a husband rests on one particular object, however, a wife ought to do something about it, though socking her husband in the eye isn't the answer. Perhaps a wife who is annoyed at her husband's roving eye should turn an eye toward herself. Perhaps she might see the reason her husband's eye is roving elsewhere; and she might be able to re-direct his gaze toward her.

Bake covered at 350 deg. F. for 30 min. Uncover and stir in sherry. Bake, uncovered, 20 to 30 min. longer. Makes 6-8 servings.

NOTE: If using beans canned in brown sugar sauce, the brown sugar may be omitted from the recipe.

Ann Landers

Parents Decided to Adopt Unwed Daughter's Child

Dear Ann Landers: Do you have room for one more letter about the wisdom of an adopted child because his "real parents" ? hope so because I have a story to tell.

When our lovely daughter was 15 she made an announcement that floored her mother and me. This shy but pretty girl, no more than a child herself, said, "I am pregnant." Our whole world collapsed, but we were determined to stand by her and keep the child, if possible. Our minister helped with a plan.

We sent our daughter to friends in a distant state. She was in her fourth month and not showing.

My wife was 38 years old at the time and our youngest child was nine. We confided in our friends that we were trying to adopt a child. When our daughter had her baby my wife went out and brought them both back. The story was that we had adopted a child from an agency and our daughter had spent several months in Europe.

Today we are thrilled we have this little one. Our daughter is happily married and has two children of her own.

At times we are tempted to tell our little darling that she is not an adopted child but we dare not do it for fear of damaging the lives of several people.

Tell "Confused" not to try to uncover secrets. It might break somebody's heart and cause untold sorrow. I remain, of course, anonymous, but sign me — Lucky Mom

Dear Lucky: Here's your letter, an unusual one, to be sure, but the basic concept is one with which I agree. Not everyone could have pulled it off, but how wonderful that it worked for you. Thanks for sharing.

• • •

Dear Ann: Recently you wrote that when you saw a peeved-looking driver on the rear of a car while waiting for a stop light, you were tempted to roll down your window and shout, "don't you care what happens to your child?"

I do better than that, Ann. When I see a youngster with his arm hanging out of a window or standing on a seat, I write a postal card addressed to the car's license number and send it to the State Highway Department with a request that they forward it to the owner. I write thereon: "I saw you risk your child's life today, Saturday, February 3rd. Please be more careful."

I realize my cards might never reach the owner, but I feel better knowing I tried. Please pass on my suggestion. — Lakehurst, Tex. Reader

Dear Lah: In Illinois this is now such complaints are handled: The state highway department forwards the card to the information and education section of the Illinois state police. This department then tries to contact the offender and let him know he was observed being committed.

The practice is risky because couple often make mistakes in writing down licence numbers. In some instances, a disgruntled acquaintance has been known to use this approach to get even with someone. The information and education section does not prosecute when they were not present when the offence was committed.

Research Funds

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Alberta received $1.8 million for directed research projects between July 1 and Sept. 7, 1972. A report to the board of governors says the largest source of funds for projects was the federal government, which contributed $1.1 million.

Leg Exercises That Trim And Flatter

If your legs could use some help, try this exercise:

Standing straight with your arms bent and locked into your body, run on the spot, lifting your knees high. Each time your right foot touches the floor counts as one. Repeat 50 times. Pause. Then, straight, hop up and down 15 times.

It's just possible that now you're looking slim and lovely, someone will ask you out to dinner. Maybe even your husband. If you go to a restaurant, choose a moderate portion of meat, poultry or fish. With it have a salad. A small amount of fresh fruit or cheese can finish off the meal.

Opening lead—five of clubs.

As a general rule, the defenders do not falsecard because of the danger that they may fool each other rather than declarer.

But occasions do arise where a defender's falsecard cannot possibly deceive partner and may fool declarer, and in such hands the falsecard is mandatory.

Here is a case in point where West leads a club. East's king forcing the ace. Declarer has no choice but to trustee the diamond to make the slam. Accordingly, after cashing the ace of trumps, he leads a diamond to dummy's queen. When it wins, he cashes the ace and jettisons the jack of clubs.

It is as this trick that West must play the king and not carelessly follow suit with the ten. Playing the king cannot possibly deceive East, who knows the diamond situation, but it may deceive South, who does not.

Declarer now leads a heart from dummy, East rising with the ace and returning the jack of diamonds.

South is now confronted with a difficult choice of which trump to use. If he assumes that West started with the K-J of diamonds and J-3 of spades, which is certainly possible, he must trump with the queen to make the slam. But if he thinks West was dealt a singleton diamond, or a doubleton diamond and kingleton spade, he must trump with the nine.

Under these conditions it is obvious that South will ruff with the wrong card a high percentage of times, but he will never ruff with the wrong card if West thoughtlessly plays the ten of diamonds on the ace. With the location of the king of diamonds known to declarer by virtue of the successful earlier diamond finesse, South will always ruff low to assure the contract.

Principal Savior

The principal of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, John Rouble, has been credited with saving the lives of two snowmobilers who plunged into Lake Kashagwigamog.

He crawled out on crumbling ice with an extension cord tied around his waist, pulled Francis Leslie Donaldson, 41, of RR1, Haliburton from the water after he had lapsed into unconsciousness. Earlier, Mr. Rouble and his son Chris, 14, had pulled Shirley McKinnon, 34, of RR2, Haliburton to safety using the same cord. Both Mr. Donaldson and Miss McKinnon had plunged through the half-inch-thick ice on the lake while snowmobiling in 24-below-zero weather.

Mr. Rouble, who lives on the lake, heard cries for help while listening to the late television news. He went to the rescue at the end of an extension cord held by four companions on shore, and plucked Mr. Donaldson from the hole in the ice with a ski.

Mr. Donaldson, an employee of the Ontario Hydro in Minden, is the son-in-law of Mrs. Frances D. Donaldson, RR1, Eldorado.

Paying Pattern Changes

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The changing pattern of payment for medical care was vividly shown Friday night in the 1972 budget report of the Quinte Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

When the VON was founded, patients paid little or nothing for nursing care in their homes. Charitable gifts financed the service.

Now the situation is reversed.

Nursing fees account for most of the income of the VON. Gifts and grants made up only $17,454 of the VON's receipts of $79,000 last year.

But nursing fees still don't come from private individuals. Although a few pay (for a total of $8,756 in 1972) most of the fees come from agencies that purchase VON services for their members or dependants.

Among the agencies buying Quinte Branch VON services in 1972 were the provincial and municipal governments, the department of veterans' affairs, the Home Care Program, insurance companies, the Children's Aid Society and the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Grants were: Belleville: $1,000; Trenton: $2,500; Hastings county: $2,000; Prince Edward county: $500.

Charitable gifts from united fund campaigns totalled $7,-225.

As usual in all community services, salaries took by far the biggest bite of the budget. They totalled $60,000 from $69,236 on its nursing staff.

Purchase payments for cars, totalling $3,000 was the major capital expense.

Not shown in the budget breakdown was the saving from free office accommodation given the Victorian Club in Belleville and the health unit in other centres.

VON Holds Annual Meet

John V. Briscoe of Trenton (left) was re-elected president of the Quinte Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses Friday night at the annual meeting. With him are Miss Valerie Truax, nurse in charge, and Dr. Reginald Anderson, guest speaker at the banquet at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Fate Hangs on Health

In the course of history, the fate of millions of men has often been dependent on the health of one key decision maker.

That's a favorite topic of Dr. Reginald Anderson, and on the drop of a banquet ticket, he's willing to explain it.

He used the case histories of some of the world's most famous men with the privilege of listeners to Dr. Anderson's address at the second annual meeting of the Quinte Branch of the Victoria Order of Nurses Friday night.

Did President Woodrow Wilson's nervous breakdown in 1919 keep the United States out of League of Nations and so inevitable pave the seeds of World War II?

Did President Franklin Roosevelt's senile deterioration in the final days of the war lay the foundation of dissension that underlaid the Cold War?

While readily admitting that his diagnoses might be overs implification, Dr. Anderson offered a few examples of medical histories for consideration.

The list of international statesmen, senior officials and officers who have held responsible while in the grip of disabling and debilitating illness is long and forbidding.

Wilson's continued collapse in 1919 put the United States under the secret care of a committee that opposed his views. It extricated the damaging reparations from Germany that finally touched that country into its collision course with the Allies of the second world war.

Take the case of the German general staff, he suggested as he was about to launch an all-out offensive against the western front in 1918. He had a tendency to become paralyzed and give way to emotional outbursts.

He was indecisive, anxious, bedevilling his staff with orders and countermanders — he could control neither his nerves nor his armies."

Finally, the Germans sought armistice.

In 1939 a surgeon removed the toxic goitre "that goes far to explain the hysterical and nervous tension, sudden fears and physical exhaustion."

A German woman has observed that had Ludencorff's goitre operated on during her girlhood earlier, Germany would have won the First World War.

The spotlight of world attention focused on the physical infirmities of leaders to fight sooner or after their reign ends than was true in the past.

A body of evidence has accumulated in medical literature and in the press to demonstrate that Lloyd George's power and the great Churchill were suffering from wasting powers in their final days in office.

The medical history of President John Kennedy found its way into professional literature. It had its ironic twist.

"It is interesting to note the physical stature of the various candidates" at the Democratic Convention of 1960, Dr. Anderson said.

"John F. Kennedy alone projected the picture of youthful vitality and vigor," said Dr. Anderson. "It must have appealed to his sense of humor that he, with the most precarious health, should have made a political issue of the subject."

Because President Kennedy had Addison's Disease.

"Addison's Disease is a physical abnormality, resulting from disease of the adrenal glands and is characterized by weakness, low blood pressure and discoloration of the skin," said Dr. Anderson.

He mentioned three incidents in Kennedy's administration that might have been influenced by his medical condition — the Bay of Pigs disaster, the Cuban missile crisis and the Intal trip to Dallas, taken against the advice of aides who suggested the president of the hatred in the Texas city.

"It is very difficult for a physician to determine with accuracy the degree of incapacity even in an every-day kind of person and to make reasonable recommendations and give reasonable advice," Dr. Anderson said his listeners.

"How much more impossible to do so in the case of an Eisenhower or a Churchill?"

Schools To Study Family

A pilot project in family life education will be conducted in three schools in Bloomfield ville, Trenton and Picton next year.

The schools were chosen because they are in geographical location in an attempt to reduce the cost of supervision and transportation.

They are St. Peter's and St. Mary's in Trenton, St. Michael's and Holy Rosary in Belleville and St. Gregory's in Picton.

The pilot project will go into grades 1, 4 and 8 in 1973. The separate school board intends to expand the course to all grades by 1977.

The entire unit will be offered until a meeting has been held with the parents of the children involved. They will be given an opportunity to study the course outline and materials for the lessons expected to occupy one period a week in each grade.

An advisory committee will be set up in each school area to help prepare it as board is given. It will be comprised of the principal, the family life teacher, two lay members of the children involved, the parish priest and a public health nurse, a teacher, where possible.

BGH Growing 'Panes' Prompt Legal Action

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

The window toll at Belleville General Hospital has reached more than 100.

As a result, the hospital's board of directors has voted to take legal action against the drafty building's architect and window contractor.

H. A. Hamilton told the board Friday that the hospital's planning and property committee, of which he is chairman, was in agreement that BGH solicitor J. D. Templeman issue a writ to the firms of Herbert Agnew Associates and Sherwood Windows. The board voted unanimously to accept the recommendation.

Mr. Hamilton said a representative from Agnew Associates, S. S. Weir, attended the committee's last meeting Feb. 15 although Mr. Weir told the members he had not yet received an invitation issued to the firm two days earlier by Mr. Templeman.

Contained in Mr. Templeman's letter was a threat of legal action unless someone from Agnew was present at the meeting to show "satisfactory steps" were being taken on the window problem.

Mr. Weir stated the lack of a representative contract with Card Construction Ltd. of Thurlow Township whose bid of $4,000 was the lowest of three tendered.

The company will spread topsoil to level the grounds and surround them with a fence. Crushed stone or gravel will be applied to the parking area.

The board map expand the lot at a later date to include land behind Black's Wholesale Ltd. and the fire hall.

Board member Gerald Joyce said after the meeting the schoolground site is only a temporary measure until a parking garage next to the hospital has been erected.

Budget To Cost 30 Jobs: Ellis

OTTAWA (Special) — Jack Ellis says tariff reductions announced in Monday night's federal budget could lead to the loss of 30 jobs in the Quinte fruit industry.

The Hastings MP brought the matter to the attention of finance minister John Turner in the Commons Friday. Mr. Turner gave no reply.

The problem, says Mr. Ellis, stems from a 5% percent cut in import duties on ready-to-serve fruit juices, one of several reductions announced for the food industry.

Resulting lower prices for across the border drinks will put manufacturers importing raw concentrates only 3% percent cheaper — not a difficult situation.

The proposal to alter the drapes was unacceptable, he said, because, apart from the question of appearance, they would also prevent beams of sunlight to glare on patients through the new openings.

Hospital Parking Gaining Ground

Construction of 60 additional parking spaces for employees of Belleville General Hospital will begin within three weeks, executive director Philip Rickard said Friday.

Site of the much-needed lot is Queen Elizabeth schoolgrounds just east of the hospital on the opposite side on Dundas Street.

With the new lot, the hospital hopes to make 90 spaces now assigned to staff members, available to visitors. This personal area is located on the north side of the old building.

Hospital officials signed a lease with the Hastings County Board of Education for use of the school property Friday. Only a temporary zoning amendment already assured by city council is needed before work on the project can begin.

At its regular meeting Friday, the hospital board accepted a contract from C. J. Card Construction Ltd. of Thurlow Township whose bid of $4,000 was the lowest of three tendered.

The company will spread topsoil to level the grounds and surround them with a fence. Crushed stone or gravel will be applied to the parking area.

The board map expand the lot at a later date to include land behind Black's Wholesale Ltd. and the fire hall.

Board member Gerald Joyce said after the meeting the schoolground site is only a temporary measure until a parking garage next to the hospital has been erected.

The deputy chief of the Belleville Fire Department, Robert Emerson, celebrated his 25th anniversary as a city fireman Feb. 16. Mr. Emerson joined the department in 1948 from Fort Lock and was promoted to captain in 1961. In 1962 he became an instructor and four years later, he took over the deputy post.

Members of the Wellington Senior Citizens club recently enjoyed a slide presentation by Dinsa Grierson of Black Creek who has just returned from a European tour. Miss Grierson and 12 countries accompanied by several other other young persons and recorded her trip in colorful slides and photographs.

Collision Just Costly

TWEED — A war-end collision on Durham Street in Madoc at 5 p.m. Friday caused $1,500 in total of $1,700 damage. There were no personal injuries.

The car driven by Marry Peden of RR1, Madoc, received $1,000 damage and that driven by William Davidson of Madoc received $700 damage. It was owned by Dale Wickens of RR2, Madoc. Constable Walter Sawkins investigated.

VON Expansion Highlight of Year

John V. Briscoe of Trenton was re - elected Friday night for his second year as president of the Quinte Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

His first year as president was the first full year the Quinte Branch operated as an amalgamated body, serving Belleville, Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Principal user of the VON nurses' service is the Home Care Program Authority, he said.

"I think it fair to say that the Authority is extremely pleased with the services it has received from us," said Mr. Briscoe at the second annual meeting of the branch at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Miss Valerie Truax, nurse in charge, commented that the chorus in 1972 had been extensive.

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville gives rest - free accommodation to the VON in Belleville. In Bancroft, Picton and Trenton the Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit allows the VON to share its office space.

Miss Truax mentioned a new agreement between the VON of Ogdens and the government which permits the VON to recover a deficit incurred or pay back a surplus in Home Care and the Homemakers and Nurses Services Act, resulting from services purchased from these bodies.

Last year the Quinte branch began a new undertaking by doing paramedical assessments for insurance companies (the Red and Dunlop Packaging in Trenton buys the service of the VON in its plant nurses home) .

The full-time staff increased during 1972 from four to six and the relief staff is now comprised of 12 nurses.

During 1972 the nurses visited a total of 862 patients compared with 526 in 1971. More than half the 15,613 visits in 1972 were to Home care patients.

PERCA Poster Contest Open

PICTON — The Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority (PERCA) has announced its annual poster contest open to all public and separate school students from grades three to eight inclusive.

All posters must reflect a conservation theme and girls' or boys' entries will be awarded to winners in three divisions, grades three and four, grades five and six and grades seven and eight.

A trophy will be presented to the school of each of the grand prize winners and all winners will be eligible for a special bus trip organized by the PERCA.

All entries must be received by May 10 to be eligible in the contest.

Lahr Exchange Planned

Cultural exchange between the cities of Belleville and Lahr was one of the objectives of the twinning of the two cities in last year's ceremonies.

To make this a reality Belleville will send eight students to the city of Lahr, Germany and in return will receive eight German students of the same age and school level into homes in Belleville. They will experience a new way of life and get an excellent opportunity to learn the German language.

It is expected that in all probability the students from Belleville will be billeted with families whose son or daughter particularly of the city of Belleville. They will make new friends, experience a different way of life, see a different country and learn a new but old traditions. After the year they will return and tell us of their experience.

At the same time the city of Belleville will receive eight German students of the same age and school level into homes in Belleville. They will experience another way of life and get country's culture and tradition.

Seals Snap Losing Run 5-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The lowly California Golden Seals couldn't have picked a better time to snap a 14-game winless streak as far as Boston Bruins are concerned.

The Seals, doormats in the National Hockey League's Western Division, got two goals from Ivan Boldirev Friday night as they topped New York Rangers 5-3.

The loss for the Bloomfield Jet left only two points ahead of the surging Bruins who play Los Angeles Kings tonight in Los Angeles. The Rangers are still fourth but when they entertain Minnesota North Stars, Boldirev, who has been limited much of the season, scored his eighth and ninth goals of the campaign and will have to stay healthy if he hopes to match the 16 goals he scored last year in his first full NHL campaign which was split between the Bruins and the Seals.

The Yugoslav-born - centre, who played for Oshawa Generals in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league, scored the first goal of the game and the third for the Seals at 12:29 of the second period.

Less than three minutes later he set up Morris Mott for what proved to be the winner.

Mott, McClelland's deflection of a Bob Stewart drive also scored for the Seals who played against New York netminder Gilles Villemure who managed to go in front of only two of five shots.

Jean Ratelle picked up a goal and an assist for New York to move into the league's top 10 scorers. The centre-winger now has 42 goals and 57 assists for 99 points.

Bobby Rousseau enabled the losers to escape with a 1-1 tie at the end of the first period and Glen Sather made it 2-2 in the second.

Ellio Maloche had another busy night in the Seals net, stopping 36 of the 37 shots the Rangers fired at him while Villemure blocked only 18.

The Bruins are nine points behind the Canadiens in the East but defenceman Bobby Orr said Friday that the club still entertains hopes of catching Montreal.

The Bruins have won four of five on the long western winter trip and eight of nine since Bep Guidolin took over the coaching reins from Tom Johnson.

Guidolin named rookie Ross Brooks to start in the nets against the Kings. Brooks is unbeaten in 18 games in his first NHL season that was interrupted by a broken collarbone.

Boldirev has been set-winger Wayne Cashman will take a regular shift tonight. Cashman saw little duty in Oakland Wednesday night because of a shoulder ailment.

Butler Boosts Rangers Wing

By DAVID NICHOLSON

NEW YORK (CP) — A fifth-round draft pick has paid off handsomely for New York Rangers as they enter the final stages of the National Hockey League schedule with a new rash of injuries.

Jerry Butler, a native of Sarnia, Ont., who will be 22 on Tuesday, has given the Rangers a boost at right wing after injuries to Bruce MacGregor and Vic Hadfield.

Butler, first called up from the Rangers' Providence farm club Dec. 31, skated two shifts against Atlanta and then got his ticket back to the minors on Christmas Day.

Ranger coach Emile Francis recalled the six-foot, 170-pound Butler Feb. 13 after Hadfield and MacGregor were felled but Butler wasn't expecting to see much ice time.

"I guess I'll mostly sit on the bench, maybe skate a shift or two and go back to Providence after a few days," Butler said then.

But the rookie, skating regularly on right wing, scored his first NHL goal Wednesday night to help Rangers to a 4-3 comeback triumph win over Los Angeles Kings.

The Rangers have developed a reputation of coming up with lots of young talent, but it isn't often a 5th-round pick finds a spot with a powerhouse club like New York.

Butler scored only six goals for Hamilton Red Wings in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A competition and was passed over in the early rounds.

"He played for a weak team but when we scouted him we liked his attitude, his aggressiveness, the way he always checked and played his position," Francis said in explaining why the Rangers picked him up in the 1971 amateur draft.

Draper On Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Draper's 63 points include a league-leading 34 goals, while Milroy leads in assists with 64. He has 62 points.

Three other Terriers are among the league's top 10 scorers. Grant Moore is third with 58 points, Hank Monteith fifth with 54 and Jim O'Brien sixth with 49.

Ernie Miller of Brtie Flyers has the league's best goaltending statistics, with a 2.69 goals against average and three shutouts.

Red Wings Fail To Get Flying

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings could be excused for adopting Slow Down The Way To Go Home as their theme song in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The eighth-place Red Wings extended their dismal road record to 19 games without a victory when they were shut out by Ottawa 67s 5-0 Friday.

In other games, St. Catharines Black Hawks edged Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 5-3, Sudbury Wolves stopped Kitchener Rangers 6-4, London Knights hammered Peterborough Petes 7-2 and Toronto Marlboros beat Oshawa Generals 6-4 as all 10 teams saw action.

Hamilton managed to hold Ottawa to one goal after two periods before the onslaught began in Ottawa.

The 67s poured 25 shots at Rolly Kimble, the unfortunate Hamilton goalie, in the first 20 minutes while Red Wings managed three on Ottawa's Barry Ashby recorded his second shutout.

Blake Dunlop, Peter Lee, Ian Turnbull, Derek Smith and Denis Potvin took care of the Ottawa scoring.

In London, rookie Dennis Maruk scored his 38th goal of the season and registered five assists as Knights upset the second-place Petes.

Dennis Sevvergaert, Steve Lendon, Andy Sorrow, Reg Thomas, Paul Nicholson and Larry Goodenough scored Lon-don's other goals and Jim Rennie and Bob Neely scored for Peterborough.

At Kitchener, power-play goals by Tom Colley and Morris Titanic in the third period clinched the Sudbury victory.

Eric Vail scored twice and Richie Hansen and Greg Neeld also counted for Wolves, who solidified their hold on second place.

Joe Fortunato, Rick Charrew, Rick Borbounais and Dave Hrechkosy scored for the ninth-place Rangers, who notched Sudbury 44-37 and took six of 13 points.

The league-leading Marlboros overcame a first period deficit in recording their home-ice victory over sixth-place Oshawa.

Wayne Dillen, Geoff Green, Brad Winton, Bruce Boudreau, Mark Howe and Paulin Bordeleau scored for the winners while Bill Lochead, Walt Johnson, Brian Kinsella and Rick Middleton counted for Oshawa.

Will Paisment scored three goals to beat St. Catharines to victory in Sault Ste. Marie while line-mate Wayne Chrysler scored once and added three assists. Larry Jacques also scored for the winners.

Bruce O'Grady, Paul Woods and Bill Root each scored once for the last-place Greyhounds, who lost their 44th of the season.

In Sunday action, Ottawa visits St. Catharines, Oshawa stays host to Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie is at London.

Webster Scores Two

BOSTON (AP) — Tom Webster scored a pair of second-period goals Friday night, his 32nd and 43rd of the World Hockey Association season, to pace New England Whalers to a 4-2 victory over Alberta Oilers.

The victory moved the Whalers to within two points of the idle Cleveland Crusaders in the race for first place in the WHA East.

New England spotted Alberta an early first-period goal by Rusty Patenaude, who took a breakaway pass from Bill Hamilton and beat goalie Al Smith from 15 feet out.

Webster tied it with three minutes gone in the second period, taking a Bob Dailey pass from behind the net and drilling the puck past goalie Jack Norris.

Webster also got the go-ahead goal in the second period when Selby dug the puck out of the corner and powered in the Whalers' centre, who rifled a 20-footer into the goal.

Tim Sheehy got what proved to be the winner in the opening minutes of the third period as Larry Pleau fed him in front of the net for a quick flip between Norris's pads.

Ed Joyal, on a power play for Alberta, and John French, on a Sheehy rebound for the Whalers, matched goals later in the final period.

Despite 5-2 Loss

Quintes May See Further Troubles

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Any team that scores more goals than yours does is a problem, and the Barrie Flyers were the source of just such an embarrassment for the Quintes Friday night.

Two centres in particular were the major unstoppables Insidiously, Corby Adams and John McMillan each scored two goals to lead the Flyers to a 5-2 victory over the seventh place Belleville OHA Senior "A" entry.

With last night's defeat still ringing in their ears, the Quintes hopes for a possible, though slim, chance at the sixth playoff spot were terminated with the unpleasant taste of three third period goals scored by the Flyers.

Doug Acomb beat goalie the winger. "It took a long time, but I have had my release from Owen Sound. I'm a free agent."

Including the playing of the Quintes usual coach Wayne Brown who was replaced by trainer George Rutledge behind the players bench, "we used three guys that weren't eligible to play," said Lionel Finney, spokesperson for the Belleville Quintes Hockey Club. "Bagnell is on a goaltenders card. We felt that we owe it to the league to finish the year."

"I think that they didn't play under protest," said Ralph Pierce who was noticed by Flyers' team captain Corby Adams before the beginning of the game. "If we had beaten them then the win may have stood."

"It would surprise me if the OHA will say anything," said Boily, "if no one says anything then they'll [illegible] forget it. We don't anticipate any problem."

Boily explained the lack of the Peterborough players saying "because the players were not getting any money, and they were not in playoff contention, they decided not to risk injury. We told them they did not have to play. We didn't care. It was up to themselves."

"But the guys that were here," said Boily, "wanted to be here. There's no question about that. What better illustration of that is the attitude of Bagnell in deciding to play forward!"

Flyers' playing coach, defenceman Darryl Sly noticed the difference in the manner in which the Quintes played, calling them "demons" and saying that they were "skating like mad men" in the first two periods, in which the Quintes outshot the Flyers 12-7 and 13-7.

Though Bagnell was not steady in the skates of a forward, and saw short shift, Flyers appeared to have found his skating legs again, along with teammates Ken Knapton, Wayne McConnell, and Danny Pietrowski.

The Quintes could not be faulted for their performance against the Flyers as the Barrie club defencemen managed to keep the Belleville forwards out of the slot except on the goals of defencemen Bob Edmunds and centre Ken Knapton.

Knapton's last minute tally came as he took the puck from a faceoff in the Flyers' end, skated through the circle

McMillan Too Fast For Jury

Barrie's John McMillan beat Quintes' goalie Bob Jury on this scoring attempt to put the Flyers ahead of the lastplace Belleville team 3-1 in OHA Senior "A" hockey action Friday night. McMillan's goal at the 4:18 mark of the third period was followed by a goal by team captain Corby Adams. The centre finalized the Barrie scoring with another tally for a 5-2 victory against the Quintes.

Coach Laments

Quinte Secondary's wrestling coach, Wally Ubrynuk, lamented after the Bay of Quinte competition that his wrestlers had again lost the team championship by a small margin of points.

But he need not have wondered whether he was doing anything wrong. Quinte wrestlers went to COSSA the following weekend and earned for themselves right of representation in six different weight class for the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Association competition, at McMaster University in Hamilton today.

Centennial Secondary took the Bay of Quinte crown from Quinte by a slim four points, but at the COSSA meet the Chargers were only able to place wrestlers for the OFSAA competition in two weight categories.

Unlimited wrestler Geoff Mackey and 139-pounder John Dworzuk were the only matmen to make the OFSAA competition. Moira and Napanee each placed three wrestlers in the all - Ontario competition, while Trenton and Centre Hastings each placed one.

KEN KNAPTON

With Orrills out of action Friday, the Flyers moved into a twoway tie with the Terriers for first place. The last Barrie team has only lost two games of their last 11 while the Belleville club counts five losses over 11 outings on the ice. The Flyers need five victories over their final seven games to finish in the top slot if the Orillia Terriers win their next five games.

Though the Quintes have no such game juggling tribulations, the Belleville club still hit the Memorial Arena ice with its own set of problems.

The team, the Quintes iced, had a noticeable lack of usual talent, as four players left active in Peterborough, George Godden, Greg Marchen, Lorne O'Donnell and Roy Johnston were missing from the roster.

To replace the missing players, the Quintes did some last minute recruiting and came up with a complement of four hockey players to fill the sagging bill. Though still two players of the fifty rostered 17 members of the Flyers, coach Wayne Brown donned a defencemen's jersey, while goalie Karl Bagnell and Ralph Pierce saw action as forwards. The Quintes also used the services of Owen Sound forward Bill Hibbits on a line with Paul Grills and Al Fergus.

The hitch in the arrangement comes, however, on the eligibility of the Quintes additions with the Ontario Hockey Association. Ralph Piare has still not received word from the OHA whether he is still in the Senior "A" league after he joined the Generals here. North Carolina Eastern is associated with the Quintes team without asking the permission of the parent body.

Hibbits status is also problematic. "I'm completely unaffiliated to any team," said across the front of the net, and beat Barrie goalie Ernie Miller on his unprotected side.

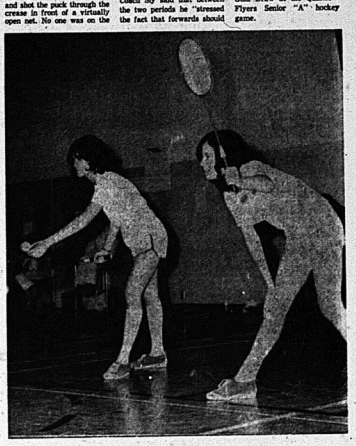
Hibbits played a solid game for the Quintes last night as he set up Al Ferguson with several centring passes, but which the rightwinger was unable to put in. Ferguson had countless scoring opportunities but seemed to be seriously afflicted with the "Barrie bounces".



Ferguson was not the only Quinte to fail to connect with the netting behind Miller, however, as early in the second period Hibbits had drawn the Flyer goalie to his right post and shot the puck through the crease in front of a virtually open net. No one was on the other side of the goal mouth to tap the puck in for the score.

The Quintes, however, still persist in their practice of firing blasting drives at the goalie from just beyond the blue line. Though the Belleville club outshot the Flyers 36-27, a portion of those shots were from outside the critical scoring area in front of the net.

The third period of the fourth to final Senior "A" game for the Quintes was lost in the third frame as the Flyers enlarged on a second period lead of 2-1 by three goals. Coach Sly said that between the two periods he "stressed the fact that forwards should not leave their positions till they're assured of our controlling the puck." In the first two periods, "we weren't trying, nobody was hitting out there. I think they (Barrie) thought it was a foregone conclusion that we were going to win. The game matters to us, while to them it means nothing."

POT-O-GOLD

Muriel Thompson of Edgs Hill Road walked into the cold air outside Memorial Arena Friday night, $58.00 richer as hers was the ticket which won the 50-50 Pot-O-Gold Draw at the Quintes - Flyers Senior "A" hockey game.

McNeill Twins Serving Up

Bonnie and twin sister Bonita McNeill (right) team up in the women's double competition at the Ontario College Athletic Association eastern Regional Badminton championships held on the first day of the meet Friday. The 19-year-old girls are originally from Sudbury, but are playing for the first time in competition for the Loyalist College in Belleville. The only previous badminton experience the girls have had was in high school physical education classes.

Jury Slow to Rise

Quintes' goalie Ron Jury is slow to rise after Flyers' John McMillan scores Saturday night's third goal in their OHA Senior "A" hockey game. Friday night Belleville netminder faced 27 shots from the sticks of the high scoring Flyers, put the save on 22 of them, and allowed five to hit the netting behind his back for a 5-2 final scoreboard markup.

Brenda Walsh Winner In Quarter Mile Run

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — She's blonde, 5ft. and hard to beat. Her pigtails dance as she sweeps the boards with tireless grace. Brenda Walsh of Edmonton confines herself to quietly understating her case.

Brenda is the top female quarter-miler in North America after her victory Friday night in the 440-yard run. Now she wants to take on the Russians next month in Montreal.

At the U.S. Nationals in Madison Square Garden, a crowd of nearly 20,000 saw Miss Walsh come from nowhere to win the 440 in 56.5 seconds.

"I've done better running legs in relays," she says. Brenda's conceden she is usually well indoors and is ready for the Canadian senior championships and the July track and field meet between Canada and Russia March 20.

Her victory in the U.S. indoor track and field championships was the only one for the seven-member Canadian team. In other events, Canada had a pair of seconds, two third placings, a fourth and a fifth.

It seemed as though Miss Walsh, a student at the University of Alberta, wasn't going to make it in the 440 as the fast pace left her fourth and last. With 146 laps to go, she was third behind Mary Hand of defending champion Kathy Hammond and world champion Marilyn Neufville battled for the lead.

Suddenly, Brenda caught Mrs. Neufville, a Jamaican, in the second turn of the gym and she knew the hole was there.

"I saw the hole and took off," Brenda explained. She killed off Miss Hammond quickly and beat the Sacramento girl by about three feet. Mrs. Neufville salvaged third place.

In his garden debut this season, Bruce Simpson of Pointe Claire, Que., proved he is one of Canada's best.

Simpson, who competed in the Canadian indoor championships in Toronto last week, was timed in 1:51.7 to win the 880-yard run. Steve Smith, a Jamaican, was second in 1:52.1.

Simpson, who is a student at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, was pleased with his performance.

"I'm not in very good shape," he said. "I've been training only about two weeks."

Simpson's time was the best in the world this year.

Other Canadian winners were Bill Crothers of Toronto in the 600-yard run and Bruce Kidd of Toronto in the two-mile.

Crothers, who is a student at Villanova University in Philadelphia, was timed in 1:10.1 in the 600. Kidd, who is a graduate student at the University of Toronto, was timed in 8:50.1 in the two-mile.

Kidd's time was the best in the world this year.

Crothers was pleased with his performance.

"I'm not in very good shape," he said. "I've been training only about two weeks."

Road Toll Collection Hard Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Guy Desjardins is a highway toll collector, and he sees them all—the drivers with no money who volunteer to go to jail, the speeders who fly through at 70 miles an hour without stopping, the drunks who miss the skid by three feet, and the man who invented a toy gun to shoot his quarters into the chute.

During the last year, three toll booths on the Laurentian Highway were demolished by cars, "but they haven't got me yet," said Mr. Desjardins.

The smell of burning rubber is as heavy as the exhaust fumes in the little booth at the Laval stop.

Suddenly a wild driver in a big green car bore down on the booth at 80 miles an hour. He held that speed at 100 yards away . . . 50 . . . 25 . . . then he decided to hit the brakes. SCREECH!

"Maniac," muttered Mr. Desjardins.

A quarter flew through the car's vent and the green car was off, trailing an angry cloud of smoke.

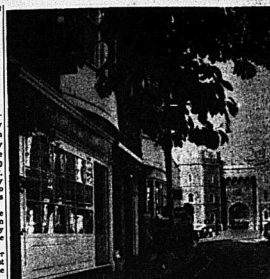
"I see this all the time," the collector said. "I have to learn to call the police unless it's really bad."

He also calls the police when he spots a drunk or doped driver among the 2,000 to 2,000 that pass his booth in a day.

A number of drivers miss the slot, but they generally get out and pick up the quarters themselves.

"One guy pulled in here once and robbed me. I had noticed that there were two quarters on the floor. He picked up his pack-eted another one, and came out 25 cents ahead."

The law should see what it's like in the summer, when the fumes in the booth never clear. I have to take aspirin all the time for headaches."



Most of the sign on his window, Mr. Desjardins will give change for a $20 bill. He also give change in American coin, if requested, at par value.

But he can't change a $100 bill. I told one guy with a $100 bill to go to the office for change, but he just drove on."

Three or four people a day drive up and announce they have no money. He sends them to the office where they sign an IOU. Bills must be paid—with 10 cents handling charge—in 16 days.

Any time Mr. Desjardins gives out too much change it comes out of his own pocket.

"Guys who throw slugs in are common," he said. "But only the real good slugs work. We got 128 people for slugs in a 36-week period.

French Political Movements Gear up for March Election

PARIS (CP) — Three major French political movements —Republicans, the parties of the left and the Reformists— are gearing up for the Fifth Republic's fourth legislative elections which begin March 4.

The elections will be the first held without the imposing presence of General Charles de Gaulle since the republic was formed in 1958.

Some observers here believe the absence of the aging leader in 1969, could be a handicap to the ruling Republicans, now with 367 seats in the 487-seat National Assembly.

Others, however, believe that the general's absence will move one of the sources of division among the different parties of the Republican movement, which faces strong opposition from a coalition of Socialists and Communists.

To date, President Georges Pompidou—a Republican—has kept out of the legislative election. His position is not at stake since he was elected to a seven-year term in 1969.

However, the president has indicated he is prepared to step in if necessary, because he would be in a difficult position if the left-wing coalition gained control of the 487 seats of Deputies.

Recent surveys show the Republicans are losing ground to the leftists, who have formed a leftist union with a platform calling for the nationalization of several French financial institutions and industries.

The leftists also want France to drop its strategic nuclear arms program, a Republican policy initiated by de Gaulle.

The Reformists, a group formed by the union of Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber's Radical party and several other centre groups, appear to be riding the middle of the road.

While they say they are not opposed to nationalization of certain areas of the economy, they warn that there are risks, particularly high costs and growing bureaucracy.

The legislative elections are held every five years. Three since the 1958 election, bringing the total to 490.

The ruling Progressive Republican Union is composed of

Okies Hit Roads Forty Years Ago

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — It was just 40 years ago that they were pouring into California, an estimated 400,000 or more Dust Bowl refugees who were immortalized by John Steinbeck in The Grapes of Wrath.

Like Steinbeck's Joad family, the Okies came in sagging old cars, pinched penniless by the Depression and pushed leathery by the black blizzard that turned their Oklahoma corn and cotton fields to powder.

Today, many Okies are going back to a new and greener Oklahoma. The older ones want to fix up the old homesteads they abandoned, and retire, says Karl A. Cozad of Marysville, Calif., the Yuba County clerk.

Youths, too, are moving, Cozad said that with a lull in the construction industry in their areas, they would rather seek building jobs in Oklahoma City and head back to picking fruit.

But mostly, he said, they are being squeezed into unhappiness by modern urbanization and it does give them a jolt.

"When you're urbanized, you have to live by the rules," said Cozad, whose own parents were Dust Bowl settlers. "They want a little bigger piece of ground. Maybe they want to keep poultry, or use it in some other way that isn't considered with urbanization rules."

An Oklahoma editor, Bob Scully of the Okemah News Leader, said, "They're all from small towns and they wanted to get back to their roots. We're a lot of small-town pokes and we still breathe clean air."

But most Okies are staying in California, and are doing well, says Paul (Okie Paul) Westmoreland, county music hit, Detour, There's A Muddy Road Ahead.

"I know Okies that are millionaires," said Westmoreland during an interview. "The mayor of San Pablo was an Okie friend of mine. I bet half the used car dealers in Sacramento and Yolo counties are Okies. They're born traders. Started with mules."

About half a dozen smaller parties will also be on the ballot March 4 when the first round of the eight-day election begins.

Had to or starve. But now they're bringin' home $500 paycheques, maybe $700 with overtime. They're mostly union men."

Dr. Jacqueline Sherman of Los Angeles agrees. She did her doctoral thesis on Okies, and says, "Generally, Okies are faring better than they did in the '30s anyway. But most are like college-age time, that is, which is still a great improvement over what they were then."

Helen Hosmer of Santa Barbara, who was a nurse in the federal resettlement camps of the 1930s, says that despite their history of poverty and struggle, most Okies today are indifferent to welfare, or the struggle for unionization by farm workers of Mexican origin.

"They seem, to say, 'If I made it, everybody else can make it too,'" she says. "You could say they came west, they settled, they grew up their families, they got off the bottom."

Possibly, most Okies will confess to their prejudices. And they, if anyone, should know that prejudice is all about. They are still sensitive to the pejorative connotation of the term Okie.

Indeed, says Dr. Jackson Benson of California State University at San Diego, one problem he researching in the Dust Bowl migration is that few participants will today admit that they are in fact Okies.

Okie Paul says he still hears the epithets. "Okie, this" or "So-and-so Okie" hurled about. And it touches him to the quick.

"To me, Okies are anyone who went through that period like we did, whether they're from Oklahoma or Illinois or Texas," he said. "Okies are everyone who chopped that cotton for 50 cents a hundred pounds, or picked up potatoes for 15 cents an hour."

Lab Busy

SASKATOON (CP) — Director J. J. Harms says the Saskatchewan soil testing laboratory is getting busier. The laboratory, located at the University of Saskatchewan, processed 5,894 samples in the 1972 fall testing period compared with 2,801 in 1971. The laboratory analyses soil samples sent in by farmers and gives advice about the use of fertilizers to overcome nutrient deficiencies for specific crops.

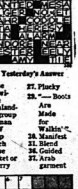
Germans Offer Burial At Sea

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuter) A Hamburg firm is offering West Germans eternal peace on the rolling deeps among seaweeds, crabs and herring.

An enterprising businessman in this bustling North Sea port city has a founded a shipping line with the express purpose of carrying out burials at sea—complete with traditional ceremony and heartfelt sailors' shanties.

The "shipping line" consists of only one luxurious motor yacht which takes the ashes of dead customers at a desired spot in the North or Baltic Sea.

There has been no request, the flag is lowered to half staff and as an extra tribute a gun from a tape recorder the mortal remains are sunk into the sea all for the price of $222.



While it has become rare in the maritime world to roll sailors who have died at sea into tarpaulins and commit them to the water, the Hamburg firm is banking on meeting the wishes of sentimental land lubbers or lonesome folk with no one to care for their graves after death.

The laws in this city state require the body to be burned first in the municipal crematorium. "But if someone expressly wishes to be buried at sea he may have the pleasure—even if he is a landlubber," a city official said.

Relatives of persons thus buried receive a sea chart on which the watery grave is marked in case they want to visit it and a copy of the page of the yacht's logbook on which the sad occasion has been recorded.

Cataract Cure Not Fully Tested

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read about a new kind of cataract operation, in which a needle in a machine liquefies the cataract and withdraws it.

Can you tell me, does the needle also withdraw the lens of the eye?—Mrs. O.

Dear Doctor: My mother is past 80 and has lost her sight from cataracts. Would the new process be better for her than the traditional method?—Mrs. R.L.

These are typical of many questions about this new method, which has been advanced as shortening the recovery time after the operation.

To answer the first question, "cataract" isn't separate from the lens of the eye. It IS the clouding in the lens. The lens that has become so cloudy as to impair or cut off vision. So any method, just as this one, by method does, must remove the lens.

As to whether the new method is superior—that is the subject of considerable difference of opinion among eye surgeons. Proponents call it the "breakthrough." Others want to wait and have certain questions answered first.

The new liquefication, or "emulsification" method, requires a special machine costing $40,000 or more. Eye specialists with whom I have discussed this raise such questions as whether the new method will in fact be any less expensive for the patient in terms of conventional methods which have been developed over the years.

In the eye, sometimes the wall of the lens capsule was removed, sometimes not. When it was not, a second operation sometimes became necessary after a time. Thus a technical—but significant—question is whether the new method may also involve the need of a repeat operation.

Currently, something more than 400,000 cataracts are being removed per year, with reliable success. Only a comparative handful have as yet been removed by the new method.

I do not consider myself qualified to say whether the new method is superior or inferior or equal of the old method. Indeed, the American Academy of Ophthalmology hasn't ventured an opinion, either. Toward the end of this year I will hold a symposium on the subject to evaluate such information as will have been gathered in the intervening months.

My advice, for the present, is to continue to look for the average patient to go ahead with the proven methods, since they are generally available while the new method is available only in relatively few places. Indeed, some of the big medical centers have not, as of now, seen fit to buy the new equipment and spend the time training surgeons to use it.

The answers will come in due time; for the present, we know that the older method is reliable and readily available, so I see no urgent reason for trying to hunt up somebody using the new machine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This may sound ridiculous to you, as it did to me. But I was told that someone had acquired hemorrhoids from sitting in bucket seats for too long.

Some folks may get a backache, or leg cramps, or such, from a car seat that doesn't happen to be just right for them, but hemorrhoids from bucket seats? No.

CP News Roundup

Farms May Be Exempt From Tax

TORONTO (CP) — Eric Winkler, chairman of the Ontario cabinet's management board, has hinted the province will remove succession duties from farms being passed from generation to generation.

He told reporters of the Ontario Beef Improvement Association Thursday that after the "recent announcement of the federal government that family farms passed from one generation to the next still be free of tax . . . you are wondering what Ontario is going to do with succession duty.

"Obviously, I cannot tell what the Ontario budget may hold, but I think I can tell you that you will not be disappointed."

Two years ago the Ontario Federation of Agriculture protested succession duties which, it said, were making it impossible for a farmer's son to inherit his father's farm because of the high tax.

The result, said the federation, was that farms were being sold to land developers and big farming companies and the family farm was disappearing.

Plant to Close

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Niagara Wire Weaving Co. announced Friday it was closing its production plant here, striking bound for 15 weeks.

Two Charged

FREEPORT, Bahamas (AP) — Bahamian police Friday charged a young constable and a former vice squad detective with kidnapping in the Feb. 15 abduction of four-year-old Anastasea Spencer, daughter of a Canadian banker.

Spurgeon Dames, 24, and Leroy Miller, 34, have been charged with burglary, assault with a deadly weapon, kidnapping, attempted extortion and possession of a firearm.

Bill Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate convened in a special session Friday to pass a bill giving the government an extra $1.29 billion for 1972-73, then adjourned for a week's holiday.

The bill provides funds for winter works and unemployment insurance, plus war veterans' allowances and civilian

Gets 5 Months

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP) — Bertrum Pfeil, 18, of nearby Markham was sentenced Friday to five months definite and seven months indeterminate for placing razor blades and pins in apples handed out to children on Halloween.

Pfeil, a trainee chef, was found guilty Tuesday on a charge of being a common nuisance.

Gets 12 Months

KITCHENER (CP) — Philip Meisel, 28, of Kitchener was given a 12-month reformatory sentence Friday for his role in a disturbance at a suburban hotel.

The member of the Henchmen motorcycle club pleaded guilty Feb. 19 to assault causing bodily harm.

Provincial court was told he was put out of the hotel last Aug. 12 for being rowdy. About an hour later Dr. Jarvinen with 15 members of the club and evidence revealed that Meisel punched a bartender and kicked him in the face.

"There is no question of one free beating," said Judge David Charlton in refusing probation or a fine on a plea that Meisel was a first offender.

Back Drapeau

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities expressed its support Friday for Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and the 1976 Olympic Games in his city. The federation heard a statement saying Mayor D. G. Newman of Whitby, its president, has announced that the organization's directors support Mayor Drapeau's efforts to make the 1976 Olympics a success."

Named Reeve

PICKERING VILLAGE, Ont. (CP) — William McCrae, because reeve of this village just east of Toronto when his name was picked out of a silk hat Friday.

Mr. McLean, a former village councillor, and Victor Dingley, a former deputy reeve, had been left in a deadlock with 329 votes apiece after a judicial recount of the ballots cast in the municipal election Dec. 4.

LEO BERNIER

Will Consult

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Indians will be consulted before there are any government decisions regarding the possibility of building dams on Northern Ontario rivers, Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, said Friday.

Mr. Bernier told a meeting of Northern Ontario Indian chiefs here as inventory is being carried out in conjunction with the federal government to assess the quality and quantity of water in Northern Ontario.

Protest Made

EDMONTON (CP) — About 400 rural Albertans took their protest against repeal of the Ownhusal Property Act to the steps of the legislature Friday, but were told the change will not be reconsidered.

After waiting in bone-chilling cold for more than an hour, a brief presented by the Vulcan Chamber of Commerce asking for a delay in the repeal was presented to Premier Peter Lougheed, who told protesters the Communal Properties Act is "dead in Alberta."

"There is no way it can be continued."

Dump Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Residents of five townships plan to register formal objections to a zoning change that would allow Metropolitan Toronto to dump garbage in nearby Pickering Township.

The residents will appear at an Ontario Municipal Board hearing on the re-zoning application next Thursday and Friday at Pickering Township office.

Norah Geraghty, chairman of the Group Against Garbage, said Vaughan, Hope, King, Mono and Pickering townships will have representatives at the hearing.

Given 9 Years

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Howard Frank Sampson, 49-year-old school custodian in neighboring Lambeth, was sentenced Friday to nine years in penitentiary for manslaughter in the death of 13-year-old Brenda Heesbeen.

Fares Cut

MONTREAL (CP) — Econair Canada Holidays Ltd., a new charter service set up by Air Canada, announced Friday it is offering charter services linking Canada with the United Kingdom and Europe for as little as $179 round trip.

Econair will offer flights aboard Air Canada 200-seat DC-8's during the May-to-October period. The flights, operating 3 out of 10 Canadian cities, will serve London, Prestwick and Paris.

Save Animals

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will join other countries trying to prevent international trafficking in animal skins of endangered species.

Dr. Alan Loughery, acting director-general of the Canadian Wildlife Service, said Friday that Canada is submitting a list of its own threatened animals at the 80-nation conference on endangered species now on in Washington, and hopes to sign an international agreement banning trade in these animal skins.

Trade in such skins is illegal in the United States. Canada would have to pass similar legislation to make an agreement effective.

Price Rises

TORONTO (CP) Toronto Liberals are being hit by self-imposed inflation. The ticket price to the March 7 prime minister's dinner has increased 30 per cent to $75.

In addition to the price increase, 600 fewer tickets will be sold by the Toronto and District Liberal Association in the annual fund-raising affair.

The extra $25 will buy a few advantages for the 2,000 people expected to attend the event at the Royal York Hotel.

Both dining rooms will have entertainment, the prime minister will speak in both rooms, and there will be no wait for tables in the ballrooms to be assigned before dancing starts after the dinner.

Previous dinner appearances by the prime minister here have been picketed by poor people's groups protesting the scumptuous menu.

Need Another Great Lake To Lessen Threat of Flood

TORONTO (CP) — It could take a reservoir the size of another Great Lake, with enough water to lessen the flood threat to lakeshore communities on Lake Ontario, an engineering adviser says.

And letting more water flow from Lake Ontario into the St. Lawrence River would only make things worse, Murray Thompson, engineering adviser to the International Joint Commission, said Friday.

Earlier this month Lorne Henderson, chairman of the Ontario legislature committee on land drainage, called for creation of a reservoir to drain water from the lakes.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has "predicted that by May or June the lake is likely to reach a record peak about two feet higher than it is now.

Municipal officials and property owners fear serious flooding.

In an interview, Mr. Thompson said he could not visualize a reservoir big enough to stem the flood problem.

"My imagination is not that wild," he said. "Do you have a place to put another Great Lake?"

A single day's flow at the current level would cover an area the size of a Canadian football field to a depth of 65 miles, Mr. Thompson said.

Stanfield And Lewis Square Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberals sat by like spectators at ringside Friday while Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis squared off in the Commons over what seemed at times like the Canadian Tom Sawyer-Huckleberry Finn debate.

Between them, the two leaders watched some of the best one-liners of the session as they debated, ostensibly at least, the merits of Finance Minister Edgar Turner's tax-cut and pension-increase budget.

Mr. Stanfield, denouncing the NDP decision to vote for the budget and keep the minority Liberals in power, limited himself to a few well-chosen barbs.

If the budget is the measure of the New Democrats' bargaining strength, he said, "they have about as much influence as a eunuch in a harem."

At another point, he inferred that the NDP excuse fears nothing more than an election and said the government could have bought its support for a "nickel-or-dime" increase in the old-age pension.

Mr. Lewis, one of the best orators in the Commons, advised Mr. Stanfield to see a psychiatrist. The Opposition Leader used to be a kindly, mild-mannered "nice guy from Halifax," Mr. Lewis said, but "ever Parliament opened Jan. 4 he had become a vicious and frustrated man, destroyed by his thirst for power."

He said the Conservatives whine repeatedly that the government should be turfed out of office and they should be given a chance. But they had proved in past years they were incapable of running the country.

"And when I cut my finger with a knife," the NDP leader said, "I do not keep on cutting my finger with the same knife again."

"It's better than cutting your throat," interjected one Conservative MP.

Mr. Lewis said the NDP does not have confidence in the government, despite its pledge to support the budget, but neither does it have even the slightest confidence in the "dinosaur-oriented and dinosaur-controlled" Conservative party.

Rather, the NDP would support the budget because it considered many of the measures the party had been demanding.

He said the basic old-age pension increase from $82.88 to $200 monthly—is enough in itself to justify supporting the budget. But there were a variety of other reasons as well, among them tax cuts and tariff reductions.

Land Use Law Hit

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — The president of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, Charles Bernhardt, has called the farmer's role strong action against B.C.'s proposed agricultural preservation legislation.

Mr. Bernhardt said Friday he will recommend to B.C. growers that they cease work on this year's crop.

Thursday, Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich introduced legislation setting up a B.C. land commission with powers to determine land use in the province.

Board of the International Joint Commission, which rules on when to change the flow from the lake, met Thursday and will meet again Monday.

Any changes require unanimous approval from the eight-member board.

D. M. Ripley, Canadian co-chairman of the board, says he is "quite concerned" about the possibility of major flooding at Montreal this spring.

Mohawk Wants Leave To Dig Up Cemetery

TORONTO (CP) — Indians may be planning to turn the tables on white anthropologists who have been studying them for years.

Dr. Richard B. Lee, an anthropology professor at University of Toronto, told a science writers' meeting Friday that a Mohawk Indian suggested recently that Indians should dig up one of the pioneer cemeteries.

Anthropologists have been digging up Indian burial grounds for years, Mike Mitchell of the St. Regis Mohawk reserve, near Cornwall, Ont., told an anthropologists' meeting. So now he is thinking of asking for a Canada Council grant to dig up a pioneer cemetery.

"He said he'd like to find out why the white man was always fighting over land that had never belonged to him in the first place," said Dr. Lee. "I think he made his point."

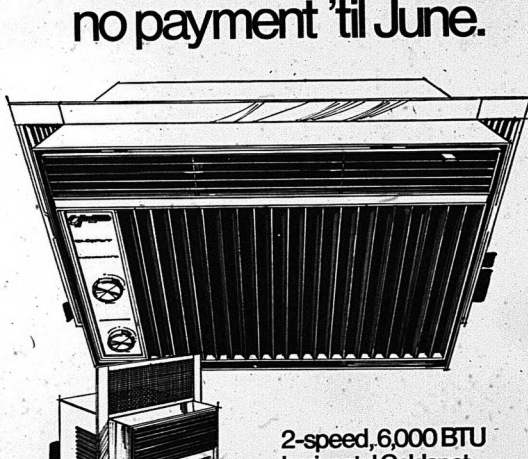
Nixon Is Critical Of Davis on Budget

JORDAN HARBOR, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon criticized Premier William Davis and Provincial Treasurer John White Friday night for not indicating their forecast of the effects of the federal budget on Ontario's economy.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Lincoln Liberal Association, the provincial Liberal leader said the premier owes it to the public, in the light of two provincial by-elections March 15, to make his policy and course of action clear before the voting.

He noted that Mr. White, at a news conference Thursday, had it spoken "in a negative, disparaging way about the federal budget."

He also recalled that at a recent federal-provincial economic conference Mr. White had demanded a larger payment from federally-collected income tax returns.



"It is only go on the threat made by Mr. White some weeks ago that unless there was some money forthcoming from Ottawa to help pay Ontario's bills and to reduce our deficit, this year expected to be $200 million, he would raise our income tax."

But the federal budget had been designed to stimulate the economy and would result in increased revenue from the provincial tax base, he said.

"Under these circumstances, it would surely be folly for the Conservative government of Ontario to negate, cancel and nullify the federal program by adding additional income taxes at the provincial level."

Regina Fire Kills Nine

REGINA (CP) — The death toll in an apartment fire Sunday night that took nine lives and injured 18, could have been higher had it not been for quick action by a patrol constable and two young civilians.

Ldlg. Bob Connell said Constable Keith Ball, who turned in the alarm about 10:40 p.m., and two young men rushed into the building and helped some of the 54 residents out through dense smoke.

"I'm sure they probably saved some lives," said Insp. Connell, whose son Lance was one of the passers-by who aided in the rescues.

"When the firemen got there they were working on the upper floors."

Seven of the dead were identified but police withheld the names.

A police spokesman said at least one of the injured is on the critical list.

The lieutenant said the fire apparently started in a basement suite but its occupant died in the blaze and further details of the fire's origin were not known.

The death toll was said to be the worst in the city's history. Located at 2025 Rose Street on the fringe of the city's downtown core, the 46-suite apartment was old and one fireman said some of the walls had at least "20 coats of paint" on them.

Included among the injured were three firemen and a policeman who broke an arm and got glass in an eye while breaking some windows.

Insp. Connell said he was told the building had been inspected about one week ago but he could not say what the result was of that inspection.

Fire damage was confined mostly to the lower floor with many of the dead apparently overcome by smoke.

The bodies of two women and a man were found huddled together in a washroom, apparently victims of smoke inhalation.

Hundreds of spectators swarmed around the scene and about a dozen policemen were needed to keep the area clear.

Some concern in the apartment was turned into an evacuation centre for many of the dazed and injured residents of the building which a police spokesman said was mainly of wooden construction.

One civilian described the scene this way:

"When we arrived we helped bring about six elderly persons into the house. They were in night dress, black from smoke and suffering from shock or cuts."

Riots Stall PoW Trade

SAIGON (AP) — The Communist side failed Sunday to provide a list of the 1 United States prisoners scheduled for release this week in North and South Vietnam or to fix a specific day, time and place to hand them over, U.S. spokesmen said.

There was no official reason given. But the Communist side was embittered by rock-throwing, banner-waving, shouting mobs of South Vietnamese who attacked North Vietnamese compounds in the northern cities of Hue and Da Nang.

The demonstrations apparently were tacitly sanctioned by the Saigon government, but got out of hand.

Seven North Vietnamese delegates to the four-party Joint Military Commission and two South Vietnamese policemen were reported injured in Da Nang.

The chief spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation, Bui Tin, said four of the Communist delegates were personally wounded in the Hue demonstration.

North Vietnam's official news agency said "a gang of thugs led by the Thieu-Ky-Khiem administration" was behind the injuries in Hue. The Vietnam News Agency said the delegates also broke into the delegation office and "carried off two hotel cases, 21 radios, nine uniforms, and many other things."

Tin told an Associated Press reporter, however, he did not think the demonstrations would affect the American prisoner release, expected Tuesday according to U.S. reckoning.

The Communist side freed 142 U.S. servicemen and civilians in North and South Vietnam Feb. 12 in the first of four scheduled releases. Twenty more were released Saturday and one ahead in Hanoi Feb. 18 as a goodwill gesture after the visit there of Henry Kissinger.

Canada Wants Parley As Vietnam Authority

PARIS (CP) — Canada proposed today that the 13-party international Vietnam peace conference, newly opened in Paris, should be made the continuing political authority to which the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) in the battle-plagued Asian country should report.

In what seemed to be a compromise move, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp also proposed that United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim should have a limited role of relaying commission communications to the conference and of reconvening it if the ICCS asks for such action.

Earlier the Canadians had suggested a greater involvement by the United Nations as a way of bringing world public opinion to bear in the cause of stopping Vietnam peace violations.

Canada also gave formal notice to the conference that it will quit the ICCS by April 30 unless an international authority is set up to deal with violations of the ceasefire.

Almost immediately after Sharp's statement, representatives of the Viet Cong said they are opposed to the idea of involving Waldheim in the peacekeeping process.

However, support for the Canadian proposal came from U.S. State Secretary William Rogers who called for a type of "simple mechanism" to establish a continuing relationship between the conference here and the ICCS.

Separatist Body Woos English

MONTREAL (CP) — The four-year-old division within the Parti Quebecois over treatment of the English-speaking minority in an independent Quebec was healed during the weekend when the party rallied to a new language policy.

Under the new policy, Quebec's English school system would be allotted a proportion of the province's education resources equal to the English-speaking community's size in the total Quebec population when the province separated.

It would never be given a larger proportion of the education budget and facilities, but the English proportion would drop if the English-speaking population dropped.

The policy was written into the program at the separatist party's three-day semi-annual convention which ended Sunday.

At previous conventions, there had always been a strong challenge to the policy of maintaining English education from radicals who wanted to abolish English education altogether.

But this time only a tiny minority opposed the continued maintenance of English schools.

Airliner Pilot Said Unlicensed

TEL AVIV (CP-AP) — The Israeli government said today that the French captain of a Libyan airliner downed by Israeli fighter planes in the Sinai desert last Wednesday was not licensed to fly the tvjet Boeing 727.

The government said it had found Captain Jacques Bourges's flying permit and it did not list the 727, the plane downed on the Israeli side of the Sinai canal with the loss of 106 lives.

Bourges was licensed only as a co-pilot for the French Caravelle jetliner and several propeller planes, the Israelis said. Bourges was among those who died in the downing.

Air France, the French government airline, said in Paris Bourges had completed the training course for 727 pilots on Nov. 6, 1972, and this had been entered on his licence five days later. Bourges was on loan to Air France at the time, it added.

Premier Golda Meir said on she left for the United States the day that she thought the downing of the Libyan airliner had no effect on her talks with President Nixon.

The 74-year-old premier looked drawn and admitted to reporters that she was "very tired." But she dodged other questions, saying: "I will tell you everything when I get back."

Roses Are Red Geraniums Blue It's Up to You

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists say they have succeeded in getting a geranium plant emotionally involved.

They believe plants can feel "love, joy, hate and satisfaction," the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya said.

Dr. V. Pushkin told the paper that scientists hypnotized a man and aroused his emotions of joy and sorrow. Instruments attached to a geranium leaf at some distance from the man recorded the same emotions, it said.

But he continued that this was just a proof of the ability of plants to have psychological reactions. It is too early to call it a discovery and used the word "hypothesis."

Canada Wants Out of Vietnam Control Commission

Canada has given formal notice to the International Commission of Control and Supervision in Vietnam that it will withdraw from the commission by April 30 unless the commission is given the authority to deal with violations of the ceasefire.

The notice was given by Canada's ambassador to France, Jean Chapdelaine, to the co-chairmen of the Paris conference on Vietnam, Foreign Ministers William Rogers of the United States and Maurice Schumann of France.

Canada's decision to withdraw from the commission was announced in the House of Commons in Ottawa by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Trudeau said Canada has been disappointed with the commission's performance and has found it impossible to carry out its duties under the present circumstances.

Trudeau said Canada will continue to support the Vietnam peace agreement and will continue to participate in the four-party joint military commission and the two-party Vietnamese commission.

Trudeau said Canada will also continue to support the efforts of the United Nations to bring about a peaceful settlement in Vietnam.

Munro Sees Union Aims At Odds

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro says the international trade union movement may no longer be able to represent fairly both Canada and the United States.

In a speech Saturday at the annual meeting of the Halton West Liberal Association, Mr. Munro denounced the AFL-CIO for its support of a bill now before the U.S. Congress that would put quotas on imports to the United States.

The labor minister said the bill, the Foreign Trade and Investment Act (1973), could cost Canadian jobs, growth and development, because it was designed to protect American jobs and American-based industry.

"The fact remains that the basic trust of the American labor movement has always been to foster a lowering of trade barriers," said Mr. Munro. "Abandoning it will be at their peril."

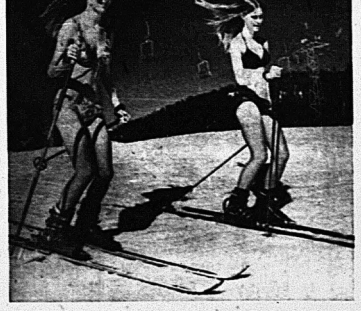
Imports Called Threat To U.S. Living Standard

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A flood of foreign imports wiped out more than a million American jobs in the past five years and threatens to make the "Made in U.S.A." label obsolete on everything from baseball mitts to steel, the AFL-CIO boasted Saturday.

"Baseball is an American game, but almost 95 per cent of baseball mitts sold in the United States were imports," said a report by the labor federation's economic policy committee.

Imports also are cutting into the U.S. market in many other products from steel to shoes and shirts, the report said.

The deterioration is underscored by industrial bases of the U.S. economy. At stake is the American living standard, the nation's productivity advance and American job opportunities," it said.



The report, to the executive council of the 13.6-million-member labor federation, urged a broad new program by the White House and Congress to reverse the country's declining world trade position.

President Nixon, in a visit to the labor council last week, disagreed with the position, and AFL-CIO President George Meany indicated possible compromise with the White House on forthcoming legislation.

The report said the United States exported more goods than it imported every year for 75 years, until 1971. The comeback department said Saturday the trade deficit last year was $6.3 billion worth of imports, the largest in the department said, the deficit narrowed to $303.8 million.

The report said imports have taken nearly 20 per cent of the market for steel in this country, about one-fourth of auto sales, approximately 25 per cent of television sets, 40 per cent of phonographs, 86 per cent of radios and nearly 100 per cent of tape recorders.

It said many countries that dump products in the U.S. market forbid American-made goods to be sold in their own homelands, and urged tough new measures to break down foreign trade barriers.

BENGHAZI, Libya (Reuter) — Pandemonium broke out today at the funeral service of 15 victims of the plane crash here last week when a crowd of about 10,000 had for a time mass surged forward crying for revenge against Israel.

They initially believed to be a relative of one of the dead, Egyptian Air Force officer Mohammed Ibrahim Kashafi, and ran toward Libyan President Moammar Khadafi shouting "Revenge, Kashafi. Revenge Kashafi."

Khadafi immediately took up the cry.

Police and security troops carrying machine-guns intercepted the youngsters.

400 Doctors' Answering Service Quits

TORONTO (CP) — A sick switchboard operator at a medical answering service quit her job Saturday and left about 400 patients of more than 60 Toronto-area doctors without any way of getting in touch with their doctors in an emergency.

The operator was said to have been angered because a supervisor refused to allow her time to relieve her when she became ill. She left the switchboard at the Academy of Medicine service and from about 2 a.m. to 6:30 a.m. the telephone lines were dead.

The service was located in basement quarters of the academy.

Cars, House Casualties

FITON — A Picton motorist is reported in good condition in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital today following a collision on the Town Hill Saturday night in which caused approximately $2,000 damage.

Ross Harrington, 26, of RR3, Picton, struck a parked car owned by Margaret Bongard of Bridge Street as he drove down the hill.

The impact drove the Bongard vehicle into the front of a Bridge Street residence owned by James Kimmett of Napanee.

The Harrington car continued down the hill, grazing a hydro pole before coming to a halt.

The driver was taken to hospital for treatment of head and facial lacerations and other possible injuries.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment said no charges have been laid in connection with the incident.

peck city council and board of education meetings, both being held today.

Mr. Pierce said Alderman Stu Meeks will introduce a motion in city council to have the school issue debated at today's meeting.

Another meeting of parents will be held in the school auditorium Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. to hear a progress report.

Mr. Pierce said the social aspects of the school's closing had been overlooked by the board. Agreeing with a parent who said a neighborhood starts to fall apart when it loses its school, he warned to draw up a petition protesting the closing of Queen Alex.

"With no school, property values will drop," he said. "The ratepayers are as much affected by this as the parents."

Although the board has promised to provide buses for Queen Alex children transferred to Queen Elizabeth, Queen Victoria and Sir Winston Churchill schools next fall, parents were apprehensive about how long busing would continue. Several said the buses would be withdrawn after the first year because of provincial government regulations. A board is required to provide buses only if it has a 7 - year - olds who walk more than one mile, nine-year-olds who walk more than two miles and older pupils who walk three miles from home to school.

The parents claimed noon-hour supervision will be inadequate.

Snowmobile Passenger Injured

TRENTON A Trenton man riding as a passenger on a friend's snowmobile Saturday sustained a broken collarbone when the machine hit a bump on the ice and flipped. The accident occurred on the Bay of Quinte near the mouth of the Trent River.

Injured was Joseph Chiasson, 30, of 91 Scott Dr., Trenton.

He was treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Snowmobile owner and driver Ken Olson, 31, McNeil St., Trenton, was unhurt. There was no damage to the machine, Brighton Provincial police said.

at noon," said one. "It will be the same as at Sir Mackenzie Bowell — 10 minutes to eat and then out to the yard."

Traffic hazards for youngsters who must cross dangerous intersections were another concern.

Parents repeated their earlier contention that Sir Winston Churchill on Macdonald Ave. is the logical school to close, but this pupils could walk to Queen Elizabeth.

Mrs. Pierce said a trustee had told him Queen Alex had been suggested for use as an administration building.

"It would cost as much to renovate it for offices as it would for a senior school," she said a parent.

The board has said renovations to Queen Alex to retain it as a senior school will cost $750,000.

The parents briefly considered courses of action if they get an adverse decision tonight at school board and city council.

"We'll withdraw all our children from school for a day and take it to the board office," offered Art Liddle.

Several other parents said they would withdraw their children from the public schools and send them to Roman Catholic separate schools.

Drama Festival History Literary Breakthrough

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

When Betty Lee was a young woman in Australia she wanted to be a reporter.

Her grandfather was a newspaper publisher, but he refused to give her a job on the grounds that a newspaper is no place for a woman.

So she started off in radio, became a top journalist and soon will climax her career with a book that she hopes will set a new trend in publishing.

Love and Whiskey!, the history of the Dominion Drama Festival, is expected to become a bestseller after its release early in April.

It has a heavy Belleville content, with all research for the volume done by Mrs. Marian Wilson, theatre archivist and public relations vice-president of Theatre Canada.

Miss Lee was in Belleville last week to confer with Mrs. Wilson on a second volume, an illustrated companion to Love and Whiskey expected to come out in the fall.

The first volume of Love and Whisky! is dedicated to Mrs. Wilson, who for many years has been a dedicated worker in arts, including ballet and theatre both here and on a national level.

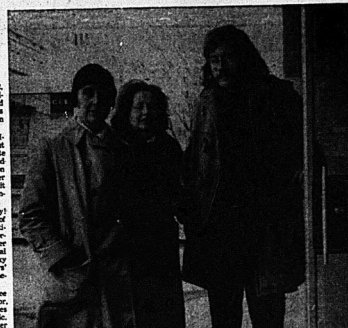
Love and Whisky! is the first comprehensive history of theatre in Canada. But to Miss Lee it is more than that.

It is one of the first of a new breed of books — a commissioned work that escapes the stigma of bias toward its sponsoring body.

Publishers McClelland and Stewart avoided the pitfall of preferential treatment of the subject by contracting for Miss Lee to write as an objective reporter.

"I had no attachment or commitment to my subject," she said. "I put down what I found like any reporter on assignment."

Miss Lee hopes her publisher's precedent in hiring uncommitted reporters to write books on assignment will continue. She sees it as the only way left to stimulate writing of Canadian books by Canadian authors.



One of a handful of top-flight Canadian Journalists, Miss Lee is the winner of a National Newspaper Award for feature writing and is now a Southam Fellow at Massey College in Toronto, on leave from the Globe and Mail.

In Australia, Great Britain, the United States and Canada she has written on subjects as divergent as murder and the arts. She is spending this year at the University of Toronto as a journalist in residence, conferring with faculties and students on their relationship with the media and sitting in on her lectures.

After her grandfather's publication, Miss Lee became a trade under the four - year Australian apprenceship system.

"I never went to university," she said. "It's not necessary for a reporter. Newspapers were my university."

She edited three magazines in Australia — one of them her own theatrical magazine. Then, after University of Toronto career were a job with the Daily Mirror in London and as the latter college's chief advertiser.

In Belleville last week to confer on plotlines for a companion volume to her history of the Dominion Drama Festival was Betty Lee, left, author of the Love and Whisky!, predicted to become a best seller. With her is Mrs. Marian Wilson, who did the research for the book and McClelland and Stewart editor, David Berry. The book will be released the first week of April.

Hospital Extends Teaching Program

Belleville General Hospital plans to expand its in-service education and orientation programs next fall.

Newly-scheduled will be all departments in the hospital, rather than just the nursing department which has had the program for several years.

Executive director Phillip Rickard told a BGH board meeting Friday the plan is expected to be implemented Sept. 1. It was given unanimous approval by the members.

Another change will be the program's operating status.

At present, orientation tours and educational instruction are supervised by Mrs. Mary Ann Adams, a nurse at the hospital.

But under the new scheme, in-service education will become a separate department offering assistance to all other departments.

Up to now, nurses taking up duties at BGH have been led on tours of the hospital to familiarize them with the location of various facilities. The educational aspect of the program: made films, equipment demonstrations and lectures an on-going aid to nurses' professional development.

Heart Fund Canvassing Launched

An onslaught against Canada's greatest killer has been launched today in Belleville with the beginning of the Heart Fund campaign.

Canvassers will be out this week calling at homes for donations to their objective of $18,000.

The Ontario objective is $1-250,000 — money that will be used for research in all aspects of the cardiovascular disease that accounts for 51 per cent of all deaths.

Alderman Jean Smith is heading the Belleville campaign this year.

Fire Evicts Family

TRENTON — The George Bugg family was left homeless here by fire that gutted their one-storey brick dwelling at 35 Ramsay St.

Mr. Bugg, a metal spinner at a local silverplate plant was alone and asleep on the couch in the living room at the time of the fire.

"Fortunately," said Mr. Bugg. "all of our five children were away visiting at other places."

Mr. Bugg awakened in a dense smoke that poured out from a bedroom, cutting off his escape by way of a door off the nearby kitchen. However, he managed to reach safety by smashing the glass in a storm front door.

The family are staying with friends in Consecon until they can rent another home.

Loss has not yet been determined.

Ice Has Been Problem

PICTON — Donald Clark, Prince Edward County engineer in a report to council last week stated Picton Harbour required "much higher than normal effort" this year due to light snow and freezing rain.

The Big Island Causeway bridge was removed last month and progressive with the installation of culverts are complete. They will be put in when the water level of the lakes has dropped and the fill has completely settled.

Mr. Clark said he had attended a presentation at Perth on the subject of ice loads for county roads departments and has set up a working budget based on this information. The proposed budget now is under review by the road committee.

Unseasonably mild weather has permitted hauling of gravel grades and the shoulders on paved roads.

Health, Regionalization Said Greatest Concerns

TWEED — The two biggest issues facing the New Democratic Party of Ontario are also of imminent concern to many Canadians.

Party leader Steven Lewis says that pledging by governments he has received in letters and on phone-in shows is provincial health care and the coming of regional government are the topics most under discussion by the Ontario public today.

Responding to questions at the inaugural meeting of the Hastings NDP Association Sunday night, Mr. Lewis said his party would voice opposition on both fronts when the provincial legislature opens its next session, probably March 20.

And of Mr. Lewis's criticisms Sunday are any indication, the Progressive Conservative government of Premier William Davis will be in for some severe reprimanding.

The New Democrat took particular aim at the Ontario Health Insurance scheme which comes under the jurisdiction of health minister Dr. Richard Potter, also Quinte MPP.

He said the Tories the government had made in setting up the plan were "coming back to haunt them" by forcing a strain on the public treasury.

The first, total reliance on hospitals, was one mistake, Mr. Lewis called them the most expensive means of treating patients available and advocates the implementation of community health centres that also stress home care, convalescent homes and "revolutionary" services.

He then attacked Ontario Medical Association's fee scale, which he said placed no limitations on doctors drawing from it. He urged the government establish a ceiling on fees, even if it meant imposing salaries on doctors or setting fees for certain services.

"By law, the medical profession polices itself," said Mr. Lewis. "It's a fantastic closed shop."

The member for Scarborough West described Dr. Potter as "a congenial and earthy man, the kind that could charm the legislature."

He said he had become disillusioned with the health minister of late, however.

"When the chips are down, he succumbs to the siren calls of his profession." Mr. Lewis said. "He hasn't dismissed doctors, there is no bargaining on fees and he's abandoning the community health centre scheme because the profession doesn't want them."

Mr. Lewis said members of the OMA executive had called him to arrange a confrontation over his excess - spending allegations.

Turning to regional government, Mr. Lewis said the government's "breakneck pace" would prove disastrous if the program is instituted by, 1973 as planned.

"There's never been such feeling generated in the communities as there is. I have 9 more centres over this," he commented.

He told the association about a meeting he attended a month ago over the proposal to make the Four Tisdale - Cochrane area part of a Toronto - centered region.

"Sure they were worried about losing their identity, because they're a megalopolis and other matters, but what they were primarily worried was that nobody had talked to them," he said.

He also claimed the government had done no financial planning to accompany the political changes and said the structure would lead to "ramshackle, program thrash" to provide quick solutions.

Mr. Lewis predicted the issue would become one of the most talked about points in the next provincial election in 1974 or 1975.

He supported regional government in principle when it was first introduced." he said. "I think we were right. But you need three to five years of really intensive discussion before you can implement it. If the government can do what it did in Port Hope then it shows the contempt they have for eastern Ontario communities."

Mr. Lewis also replied to a question from the floor: pollution fighter Doug Sword concerning a lawsuit decision by Judge J. L. Clendenning over the province's Environmental Protection Act. The judge, ruling on pollution charges against Domtar Construction Cement, said such legislation was, in effect, the responsibility of the federal government rather than the province.

"If a recent appeal to the Ontario Supreme Court is not successful," Mr. Lewis said. "I think the government will move to amend the act to get around Judge Clendenning's decision."

Music Festival Entrants Estimated to Top 700

The Rotary Music Festival, scheduled to begin Tuesday morning, has grown to the point where three locations must be used to accommodate the increasing number of entrants.

A club organizer says there are more than 100 new entrants this year, these largely participating in band instrument classes.

"We have grown every year in the number of entrants," said George Thompson, a member of the festival committee.

Three hundred and sixty eight entrants have been received by the club for the four-day festival. An accurate figure of participants is not available because of the nature of the entry form. A single entrant could be a 40-voice choir or a duet.

Mr. Thompson speculated anywhere from 650 to 700 students would be involved this year.

Generally, vocal selections will be heard in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, piano entrants will perform in Belleville Collegiate Institute and band presentations will be in Centennial Secondary School.

This year's Festival of Stars, a showcase production to give a random sampling of the talent of the preceding four days' festival, will be held Sunday afternoon beginning at 2:30 p.m. in Centennial Secondary School.

The show is open to the general public with an admission charge of $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Clive Lythgoe, a pianist whose engagements have covered all Europe will adjudicate piano classes. Soprano Megan Rutledge will judge vocal selections and Western University Associate Professor Robert Hughes will adjudicate band entrants.

Legacy of Gaullist Years

Leftist Victory in France Could Precipitate Crisis

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The threat of a constitutional crisis in France, if the parties of the left win the national elections next month, is seen as a legacy from the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle, for whom the constitution was, tailor-made.

Opposition parties are charging that the Gaullists have deliberately turned the campaign into a constitutional battle to divert attention from the real issues.

The Gaullists have proclaimed emphatically that in the event of a Socialist-Communist majority, President Pompidou will not choose his prime minister from among their ranks.

Prime Minister Pierre Messmer has even implied that if the left wins, Pompidou will call a referendum or new elections to force voters to choose between the policies he has pursued since 1969, for which he received a popular mandate, or the new program of the left.

Several Paris newspapers have argued that if the left wins a majority, then the people will already have expressed themselves and the constitution does not require them to do so a second time.

Why recent polls indicating the left has a good chance of upsetting the Gaullists and supporting parties, the maneuver is broadly interpreted by observers as unwarrants' presidential interference in the electoral system.

Spokesmen for the Socialist-Communist coalition concede privately that the ultimatum from Pompidou might adversely affect their showing in the two-stage elections March 4 and March 11.

Their conclusion is that although their "time for a change" theme hit a responsive cord among France's 30 million voters, many voters might be tempted to change to a government that includes Communists only if Pompidou remains president as a safety valve.

The implication of the president's own statements is that if the people rejected his policies in a subsequent referendum, he would resign.

Under the de Gaulle-inspired constitution, which many say embodies his profound contempt for French political parties, the president is elected for a seven-year term in a separate election. His right to choose his prime minister is absolute and unfettered, but many consider it would be an affront to voters if Pompidou refused to select a prime minister from the coalition, if it gained a parliamentary majority.

To many observers, the apparent move to the left in France is inspired largely by a simple desire for change and a feeling of boredom with the Gaullists who, many feel, have become jaded after 15 years in power.

Aside from such social reforms as a higher minimum wage, lower retirement age and a 40-hour work week, the coalition of the left promises to trim the president's term to five years, generally extend parliament's powers and seek the simultaneous dismantling of NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

But, publicly it appears those fearful of too radical a change, they stress that their program covers only an attempt to direct France toward socialism, not to achieve it.

Hidden Talent

Further to our recent discussion on Women at Work, note this from Oriana Fallaci, author (of five books), journalist (as a correspondent for the Italian magazine L'Europeo), in an interview with Diana Loercher of The Christian Science Monitor: "The most intelligent heads of state I have found are women. . . When a woman excels in her work she is exceptionally good. . . A woman can do both things: work at home-making, children, and have a profession. . ."

An interviewer herself of some of the world's most important people (most recently President Thieu and Dr. Henry Kissinger), as well as having done stints as a correspondent in Vietnam, Miss Fallaci has become something of a celebrity. She expressed her pleasure that she, a woman, had accomplished interviews "that all the journalists wanted to do," and she summed up some of her personal rationale thus: "I used to be intimidated when I was younger, I used to be scared of people. . . The point is that since I have started to interview people in power I have found how 'everyday' they are. Sometimes they are mediocre. Really they are not better, they are not superior. I have met very few superior people." Those she would call "superior" include two women: Indira Ghandi and Golda Meir.

Miss Fallaci's inner character comes through also as she discusses the mechanics of her job. Sometimes baring the inner psyche of others, she speaks of the need for respect no matter what her personal opinion of a person: "I always respect the answer as given to me. . . I have been educated as a girl, as a young girl, to respect people."

An personality of many parts bound together in a woman of strong integrity, Miss Fallaci reminds us of others closely linked with the great events of the day — like American author-journalist Cindy Adams, known best perhaps for her writings on the late President Sukarno of Indonesia. There is too a young Frenchwoman who became something of a legend as a photographer in Vietnam and was wounded. Incidentally, Miss Fallaci came out of eight trips to Vietnam unscathed — but managed to get shot three times while covering the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

In the same issue of The Monitor is a picture of another gifted woman of our time, Janet Johnson, Aside from attending to her new job as Republican Party co-chairman, Miss Johnson manages her family's 700-acre ranch near Sacramento. And these are not all her attainments. Much more original, the news item points out, is Miss Johnson's invention of the flashing emergency signals now on almost all U.S. cars.

Here then is another glimpse of the capabilities and potential of women in spheres dominated by men. How much more talent must be lying dormant among their sisters, for want of the opportunity to develop it.

View Blocked

Banks in our big cities have been competing over the years to be the "biggest and best" with regard both to resources and to what holds it all together — structurally.

Well in Vancouver the planners of one great concrete and glass complex stretching heavenwards appear to have ignored the magnificent environment of mountains surrounding the city.

The caption under a Canadian Press photograph says the building in downtown Vancouver tends to obscure the view of the mountains across the Burrard Inlet on the north shore. It has drawn considerable critical attention, says the caption, "because of its dark finish and view-blocking size."

Indeed the picture seems to bear this out. Once again we are left with the words of one who talked about "where every prospect pleases — and only man is vile!"

Holbrook to Play Role of Pueblo Skipper

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Hal Holbrook, who has made millions laugh with his characterization of Mark Twain, is acting out a grim memory the United States Navy would like to forget.

He's portraying Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, skipper of the navy spy ship Pueblo, which was seized by North Korea in January, 1968.

The circumstances of the incident have been dramatized in a play called Pueblo. On March 29, Holbrook will appear in a television version of the play on the ABC network.

Both versions centre on the naval and congressional inquiries into how the Pueblo became the first U.S. ship to strike its colors in enemy presence since the American Civil War.

Holbrook, in preparing for his role as Bucher, has been reading every available account of the Pueblo incident, including the book Bucher wrote about it.

He's also been screening old news film clips of Bucher's return from 11 months of imprisonment by the North Koreans.

The films show Bucher arriving by plane in San Diego, California, where he was reunited with his wife and met by an army of reporters and military and civilian officials.

Holbrook, a lean slow-talking man, sat behind a desk in the book-lined study of his apartment here and tried to recall his first impressions of those films.

"He looked like he was under drugs or badly beaten," the actor said, closing his eyes. "He walked all right, but when he began to speak his face looked badly drawn."

"He seemed to have great trouble forming his words, following a line of thought. He seemed to be a man under tremendous physical, emotional and mental stress, even to the point of having been crippled in some way."

Holbrook pointed at a pile of assorted books and papers on his desk. The collection included a transcript of the Pueblo inquiry held by the three armed services committee.

"I'm trying to determine just how incapacitated the man was when he came back from North Korea," he said. "The likelihood of the man is extremely important to me."

Has he considered talking to Bucher?

"No, I don't want to do that," Holbrook said.

"I thought about it a long time, but I decided against it. There's something about this project—and I haven't exactly figured out what it is yet—that doesn't really call for an impersonation.

"The thing seems to me to be just a little bit bigger than just the man involved in it."

Bucher's latest military job has been mine removal off North Vietnam as part of the ceasefire agreement.

Why is Holbrook studying the Pueblo incident so intensively?

"I have a strong compulsion to find out exactly what the truth was so I can interpret it or go off in my own direction," he said.

"But I have to know exactly what were the facts, the plot of the thing."

What would Holbrook have done had he been in Bucher's place at the time the North Koreans ordered the commander to surrender his ship and its 83-man crew?

"I don't know," he said.

Credit System in Schools

The credit system is only a small beginning; it is not the best system and I am not defending it. It can be just as fallible if students do not have any idea when they are, or where they are going. Responsibility is more than just a shepherd - up guidance program. It should be encouraged early to give the student a chance to express his needs in relation to education.

Red Tape

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I was unemployed and forced to enter Belleville General Hospital in November, 1972.

I submitted claims for benefit in the normal manner and sent proof by way of a doctor's certificate.

From that date, until the present, I have been embroiled in a ludicrous and disheartening interchange of correspondence and telephone calls with the local office, Kingston office and Regional Office of the UIC.

My credit rating has been tarnished, and my bill paying capacity destroyed.

Today, with nothing in the till I was thankful for, calling for a loan from a finance company other than one for welfare. Fortunately, at the Citizens' Bureau cause in the rescue.

I am appalled that in an era of supposed progress, the simple payment of a valid claim should force an individual to endure such harassment, humiliation and frustration.

Thank you Citizens Bureau.

Subsidized Lending And Development Bank's Role

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In the current examination of the future role of the Industrial Development Bank and subsidiary of the Bank of Canada, the indirect effects of subsidized lending rates have been overlooked. Canada has a competitive business economy in which an advantage cannot be awarded to one business without a competitive disadvantage being forced on the direct competitors of that business. The subsidized lending rates for the IDB cannot, therefore, be lending "paid for" in an important sense, by his competitors, leaving one to wonder whether the IDB has not caused as many business failures as it has prevented.

That line of thought is dependent upon the fact that IDB rates are subsidized. Clearly this is so — although it was not intended by Parliament when it set up the IDB. In fact, sources of term loans for business were not so developed as they are today. Parliament sought to create a source of term loan for business which could not obtain funds elsewhere "... on reasonable terms and conditions."

The IDB began by requiring prospective borrowers to produce "refusal letters" from private sources, thereby reflecting parliaments desire that the IDB be a lender of last resort.

If that was the desire, it has not been the result. IDB loan rates are below market: The IDB thus becomes the lender of first resort. IDB lending rates invert rational lending scales: smaller losses from the IDB carry a lower rate than larger losses, although the set up costs are almost identical. If the IDB were truly a lender of last resort, its default rate should be higher than those of private lenders: not so. IDB default rates compare favourably averages.

If the IDB were a lender of last resort, it would not pay out existing contracts from private lenders, the very existence of which shows that other sources of funds are available on reasonable terms: yet to pay out other term loans is the favored role for the IDB to loan funds. Nor would the IDB actively compete for business with competitive sources of capital with ad campaigns, seminars and solicitations.

IDB activities have extended far beyond the intent of Parliament. By using government-raised funds (for which it does not pay the carrying costs) and by not paying profit taxes (as a Crown corporation), the IDB gives away more than 2 million taxpayer dollars a year.

For the private sources of term loans it seeks, it is a perplexing situation. They pay top rates to investors, run a tight shop, and pay taxes on their profits, only to find the rates they have to charge, undercut by the subsidized IDB rates, some of their good accounts paid out by the government's IDB, and some other good accounts put into jeopardy by IDB-sponsored competition.

It is true that many factors usually enter into a business failure, but it cannot be denied that, if the indirect effects of subsidized IDB loans could be completely measured, the IDB could be causing as many small business failures as it tries to prevent. And those failures have even less chance of a rather tax-paying businesses with them.

The Federated Council of Sales Finance Companies recommended that interest charges on IDB loans be declared non-deductible for income tax purposes. Under their proposal, low-profit making businesses would be benefitted as their profit tax will be small in any event. And when that business is profitable, they presumably could afford "the finance" — which it is supposed to get from the beneficient IDB; it can afford to pay for it from the net out of post-tax earnings. Whichever proposal is used, the answer the problems posed for the competitors of IDB customers, is a reasonable one. I may think twice about taking IDB services if they are already operating in the black.

It is something I dare to turn thumbs right, tax-paying private sources of term funds and the proud owners of the constructs of IDB-sponsored businesses, "Don't worry. Need I be heard that hurts them" by dutifully paying double for an IDB.

J. H. DUNN,
Executive Vice - President,
Federated Council of Sales and Finance Companies,

Lacking In Grace

Christian Science Monitor
How much we could do with a little more courtesy in the world. Or, some of us might say, with a little more "graciousness" that we used to take for granted.

Are we too preoccupied, too busy and — absorbed to be gracious?

There's the business executive out of a hurry who fails to hold the door open for the one waiting to enter. The lady behind the counter is so brusque and offhand that she forgets that her chief priority is to help the customer, the official who barks out words as though he were training an army platoon. . .

Courtesy, or, to use a more grace — the smiling welcome, the encouraging phrase, the thoughtful act — we respond as a plant does to water.

Belleville Home for Handicapped Would Be the Second in Canada

A few months ago, Jean and Alex Cunningham were told their 20-year-old son, his neck broken in an automobile accident, would never move again.

A miracle later, Sandy Cunningham is regaining movement in his right arm and prospects are bright for yet another miracle.

It is a Cheshire Home for severely handicapped young adults in Belleville, one that would be the second in Canada.

The first is McLeod House in Toronto, where five severely handicapped young people live in a home they run themselves with a little help from volunteers.

Organizers say McLeod House started with "$5,000 and a prayer".

"We have nothing but prayers and we're going to go," says Mr. Cunningham. He heads the steering committee made up of his wife as vice-president and 11 other interested people in the community.

A Cheshire Home here will fill a need never heard and overcome in Canada.

Sandy Cunningham is a case in point. Now a patient in the rehabilitation centre in Kingston General Hospital, he has no place to go on discharge.

With both parents working, he cannot be cared for at home. With the cutback in hospital beds, he cannot be placed in a hospital. The only institutions that will accept handicapped adults are homes for the aged. "Sandy won't go into an old folks home," says his mother."If we have to, Alex and I will start a Cheshire Home on our own with a limit of three residents."

Cheshire Homes were started in post-war England by the war hero, Group Captain Leonard Cheshire VC, when he took in a cancer patient with nowhere to go. More handicapped adults arrived and Cheshire dedicated his life to founding homes where they could live in permanent independence from their families and institutions. There are now 80 such homes in England and an equal number scattered throughout the world.

A Cheshire Home gives lifetime physical and emotional security and direction of their own affairs to its residents. Age at entry is 18 to 50 and the maximum number if the Belleville home will be 18.

Government grants are available, but community funds must be raised before the grants are forthcoming.

About $25,000 is needed here to renovate a house for use by the severely disabled.

An elevator, widened doorways and fire protection measures are essentials.

The provincial ministry of social and family services will pay about 80 per cent of operating costs once the home is in operation. It costs about $9 a resident a day to run a Cheshire Home, compared to the $30 a day needed to maintain a patient in an institution for chronic care.

"This concept supports Dr. Potter's (Ontario minister of health) thinking about getting people out of hospitals and into homes," says Mr. Cunningham.

A brief prepared by the steering committee for presentation to the government identifies 23 people in the Quinte district between 18 and 50 who are potential residents of a Cheshire home. Their average age is 25 and they suffer from conditions such as cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis, spinal cord injuries, congenital deformities, arthritis, polio and hemaplegia.

The Cheshire Home committee believes the actual number of handicapped to be larger than its survey shows. It is inserting a questionaire in The Intelligencer this week to find other potential residents.

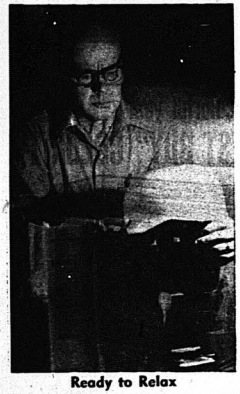
A public meeting is planned for April to launch a fund-raising drive and recruit help from city organizations.

"Already, contributions are coming in. Two teenagers, on their own initiative, sought Mayor Robin Jeffrey's support for a walkathon, and ended up with her promise to walk.

"I have never seen anything in which the pieces are all falling into place like this one," says Ruth Burrows, director of the Central Volunteer Bureau and a member of the steering committee.

The committee already has its eye on two or three suitable houses, close to downtown and schools. Schools are a vital ingredient in the success of the venture, for local organizers have found the most enthusiasm for the concept among teenagers. In other centres, students have been the readiest source of volunteer help in Cheshire Homes and Belleville's experience so far is parallel.

Community support, both financial and personal, is another vital factor.



"It keeps the young people in the home involved in, and part of their community," says Mr. Cunningham.

Members of the Cheshire Home committee, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, are: Jeff McDermott, recording secretary; Ruth Burrows, corresponding secretary; Wilf Wilkinson, treasurer; Mrs. Anne Actor Dr. Reginald Anderson; Mrs. Aileen Kaelin; Joanne Fahey; Sue Leslie; Mrs. Vera Morphy; Mrs. Denise Peters; Mr. and Mrs. Norm Slater; Miss Marion Webb of Kingston; Mrs. Myles Morton and Arne Neilson.

All Pitch In

Every one is pitching in to establish a Cheshire Home in Belleville for handicapped young adults. Some of the supporters gathered in the living room of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Cunningham this weekend when their son Sandy was home for a visit from Kingston General Hospital. They are, left to right, Terry Wilton, Janet Cunningham, Sandy, Nancy Ri shton, Joanne Fahey and Maggie Cunningham.

Ready to Relax

Reilly Plans Life of Reilly

Garfield Reilly has seen the railroad grow considerably during his 42 years with Canadian National.

In fact, those 20-foot tracks he used to install as replacements during the 1930s have given way to 1,720-foot "ribbons", dramatically changing the job he grew up with.

Mr. Reilly joined CN in Belleville in 1930 at the age of 18. His fellow yard employees behind the foreman celebrate his retirement Friday with a cash present and party in the low gray building they frequent at the extreme east end of the yard.

He recalled the changeover to ribbon rail production that took place only last year.

"It was the first time it had been done in this area," he said. "After the men had laid all the necessary number, it was my job to see that the rail was put onto specially equipped cars. Each track was showed onto 27 cars. Once in awhile a piece would strike the framework on the car and buckle, so they'd have to cut it with a torch and rework it.

As the man in charge of material handling, Mr. Reilly was responsible for meeting orders that came in, most of them in the summer when conditions are most suitable for laying track. Although he's always worked in the yard, his first position kept him outdoors most of the time.

"I was a laborer when I started," the Bangor native recalled. "They used to bring us rail to work on, either for new lines, as replacements or to put in for track twisted in derailments. We'd saw lengths off each end, depending on how much was worn, and regrill it where it joined other pieces. That's why you'd always hear that clackety-clack when you rode the train."

Quoting a popular namesake, the Frankford resident says he plans "to live the life of Reilly" from now on.

Two of his six married children live in Kamloops, B.C., and Charlottetown, P.E.I., and he hopes to make good use of his lifetime CN pass to visit them.

Apart from travelling, he'll be tinkering around his home for the past 28 years, painting and practising his favorite hobby, carpentry.

Learning Can Be Fun— Where Food Is Concerned

By JOANNE MacKENZIE
Women's Reporter

Some people say you are what you eat.

In which case it might be a healthy idea to know what and why you're eating.

At a recent Milk Nutrition Workshop held at Our Lady of Fatima School, Belleville, Mrs. Barbara Cooper, a nutrition communications consultant for The Ontario Milk Marketing Board, Toronto addressed kindergarten and primary school teachers from the Quinte area.

The purpose of the seminar was to show teachers how to teach nutrition to students.

The switch, and it was met with enthusiastic response, was that the teachers had to do what they expected their students to do.

Another factor which made the workshop different and stimulating was the integrated approach it presented to the study of food including health, science, social studies and language arts.

Teachers involved in the workshop made their own butter, prepared menus, and learned about the four basic food groups in such a way to make learning about food an involved and exciting process.

The four Big Ideas or concepts in nutrition according to the workshop are basically: foods from the four basic food groups supply needed nutrients for growth and health: balanced diets include foods selected from each of the basic food groups; man's food choices are influenced by his environment and finally through various food processing methods a variety of foods high in nutritional value are available to man.

What could be the possible outcome of such courses involving the student in active learning — making butter, pastomming milk processing, learning what other childrens' diets in foreign lands include?

Besides encouraging the use of milk and the value of nutritional ideas at schools with proper facilities children could prepare their own meals. This would mean perhaps coming for breakfast once a week with the proper foods, making their own menus, and sharing a good nutritious meal with other children.

At a time when people of all ages are becoming more aware of what is entering their stomachs and questioning the nutritional value of their daily foods, children, at an early age begin to understand the importance of the right kinds of foods and according to Mrs. Cooper, eat 'improper foods' in moderation.

At any rate, if motivation is the key to learning, and apparently teachers attending the Milk Nutrition Seminar were impressed with the teaching methods introduced, then learning about food and actively participating in the learning may turn out to be fun and educational.

"Quick Soak" For Wild Rice

A "quick-soak method" for wild rice has been developed by the Food Specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Wash required amount of wild rice in cold water.

Stir rice into 3 times the amount of boiling water (1 cup rice requires 3 cups water). Parboil for 5 min. only.

Remove from heat. Let soak in the same water (covered) for 1 hr.

Drain Wash. Cook as directed in recipe.

This method is preferred to the more traditional overnight soaking. The "quick-soak method" permits you to soak the rice in the afternoon and serve it piping hot at dinner time.

Mmmm— Good!

After a day on the slopes or an afternoon in the open, enjoy these easy to get-together, easy on the pocketbook beanburgers.

BEANBURGERS

½ lb. bulk pork sausage
½ lb. ground beef
1 can (5½-oz.) tomato paste
½ tsp. oregano
Salt and Pepper to taste
14 oz. can beans with pork
6 hamburger buns, halved
1 cup grated Mozzarella or Cheddar cheese

Brown ground pork and beef. Drain well. Add paste, seasonings and beans. Heat thorough. Spread mixture on buttered hamburger buns. Top with grated cheese. Broil for several minutes, until cheese melts. Makes 12 beanburgers.

Israeli Slides Shown

Slides of Israel highlighted the recent meeting of the Prendiamo Senior Citizens.

Mrs. Mark Marsale showed slides of a recent trip to Israel which included visiting spots like Jerusalem, Nazareth, Jaffa and the Jordan River.

Winners at card games were Lila Harvey, Ruby Marrcle, Mary Maracle, Leonard Bren Bert Brant, George Smart and John Green.

The door prize went to Norway Maracle with Jack Maracle winning a draw on a ring.

Thanks were given to Mary Maracle, Peter and Ann Morris and Glenn and Marilyn Maracle for their donations.

The Long Haul

It's a lengthy process when you're seven years old and anxious to get outside to play, but Patrick Bisdee, Belleville, with that look of determination, appears to be nearing the end of the ordeal. The absence of snowsuits is one reason Patrick may be looking forward to spring.

Euchre Winners

St. Francis of Assisi Church held their weekly euchre party with the following winners: Mrs. Archie Wickens, Mrs. Mary Regan, Charles Johnston and Mrs. Margaret Macauley.

The door prize was won by Mrs. M. Ferguson of Trenton.

Draw-string Waisted Jackets Most Popular Spring Fashion

NEW YORK (CP) — Mildred Sullivan, director of the New York Couture Business Council, says "Separates are well suited this spring."

"In fact, it's hard to have a suit category any more," she adds. "The jacket is the constant element in any separates formula, whether it's a cardigan to wear over everything, a short blouson baseball jacket, a shirt jacket or a smoking style. And the jacket with the draw-string waist sings one of spring's most popular themes."

All the designers of course have their favorite jackets. Anne Klein, for example, likes a drop-shoulder blouson with or without a sashwaistband and a shorter and more nipped blazer with two buttons. Victor Joris, too, favors the tight-to-the-figure blazer. His is a white piping version of those worn by the undergraduates in that perennial play, Charley's Aunt.

Most designers believe skirts have come back into their own again, both as suit skirts and as separates. In fact Oscar de la Renta, speaking about his "spring" collection, said: "The pick-up on skirts has been beautiful." However there's no particular style that dominates the spring scene. Most designers include the wrap and pleats from knife to box, as well as some pencil thins. Simplicity of skirts and tops is the keynote as in Suzy Perette's brown-and-white striped tunic blouse, belted in white patent, over a white pleated skirt.

But it may take more than the designers' enthusiasm about skirts to wean women away from pants they've come to like.

Especially in casual clothes. One fashion house that is concentrating on pant outfits and separates is Miss Sun Valley of Toronto. There isn't a dress in the spring line.

"We'll add dresses for summer," says president Morris Watkin, "but for spring I believe Canadian women want pants rather than skirts."

From his separates line he teams a long front-tucked mint-green shirt-jacket with green-and-white check pants and a flower-splashed shirt. Another put - together is in a cream linen blend, plain color pants with brown braid outlining the drop shoulders and the snug waistband.

Pants, too, come in many styles. They range from straight and narrow to baggy. Most are still cuffed. Popular fabrics include linen blends, chambray, gabardine and cord.

New and seemingly headed for popularity are jogger pants. They got a boost from Yves Saint-Laurent. In his Paris show they teamed with sweatshirts and also with blouses. They're also called warm-up pants. They're the long baggy trousers snugly cuffed around the ankles, worn by athletes before games and now getting a nod from the women. There's also a revival for late spring and summer of the Bermudas, those longer style shorts.

The tennis look crops up again, with its pleated skirt and V-neckline. It's a favorite with Pat Sandler who stays close to the traditional feeling but does edge the white tunic with red and blue. Kasper also likes the look for Jr. Sport. However, he's not quite as much a conformist. His sweaters are bordered in stripes of chrome yellow, black and white and team up with black-and-white pinstriped gabardine and black linen.

Naturally with separates, color schemes are important. Here, as in the street and late-day fashions, pale pastels and earth tones are popular. Pat Sandler, for example, combines pink windowpane checked pants with a beige blouson jacket, its waistband, cuffs and trim in the check.

Here are a few suggestions for put - together separates from Anne Klein: mingle fine gabardine with thin satin and silk damask in vague sweet-toned prints; combine blouson halter with pants, surplice jacket and bra with palazzo pants; and seam gingham checks with a miniature plaid.

Ann Landers
What Is a Grandmother? Reader Gives Definition

Dear Ann: What is a grandmother? I think I can tell you.

A grandmother is someone who will make a fuss over you when everyone else is making a fuss over your new baby brother.

Someone who will take you on her lap and love and kiss you until you can hardly breathe

Someone who brings you coloring books and asks you if she can hang up your best picture so her friends can see it

Someone to run to and be cuddled by after you've been spanked by your mother.

Someone who bakes neat cookies but she can't give anybody a recipe because she never measures anything

Someone who will tell you stories about the olden days and make you wish you were alive then. People had more time for each other and there was a lot less trouble in the world

Someone who looks very old but seems very young because her ideas are sharp and she is up on everything

Someone I'd like to be like in about 100 years because she's a swell lady.—A Reader

Dear Reader: I'm not printing your age or your city because I'd like every grannie to think it was written for her age. Wouldn't I asked my own darling granddaughter, Alex, age 10, if she wrote it. She replied, "No, Gram, but maybe I'll write something next year."

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a woman came to you for advice and your answer was diagonpointly weak. It seems her sister-in-law lost her husband suddenly. He was a wonderful person and a fine family man.

A few days after the funeral the widow discovered in her deceased husband's wallet a picture of an attractive young woman. It had been clipped from a newspaper and the name was cut off. The widow had no idea who the woman was or why her husband would be carrying the picture. She assumed the worst and was heartbroken. The sister-in-law wrote and asked for some sort of explanation that might console the shattered widow.

Your reply was, "A married man would have to be an idiot to carry a picture of his mistress in his wallet. From your description I don't think your brother-in-law was that kind of a fool."

I can add something. Ann, that might give her comfort. My grandfather had a habit of cutting pictures of strangers out of the paper and carrying them around because they, reminded him of people he knew many years ago. Your aunt used to look like this when she was a girl," he'd say, pulling the clipping out of his wallet. Andeared if he wasn't right. I've clipped pictures that reminded me of people from the past, and I wouldn't be a bit surprised if that woman's husband did the same thing.—Logical Louise

Dear Louise: Bravo for a logical explanation. I hope the widow sees it and feels better.

Confidential to I Need A Friend: Sorry, Buster I can't go to bat for a fella who brings a 15-year-old girl home at 3 in the morning and then uses profanity on her parents. Everything has a price and you'll have to pay for your foul judgment and big mouth.

Long Bridal Veil in Vogue— Trend Towards 'Natural Weddings'

By STASIA EVASUK

The long traditional veil that went out of style for brides 15 years ago is back in vogue again.

"More and more brides are now wearing the long veil," says Marnie Forkey, wedding consultant.

"We find attached bridal trains are just as popular as detachable ones.

"Big bridal bouquets have given way to tiny nosegays or daisies gathered in a basket. Large bouquets are out of proportion with the slimmer lines of the new bridal gowns."

Color is one of the big trends in spring bridal gowns. You'll see it in borders and trims.

Sometimes the shoes are tinted to match the color in the borders or trims.

"The spring bride is romantic in gowns made of chiffon, organza, silk, cotton, eyelet and voile," says the wedding consultant.

"Print gowns are popular for bridesmaids who want a dress they can wear after the wedding.

"Today's brides like natural things. They like a round wedding cake with daisies around it instead of the bride and groom on top.

"I wouldn't put a plastic bride and groom on top of a wedding cake if you paid me.

"A cluster of iced flowers is so much prettier. Something else is a tiny crystal or silver vase with real flowers like My-of-the-valley which is as traditional as stephanotis.

"Young brides today are so much more knowledgeable," she points out. "They're better educated than brides of 20 years ago and so well organized. Their wardrobes are coordinated and they have brochures on kitchen equipment.

"They know the type of life they're going to lead. The majority of girls getting married today are going to school or have a job and they don't have time for anything that is not easy-care in their wardrobe or kitchens.

"Brides are as traditional as their mothers. They didn't get this thought when they got their engagement ring. It has been with them ever since they saw their mothers wedding pictures.

"The kooky era in fashion never did take hold with brides. We never sold a pantsuit to a bride but I shudder when I look back at that kooky era.

"Another noticeable trend at weddings today is that people are dancing more," adds the expert. "For a while they didn't dance but in the last six years brides have been wanting music at their weddings.

"Young people like music and appreciate it. That old saying 'I dance at your wedding' holds true today."

Successful Living
Friends, Most Effective for Mental Health Problems

By DORIS CLARK

"The most effective means of therapy is a friend". This is the statement of a prominent sociologist.

He goes on to explain that the person who really cares can offer help in a way that is accepted more easily. There is nothing behind it but love.

Of course, the social worker the psychiatrist and the doctor care too. They wouldn't have chosen a helping profession if they had not been concerned with the welfare of people. — so concerned that they have studied year upon year at university and afterwards to understand the ways best to help.

Often the way the counsellor works is to help the client in trouble to find a friend — or to appreciate one he already has.

• • •

Dear Doris: My wife demands certain preliminary practices which I find distasteful and an affront to human dignity. She quotes a doctor who says that the term "pervert" is used only by moralists who want to censure action of which they disapprove.

A book we have, written by a priest, says that couples should not consider "greater degrees of intimacy" as sinful but warns against one partner forcing another. My wife agrees with the latter statement but evidently ignores the latter.

We disagree on other things, such as how to run our business. So I am now taking a course in a bid to change my career. This gives my wife additional work and she thinks I am pursuing a goal which is unattainable. — Asking For A Miracle.

Dear Asking: We come at the business of sex with such different backgrounds, don't we? And, so often, with such different needs too! The attitude that "anything goes", when applied to sexual relations, only means that anything goes when both partners definitely desire it.

Your sex disagreement spills over into arguments about another part of your life together. If you would both undertake to learn more about sex, its relation to emotions and body reactions, and that there is greater pleasure in giving rather than in demanding, it would help.

Then, isn't there something else you can do with your leisure time which will give you a common interest and challenge your minds? You need it.

Faces Reflect Your Health

Faces can tell a lot. Get lots of sleep and try some face pulling in the mirror.

Place your index fingers in the corners of your mouth. Now pull as far as your mouth permits. Relax. Repeat 10 times.

Wiggle your nose around as dramatically as possible glaring as many facial muscles as possible. Wiggle your nose 10 times in one direction, then 30 going the other way. Looks silly, but prevents tired lines.

Place fingertips at sides of eyes. Pull back gently but firmly. Hold for a count. Release. Repeat this 5 to 10 times.

to discover, in some way, that you are, after all, companionable and in love.

• • •

Dear Doris: We are both 36 years old. We got married five years ago; have two children. The trouble has got worse year by year.

We are both jealous, and our fights get bad; my husband says I nag him so much that he has to walk out. He has walked out about a dozen times, and like a soft kitten I let him back.

We talked these problems over with counsellors and head shrinkers, but we usually blow up with them. — Trouble Lady.

Dear Trouble Lady: Jealousy happens when a person feels so inferior that they cannot believe another could love them. How about beginning a build - each - other - up campaign? And instead of blowing up with counsellors, listen to what they have to say.

If you really want to change you have to resolve not to nag or be jealous, or hurt each other. Remember, you are hurting yourselves, your children and your future.

Raid on Lab May Give Boys Ills

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla. (AP) — Four young boys accused of ransacking eight laboratories specializing in cancer research learned Saturday there is no treatment against virulent disease-inducing organisms they may have handled.

Police said checks with health officials showed that the only thing the boys' parents could do was "to watch the kids closely for any signs of illness and fever."

The four-two sets of brothers aged between 10 and 13—were arrested Friday night and charged with breaking into Life Sciences laboratories Wednesday night. They were not identified.

A wide variety of disease-inducing organisms, including a cancer virus strain, are used by Life Sciences researchers in a program sponsored by the National Cancer Institute.

Dr. Vince Groupe, president of the company, said there was a possibility the youngsters came into contact with the virus strains when they broke in $20,000 damage to the laboratories.

"These youngsters could get awfully sick," Groupe said. He refused to say what type of diseases the children could contract.

Police said they arrested the youngsters when the boys tried to collect a cache of stolen property.

Revenues Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Increased federal revenues in the last four months have changed the economic picture "almost from black to white," Finance Minister Turner said Monday in defending his Feb. 19 budget.

"I find myself in a picture that is much clearer," Mr. Turner said of his decision to propose cuts in income and corporate taxes, customs duties and tariffs and to raise pensions, with the acknowledged risk of courting increased rates of inflation.

New Deal

DUBLIN (AP) — A new deal for women, including an end to the longstanding ban on contraception, was unveiled Sunday as part of Prime Minister Jack Lynch's election package.

The plan, the product of a government committee on the status of women, would ban sex discrimination and require equal pay for equal work over five years.

Insistence that women retire when they get married, still enforced by some Irish government departments, would be declared illegal.

Fumes Leak

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto mother of twin daughters says she will demand that officials in the Borough of North York set up safety measures to keep carbon monoxide fumes from seeping into apartments from underground garages.

Irene Stein, 36, said she and her nine-year-old daughters, Libby and Lisa, felt sick from the day they moved into a second-floor apartment in North York. Three months later, it was discovered carbon monoxide had been leaking into the apartment.

Bertrand Buried

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Jean-Jacques Bertrand, former premier of Quebec who died Thursday, was buried in the parish cemetery here after a simple Roman Catholic ceremony Sunday afternoon.

Not Opposed

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Henry Kissinger, foreign affairs adviser to President Nixon, said Sunday the United States is not opposed in principle to the unification of Vietnam, provided it occurs peacefully.

He made the statement in an NBC television interview taped in Washington last week and shown Sunday.

"We are not opposed to the unification of Vietnam in principle, if Vietnam is unified by peaceful means," Kissinger said.

"If the performance of one part or the other is so clearly superior to that of the other that it tends to achieve moral superiority over the other, that is not an American concern," he said.

Deficit Falls

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States trade deficit shrank in January to $303.8 million on a seasonally-adjusted basis—its lowest level in slightly more than a year, the commerce department reported Saturday.

Sell-out

TORONTO (CP) — Power in Canada is being sold out to Americans by Canadians who are "willing and paid servants" of the Americans, a Carleton University professor charged Saturday.

Prof. Robin Matthews told a seminar sponsored by the Federation of Women Teachers Associations of Ontario that a reason for U.S. dominance is that many non-Canadians in positions of power in Canada "actively continue discrimination against Canadians."

Cost Defended

TORONTO (CP) — Jack McNie Ontario colleges and universities minister, suggested Sunday that financial reasons are in many cases a poor excuse for not going to university.

Mr. McNie said higher tuition fees and lower grants this year were factors in lower enrolment figures, but added this does not necessarily mean university costs too much.

"People pay $80 to see a football game, but they don't want to pay $50 for higher education," he told about 35 members of the Association of Part-Time Undergraduates, a University of Toronto group seeking equal rights and privileges with full-time students.

Athens Riot

ATHENS (AP) — University students and police clashed in the streets of Athens Saturday, breaking off a truce while university officials negotiate student grievances with the government.

Wants Aid

AJAX, Ont. (CP) — Norman Cafik, Liberal member of Parliament for Ontario riding, says three area municipalities facing possible property damage this spring because of rising Lake Ontario waters should seek government aid.

Mr. Cafik said Saturday he will meet with the heads of Ajax, Whitby and Pickering Township this week and urge them to assess the cost of preventive action against floods and to apply to the province for corrective measures.

J-J BERTRAND

Denies Rumor

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand Sunday discounted rumors that expropriation of land for a new airport at Pickering, Ont., cost the federal government three times as much as land expropriated for an airport at Ste. Scholastique, Que.

"The land expropriated in Ontario cost a bit more than that at Ste. Scholastique, perhaps," the minister said on the CBC French-language public program Politique Atout.

"But I doubt that the government spent $300 million at Pickering and barely $125 million at Ste. Scholastique. That difference doesn't make any sense."

Ransom Paid

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — A Washington businessman has paid $200,000 in ransom for the release of his 16-year-old kidnapped son, police said Saturday. The youth, William Brody of Bethesda, Md., on the outskirts of Washington, was kidnapped by two men at gunpoint from his home Tuesday night and was found unharmed in a parking lot at midnight Friday night, they said.

Accept Pact

TORONTO (CP) — A slim majority of groundskeepers and tradesmen at York University voted to accept a one-year contract Sunday night which provides minimum pay increases of 16 per cent.

Smash!

TORONTO (CP) — One two-ton police cruiser flattened another here Sunday—with the result that both cars probably will be written off.

The cruisers were parked while policemen investigated a lobby apartment party when a speeding auto struck the rear of one cruiser, sending it at least six feet in the air above the other cruiser.

George MacInnis, 36, was taken to hospital with injuries and also charged with dangerous driving.

Policy Backed

OTTAWA (CP) — There is nation-wide party solidarity for the position of the NDP in Parliament, David Lewis said Sunday.

Mr. Lewis said there was no trace of dissension in party ranks and there was "unanimous accord for the position of caucus in Parliament."

Minister Dies

EDSON, Alta. (CP) — Len Werry, Alberta minister of telephones, was killed in an automobile accident Sunday when his eastbound car collided with a truck on Highway 16, nine miles west of the west-central Alberta town.

Anne Home

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth, arrived home Sunday after a two-week visit to Ethiopia and the Sudan.

Burns Fatal

TORONTO (CP) — The burned body of Mary Dovey, 46, was found Saturday in the bathtub of her apartment. Police believe she may have set fire to her clothing while smoking in bed and tried to douse the flames in the tub.

Viger Appeals

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Court of Appeal took under consideration Friday a request by lawyer Robert Lemieux to quash the eight-year sentence against Michel Viger as an accessory after the fact in the murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte in October, 1970.

Skip Gordon Brown (left) led his Ottawa rink of vice Mike Boyd, second Barry Provost and lead Jim Provost to the championship of the Men's Annual Bay of Quinte Bonspiel victory on the CFB Trenton sheets Sunday. The Ottawa rink eliminated the Quinte Curling Club rink skipped by Vaughan Storey to take the championship.

Lions Square Junior Playoffs With Two Weekend Wins

It's close to impossible to win hockey games if the players don't get the best places to rest from their exertions on the ice is the penalty box instead of the players' bench. If nothing else, the Belleville Bobcats should learn that lesson well as a result of both their weekend quarter - final playoff games against the Peterborough Lions.

The best of seven series against the Metro Junior "A" pennant winners starts Friday in Peterborough Tuesday, though now it's a best of three, as the Lions took two games from the 'Cats over the weekend to even the OHA playdowns at 2-2.

All the goals Sunday, with the exception of Lions' defenceman Gord McNevan's unassisted goal into an open net at the 19:25 mark of the final frame, were scored with either a 'Cat or a Lion cooling his heels in the penalty box. Sunday, the Lions picked up three power play goals to beat the Belleville club 4-2, while Saturday on the Lions' home ice, the Bobcats were felled by a 3-2 final score.

In the 3-2 loss Lions 15-year old center Rick Dees started the Peterborough club on the winning road with a first period goal while 'Cats' defenceman Dave Flesch occupied the penalty box. Top scoring centre Bob Wasson completed the first third scoring 10 minutes later to give the Lions a 2-0 lead going into the second period.

Despite a second period goal by Jim Richardson and a goal by Mark Coates, the Bobcats failed to win the third game of the series as Lions' Jack Scriver assured Peterborough of the victory at the 13:15 mark of the final frame.

In Sunday's game, both Richardson and Coates couldn't buy a goal as the goal from Lions' goalie Terry Wasson as the netminder came up with a game equal to the one played in Peterborough by Lions' goalie Saturday. Wasson wasn't just lucky, but played an outstanding game in the Lions' net, repeatedly stopping the two Belleville snipers from scoring goals from the slot.

Richardson's luck against Lions was so bad that if goals grew on trees, he would probably have a ladder that was too short. The right winger had everything against the Lions' goalie, even to the point of knocking him off his feet, though unintentionally, to put the puck into the net. On that particular second period play, Richardson took a pass centering from Rick Meagher, attempted to bang it by Wasson and in trying for his rebound bowled over the goalie. The puck sat in the crease and was cleared by a Lions' defenseman as Richardson could not recover in time to net it.

The winger, who has scored two goals in the series, hit the post in the first period and several other times in the game was frustrated by Wasson on shots from just outside the crease. "I don't know what it is," said the winger on the Meagher - Ken Holmes threesome, "maybe I choke on them, or get too excited."

The game wasn't lost, however, on missed scoring opportunities, but as a result of the time the Bobcats' spent in the penalty box. Power play goals by Lions' Paul Evans, Gord Duncan and Jake Ayotte in the second period came while Neil Turner, Dave Taylor and again Turner respectively, sat caged. Ayotte's tally came during Turner's tripping penalty received after the defenceman had high sticked Lions' winger Dave Clements in front of the Peterborough net and appeared to want to finish the job with a couple of punches to the winger's head.

Turner's two consecutive minors gave the Lions' a man advantage which defenceman Ayotte capitalized on after a Brian Cousins' clearing pass landed on his stick at the blue line. Ayotte fired the puck and beat 'Cats' goalie Bob Moore on his stick side for what proved to be the winning goal.

The game was going down to the wire, but that wire was getting tighter for the 'Cats when coach Moe Hunter pulled Moore with a minute and a half remaining in the game with the score in the Lions' favor at 3-2. Peter Smrke came on the ice to add to the Bobcats' strength after Robbie Foster with his first of the series had added to Mark Coates first period goal less than a minute earlier.

"more of the better players" as Hunter said after the game, the Bobcats could not pull the content out of the frying pan and into the oven-time period as it was Sam's for the lack of trying. The Lions' were forced into twice freezing and icing the puck on two other occasions as they came under the collective fire power of Coates, Richardson, who again missed connecting with the scoreboard while at the top of the crease, Meagher, Smrke, Cousins and defenceman Tim Yohn.

"We couldn't tuck a couple of those in the net," said Hunter, "but I know we can do it. The guys have to know we can do it. I'm happy with the way they're playing. After all, we've outplayed them every game, and this game we limited them to 21 shots. I think the goals that went in, shouldn't have gone in."

Dave Flesch and Joey Edwards, who both sat out Sunday's contest, will be reappearing against the Lions in Tuesday's game against the Lions' in Peterborough Kinsmen Arena as a result of coach Hunter's decision to play Wally Dalnard as a forward "likely with Coates and Ricketts", Cousins, however, will be out of the line-up for the 'Cats, but will return for Thursday's home game.

If the 'Cats' can best period ending sirens, as Coates failed to do in Peterborough when he beat Wasson on the first period buzzer, they'll be hoping for the tie-breaking win.

Barring incidents such as occurred in the final minutes of last night's game when eggs sailed onto the ice and into the Lions' bench and fights between fans as occurred at the Memorial Centre in Peterborough Saturday, the remainder of the series could go the entire seven games according to Lions' coach Don Wasson.

Wasson had a few parting shots to take before his club boarded the bus for a return trip to Peterborough last night. "I'd like to think that Belleville had grown out of that type of bush league approach to hockey. The cursing and swearing that went on behind our bench in Belleville (speaking about the second game of the series) from 16 and 17 - year - old kids was something else again."

Algonquin Can Do No Wrong

Algonquin College badminton players could do no wrong at the Ontario College Athletic Association's Eastern Regional Badminton Championships held at Loyalist College this weekend as they made a clean sweep of all the divisions of the competition.

The Ottawa College's limit of 10 players all placed in the top two in their respective categories and will see OCAA Championship action at Seneca College in Toronto March 5-6.

Of the six colleges which participated the first regional championship held at the Loyalist gym only Sir Sandford Fleming Lindsay did not field a full team of 10 members as the small college brought four shuttlecock batters to Belleville.

The tourney which saw Loyalist, Algonquin, Sir Sandford (Peterborough) as well as Lindsay) St. Lawrence (Cornwall) went for two days over the weekend, but it ended quicker than tourney convenor Bob Stinson has anticipated.

"There were some very strong teams while other teams were weaker," said Stinson, "with the result that one team would beat another and then there were no problems at all with the tourney. It was nice running our show, didn't have to worry about anything. The only trouble was that Algonquin took home all be silver.

"It's not a big deal for Algonquin to have a strong team," said Sherry Cornwall, coach of the Loyalist badminton team, "they have a very strong team. Ottawa is pretty strong in the racket sport and they have a large drawing population."

The Loyalist players did not place in the top two rungs of the OCAA ladder though the women's team trailed Algonquin in second place by only 11 points in the bad point system of scoring. Overall, the Lancer team tied with the Kingston badminton players in second place 16 points behind the front running Algonquin ten.

New Ski Equipment Installed at Batawa

Sky divers, snowmobiles, skating and distinguished guests featured the special sports day and ski meets on the slopes of Batawa Ski Club on Saturday when the activities were thrown to officially start the new mechanical installations on automatic tows and T-bars.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Bata returned from abroad for the event and were joined by government and civic leaders for the big event. Among those taking part were Jack Ellis MP for Hastings, Mr. Russell Rowe MPP Deputy Speaker of the House in the Ontario Legislature, Alderman Roger Porter of Belleville.

Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton and Reeve Gordon Wilman of Sidney Township and also representing Hastings County Col. Paisley, Base Commander of CFB Trenton. Each of these presented greetings.

Ribbon cutting honors were shared by Mr. Thomas Bata, Col. Paisley and John Cormack, president of Bata Ski Club. Speaking briefly Mr. Bata said "The community spirit displayed by club members in the establishment of these sports facilities is the kind of spirit that builds communities, cities and nations".

Perfect Game Eludes Mitts

TRENTON — Quinte area softball fans will remember Trenton's Bill Mitts from the days of the old Belleville and District Softball League. The speedy outfielder could and did wallop the ball with a great deal of authority.

Bill is in the news again. This time, a bowling score has put him in the limelight. He hit a 438 during Trenton Men's League play at Guay's Lanes this week, bowling with the second place Scaletta Haig-aps team.

Mitts reeled off 11 consecutive strikes before punching a three-pin and missing the perfect 450 by 12. He took his misfortune in stride, happy to settle for that sparkling 438.

The Batawa Ski Club begun some 10 years ago is a non-profit community effort that provides skiing and ski instruction to all age groups in the entire, Trent Valley area with a membership well beyond 300. The land and hill were made available without cost by Mr. Thomas Bata on the 1,500 acre Bata estate, the clearing of the runways and trails and the grooming of the slopes along with the installation of all equipment and the sliding of a fine ski chalet were achieved through the voluntary effort of the members. Hundreds of skiers have emerged from the instruction classes provided — many of championship calibre.

Art Duncan, retired Director of Public Relations at Batawa presided as master of ceremonies for all the events which were organized by the Club executive under the leadership of President John Cormack. Among the messages of good wishes was a cable from Prime Minister Trudeau read by the President. Fine weather favored one of the most successful functions in club history.

Part of the Ceremonies

Thomas J. Bata and Col. W. G. Paisley, Base Commander, CFB Trenton, share the ribbon cutting duties at Batawa Ski Club Sport Day Saturday.

Sports Editor

DOUG WALSH

The Intelligencer has a new sports editor.

Doug Walsh, a former sports editor and familiar face on Trenton's sporting scene, assumes his duties from Eric Emerson, who is leaving the area for home.

Mr. Walsh was employed by the Trentonian Tri-County News for some six years, during which time he acted as sports editor. At one time he was also a general news reporter for the newspaper.

Formerly active in softball and bowling, Doug has been a minor baseball coach for the past few seasons.

Barrie Bombs Quintes

BARRIE (Special) — The Barrie Flyers had a field day against the Quintes in Sunday's OHA Senior "A" hockey game, pummeling the second-place dwelling Belleville club in an 18-4 decision.

Barrie's long sided victory kept the Flyers tied for first place with the Kingston Aces who blasted the Kingston Aces by a 9-1 count. The Quintes' second victory by the Flyers broke their own "most-goals-scored" record, beating last year's mark set against Kingston Aces in a 17-goal game.

The loss by the Quintes drops them from second behind first place Owen Sound and any hope of making the last playoff slot. The Quintes need only hope that they can hold their own against the Flyers in their final two games of their season against the Barrie club.

Ken Knuston tallied twice for the losers while Bill Hibbits and Wayne McConnell each scored a single goal.

Bob Cunningham and Doug Acomb scored four goals and seven assists on five shots for the Flyers, while John McMillan, the third member of the hat-trick-tallied twice and earned five helpers.

Rangers in Comeback To Shade Minnesota

By RON SUDLOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago made a baseline foray Sunday night, he drew a penalty that nullified a goal by Jean Ratelle, which kept New York Rangers in their precarious second-place perch in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

The goal, by Ratelle on a pass by Jean Ratelle, gave the Rangers a 6-5 win over the Stars in a furious come-from-back.

The fracas started when Rangers goalie Ed Giacomin raced after Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy as play moved out of the Ranger end with New York on top 5-4.

"I knew exactly what I had in mind," said Giacomin. "I was going to hit him with my stick because that's what he did to me."

In the ensuing melee, Maniago noticed New York had a 6-5 manpower edge in the flatcuffs.

"I hesitated, but when I saw Goldy go down and two against one, I had to go," said Maniago.

Both Giacomin and Goldsworthy drew double minors and New York gained the edge when Maniago got a minor because, as the rule book says, he left the area of his crease during an altercation.

And Ratelle's goal proved to be decisive because J. P. Parise came back with his second goal of the game for the North Stars in the final minute.

The Flyers registered a three-goal spurt within 44 seconds in the first period to take control in Oakland and remain seven points ahead of Boston in the Western Division leaders.

Tom Bladon picked up two tallies and Bobby Clarke added his 30th of the season to lead the rout.

Detroit, Marcel Dionne, who got one goal and assisted on eight in New York, fired his 32nd and 34th of the season to lead the while Delvecchio picked 24 shots for his 15th NHL shutout.

Ed Perrault's 23rd tally of the season was the winner at Buffalo. Craig Ramsay was the other Sabre scorer and Nick Libett and Dennis Ververgaert, Pengulns.

Dennis Hull was the leader for the Hawks Sunday scoring the first and final Chicago goals to raise his season total to 30.

On Saturday, the Bruins bombed Johnny Bower from the goal of the game and another third-period marker by Don Marcotte to trip the Kings as Boston notched its ninth win in 10 starts under Coach Bep Guidolin and their fifth on a six-game road trip.

Guidolin was so elated, he called a midday workout for the day.

"We've got to keep working," he said when the club returned to Boston. "Everyone wants to beat the Bruins and we've got to be ready to play every game."

Montreal Canadiens, who have a seven-point bulge in the Eastern Division penthouse, opened up a 4-0 lead over the Canucks who they have beaten 15 times and tied twice since Vancouver entered the NHL three years ago.

Guy Lafleur led the winners with two goals and could have had three more except for outstanding Vancouver goalie Dave Dryden.

Young Fezler Heartbroken Trevino Wins

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino had a word of warning for Forrest Fezler, the heart-broken young man whose collapse let Trevino take the fifth and last $52,500 first prize in the Jackie Gleason golf tournament Sunday.

"He'll be nervous again," a sober and subdued Trevino said.

"I know, I've been there a lot more times than he has.

"There was a tremendous amount of pressure on him but there was a lot of pressure on me, too."

Trevino, the current British Open champion but a non-winner since last September, benefitted from Fezler's shakey putting on the last two holes Sunday and won the tournament while in the clubhouse.

LONG CHASE FOR LEE

Trevino, who had broken 70 only once in the first seven weeks of the season, chased the front-running Fezler for 54 holes before finally catching his 14th American tour triumph with a par 72 final round on the 7,125-yard Inverrary Golf Club course.

He had a 279 total, nine under par and one in front of Fezler, a 32-year-old former sophomore who was seeking his first victory. Fezler, the leader through the first three rounds, blew to a fat 76 in the last round.

Bob Murphy was third with a 71-281—but only Trevino really challenged Fezler. Australian Bruce Devlin was fourth with a 70-year-old marvel from Japan, Chen Ho Lu, followed at 283. Devlin had a 72 and Snead 71.

Jack Nicklaus, the man most people expected to win this event that offered $200,000 in total prize money, finished with a 71—283. Arnold Palmer, a winner in his last previous start, finished with a 73 and was far back in the field at 288.

Fezler started the last round with a three-stroke lead over Trevino and after the front nine still led by two.

The margin held until they reached 336-yard, par five 18th.

Trevino made it a birdie, but Fezler, playing well behind Trevino, hit a three-wood second shot to the left, dumped his chip in the trap, came out short and missed the long putt. It was a bogey that tied B.

On the 17th, Fezler left a 20-foot putt about four feet short and missed that one for another bogey.

"I wasn't thinking of the money," Fezler said. "I had $29,640 cheques for second place was more than enough for me to start Tuesday, by the Ottawa District Hockey Association following a telephone vote ordered by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Last Tuesday, the Braves defeated the Bears 5-3 in Smiths Falls with three of their goals scored by Smiths Falls players. Some fans and league executive called for their suspension.

On Saturday the league assessed each team $1,000 fines for their conduct and indefinitely suspended Smiths Falls coach Harold Rockburn, assistant coach Ken Valiquette and Brockville assistant coach Orie Young. With that, CJHL president Norm Saunders said Sunday in a telephone interview from his Brockville home the league governors and ODHA president Bill Billabough of Morrisburg left his fate in responsibly handled the situation for all concerned, especially the players and the league.

But the CAHA had other ideas. Billabough, in another Sunday, received telephone calls from Roland Mercier, CAHA vice-president for junior hockey, and CAHA president Joe Kryszca ordering the telephone vote and suspension of the two teams.

Saunders, despite being overruled, maintained Sunday that the CJHL action was the only responsible one under the circumstances.

He and the 17 league governors at the Saturday meeting had been the only people ever to see the official report of the game, he said.

Saunders said "some segments of the media" were applying pressure for the suspensions and he hinted at mitigating information in the report, without giving any details.

Peewee Tournament
American Players Show Our Kids How

QUEBEC (CP) — The American boys showed their Canadian counterparts what hockey is all about Sunday at the Quebec International Peewee Hockey Tournament.

The New York City Stars and the Boston Jeremys overpowered their opponents with finesse, giving a superb display of skating and passing which befuddled their competition.

The Stars led off with a 4-3 Class AA victory over Toronto Willowdale and Boston then followed with a 4-1 triumph over Montreal Rosemont.

In other Class AA action Sunday it was Toronto Cedar Hill 5-3 over Toronto Clarkson, Montreal Elite 3-1 over Toronto Fasstina, Toronto Dorset Park 3-1 over Montreal Immaculate Conception, Ottawa Voyageurs 4-3 over Toronto West End in overtime, and St. Jean de Matha of Montreal 7-1 over Geneva, Switzerland.

In Class A play, Kingston, Ont., downed Gloucester, Ont., 3-1. Barrie, Ont., clobbered Hull, Que., 7-1 and Etobicoke, Ont., clipped LaSalle, Que., 3-1.

There were no Class B games scheduled and in the only Class C encounter, Waterloo, Que., defeated Granville, Que., 2-1.

A strong skating effort and several balanced powered the American wins. New York received goals from Don Steven-son, Gil Dorrens, Tony Pacheco and Kevin Behan and they trailed by Jamie Blakeney. Ken Burden, Ken Hitchcock and Ken Woolsten were the Willowdale marksmen.

Boston dominated Rosemont from the 4-1 score showed and if it was not for stellar netminder by Yvan Charbonneau of Montreal, the score would have been much higher.

The Boston skaters rattled eight shots off goalposts, had six breakaways and on one occasion, the Rosemont netminder found himself alone in front of four American players.

Mark Meagher, Don Crowley, Dave Burke and Gerald Sullivan was scored for the winners who rounded a 30-shot attack while Michel Cenier replied for the losers.

In other games, Robert Prosper's goal at 9:55 of the first overtime period eliminated Toronto West End and carried Ottawa Voyageurs into the next round.

Jean Faille's four-goal performance paced St. Jean de Matha to its easy win over a game, but severely outclassed Swiss entry.

Toronto Fasstina and Dorset Park Brums, two of the strongest entrants from the Metropolitain Toronto Hockey League, both were involved in exciting 2-1 contests but only the Brums advanced.

Dorset Park, last year's grand champions, held on tenaciously to a one-goal lead despite having two men in the penalty box for the final 2:35 of their game against Immaculate Conception. During the final period when the Montreal team gallied its goalie in favor of an extra attacker, Dorset Park had a disadvantage of three skaters.

Fasstina, unbeaten this year with 35 wins and five ties in 40 MTHL games, saw Normand Levesque and Jean-Pierre Viens give Elite a 2-0 second-period lead and could not catch up despite a goal by Gordon Christie.

One hundred teams are entered in this year's tournament, the 14th annual, which ends Saturday afternoon.

There are 30 Class AA clubs, 34 in Class A, 21 Class B clubs and 23 in Class C. Population dictates the section a team will play in.

Backstrom Goes to Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago red for 13 years with Montreal Black Hawks acquired veteran centre Ralph Backstrom from Los Angeles Kings in exchange for left wing Dan Maloney in a National Hockey League trade Sunday night.

Backstrom, 35, had 20 goals and 28 assists for the Kings in the 16th NHL season. He star-before being traded to the Kings in 1970. He has a career total of 272 goals.

Maloney, 22, had 13 goals and 19 assists for the Black Hawks.

"We have been looking for a centre all year," said Tommy Ivan, general manager of the Black Hawks, "and our situation has become desperate."

Toronto Blues Go Undefeated

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Laurentian University goaltender Dave Tartaryn says it's much better to play for University than against them.

Tartaryn faced 55 Toronto shots Sunday while the Blues were completing their first unbeaten season since 1954-55 with a 9-4 win over the Voyageurs in an Ontario Universities Athletic Association hockey game.

"They haven't had any of their scoring eyes," Tartaryn, who played for Toronto last year, said in his interview after the game.

"It was better playing behind them than having to face them."

Biltmores Get Rest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores, as befits a first-place finisher, had an extra day's rest Monday as Ontario Junior Hockey League players open an important Tuesday.

While the first Saves were enjoying a rest Monday, other teams went through the motions in completing the pre-Tuesday schedule, because playoff positions were pre-determined.

Second-place Chatham Maroons had a bye, as did third-place Eastern Falls Flyers 9-1, third-place Windsor spitfires pushing fourth-place Kitchener Rangers 9-2 and sixth-place Detroit Red Wings defeated fifth-place Hamilton Fincups 5-2.

While Guelph kicks off series against the Red Wings in Detroit, the Spitfires will open series C in Niagara Falls.

Series B, featuring Welland Pic Beavers and Hull Wednesday night in Chatham.

First team in playoffs to collect eight points will advance.

The Maroons broke a three-game losing streak at home in a Monday with Ken Lefebvre scoring three goals. Line-mate Dave Keating got two and Ken Gobbo, Vern Stenhouse, Mike Cosentino and Rick Zimmerman added one each. Mark Dumouchel scored for Niagara Falls.

Bruce Dubrick was a two-goal scorer for Detroit against visiting Welland Bill Fraser, Gord Buyniak and Dave Fulton each got one Jim McCabe scored for the Sabres to ruin Dennis DeGarvey's bid for a shutout.

At Weston, Ont., Bill Tabb counted three goals for the Spitfires. Wayne Cowley got two twice and Ted Bulley, John Anderson and John Riley got one apiece.

The Kingston goals were supplied by Jack Smith and Jamie Hodge.

"Three years a commuter is fine, but tomorrow I have to work early here!"

Decision Expected On Central Playoffs

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision was expected today on the Central Junior Hockey League playoffs following the suspension Sunday of Smiths Falls Bears and Brockville Braves.

The third-place Braves and fourth-place Bears were suspended from the league for the rest of the season Sunday by the Ottawa District Hockey Association following a telephone vote ordered by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Last Tuesday, the Braves defeated the Bears 5-3 in Smiths Falls with three of their goals scored by Smiths Falls players. Some fans and league executive called for their suspension.

On Saturday the league as-

Women Curlers Open Play Today

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Ask Lee Tobin what rinks ranks as the toughest competition for the Macdonald's lassie trophy which goes to the Canadian women's curling championship and she promptly admits the power is in the West.

Mrs. Robin, the talented Montreal ally representing Quebec for the third time, is rated a definite threat to beat Tobin and Vera Peser's Saskatoon four, going after its third consecutive Canadian title and Saskatchewan's fifth successive crown.

And while most of the Peser rink has been together since 1966, Mrs. Tighe had only to change different front with her on each occasion, according to records to 1970 and 1972.

"I look for girls on my team that can be competitive," said Mrs. Tobin. "That's my attitude in Quebec mostly in just move so fast that there is talked to be real cool and work at it, where as we threw rocks at the first time time a week just on our own and then we have our games between sides that."

The Quebec rink has played only two competitive games this year, 14 in the playoffs and the 11 provincial championships through Ontario.

The women, including third Francine Gallant, second Marilyn Rose and lead Michele Gerbasi, practice on a Sunday night league in Montreal, but all are Shops.

Rose, the outside chance to upset the Western Canada mixture of the national title, said the West has captured the crown 12 of the last 13 years. She said it begins the game in today's opening round against Karin Dacre of Saskatchewan.

In other first round matchups,

Punch Imlach Denies Charges

TORONTO (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach denied charges of Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League, in which he was fined $1,000, that he made his players perform when they were injured as they coached Toronto Maple Leafs.

The accusation was made in his recently-released book The Game of Life. Wild in which he collaborated with freelance writer John Iaccino.

"It was just the opposite to what he says," said Imlach Sunday night television show, boasted from a Buffalo-area station that covers parts of Ontario and New York state area. "We have fined players who didn't report injured and that's the policy of the Leafs when he coached there and that's the policy of the Sabres when he coached there and that is a player who is injured has to be checked by the doctor and doesn't play until he gets their okay."

He said it was not unusual to see players who had been injured join the bench and that some players needed doubling but no exercises was required.

Imlach said playoffs were different than regular season games in that most players, including the injured, wanted to play.

Goalies' Nightmare

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltenders in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League have been in for some short Sunday night. Sixty-three goals were scored in the league's four games played.

In the evening's biggest upset, Cornwall Royals blasted first-place Quebec Remparts 12-2. In other games, Montreal Bleu, White and Blue dumped Drummondville Rangers 10-2, Sherbrooke Castors clipped Trois-Rivieres Ducs 11-7 and Shawinigan Cataractes edged Sherbrooke Beavers 7-6.

The Royals, holding down second place in the division behind Quebec, were led by Gary McGregor and Jim Roberts with three goals each. John Davidson with two. Mike Rouleau, Kevin Devereaux, Doug Chase, Bob Crawford and John Wesenick were Cornwall's other marksmen.

Alain Lemieux's third-period goal gave Shawinigan its victory over Sherbrooke. John Davidson with two, Guy Dubuc, Jean Gagnon, Claude Jacques and Jean Brunet were Shawinigan's other scorers.

Mario Desjardins, Dwayne Rivers, Francois Berlon, Wayne Hicks and Jean-Guy Pierre Lagueux responded for Sherbrooke.

In league action tonight, Sorel visits Laval Nationals.

Vietnamese Arrest Canadian Cameraman

SAIGON (CP) — A Canadian Press photographer was detained by South Vietnamese military police Sunday when he attempted to photograph Canadian soldiers in chapel at the tight-security Tan Son Nhut air base.

Peter Bregg of Ottawa was detained for about 30 minutes and his film and press credentials were confiscated.

A Canadian officer stationed at the base got Bregg released into his custody. The press credentials were returned by Vietnamese military police kept the film.

Truck Line Suing Workers for $100,000

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Freight Lines Ltd. has filed an injunction seeking $100,000 damages against seven employees who set up an information picket line outside the company depot Friday.

The application is to be heard by the Supreme Court of Ontario in Toronto Wednesday. The company also has applied to the Ontario Labor Relations Board asking permission to take action against two employees who refused to cross the picket line Friday.

It asks that the refusal be considered an illegal strike and that the two men be required to pay $1,000 each for each day they do not report for work.

Nine of 10 Polls Faulty

TORONTO (CP) — Public opinion polls, if they are reliably taken by experts, usually are accurate and the media should be making more use of them, two experts in the field said Saturday.

However, about nine-tenths of the so-called polls "are unreliable and you ought not to pay any attention to them," Dr. John Wilson, political science professor at the University of Waterloo, told a science writers' meeting.

Most of those polls, where people are invited to fill out and mail a questionnaire are not scientific, he said.

Northern Electric Playoffs Underway

Yankees' Davey Jones helped it redeeming his team's fourth place finish in Northern Electric Hockey League regular season action by scoring three goals in the Yank's 5-3 playoff victory over second-place finishers Falcons.

Teammate Bob Doyle added two goals to the final while Bob Brownlee assisted on four of the five goals. Ralph Bailey, Bruce Pascoe and Terry Casselman tallied for the Falcons.

In the other Northern Electric contest, the pennant winning BearCats led by Ed Exley with his two goals defeated the Rebels by a similar 5-3 final scoreboard markup.

Rick Rosebush, Jim Haggerty and Ron McFarlane tallied singles while Tom Pierce, Doug McCrory and Ron Noakes scored a goal apiece for the Rebels. Goalie Doug Baling earned an assist during the first playoff game victory.

Bantam Minors Come Up Flat

The McInroy-Maines bantam minors "came up flat" against the Kingston Kiwanis-Rotary in their best of five first round OMHA "AAA" playoff game according to team manager Jack McBride.

Bobby Crawford, however, didn't have a flat bone in his body as he proceeded to beat the Kingston goalie for five goals in their third game of the series. Eric Howe connected with another goal in the Belleville bantams' 11-4 loss at the hands of the Rotarians.

The Belleville club will travel back to Kingston Tuesday night at the Wally Elmer Arena in an effort to even up the 3-1 lead the Rotarians presently hold over the McInroy - Maines bantams.

Rollins Sidelined

Gary Frederick potted two goals for the Rollins Construction peewee majors Saturday in their game against Oshawa Sports Villa, but the goals be added to singles by Daffey Duffy and Nelson Frederick just weren't enough to win the OMHA "AAA" contest.

The Oshawa team charged out from under their 4-2 goal deficit after the opening face-off of the third period to net nine goals and win the best-of-five second round OMHA playdowns three games straight.

The final 11-4 score ended the series for the Belleville club as they could not withstand the barrages of goals from Oshawa's Jim Byrne, Jim Jackson, and Devin Preston with two goals apiece. Mike Ferenc tallied three while Brian Napkins and Robbie Drwicki scored a goal each.

Dixie Lee On Move

Mark Crawford led the Dixie Lee Fried Chicken peewee minors to their third win in the best of five OMHA "AAA" playdowns against Kingston Church Athletic with three goals, one in the second and the other in the third period.

The Dixiemen who outshot the Kingston peewees in the first round of OMHA competition 40-30 also got single goals from Brad Miller, Shawn Mahoney and Greg Sproul, while Minny Allen provided their opponents with their single goal.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto stock market were fractionally higher in moderately mild trading today's session despite sharp losses among gold issues. The gold index plunged 8.94 to 228.85.

The industrial index, considered a major indicator of market trends, was up .82 to 192.1 and base metals .04 to 103.02. Western oils slipped .22 to 227.44.

Analysts attributed the sharp decline of gold issues to a decrease in the record price of gold bullion on the London market.

Among sectors of the market showing gains were communication, oil refining, utility and investment stocks while bank, beverage, general manufacturing and real estate issues were off.

Declines held a slight lead over advances, 121 to 117, while 193 issues were unchanged.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, Feb. 27

Aries (March 21 to April 19): Initiative comes naturally to you, now; it's your responsibility to contain your aggressiveness within reasonable bounds.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Those eligible attract dramatically romantic moments; starting points. Established unions are tested, reinforced.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Sometimes the best defense is no comment at all. Great care is indicated for things mechanical and chemical—leave them alone.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Be firm and persistent in claiming what is yours or what you have earned. Trying to please associates needn't include compromise.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Focus on there is no simple approach beyond patient unravelling of the complexities besetting you. Change pace for later hours.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personal favors can be had for the asking—think of the unspoken obligation you assume in asking, and be reasonable.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Improvement of working conditions should come almost routinely. Put in your proposal, see if you can pry loose whatever sticks.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Social activities serve for an advantage in overt competition. Being serious if you are merely marking time is taboo.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make sure you have the necessary materials for settling any policy question. Help from benevolent powers are on the rise.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If it's important, try to see to it yourself. Around you all day is a great show of ritual, pomp and circumstance.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Collective resources are of special interest, whether small life insurance savings account or funds dedicated to the public.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): This is no time to rest on supposed laurels. If you've done something worthy of mention, personal favors can be had for the asking—but keep producing.

Variety of Tests Prove Pregnancy

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What tests are taken by the doctor to determine whether you are pregnant?—J.C.M.

Special tests are not always necessary. The age-old guides are sufficient in most cases. That is, skipping one or two menstrual periods is indication enough in women who are normally regular. After that, changes in the pelvic structures and breasts are confirmation.

Nausea, for one reason or another, urgency to make an earlier detection of urine, that can be done in several ways.

A specific hormone, human chorionic gonadotropin, known as HCG, appears in the urine about a week after the first missed period if pregnancy exists.

This fact can be used in laboratory tests. The "rabbit test" or its modification is the most widely involving injection of urine that may contain this hormone, brings about definite and significant changes. This test requires five to six days to complete.

A somewhat similar "mouse" test will cause changes in the ovary of the mouse in four to 48 hours after injection of the urine.

More recently an agglutination test has been developed, a form of blood test, which takes only a few minutes of laboratory work to give the answer. A similar test is also done on the urine.

These various tests are about 98 per cent accurate, but it must be kept in mind that they will give a negative (false) result if done too early in pregnancy. After four to six weeks, they reach maximum reliability.

Another cause of false negatives can result if the sample of urine is too dilute. Therefore the urine should be the first that is voided in the morning after having stored only a minimum quantity of fluids the previous evening.

False positives can result occasionally. This can occur early in the menopause, or while the patient is taking certain tranquilizing medications. However, since physicians are aware of these possibilities, there is not too much chance of having them misled anyone.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4♥	Pass	5♥	Pass
6♥	Pass	Pass	Dble

Opening lead—ace of spades.

This deal occurred in the 1932 national pair championship. The hand itself was not extraordinary, but the atmosphere in which it was played lends considerable space to the story.

East-West had already played half the afternoon session when they encountered this deal. During that time they had accomplished the unenviable feat of losing no fewer than seven match points on the play (scoring no defeats).

They were naturally very discouraged by the time they came to play this hand. North-South got to sit hearts in jig style, mostly due to North's optimistic five heart bid. (It was back in the days before Blackwood came into vogue.)

Trying desperately to recover some points for his side, East doubled. His hand looked simply colossal.

West, on lead, promptly plunked down an ace of spades, announcing jubilantly: "Well, that's one ace we won't lose."

West was mistaken. South trumped the ace and proceeded to make the slam. He led a heart to the eight, discarded a club on the king of spades, then led the king of clubs and ruffed East's ace.

Wrangling is his task, declarer crossed to dummy with another trump, cashed all five of dummy's remaining clubs — which luckily divided 3-3 — and discarded all five of his diamonds on them. As a result, he wound up making the doubled contract with an overtrick!

Of course, had West led any suit but a spade, South would have gone down one and would have won what would not have achieved immortality.

As it was, though, East-West, who had started the deal having had seven of their aces put to sleep, finished the hand with all three aces on to add to their collection.

Tomorrow: Defense.

Glue-sniffing Blamed

Boy Found Dead With Head in Bag

By BRIAN AMARON, Staff Reporter

A 13-year-old Belleville boy died in his home Monday, the apparent victim of glue-sniffing.

David John Brewster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Brewster, was pronounced dead on arrival at Belleville General Hospital by coroner Dr. William Bates.

An autopsy was conducted this morning but the official cause of death will not be known for a month. Dr. Bates has called an inquest.

David, a student at Harry J. Clarke Public School, was discovered by his mother at about 5:30 p.m. in the bathroom of the family's 72 Herchimer Ave. home.

Over his head was a large plastic bag with a tube of contact cement inside.

The door had been locked and members of the family had to force it to gain entrance.

Mrs. Brewster immediately called an ambulance but the boy was declared dead on arrival at hospital.

Subsequent investigation by city police revealed David had been inhaling glue with several other juveniles in different locations. None of the other boys required treatment.

Dr. Bates said this morning that David probably collapsed unconscious before succumbing to the glue vapors. Fumes filling the bag displaced the oxygen, asphyxiating the boy.

Dr. Bates said the glue, which he described as poison, produces effects of sedation and delirium in its initial stages.

Both he and Police Chief Crosbie said the death was the first ever attributable to glue-sniffing in Belleville. Other persons have been treated for inhaling but have always recovered.

David was the youngest of five children. Besides his parents, he is survived by brothers Bob and Ron and sisters Susan and Terry.

Jets Attack Guerrillas

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Rhodesian Air Force jets made a weekend rocket attack on suspected guerrilla bases in the northern Centenary area, which borders Portuguese Mozambique, usually reliable sources said today. These would be the first air attacks in a district which has been a focal point of increased guerrilla movements since a white farmstead was raided there before Christmas.

Oil Exports Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board has rejected applications to export 47,598 barrels of oil a day to the United States next month, board chairman R. D. Howland said today.

DUESSELDORF (AP) — The young West German driver of an armored car was on the loose today with $1.14 million worth of stolen letters saying the theft was in revenge for being fired. Police found the letters in the home of Guenter Heinemann, 29, after his disappearance Monday. Heinemann's employer gave him notice Feb. 1 that he would be dismissed March 31, three years after he started with the company.

Canadians Returning

SAIGON (Reuter) — A team of Canadian Red Cross officials which has spent the last three weeks waiting in a Saigon hotel for clearance to inspect prisoner-of-war camps is leaving for home Saturday. Their imminent departure, announced today by the Canadian Red Cross national commissioner, Maj-Gen. Arthur Vrsich, is the first firm move by Canada following repeated threats to withdraw from Vietnam if the ceasefire is not observed.

Role for Big Firms

TORONTO (CP) — An external affairs department official said Monday that Ottawa sees multi-national corporations "are as rich and powerful as nations" they should perhaps be invited to take part in meetings sponsored by the United Nations. J. Alan Beesley, director-general of the department's bureau of legal affairs, said he could see no objection to huge industrial empires participating as observers at meetings called to deal with such global issues as environmental protection, the law of the sea and petroleum exploration.

Commons Seats May Be Boosted

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the Privy Council said today that "informal discussions" now are taking place among all House leaders about the possibility of increasing the number of seats in the Commons.

"The discussions among House leaders are taking place largely because of dissatisfaction among House members of proposed redistribution plans—especially in the rural and smaller areas.

"But there has been no formal proposals."

The spokesman said that the Maritime provinces and some western provinces are worried they will lose seats with the new redistribution proposals.

Plans for redistribution of the federal ridings began after the 1971 population census and is designed to take into account population shifts and changes.

No province may have fewer MPs than senators and when that factor is determined, the number of ridings in each province is calculated—taking into account population distribution—in a formula outlined by the British North America Act.

The spokesman said that if the discussions did reach the proposal stages, Ontario, Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia would probably gain seats.

He also said that it is not likely that any province would lose seats.

Jeanne Sauve Joshes Turner

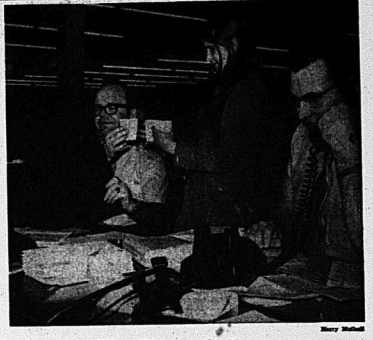
OTTAWA (CP) — Science Minister Jeanne Sauve wondered aloud in the Commons Monday whether the increasing popularity of cosmetics for men might have prompted Finance Minister John Turner to ease taxes on a variety of toiletries.

The suggestion, made during the budget debate, brought a chorus of laughter from both government and opposition benches.

Mr. Turner, one of the bestgroomed MPs in the Commons, was in his seat at the time. He took the ribbing good-naturedly.

Aviation Body Asked To Punish Israel

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Egypt and Libya asked the International Civil Aviation Organization today to punish Israel for shooting down the Libyan airliner that strayed across the Sues canal last week.



Quick agreement to discuss the airline disaster was expected after the 115-nation aviation organization began a four-day meeting today in the UN General Assembly chamber.

Egypt said it was asking for "appropriate measures in the light of Israel's crime against humanity." Israeli officials said they would discuss technical and factual aspects of the case, but they opposed treating it as a political matter.

The aviation congress was expected to order at least one of the organization's technical bodies to investigate the crash, which resulted in the death of 108 persons.

Meanwhile, a spokesman in London for the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations said his group has rejected proposals for a boycott or strike against Israel.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram reported that Egypt and Libya may bring the incident before the UN Security Council.

Accord Said Broken

North Vietnam Suspends Exchange of Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam announced today it is suspending the release of U.S. prisoners of war until the United States and South Vietnam honor all parts of the ceasefire agreement.

The U.S. responded by calling on North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to go ahead immediately with the release.

Bui Tin, the spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation in Saigon, indicated that Communists particularly want the release of civilian prisoners held by the South Vietnamese and an end to harassment of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong members of the Joint Military Commission (JMC).

A four-page statement from the U.S. JMC delegation called on North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government "to implement the obligations they have accepted in the Paris agreement, and protocols and to take immediate action to fulfill their commitment to release U.S. POWs in accordance with the withdrawal rate of U.S. and allied forces."

Tin also disclosed that the North Vietnamese delegation's deputy chief, Col. Le Van Loi, has been summoned to Hanoi "for new instructions." He described the situation as "alarming and extremely serious."

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have released 163 U.S. prisoners, but 422 others are still captives in North and South Vietnam and Laos. The United States had expected the half-way point between the ceasefire Jan. 28 and the March 28 deadline for release of all U.S. POWs and withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam.

Shortly after Tin's statement, Radio Hanoi broadcast an "official government communication" detailing North Vietnam's demands. These included:

—A halt in the "blatant and disgusting actions and maneuvers designed to create difficulties for and to prevent the deployment and operations of the North Vietnamese delegation" on the Joint Military Commission. "North Vietnam charged the South Vietnamese had cut off water, electricity, communications, food and provisions to the North Vietnamese delegates and were preventing them from carrying out their assigned duties on the JMC.

—An end to all attacks against North Vietnamese delegates. There have been 15 to 20 demonstrations, all apparently sanctioned by the Saigon government, against the North Vietnamese delegates at various points across South Vietnam during the last month. Three of them have resulted in injuries to North Vietnamese.

—The release of Vietnamese political prisoners.

—An end to all ceasefire violations. North Vietnam said there have been "tens of thousands" of violations by South Vietnamese units, many of them aimed at regaining control of territory under Communist control.

—A U.S. speedup in deactivating and removing mines from the rivers and coastal waters of North Vietnam.

—An end to U.S. bombing of Communist-held areas in Laos and Cambodia.

Canadian Proposal Out Says Hanoi

PARIS (CP) — North Vietnam spokesmen said Monday today there is no room for compromise on his government's rejection of Canada's idea for international involvement of the United Nations secretary-general in any future Vietnamese peace machinery.

The Canadians urged that the conference should serve as the continuing political authority to which the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) in Vietnam should report and which should take action on any violations of the peace.

Le expressed respect for Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim as a world personality.

But he insisted in an interview that Hanoi can make no compromise on its long-standing opposition to any involvement on the UN in the Vietnam situation.

The Canadians had wanted Waldheim to be the agent for investigation of "grave" violence on certain ceasefires and also for changes in the mandate of the ICCS—if which Canada is a member—in the continuing political authority.

The Hanoi spokesman expressed optimism about the outcome of the current conference even though he voiced charges against Saigon and the United States, which he blamed for causing the present "extremely dangerous" situation in South Vietnam.

North Vietnam backed by the Soviet Union complained at the conference today over continued violations of the ceasefire agreement.

Canada made its bid for an effective and continuing authority to which the ICCS can report when the conference opened Monday and there was no sign of strong East-West differences over the issue then.

State Secretary William Rogers of the United States expressed confidence with the Canadian position and urged the creation of a "simple mechanism" under which the ICCS—made up of Canada, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland—could report ceasefire violations.

While Canada stood firm in its position, some Western ministers stressed their readiness for compromise. They said the ministers may agree to enforce measures of investigation and pledge their governments to its strict observance.

Children of Hate on Rampage

BELFAST (AP) — Northern Ireland's "children of hate," brought up on sectarian strife, shot it out with British troops Monday, bombed a Belfast garage and staged a string of daylight hold-ups.

The army said the youngest children in action were two boys—aged about nine and 11—who played hookey from school to ambush an army patrol with a 22-calibre rifle.

They fired a couple of shots from behind bushes and fled, but soldiers chased after them, but the boys escaped.

Another youngster, about 15, wounded a soldier.

Two boys believed to be about 15 years old, held up a garage in downtown Belfast and planted a five-pound gelignite bomb in an auto, doused it with gasoline and lit it. They fled and moments later the bomb exploded, wrecking the garage.

But police said the most daring raid by teen-age terrorists Monday was a string of four holdups by five youngsters—one of them believed to be only 13.

He and his older partner robbed four post offices in Lurgan, southwest of Belfast, and got away with more than $1,000.

Children on both sides—Catholic and Protestant—are often shock troops for their elders in the Irish Republican Army and its Protestant extremist rivals.

The youngsters are usually sent in first to throw stones and draw them into the open where the gunmen can ambush them. Many children have been killed and wounded in clashes.

Bells Ringing At Tax Office

Bells were ringing in the Revenue Department's Belleville district tax office yesterday.

They'll be ringing again tonight — in fact two nights a week for the next two months as an information team answers telephone callers with tax-filing problems.

The extended inquiry service opened across Canada yesterday.

Both local and long-distance toll - free telephone service hours have been extended at the Belleville office from 8:45 p.m. to 9 p.m. every Monday and Tuesday until April 30, the deadline for filing income tax returns. A 10-member operating staff, including information officers, began taking calls last night from an area that reaches from Napanee to Bowmanville and north to Peterborough, as the rest of the district office staff filed out for the day.

The extension is for the benefit of people unable to use inquiry services during daytime when they're at work, National Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury said. Past years have shown most inquiries are received early in the week from people who began filing out returns during the weekend.

Numbers to call in Belleville are 962-6611 or — for long-distance — Zenith 04000.

Action Plan Is UCS Aim

The members of the board of directors for Belleville's United Community Services Monday created an Action Plan they hope will serve as a yardstick to measure their performance in the coming year.

By brainstorming — the tasting out of random thoughts and ideas that are pertinent to the topic but are neither accepted or refused — members of the board created a list of "areas they should be concerned with," which after evaluation, included: money, public relations, research and evaluation and analysis of efficiency, social planning and administration.

Herb Pepper, president of the board, explained the need for an action plan saying, "We are forced to come to grips with some important questions such as — what are community needs and are they being adequately met? If not, how can they be effectively met by agencies, groups or individuals?"

Advocating the move for an action plan, Mr. Pepper noted "changes were definitely needed," in the areas of internal communication, more effective liaison between the agencies and whoever the UCS deals with, promote activities which encourage public involvement. He also saw a "great need in community counselling services."

Asked if the UCS was not already involved in such professional areas, he said that changes pointed at any deficiencies, the board president said the changes would mean moving into these areas "more deliberately than in the past."

Early in the meeting Isidirector of the UCS claimed "this is all premature," saying all the facts were not on the table at the disposal of the board. Mr. Cooperman urged that a special informed committee be making such guidelines.

Mr. Pepper replied any committee, for that matter any citizen in the area, was free to make comment on the guidelines and to change them.

"I could be that some committees will come back saying we're all wet."

Mr. Pepper explained Monday's session was not an in-depth discussion but an identification of general areas where the board should be focusing its attention.

Breaking into two small groups, the board then began discussing earlier general statements and creating what they hoped to be a fair action plan, which they could use to monitor their progress in the future."

When the committees regrouped to present their findings, similarities cropped up in the areas of public relations, and the need for the evaluation of existing services in the community and the need to dispense with any overlapping.

Generally, counselling, education, the formation of a community register that would disclose overlapping, closer liaison between the board and the member agencies, and evaluation of how the UCS can rationalize how it spends its money, were the results of the session.

There has never been such a rich set out for the UCS and this one is not intended to be read as the golden rule, Mr. Pepper said "we're not draw it as a master plan but rather as general guidelines that will give us some form of perspective. It will keep us on target and serve to inform the citizens what we are doing."

Mr. Pepper asked that all the project available would be solicited for the plan and that the plan itself was flexible to change and comment from any source.

"Definitely there will be periodic assessments," he said. "It's not intended as an iron-clad document."

City Council Decides Written Speeches Out

Revamping of the city council procedural bylaw could be the result of the notice of motion tables two weeks ago by Ward Robin Jeffery asking that councillors refrain from reading written texts in council debates.

The motion Monday received second approval by a narrow 6-5 margin, but Mayor Harry Allen explained the motion was a request rather than an order.

She said the motion was an attempt to screen council procedure with the view of speeding the length of meetings.

Mrs. Gleadow said she was not aimed at any one councillor and was not directed at Mayor Allen.

But Alderman Arthur Reed felt the motion was directed at him specifically and justified his frequent use of written texts in council debates because "I am very forgetful."

"I am sorry if I have annoyed the mayor by using a script," he said.

At the same time he maintained the use of written text was a democratic right.

"What kind of democracy would we be trying to evolve if council members were forbidden to read speeches?" he asked.

Alderman Ben Corke said Ald. Keegan was taking the matter too personally. Indicating he had possibly prompted Ald. Jeffery to introduce the motion.

"We are all our own men," he said, "but when I see anyone reading a written speech I feel that someone else might have written it."

Alderman Jean Smith said she would have to oppose the motion as she also had been guilty of written texts.

The purpose, she said, was to be factual and to make certain that points were not missed.

Alderman Paul Russell said he also would have to oppose the motion.

He doubted that it would speed up meetings, suggesting that one of the real reasons for long meetings was the tendency of members to stray from the subject during debate.

He suggested formation of a committee to look into the city council procedural bylaw with the view of streamlining things up.

Mayor Jeffery said she would take the suggestion into consideration.

Weekly Meetings Requested

Alderman Ben Corke feels the time has come when city council should start considering the advisability of holding weekly meetings rather than alternate weeks.

The discussion was made near the close of Monday's marathon session which saw council go into closed session at 3 p.m., continue in closed session for two hours and then meet in open session until 9 p.m.

Council sessions, he said, were getting too lengthy to expect members to give due consideration to all agenda items.

Fire Hits Plant

TRENTON — Firemen were called to the Trenton cold storage plant at 21 Albert St. Monday morning after a workman discovered flames eating through a wall at the rear of the building.

Fire officials today report several members of the plant had been removing pipes with a cutting torch. When they left for lunch, the flames were spotted by another employee at the plant.

The Trenton fire department was on the scene and on hand until 1 p.m. to get at burning insulation in the walls and ceiling.

Total damage to the plant is estimated at $150.

Grants Now OK

Lennox and Addington county council has chanced its mind about not handing out grants to various organizations seeking financial assistance.

All county grants were cut off in 1972 but since the first of this year the council finance committee has been studying possible reinstitution and at the February session recommended the return of the grant system.

The finance committee will screen grant applications and make recommendations to the council on which should be paid.

County organizations seeking assistance will have until March 5 to get in their applications.

Board Office Pickets Protest School Closing

It was bound to happen sometime, and last night it did.

Hastings county board of education headquarters was picketed by a shouting, placard-carrying crowd, with one basic in mind: save our school.

The majority were grade 7 and 8 students from Queen Alexandra School, augmented by a few adults by bring the total to about 50 at the height of the orderly demonstration.

The occasion was a regular board meeting, the first since the one two weeks ago that decided in caucus to regretfully close the 61-year-old school because of declining enrolments.

Parents got the word Thursday night at a meeting at the school and have rallied since to voice a vigorous objection.

The movement, spearheaded by Loyalist trustee Mike Pierce, assisted by Art Liddle and George Fisher, gathered momentum over the weekend.

While the picketers marched up and down Bridge St. East outside the board office, chanting "Save Queen Alexandra" loudly enough to provide an accompaniment to proceedings inside, Mike Pierce read a brief to the board.

Hammered out quickly at a parents' meeting Sunday afternoon and a closed session later, it expressed the fears and apprehension of parents of the 415 children in the school who will be bused next year to Queen Victoria, Queen Elizabeth and Sir Winston Churchill Schools.

Between 15 and 20 people from the Queen Alex neighborhood crowded into the cramped board office to hear Mr. Pierce's presentation.

Board chairman, Mac Smith, commendably set up a meeting between the board and s[ome] of its administrators, and a representative group of parents scheduled for 6:30 pm. tonight. It will precede an information meeting for parents at 8:30 p.m. in Queen Alexandra School auditorium.

It was all over in less than a half hour. The picketers departed with their announcement to proceedings inside. Mike Pierce read a brief to the board.

Trustees and board employees arriving for the meeting passed unimpeded through the good-natured crowd. Mr. Smith paused for a moment to exchange remarks with the youngsters. Both he and his children received their elementary school education at Queen Alex.

Bridge Street Widening Objections Go to OMB

West Bridge Street property owners objecting to the city's intention of rebuilding the west side of the street and widening the pavement from its present 28 feet will have the opportunity to express their views before the Ontario Municipal Board.

This was indicated Monday when letters of objection from four property owners were tabled at council with the matter being referred to the OMB.

Two of the objectors claim the road widening will benefit any of the area property owners, while another—the operator of a West Bridge Street grocery store—fears for business if the roadway is widened and parking is prohibited on the south side of the street.

The city's intention is to rebuild West Bridge Street and widen it to 40 feet from Highland Ave. to Yeomans Street and to four lanes from Yeomans to Sidney Street.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the estimated cost of the work — road reconstruction, sewers and curb-sidewalks — was estimated at $200,000 on which there would be provincial subsidy of $129,000.

However, he said that the cost of widening the roadway beyond the present 28-foot width, as well as the cost of sidewalk replacement, would be borne by the city.

Abutting property owners would be assessed for 66 2/3 per the work.

Widening of the street will take place within the existing right-of-way so no property acquisition is involved.

West of Yeomans Street the right-of-way is already wide enough to provide for the proposed four lane street.

Alderman Dr. John Stork said he sympathized with residents who would see some of the trees along the residential street removed.

He suggested that the road improvement be referred back to see if improvements could be made on the street leaving it as a two-lane artery.

"The treed appearance of the street will be ruined by widening it to three lanes," he said.

Council voted to refer the matter to the Municipal Board.

Six Students Seek Grant to Aid Aged

Six Quinte Secondary Students have an imaginative plan to help the elderly in Shannonville. It fills a void in the community by providing assistance in house cleaning and errand running for those not qualified for Home Care but not quite able to handle household chores on their own.

So the six young women in grade 12 and 13 have applied for an Opportunities for Youth grant to get their project started this summer. They are asking for $4,000.

The young women propose to each give a half day a week to 50 elderly people for nine weeks in the summer. The cost works out to $53 a person for the summer. If the program is continued next winter the cost will be $140 a person for 26 weeks.

Although they are entitled to a weekly salary of $80, the six' students have agreed to accept $70 a week in the hope that their plan will stand a greater chance of acceptance.

The cleaning women service will operate in conjunction with the Home Care program at Belleville General Hospital and has the support of its director, Miss Alison Kuglin. While it fills a need in the city, it has a broader objective — to develop a better relationship between the young and the elderly.

The project has the enthusiastic approval of Mayor Robin Jeffrey and the Central Volunteer Bureau's director, Mrs. Ruth Burrows.

If the federal government fails to come through with an OFY grant, the six students intend to go it alone. They will appeal to the community for financial support to put their scheme in operation. And they intend to pass the project along to other students in the fall when they leave for colleges and universities.

Students who submitted the project to the government last week are Debra Boylan, Jo-anne Bowers, Janet Meagher, Barbara Rae, Carol Rogers and Kathryn Macdonald.

Hazlebon, tower sentinel; Carl Ray, desert sentinel. Frank Donaesen, grand advocate.

Trustee and Friend

Mrs. Jean Hutchison of Trenton makes a welcome acquaintance of a gerbil family at Monday night's board meeting. The gerbils were brought to the meeting to show trustees the extent to which pets are used in classrooms through the county. An Animal Care Committee has been set up to regulate classroom and treatment of animals in the schools.

Animal Care Board Concern

The boardroom table at Monday night's meeting of Hastings county board of education featured an unusual centrepiece — a cage full of gerbils.

The animals were there to illustrate a point. Schoolroom pets have become so common throughout the system that guidelines for their treatment, must be drawn up.

The board adopted a policy based on recommendations of an Animal Care Committee comprised of teachers and a veterinarian. Purpose of the recommendations is to ensure the safety of both students and animals in the schools.

Terry Marson, a Harry J. Clarke teacher who has operated pet shops in several schools, introduced the cage-full of gerbils to give trustees an idea of what is going on in school science rooms.

They're small mammals are the least concern in schools. It's snakes that cause the most problems.

Jobs Said Available

In the wake of the ever-growing unemployment problem, the national homebuilders' association called HUDAC claims it has 10,000 jobs across the country that are open.

At the request of the nation-builders' Association, along with the 60 other chapters across the country canvassed their municipalities as to how, many vacancies there were in the construction industry alone.

For Belleville and immediate area...it is reported there are more than 50 positions that have not been filled.

"One of our biggest competitors in the employment market is the government Insurance Commission," says Mr. DeMark.

"Skilled tradesmen see their friends leaving their jobs in the cold winter months and follow suit, to begin work once summer rolls around," he said.

Mr. DeMark made these and similar comments at a meeting earlier in the year. Following publication of his comments he was approached by representatives of the UIC looking for further information.

A list of the more than 56 job opportunities was asked for by the UIC and by the Canada Manpower office.

There are 33 spaces for skilled tradesmen with pay ranging from $4.75 to $5.75 an hour nearly a dozen semi-skilled men with pay from $3 to $4 an hour and a similar number of unskilled workers making up to $3 an hour.

School Board Publications Draw Criticism

School boards in this county have had only limited success in the publishing business.

Both the public and separate school boards have produced tabloid type newsletters for parents and ratepayers. And neither board is satisfied with the results.

The separate school board cancelled any further editions of their tabloid. Monday night's meeting was Sunday.

A graduate of Queen's University, Mr. Buchanan predicted the NDP could finish second in Hastings-Frontenac-Lennox and Addington riding in the next provincial election. The seat is now held by Conservative Charlie Ellis.

Mr. Buchanan said the association — first of its meetings since the CCF organization of the 1940 — began to take shape when he and a friend began campaigning for NDP candidate Sidney Brethour during last fall's federal election.

"As soon as we had put up a few signs around Belleville we were bloomed to about 15 members overnight," he recalled.

As of last night, the association had 16 elected members with four more expected to join shortly.

Mr. Buchanan says the group will concentrate on preparing for the next provincial showdown. They'll join forces with the Quinte, NDP association for federal elections.

An interested observer at the meeting was Ian Reilly, former NDP candidate who is now president of the Quinte Association.

Recalling the Oct. 30 vote, he blamed Belleville labor forces for hurting the NDP's chances in the riding won by Conservative Jack Ellis.

"They supported Frank Pollard (Liberal) to prevent Ellis from being elected when they knew he would lose," Reilly said. "I'm of the opinion that had that not happened, we would have gone up considerably because that's what happened everywhere else in the riding."

Mr. Buchanan finished more than 10,000 votes behind victor Ellis.

The association, which takes in most of Hastings County, also plotted five other officers. Vice-president is Michael Lewis of Tweed; secretary, Marge Sargent of Actinolite; treasurer, Sharon Rogers of Madoc; membership chairman, Al McNeil of Marmora; and chairman of the federal co-ordinating committee, Steve LaBarge of Tweed.

REAL ESTATE:

HOW TO ACT WHEN YOU'RE SHOWING YOUR HOUSE TO A BUYER

Ed McKinney
Quinte Real Estate Board

You don't have to roll out the red carpet. But there are certain little things that anyone can do to make the visit more pleasant for the buyer.

Avoid having too many people around if you know a buyer is coming.

The owner should not accompany the realtor and prospect through the house unless asked. It's the realtor's job to know what features will interest the buyer and to point these out to him.

Don't try to engage the buyer in needless conversation. And don't make apologies for the way the house appears at the moment.

Don't discuss price or other terms of the sale with the buyer but refer him to the realtor, who will have a better knowledge than you of the sort of deal that will interest the buyer. Don't "put the cart before the house" by attempting to discuss lesser aspects of the deal — such as sale of furniture — before the deal has been completed.

And do keep the home free of such distractions as overly friendly pets, noisy radios and scampering children. Always give the realtor a chance to do his very best for you. That way, you'll have every reason to expect prompt and satisfactory results.

Schools to Close

If there is one thing people find most difficult to accept it is change. Thus there is dismay and strong reaction to news of the impending closure of Queen Alexandra school.

However if experience is any guide, those in favor of retention are in for an uphill battle. Each decision such as this is taken — and it appears to be backed by sound reasoning — it is unlikely to be reversed.

Age, economics — it would cost $750,000 to renovate the establishment up to the standard of other public schools in the system as well as the fact there are pupil places waiting to be filled in neighboring schools are the fundamentals of the Hastings board's decision.

The few students who now face busing to other schools and for parents who live where they do because of proximity to their children's educational facility, this kind of thing does not sit easy. But there it is and it is a decision which also faces pupils of schools in Gilmour, Shannonville and Point Anne. For the teachers involved it is upsetting news too.

Heart Campaign

It is good to see how the BCI Keyette Club members are helping fill a need by taking on canvassing duties for the Heart Foundation's annual campaign. Appreciation by some of these folk have not been so forthcoming. Let's have a concerted effort then by young and old on behalf of the campaign from February 26 to March 3.

"No More Will Live" is the campaign slogan and it is particularly apt in an age when heart ailments represent one of the biggest medical problems facing society today.

Heart defects can strike at any age, even be present at birth, but more likely trouble can develop under the stress of fast-paced lives or simply through too much of the good life unaccompanied by sufficient fresh air and exercise. Strong hearts literally are among the things our society needs and the Heart Foundation is in business to help achieve this objective.

Awards for Scouts

It is always a pleasure to read about the activities of the scout and guide troops in our district and across Canada.

Belleville's second troop has just held its father and son banquet which also afforded an opportunity to hand out awards to 11 of the youngsters.

The scouts and guides have been a hallmark in the training of young people ever since the organizations were founded by Lord Baden-Powell. Today the role they play in the lives of the young people and the principles for which they stand are needed more than ever.

We look forward to further ceremonies such as this, indicating scouting and guiding progress here and in other communities. May youth's idealism combine so much of practical and character training, youthful fellowship and the potential for producing resourceful citizens of tomorrow.

Swim Pools Lure

We can well believe the statement of Jack Lacey of Wallaceburg that a public swimming pool can become a catalyst in the creation of a new community spirit. Mr. Lacey told of Wallaceburg's experience in a talk to a Picton group.

He said the pool draws some 200 persons for fitness programs nightly, as well as improved community's relations with suburbside places which provide 25 per cent of the usage.

Belleville can expect a similar experience once the pool envisaged in the Yardmen's plan, outlined recently, comes about. The more facilities of this nature a community can muster the better the quality of life of its citizens.

Water Problem

If the provincial government lifts Deseronto's "boil water" edict, as requested at a recent council meeting, what is the next step? Is the community thinking again in terms of the water filtration plant previously rejected because of high costs? As it is, the town of 1,800 has been under orders to boil its water for longer than any other municipality in Ontario.

Empire-Building in the Government Bureaucracy

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — "Outraged" as he said, at finding every third employee of Industry Trade and Commerce making over $18,000, New Democratic MP Bill Knight of Assiniboia has been exploring what he calls "the golden kingdom of the empire-builders".

What upset him were two things.

1. Disclosure in the Commons by Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Alastair Gillespie that 898 of his total 3,273 employees were doing better than $18,000.

2. Tales that are told of how, only three prime ministers and 16 years ago, Trade Minister C. D. Howe ran the department "out of his hat" with the executive help of the then deputy Mitchell Sharp.

What had happened in the interval, thought Mr. Knight, that the department should have moved from shabby, old to modern offices in Temporary Building to a high rise tower in Place du Ville?

The rugs, perhaps, provide the sharpest clue.

Mr. Howe ran his shop out of a suite of three small offices, and only the inner sanctum, where the "Trader" himself presided as "minister of everything," as he was known by many, had a rug on the floor.

And it had a hole in it — the better, he used to tell curious visitors, to remind one and all that economy of operation was a good, perhaps the best way of doing business.

Now in the department's high rise headquarters rugs are an expected and accepted way of working life. Everybody has one, and not a hole in sight.

Digging into the "empire" of ITC, Bill Knight found the departmental budget multiplied over those 16 Howe-Sharp years from an annual $18-million to $771 million.

And that what has happened on the executive suite.

Where once "Trader" Howe, a deputy and a clutch of dollar-a-year men held over from the war years ran the department, now Mr. Gillespie has the assistance of 106 executives.

One deputy at $48,000 to $50,000.

Five assistant deputies at $34,000 to $46,000.

Twenty-nine directors general at from $28,000 to $44,000.

Sixty-one directors at from $25,000 to $31,000.

Four hundred and ten chiefs from $20,000 to $28,000.

Bill Knight says the salary figures are approximate, but "reasonably close on target".

He cannot be faulted with the exact executive bracket because the pay in each category is governed to some extent by length of service and efficiency, as well as by the gradings from juniors on up the scale in deputy minister at the third level.

Having done, for the time being, with Industry Trade and Commerce, Bill Knight is now going after External Affairs, Manpower and Immigration, Justice, and the Prime Minister's office.

He is asking for updated "now" figures from these departments, suspecting that in the two years since his MPP colleague David Orlikow 22 Winnipeg North secured staff and salary statistics based on 1971 figures, there has been a further "astonishing" escalation.

Mr. Orlikow, using information from figures provided by the departments themselves in the Commons, found National Defence had given them all with "more chiefs than Indians".

Between '68 and '71, while the total establishment at Defence shrank by 5.4 percent, the number of "generals" — people in military and civilian, swelled 209 percent.

"Never," cracked Mr. Orlikow "have so few been commanded by so many."

But that was two years ago, and Bill Knight suspects the spread has widened.

Other departments which in '71 had what Mr. Orlikow termed "disproportionate increases" in executive staffs were Statistics Canada, up 154 percent; Justice by 136 percent; the Canadian International Development Agency (External's component) by 134 percent; Regional Economic Expansion (Treasury Board division) 196 percent; and the Prime Minister's office, 93 percent.

What "outrages" both Mr. Orlikow and Bill Knight is not just the "Fat-Cattism" of it all, as they term it, but the way the government, while pushing up executive salaries, did at the other end of the "ordinary" public servant, many of whom are "close to or even below the poverty line".

"Funny, it doesn't look a bit like me."

Church Radicals and 'Worker Priests'

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The time has gone when Christian Churches refused to be activist in politics or social change.

The Victorian Church, pious, devoted to theological interpretations of events, smug in its class-conscious methods of speeding off white missionaries to "lesser breeds without the law," lingered until the Second World War.

Today the Church is so activist that the "worker priest" once held in dark suspicion as a revolutionary or the socially avaricious pastor, often demonstrate church councils and church congresses.

In August, the World Council of Churches' vote of overwhelmingly during its meetings in Utrecht, Holland, to sell off all its securities held by it in large, private corporations twice business or domiciled in racist South Africa.

The estimated amount about $2.5 millions in equity, was not large compared to the rest of the stock held by these companies. They included General Electric, Chrysler International, Johnson and Johnson Internal. Merck and Co., Black and Decker, Gulf Oil and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, plus others.

By this action, the central body of the World Council of Churches which represents 250 Protestant and Orthodox churches around the world, hoped to stimulate these members into debate on "violence" against world industry doing business with South Africa.

The Vatican hasn't moved in this direction—and probably never will, since its worldly investments, other than its own in church properties is estimated at about $1 billions chiefly in the state enterprises, growth manufacturing companies, international growth funds.

But the Roman Catholic Church, perhaps more so that Protestant churches, has been severely-buffeted in Third World countries, especially in Latin America where once the Church would lay claim to most or its 40 million people.

Rome has accepted the fact, certainly since the Pontificate of John XXIII, that Catholicism is less than skin-deep in most Latin American national societies where Indian, Negro and other non-Christian religions, taboos and customs have intermingled with Catholicism a produced a mixture of superstition, religion and spiritualism.

The critical for the Church in its Third World former strongholds has been the lack of candidates for the clergy, the association of angry young priests with Marxist guerrilla movements, the unease of bishops and even cardinals about the growing unrest and the Church's difficulty in stopping it.

The Colombian worker priest who joined the guerrillas and was shot by the army, Brazil's anti-establishment Bishop Dom Camarra, Ivan Illich, the Mexican priest who rejects the title and runs his experimental educational centre near Mexico City, are the modern heroes of many Catholics.

But with most prominent churchmen "in revolt," it should be remembered they are still believing Christians who say only they will truly bring the Church "into the world."

Session Opens March 2

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

It had been expected that the next session of the legislature would open towards the end of this month or early in March. In fact Premier Davis intimated as much when the last session was winding up in December.

Now it has been announced the session will open on March 2.

In speculating on the reason the delay one solution has been that the premier doesn't want to do anything about the future until he studies the federal budget.

Many of the key questions that will come up at the session could arise out of this budget.

If there are reductions in income tax levels will there be a government being in the stave of politics, that there will be growth?

One reason the premier would want to hold off the start of the session is that before it opens the ambassador he will want, and need, fully prepared positions on all of these and other questions.

Because once the House starts, from day two (General day is largely formality) he will be under the gun from the opposition from then on.

And it is not just a while to prepare positions that won't have cracks in them.

Another suggestion has been that the newly prefaced by-elections are not to be held until March 15 and that this could have been another good reason for delaying the opening of the session.

This really is not all that important.

If the house was sitting it would be getting somewhat into the campaigning, but both ridings are safely Tory. George Ben in Toronto and Huron Bruce within a hundred miles, so that the leaders and others can easily take part to them.

The most likely factor of some consequence is that some questions would have been raised by the opposition in the house with the intent of influencing the by-elections.

However, there doesn't seem much possibility that anything important would have happened along these lines.

English Comes from Behind In Market Deliberations

London Economist

As expected, the French and English languages have already clashed in Brussels now that Britain, Ireland and Denmark have joined.

The British, British and Irish commissioners have—like Sir Alec Douglas - Home a week before them—complained vigorously about the sheer volume of documents coming across their desks at the last moment before meetings. Most of these massive files still come in French, accordant to the older working language, German, but rarely in English until it is too late and the meeting is over.

M. Ortoli, whose efficiency as president of the commission becomes daily more remarkable, has ordered that this be changed.

In the commissioners' meetings, French, English and German are used. In meetings of their senior staff a sort of truce has been declared between French and English. Sir Christopher Soames' men have, after a brief offensive, relapsed into French, which remains the working language. Mr. Thomson's assistant is allowed to speak into English as he has given his improving knowledge of French a short outing round the course for form's sake. Most of Dr. Patrick Hillery's Irish staff do not speak French.

The commission's staff has been swept by a craze for learning English. In October, 1971, when it was still not certain that Britain would join the EEC, there were 600 applications for the English lessons on the numbers of the Brussels commission. A year later there were 1,800 applicants — about a third of all the EEC workers in Brussels.

The organizers had expected a rise in the demand for English lessons, but were unprepared for such a dramatic response, so the commission had to call in the British Council to help. There are now 50 courses a week in English, compared with five in French — the official lingua francs — five in German, four in Dutch and seven in Italian. About 1,200 people are taking English lessons, twice as many as all the other languages put together.

The language courses are taken in the officials' own time: two hours a week in the lunch hour and after work. The morning lessons start at 8 o'clock, so love of the English language seems to be scoring daily victories in the hearts of Europeans tempted to stay in bed.

Counting the Seven in England has its peculiarities. There are, it seems, different national responses to the same counting. Germans insist on being given reasons for the English language's more irrational constructions and plunge into gothic glories if they are not provided. Frenchmen yearn to apply their new-gained skills to clumsy English syntax; and some Italians work on the principle that only a pretty English girl will ever make anything plain.

The Harmonization Committee for English may well gull the French, but the Italians, the Berlaymont a bit less forbidding for Whitehall expatriates, and should also benefit the Irish, who, unlike the British, have arrived in Brussels already well-equipped to cope in French.

Minister Informs

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Stanley Haidasz, minister in charge of multiculturalism, has added a new twist to the parliamentary practice of issuing news releases.

These usually take the form of statements or advance copies of speeches to be delivered by ministers. But Mr. Haidasz now is sending out uncorrespondent copies of newspaper stories about his speeches and interviews. In one case his office sent Ottawa reporters a reproduction of story in an Ottawa newspaper about a speech Mr. Haidasz delivered in Ottawa.

Many Conservatives were surprised when Tory leader Robert Stanfield recently referred to New Democratic Party MPs as organ grinders for the Liberal monkeys. Just a day earlier he had called on Liberal MPs to ease up on their attacks on the NDP.

"But I guess he just couldn't resist the organ-grinder remark," said one Conservative.

Liberal MP's say Regional Expansion Minister Don Jamieson is the fastest-acting minister when it comes to dealing with problems in their constituencies.

Said one MP: "If I go to him with the request for a new local classification with a certain DREE program, he will have official here by the next evening. And the next day he will give me a positive reply."

The same MP said that Environment Minister Jack Davis is the most regulation-conscious minister, particularly when it comes to the dates of fishing seasons.

With parliamentary committees the latest minor fly-make-up as the Commons, the Senate and the Governor-General and the attendance is higher—than in the House. Justment. Then NDP committee members vote with Liberals to have a national committees of "rescue squad", "wedding presents" and "Liberal Party."

Although John Reid, MP for Kenora-Rainy River and parliamentary secretary to Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, is a full-fledged member of the Liberal caucus, he is officially a "Liberal-Labor" member.

MPs from that riding have used the dual designation since 1935 when the candidate of that day was given the Liberal nomination, then went down the street and won the labor nomination.

May Limit Shipping In Arctic

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is considering limiting shipping rights in Arctic waters to Canadian ships, transport Minister Jean Marchand said in the Commons Monday.

The reply was submitted in response to a question by Mishaan Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East).

Mr. Marchand said the government has no intention at this time to institute a Canadian merchant marine for ocean-going trades.

"However, Canada does have a large inland fleet which, at the present time, is largely concentrated in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence trade. This national fleet has . . . preferred rights when transhipments are made at places in Canada. . . .

"Circumnewath vessels are allowed to participate in coasting-trade activities which involve the Canadian zone. The government is presently examining our coasting trade policy with a view to extending the opportunities for the Canadian merchant fleet by reserving the Arctic zone and off-shore areas to Canadian-flag vessels.

DONALD MacDONALD

Bill Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Donald MacDonald, president of the 1.2 million-member Canadian Labor Congress (CLC), called on the federal government Monday to urge the United States not to pass protectionist trade legislation.

The Burke-Hartke bill, which would restrict imports of manufactured goods into the U.S., is to come before Congress within the next few months.

The bill is being supported by the AFL-CIO, the large American federation of unions, to which the CLC has close relations.

This bill, if it became law, would impose severely restrictive quotas on nearly all manufactured imports to the United States, including those from Canada," Mr. MacDonald said in a news release. "Its effect would result in the disemployment of many Canadian industrial workers."

Unions Backed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU) stressed the need for international unions and warned Monday of the "disastrous" consequences of fragmentation during the second day of a three-day conference here.

Joseph P. Tonelli of New York praise the August merger of the Unite Papermakers and Paperworkers and the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers which formed the UPIU, adding "the benefits that flow from the merger are obvious."

About 300 delegates representing more than 52,000 UPIU members are attending the conference.

Cities to Gain

OTTAWA (CP) — Alberta's urban areas will gain substantially in House of Commons representation if a proposed riding redistribution plan is implemented.

A map in the latest issue of Canada Gazette shows Calgary would gain two seats and Edmonton one of the 19 electoral districts allotted to the province.

Crisis Phoney

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal council of the New Democratic Party says much of the so-called energy crisis in the United States is "phoney" and that there is no reason why Canada should rescue the United States from its morass and serve as the willing tool of the giant U.S. oil monopoly.

Canada, says a resolution passed by the council here during the weekend, should develop its oil and gas resources in a way to serve the long-term interests of the country and the Canadian people.

Costs Rise

TORONTO (CP) — The latest figures on the cost of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) show a steady climb in the amounts of money paid to doctors over the three-month period of April, May and June last year.

The OHIP committee printout showed that the number of doctors billing OHIP more than $10,000 a month increased from 362 in April, to 455 in May and 475 in June.

Inquest Opens

Pilot Reluctant To Make Flight

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Pilot Martin Pelletier described Monday as "reluctant" to take the mercy flight that led to one of Arctic most controversial air crashes in the history of Canadian aviation.

A coroner's inquest which opened Monday and continues today is investigating the deaths of the three victims.

Mining engineer Bill Thomas of Calgary, who had chartered Mr. Hartwell's plane before the crash, said the pilot was not anxious to take the mercy flight, possibly because he knew would encounter bad weather.

Mr. Thomas also said Mr. Hartwell had navigation problems the day before the crash and also on the morning of the crash, that he seemed to have a problem in the Arctic where Mr. Thomas said he had not been flying.

Later in the day, Mr. Hartwell crashed 130 miles off course while on the mercy flight and was not found for 22 days—after the most expensive search in Canadian history, costing about $2 million.

The search had been called off after about three weeks but was resumed in the hope of some public pressure.

The inquest opened in the banquet room of the largest hotel in the Northwest Territories. More than 100 spectators filled all seats and at times stood two-deep in the aisles.

Mr. Thomas said Mr. Hartwell had not been keen on the prospect of returning to Yellowknife on a mercy flight.

Mr. Thomas said Mr. Hartwell made the first part of a five-hour search for the lake while flying under a low cloud ceiling. Later the plane climbed through the clouds into the sunshine, he said.

However, Mr. Hartwell was unable to locate their destination on a lake 25 miles from the community of Perry River.

"I think we overshot our target because we couldn't see the ground most of the way," said Mr. Thomas.

Thy circled for a half hour looking for the river which would give them an indication where the lake was, but finally had to turn for Cambridge Bay because fuel was running out.

A twin Otter reached the lake the previous week to supply a mining camp said Mr. Thomas.

At Cambridge Bay, Mr. Hartwell was asked by a resident nurse whether he would give up his mining charter and start to ferry the patients to hospital in Yellowknife.

One of the patients, Neenee Nullayok was pregnant and in premature labor, and Mr. Hartwell 16-year-old David Kootook, was diagnosed by a doctor in Spence Bay as suffering from acute appendicitis.

The Cambridge Bay nurse, Elizabeth Budd, also testified that Mr. Hartwell didn't "seem anxious to go back to Yellowknife right away."

"He didn't say why."

Miss Budd said another plane was available—a twin Otter which had brought nurses Judith Hill and her two patients from their home community of Spence Bay.

Miss Hill, 27, a northern health service nurse who graduated to Canada from Kingsbridge, England, was the third victim of the crash.

Wage Guideline To Be Retained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration said Monday it will retain the 5.5-per-cent guideline for wage increases during Phase 3 of its economic controls, but it signalled some loosening of the pay standard.

Confusion cloaked the major economic policy announcements. At the same time it was announcing that Phase 3's basic wage standard would remain in effect, the administration embraced a broadly worded policy statement which skirted any mention of the 5.5-per-cent standard.

The statement said "no single standard or settlement can be equally applicable at one time to all parties in an economy so large, decentralized and dynamic,"

Farm Machinery Imports Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is encouraging foreign manufacturers to compete with the companies now selling farm machinery in Canada, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Monday.

He told the Commons he has met several ambassadors, whom he did not name, to discuss such a development. The purpose would be to ensure that companies which now dominate the Canadian market have more competition.

Farm groups have said prices charged for farm machinery in Canada are exorbitant.

Prison Sitdown

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — About 30 prisoners at the Collins Millhaven penitentiary were involved Monday in a sit-down strike which began in mid-morning.

Mel Willard, assistant director at Millhaven, said it was a peaceful demonstration and that a meeting with prison officials and prisoner representatives had been held.

It is believed that prisoners want a return of some of the privileges they say were taken away after the escape last July of 14 men who cut their way to freedom through a fence surrounding the prison. All were subsequently recaptured.

Gun Use Up

TORONTO (CP) — The number of persons carrying guns to commit crimes in Metropolitan Toronto has risen sharply in recent years, Police Chief Harold Adamson said Monday.

Chief Adamson said in an interview crime statistics are not appreciably different in the last few years but the use of guns and other weapons has increased. He did not elaborate with statistics.

He said policemen seem to be arresting more persons recently with a variety of weapons. A man Monday was arrested carrying a gun, knife and a pair of brass knuckles.

French Dropped

TORONTO (CP) — The study of French has declined in popularity with Ontario high school students in Grades 9 and 10 during the last three years, the Ministry of Education says.

The information is contained in the Ministry's annual record of student enrolment by class, which has been compiled by a computer since September, 1970.

It shows that there has been a sharp decline in Latin, a drop in history, and geography drew fewer students in 1973 than in 1970.

Increases during the period have been in business course, instrumental music and home economics, along with new offerings such as urban studies.

Students Riot

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Police fired tear gas and fought a running battle Monday with students at Lagos University who were protesting national youth service corps planned by the Nigerian government. The corps would be involved in building roads, bridges, schools and clinics, and the government said students would be the first recruits.

Balloon Circles World in 20 Days

OTTAWA (CP) — A joint Canada-United States project to collect cosmic dust from the outer atmosphere has been carried away on the prevailing winds, but scientists still hope to get their dust—only now twice as much.

The project to collect dust-size micro-meteorites was launched Jan. 20 in Australia, using five-storey-high funnels being towed below huge atmospheric balloons 65-feet in diameter. The balloons were to circle the globe from Australia over the tip of South Africa, then South America and eventually be carried by prevailing winds on the 30,000-mile journey back over Australia—in 25 to 30 days.

Ramond Winchester, an astrophysics engineer at the National Research Council, Monday day said the first balloon fooled all the experts and made its trip in 19 or 20 days. Ground tracking stations, not manned all the time, started looking for the U.S.-Canada balloon about the end of last week but found the second and third balloons of the series.

These balloons were carrying other U.S. and Australian experiments.

"For a while we thought we had lost ours," Mr. Winchester said in an interview. "Then we found it had travelled faster than we expected and it has been identified as passing over South Africa now."

So scientists here and at Dudley Observatory in Albany, N.Y., hope they'll be able to recover the balloon on its second tour over Australia.

Miss Budd said she telephoned Dr. A. O. Urgor of Yellowknife, medical director for the region, seeking permission to evacuate the patients to Yellowknife.

Miss Budd said Dr. Urgor told her to use either of the two aircraft already in Cambridge Bay for the mercy flight. She said both pilots were together and asked whether they would take the flight.

"I didn't care which plane," she said.

Mr. Hartwell left on the 500-mile trip by 2:30 or 3:45 p.m., she said.

Mr. Hartwell, in Edmonton while recovering from surgery to fix two broken ankles and a fractured kneecap, has been subpoenaed to appear at the inquest Wednesday.

His lawyer, J. C. Cavanagh of Edmonton, said last week, he did not know whether his client wanted to be at the inquest.

Crown counsel William Brewin said Monday the question "as to whether we have a right to insist on the appearance of the geographical area" is being investigated.

Mr. Trainor told a news conference anyone likely to be charged with a criminal offence does not have to appear as a witness at a coroner's inquest.

But if felt he was likely to be charged, I would not have issued a subpoena. I am not doing what will happen in the future."

Lawyer James Kerswick of Toronto, representing an Arctic organization at the request, asked the coroner to include two or three native people on the jury. He said 70 to 80 per cent of the N.W.T. residents are native people, as were two of the crash victims, and "it seems strange there are no native people represented here."

The all-white, all-male jury consists of four pilots, a former pilot and the proprietor of a drycleaning store in Yellowknife.

Coroner Walter England warned down Mr. Kerswick's request, saying that in a mining accident, for example, there would be mining experts on the jury.

"In this case we have attempted to get aviation people on the jury."

British Civil Servants Stage National Strike

LONDON (Reuter) — Airline pilots were hard hit today as Britain's civil servants staged their first official national strike in the country's history.

Customs and immigration officials stayed away from their jobs at air and sea ports, while air traffic controllers and lorry drivers did not turn up for work.

The customs spokesman said the strike will leave ports "wide open for smugglers."

More than half the airline flights due from the strikers cancelled.

Nearly 400,000 clerical and executive workers in the civil service are expected to remain at home today or take part in picket lines.

The 24-hour strike started at midnight Monday night, but customs and immigration officials had already set up picket lines at entry points into the country before the deadline.

"Honesty boxes" were set up in the hope that travellers would not take advantage of the situation to indulge in wholesale smuggling.

Airline flights were expected to be drastically cut as staff assisting flight controllers at airports did not report for duty Monday night.

The civil service strike against government pay policies followed the publication of a document outlining the proposed second phase of the government's anti-inflation price and wage restraints.

The document, which is still open to negotiation between the government, industry and the labor unions, called for the creation of a watchdog body to scrutinize increases in food prices.

It also proposed a maximum limit to pay increases of four per cent, while company dividends would be held to a five-per-cent increase.

1972 Tax Aid Opposed

Hees Backs NDP Stand on Tax Cut

OTTAWA — After criticizing the government's 1973-74 budget for not doing enough to combat unemployment, New Democrats voted solidly with the Liberals Monday night to defeat a Conservative motion saying, in part, the same thing.

The motion was defeated 146 to 111 as seven Social Creditors and 104 Conservatives voted against 108 Liberals, 31 New Democrats and one independent. Standing in the Speaker's Commons is Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 15 and independent two.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) echoed statements made by other NDP members earlier in the budget debate when he said:

"This budget is not an NDP budget.

"It does not begin to meet the needs of the people of Canada in terms of dealing with unemployment."

But he added "it is still the best budget we have seen in the last half-dozen years."

If the Conservative motion has passed, the government would have had no choice under parliamentary tradition but to resign or seek an election.

The motion, in the form of an amendment to a government motion approving the budget, said:

"While acknowledging certain beneficial features of the budget proposals, this House regrets that they do not contain measures that will substantially reduce continuing high levels of unemployment, effectively contain the spiralling cost of living or provide any incentive to Canadians to increase their participation in creative business enterprise and development."

The Commons votes Wednesday on the main motion to approve the budget and the government has received public pledges of NDP support.

But one New Democrat, Rae Harding (Kootenay West), warned he will not vote for any bill to enact the tax concessions to industry announced in the previous budget. Because of the fall election legislation based on the May 8 budget was not passed.

The chief Conservative spokesman Monday, George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings), also opposed measures to aid industry in last May's budget.

He said the cut in corporate income tax, to 40 per cent from 49, amounts to a cash windfall. The cut already is in effect and would be approved retroactively by legislation.

Mr. Hees said the great majority of businesses had used the cut to increase their cash reserve or dividends, not to increase jobs.

Instead, he said, the government should have created a special tax rebate for all those businesses that increase their work force over the year.

Finance Minister Otto Lang, however, gave short shrift to Mr. Hees' idea. Mr. Lang said it would give most aid to those expanding industries that least need it.

He also poked fun at the Conservative party's flip-flop of different views on how high the 1973-74 federal deficit should be. The planned shortfall beyond cash needs is $2 billion, which Finance Minister John Turner says is sufficiently expansionary.

Mr. Lang noted that while Harvey Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) called for a deficit of $2.5 to $3 billion, Claude Wagner (PC—St. Hyacinthe) called for a $4-billion deficit.

But, when Don and Rita set his toy teddy bear under Sally's stare, there found this large visitor to be good 'ole' Sally along with Charlie Brown, the famous cartoon characters soon to appear on a rotating float.

Advisory Committee for NCW Will Report Women's Progress

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of Women (NCW) asked the cabinet Monday for a permanent federal council to look into the status of women, but it settled for a national advisory committee which will report to Labor Minister John Munro.

The minister and 16 cabinet colleagues joined the committee at a two-hour meeting with representatives of NCW, a national organization representing about 250,000 women through provincial councils and member women's clubs.

New president Mrs. John Hnatyshyn of Saskatoon said in an interview later:

"We had hoped for something a little more grandiose, I must say, but we are very pleased that the minister is considering an advisory council."

The suggestion, major one of 14 discussed with Prime Minister Trudeau and his ministers, called for a permanent council to advise on matters pertaining to women and report on progress to improve their status. It also would undertake research, establish programs to correct attitudes and practices adversely affecting women, propose legislation and policies and consult organizations concerned about problems of women.

Mr. Munro said the national advisory committee would do these things and he told reporters later that setting up an advisory committee could be done much more quickly than setting up a council, which would need approval of Parliament.

The minister said the committee could be established for a year or two. If it did not prove satisfactory, the whole body could be reconsidered.

He envisaged a committee of about 20 to 30 members, including representatives from women's organizations and business, professional women and housewives.

"I hope it can be operative in a month or six week"...

Mrs. Hnatyshyn said she was pleased with the reception given the whole brief, which stressed conditions that discriminate against women but also was concerned with ecology, consumer education and the problems of youth.

Another major area concerned occupational training programs and the NCW brief recommended that these federal programs should be reaching more women.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras said his department is planning to expand advertising programs and is doing research into the kinds of women in the program, those still in need of the program and how they can be reached most effectively.

Two other main recommendations concerned day care. The brief urged the government to amend the National Housing Act to allow loans for construction, purchase and renovation of buildings for day care centres and to permit the inclusion of space for them in housing developments.

Ron Basford, urban affairs minister, said these facilities could be included as the act stands. His department was planning new legislation to set up a program of loans and grants to replace the old urban renewal program.

The new program would put emphasis on improvement and rehabilitation of existing neighborhoods and stress the need for community amenities in family areas.

The NCW brief also recommended:

—Implementation of a guaranteed annual income to the heads of all one-parent families with dependent children.

—Amendments to the Criminal Code to extend jury service to men and women on an equal basis in criminal cases, measures to ensure that jury listings and selection would prohibit exclusion of persons on basis of race, marital status, sex, political or religious affiliation or economic or social status and payment of $20 a day for jury duty so that women with children could afford to have babysitting help while they served.

—More women to be appointed to the Senate and federal courts.

—Federal funds to support facilities and programs to rehabilitate female prostitutes and prevent young girls from becoming prostitutes.

—Government production of up-to-date consumer education films.

Costumes for Your Mood Designed in Belleville

By BONNIE KING
Staff Reporter

For someone who didn't start sewing until she was 21, Rita Foster's costumes (some self-designed) have hit the map from Toronto to Montreal. In fact, Rita and Don Foster, owners of Fosters Rentals on Emily Street, Belleville are equally popular for their costume and float rental operation.

It all began as a hobby — how Rita's costumes include more than 300 long gowns in the Gibson Girl, Centennial frocks and Roaring 20s styles. Tails have been made to correspond.' Found in their garage are also 100 clown, Indian and Oriental costumes. You name the costume, and it's probably there.

The floats, totalling over 80, which Don and his helpers have made for parades from Toronto to Montreal have necessitated the purchase of more space other than their two-storey garage, which holds the costumes. Don has his floats, bicycles and dune buggies saved less than a one block away.

Rita and Don's 'hobby' has grown into a popular and unique business in this area. Closed now for three months, (Rita's first holiday in 10 years and a rest for Don who has been ill), this couple aged 33-and 35 discussed their business from start to present.

"During Centennial year, I had about 50 long frock styled Centennial dresses made for personal wear. I decided to rent them, so I put an ad in the paper. There were so many requests that I hired six women to assist me," said Rita. No two dresses are the same color. Don assisted the women. An assembly line began. The dresses were cut in bulk. Then each woman took the material and sewed the seams together. There is a range of sizes for any woman. Material was bought by Don who takes a hand at sewing, too.

Since then, Hallowe'en is the busiest time for this couple. Extra help is needed to assist. Costumes are rented at $14 and $16.

People from Toronto, Kingston, Port Hope, Bancroft, Trenton, Picton, Cobourg and Oshawa have rented costumes for all occasions.

Don and Rita advise each customer on their rental. They ask the occasion and decide from there. Sizing is something each can estimate "You see so many clothes and fittings, that you can just tell what size a person takes," said Don.

The occasion matters. Their costumes have won many first prizes including first prize for the Centennial Year costume, at the Royal York in Toronto and Quebec Winter Carnival costume prize.

Then, if the occasion is for enjoyment and fun; Don and Rita can supply the masks and costumes to disguise those who like that element of surprise.

But Don and Rita take a more active part with their costumes and floats than making them. Do you remember Don the clown in Belleville parades? Don Foster plays the clown and passes out candy. His wife Rita drives her mini Model T Ford car through the parade accompanied by the family poodle, Pierre. Suburban Belleville boys assist Don and Rita in the parades by manning the floats or riding the Penny Farthing Bicycles or dune buggies.

Though this is a rest for Mr. and Mrs. Foster, preparations are underway for new floats and new costumes. Favorite costume characters, Charlie Brown and his friends are ready for painting and their rotating stand.

Float rentals range from $60 for the floats; $35 for the dune buggies and $5 for the Penny Farthing Bicycles.

Still Peppy Though Anemic

EDMONTON (CP) — For years doctors have wondered why children, who usually have clinical signs of anemia, have energy and pep far beyond medical logic.

Drs. R. T. Card and M. C. Brain, medical researchers at McMaster University in Hamilton, recently presented a new theory at the annual meeting of the Canadian Society for Clinical Investigation.

And their theory may have "significant implications" for the childless couple.

Doctors have known for a long time that the hemoglobin determinations of children usually are significantly lower than those in adults. Dr. Card said in an interview. Hemoglobin is that part of red blood cells which carries oxygen through the blood stream to the muscles.

People who have lower hemoglobin determinations usually are tired and less peppy. So why can children run around more?

Dr. Card explained that children have a higher hemoglobin than adults in the blood fluids. It has been shown that this causes an increase in hemoglobins inside the red blood cells.

It's these latter phosphates that recently have been found to help hemoglobin in delivery of oxygen.

So, by increasing phosphates in the blood, doctors hope they just might,4 mind you" — help patients get better supplies of oxygen to the muscles. The theory, which opened new doors for research would be especially helpful in getting oxygen to the heart muscles during heart attacks.

However, it's very complex. Dr. Card said, how phosphates have to be handled carefully in the body and their exact with other blood components.

Women Bankers Change

WINNIPEG (CP) — Women need not be content with the idea they could advance no further than the position of bookkeeper in banks, two city bank managers have agreed.

"There have been many changes regarding the role of women in banking during the last 20 years, said Lo H. Brst, manager of a suburban Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the first female manager in Canada for that bank.

Jean Hird, manager of another branch in the city, said opportunities for women to become bank managers "are going to be there if you have to show a willingness."

She said anyone wanting a position should try to do a job better than anyone else without worrying about salary or promotion as it would come with time.

'Now I'd Try This Stitch'

Part of Foster's Rental business success is "Being Prepared". That's Rita's motto, who designs costumes herself. Her husband Don takes time from his float - making to show her new ideas. Don and Rita's rental business started with 50 Centennial Year gowns and has increased to accommodate not only party costumes but float rentals as well.

Needs of Emergency Patients Discussed at QMSA Meet

The emergency department intensive care unit and recovery room constitute the responsibility of Unit Co-ordinator Mrs. Margaret Cousins, R.N.

At their February meeting Quinte Medical Secretaries had the opportunity of learning first-hand from Mrs. Cousins how they could serve the needs of patients who must use Emergency Department facilities. By acquainting them with various points of hospital policy, they not only assure the patient more worry-free passage through emergency, but do much to ease the burden on the staff as well. One of the points stressed was preoperative preparation no food or drink, no makeup, nailpolish or jewelry.

Another problem encountered is that patients often make no provision for transportation home. They drive to the hospital presuming that they will drive home, unaware that their insurance will not cover them if they have an accident following anaesthetic or sedation.

Problems and setbacks are inevitable in any facility that handles such vast numbers of people.

"But given the added element of raw, human need demanding immediate trained competence" Mrs. Cousins explained "we have the emergency environment. Provide this service and coping with its endless problems and disruptions demands mutual cooperation by medical and nursing staffs."

Sewing Machine For 4-H Club

Lonsdale WI will assist the 4-H Club purchase a sewing machine as announced at its February meeting. Mrs. Jack Stafford, president, opened the meeting for the 15 in attendance.

Correspondence was read including a thank - you note from Mrs. H. McRae. Euchre parties were scheduled for March 7 and 21. The Centennial project was discussed.

During the program, two contests were conducted by Mrs. Fred Farrell with Mrs. Leon McGuinness winning both. Readings were given Mrs. Bernard Freeman, Mrs. Ken Haight, Mrs. Ted McGuinness, Mrs. Fred Farrell and Mrs. James Jarrell.

A pot luck supper followed the meeting.

Can Princess Anne Win At Horseback Trials?

LONDON (CP) — Princess Anne and Lieut. Mark Phillips will be seated a lot more of each other in the coming weeks, but this doesn't necessarily mean romance is on the boil.

In fact, the word from inside the royal circle is that riding, not romance, is the prime reason why the Queen's 22-year-old daughter and the 26-year-old Olympic horseman spend time together.

Anne and Phillips are both entered in a series of horse trials leading to "be Badminton Trials in mid-April from which Britain's riders will be selected for the European champion ships at Kiev in the Soviet Union in September.

Both are anxious to be selected. Anne, who won the Olympian individual championship in 1971, is to accompany her father, Prince Philip, to Russia that month for the first British royal visit since the 1917 revolution.

Speculation about the relationship between Anne and Mark arose again during the weekend when the princess returned from a 12-day tour of Ethiopia and almost immediately sped off to meet Phillips at his family's home in Wiltshire.

Phillips, meanwhile, was on his third weekend leave from his regiment.the First Queen's Dragoon Guards, since it was posted to West Germany a month ago.

A question was even asked in the House of Commons about the frequency of such leaves—but was ruled out of order.

Phillips, who is a former Cambridge University rugby player, is riding Columbus, one of the royal mounts which competed in the Olympic Princess Anne. She likely will ride a horse named Goodwill.

Riding is said to be the chief tour to the relationship although they share other interests—fast cars, for instance. Rumors of an impending engagement are discounted by friends.

One acquaintance of Phillips points out Anne has other less-publicized male friends—Lord Irwin, 28, heir to the Earl of Halifax, for one.

Meanwhile, the couple went to Sandringham on Monday—Anne's birthday.

Ann Landers' Advice on Pep Pill from One Who Should Know

Dear Ann Landers: You told the guy who confessed he was hooked on pep pills to go to a doctor at once. That advice was OK, but it wasn't good enough. Very few doctors know what to do for an amphetamine addict. So please listen to someone who has traveled that road.

First: Tell your wife immediately. Keeping it from her is a big mistake. She knows something is wrong with you and it will be far better if you level with her and ask for her help.

Second: Quit that extra job. It's what got you into trouble. The paycheck from that second job looked pretty good at the time, but now you know it wasn't worth it.

If you take this advice you will receive an additional reward which I am sure you are not expecting. Very few wives realize that the time spent at home will mean a lot more to their wives and children than anything a second paycheck could buy. I promise you this is true. But then, you will see for yourself.—Knew That Road Well

Dear Knew: Good advice—and straight from the feedbox. Many doctors say they would rather try to get a patient off heroin than amphetamines. It's easier. Good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I've written dozens of times but have always torn up the letters because I decided you couldn't help me. But this letter is going in the mail so come what may. My story will read like a bokey soap opera but I swear by the Almighty every word of it is true.

My husband and my daughter (stepdaughter to him) had an affair. I am so upset about it I can't see straight. There are times when I would like to kill both although I know that it was all her fault. The girl is my daughter and I should have resist.

I don't ever want to see my daughter again, but I know when she comes to visit (she lives 300 miles from here) I won't act like everything is lovely. She has a nice husband and three children. No one would guess in a million years what went on with those two.

Please tell me how a person can recover from such treachery. How could the two people closest to me have done such a thing? I need your help.—Broken Spirit

Dear Spirit: I can't straighten out in a few paragraphs a problem that has been years in the making. Don't try to bury it or it will explode later like a time bomb.

The thought to keep uppermost in your mind is that what happened between them was an impetuous, thoughtless moment of weakness. The affair probably had no meaning to either of them. They are both deeply ashamed and trying to forget it. Avail yourself of some short-term therapy and get this talked out of your system.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you won't throw this letter in the wastebasket because I really need an answer and I can't find it in any etiquette book. What is the proper way to eat an olive? Is it polite to pick it up with your fingers? What should I do with the pits? Thank you.—Ill At Ease

Dear Ill: The best way to eat an olive is to pick it up and put it in your mouth. The pits go on your plate. What else could you possibly do with them? Then in doubt always do the logical thing. Good manners is nothing more than good sense.

Home Baked Beans There's a Secret

Those who've tried insist that beans, scheduled to perfection are worth every effort. The tempting aroma and the full-bodied goodness of home-baked beans are possible in a fraction of the time it took grandma. Beans can be prepushed over lunch, baked slowly throughout the afternoon, and served piping hot at supper, say local specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Dry beans require soaking before cooking.

The quick-soak method uses 3 cups of water per half cup of beans. Bring beans and water to full boil, and boil rapidly for 10 min. Remove the beans from the heat, and let stand 1 hr. Bring beans to a boil again, reduce heat and simmer gently for 30 min. if the beans are to be cooked or baked further, or 60 min. if the recipe does not require further cooking.

This method is preferrd to the more traditional overnight soaking at room temperature, the beans may ferment which makes the beans more difficult to digest. Adding one thsp. oil for each cup of beans during pre-soaking will reduce the foaming which occurs in the 2 hrs. of rapid boiling. On the other hand, baking soda should never be added to the cooking water as it destroys valuable vitamens. For moist and tasty, tender beans, slow cooking (3 to 4 hrs.) at 300 to 225 deg. F. is recommended.

Bean Facts and Figures From Food Specialists

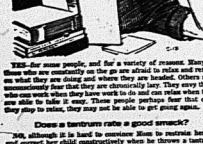
A covered, heavy earthenware or cast iron pot is recommended for moist, evenly soaked baked beans.

After beans are pre - soaked, they can be cooked under pressure in less than one hour with very acceptable flavor and consistency.

Dry beans keep indefinitely if stored in a tightly covered container in a dry place.

Baked bean freeze well for up to five months.

One cup raw, dried beans will yield two to three cups cooked beans.



One pound (16 oz.) raw, dried beans equals 2¼ to 2½ cups equals 6 to 8 servings cups cooked beans.

Beans take about 95 days to grow a white bean, less than one second to eat one.

Brandt and Heinz relied with garlic beans were once considered a medicinal cure for colds.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN COMWELL

Is it hard to relax?

YES—for some people, and for a variety of reasons. Many of those who are constantly on the go are afraid to relax and reflect on what they are doing and whether they are headed. Others are unconsciously fear that they are chronically lazy. They envy those who can work when they have work to do and can relax when they are able to take it easy. These people perhaps fear that once they stop to relax they may not be able to get going again.

Does a tantrum rate a good smack?

NO, although it is hard to convince Mom to restrain herself and correct her child constructively when he throws a tantrum. This is the theme of Dorothy Corkille Briggs' book "Your Child's Self-Esteem" (Doubleday): "If there is any doubt in your mind (about how to handle a tantrum) ask yourself how you would feel if, when you were absolutely beside yourself, the most important person in your life hit you."

Can love overcome conceit?

YES, especially if an immature attitude regarding love brought on the conceit. A man, for instance, doubting that any woman could ever love him, might have developed conceit as a defense. Just be prepared that he couldn't care less about love. If he is strong enough to accept a woman's love, he will lose that attitude. It is simply a shield—and love does follow—the man won't need his conceit any more.

Successful Living Fat Wife Turns Him Off— Now He Feels Cheated

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My problem is my overweight wife. She has many good qualities but I was at first against marriage because of her 185 pounds — mostly fat. An overweight woman does not exactly turn me on sexually.

She went on a diet and lost 25 pounds before we got married. She hasn't lost a pound since — three years ago. I feel cheated. The rolls of fat on her neck and stomach turn me right off.

The only answer I get when I mention it is, "I promise to lose it" or "Be thankful that I'm a good wife". I shudder when she wants to make love. I am beginning to have thoughts of other women. — Frustrated Husband.

Dear Frustrated: I'm guessing your wife's compulsion started in early life to make up for other lacks by stuffing and purging. Such habits are hard to break later.

Your nagging doesn't help. A system of rewards would be better; a new dress next time she brings herself down to a lower size 14 pound limit. A pretty piece of jewellery to go with the new dress. And a special place to take the wife you love to show her off.

She could eat all she liked if she avoided certain foods. The grocery shelves where the dietary substitutes are to be found are for her. And so is my 30-cent "Simple Reducing Diet", which really works. Get her to write to me for it herself, so that the first action is taken by her. She wants to save your marriage just as much as you do.

P.S. Look for more about this in an early column.

Fathers Need Fortitude

VANCOUVER (CP) — A father-to-be who wants to accompany his wife to the delivery room to watch his baby being born should find out beforehand if he has enough fortitude to accept the rather messy miracle of birth.

Some husbands bear up remarkably well but for others the experience is a 6-month-long Brigadier Doris Boniface of the Salvation Army, who plans to step down at the end of the year as administrator of the army's Grace Maternity Hospital in Vancouver.

Brig. Boniface, who served in maternity hospitals in England and South Africa for 35 years before taking up her post at Grace Hospital nine years ago, says the husband's presence in the delivery room is a wonderful experience for both the parents—if hubby can stand the sight.

"The husband sees what his wife goes through and she has the security of knowing he's there."

But she warns that many men faint dead away at the crucial moment of their wives' labor.

"They just keel over. Several times we've had to put them in bed until they recover."

Brig. Boniface says she intends to continue efforts to get them in bed until they recover."

Monday Night with the Hasty Pees

Monday nights are seldom dull at Belleville's Armories. It is the night A Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment climb and do their stuff. At left Cpl. Charles Parkhurst has been halted by sentry Sgt. Clifford Stephens and hands over the password to demonstrate proper security for an advanced training group. Cpl. Harry Hicks (at right) gives Pte. Mike Dawson a few tips on artificial respiration. Patient is Pte. David Mendonsa. Other Commanding is Major Company, Major Carl Hubel said the militia unit had vacancies for senior and junior non-commissioned officers and commissioned officers. "We recruit from as far away as Picton, Napanee, Stirling and Trenton," he said, "but we're not well represented from Belleville."

Lake Levels Worry Waterfront Residents With Spring to Come

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Along the Bay of Quinte's waterfronts they're not waiting for spring — they're worrying now.

The anxiety stems from a rising Lake Ontario water level — already as high as last year's peak mark, some water watchers claim. Predictions that spring runoff could raise it maybe another two feet by summer are currently rippling lakeshore regions with apprehension.

The Bay of Quinte area is also treading the tide of concern.

At Picton, one marina operator already has made representations to provincial cabinet ministers on the problem.

At Deseronto, another fears trouble could come to waterfront property even before the full impact of spring runoff — if ice is pushed higher by rising water.

But concern is not exclusive to the professionals.

In Belleville, the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization reports receiving queries on the situation in recent days from bayshore home and cottage owners.

Prompting such reactions (1) A flare water level already two feet above last year. Readings late last week showed Lake Ontario 246.2 feet above sea level. Last year's average February reading was 244.3.

(2) Predictions the lake, after spring runoff, could rise as high as 248.2 feet — the record set in 1952.

A weather combination of high precipitation this year and less-than-usual evaporation due to sustained cloud cover are blamed for the problem.

Already the overflow from the lake into the St. Lawrence Seaway has been increased above normal. The seaway's Joint International Commission is being pressed for action. But, further downstream, riverside residents near Montreal are also said to be worried.

The problem, which has a recurred concern around the lake from Rochester, N.Y., to Toronto, already has brought a dozen calls from property owners in the Belleville bayshore area, says EMO coordinator Angus Duffy.

The callers have not reported any present flooding. But they are concerned about current water levels and the predicted possibilities, says Mr. Duffy.

What he has been telling them is to determine the height of houses or cottages above sea level, present bay levels, then add on another 10 inches to two feet. This provides a "forewarning of what could happen — and if they can do anything to prevent it, they should."

The situation is "obviously going to get worse before it improves — unless we get a terrific amount of bright sunny weather," to break evaporation," says Mr. Duffy.

At Picton, Glynn Jarmyn, president of Quinte's Isle Bay Regional Tourist Association and owner of the Picton Bay Marina anticipates "real problems" if predictions for a post-spring rise in the lake level occurs.

Bay water — now as high as last year's peak — has reached some of his docks and another 18 inches would see water flowing through his marina building, he says.

He viewed the problem so seriously he went to Smiths Falls last week where Ontario resources cabinet ministers were hearing local complaints and presented a brief.

Mr. James says he received an answer.

But, he conceded, the situation is currently in international jurisdiction.

On Big Island, David Owen, operator of Baycrest Marina, anticipates problems "because we're next to flooding now."

If the bay rises to predicted higher levels, docks will be under water and the situation could be "pretty serious".

Yet, without a flood threat, docks now will have to be shored up before breakup, when high water could jam ice against pilings, causing damage.

Jack Scott, owner of the big Dawson Boating Centre at Deseronto, echoed similar worries.

"If the water keeps coming up with the ice as it is now, there's a lot of shoreline property that's going to have a lot of damage," he said.

The level in the Deseronto area now also has reached last year's peak. Although his centre's docks are higher than last marina in the area, some could be flooded if the water reaches predicted levels — a circumstance that would be a "real big problem".

Reeve George Lyons said he's yet to get board on complaints. However, if the level rose another two feet it could likely cause damage to boathouses and property along th town's waterfront.

Busing Problems Seen When School Closed

Any busing of city school children as a result of the proposed closing of Queen Alexandra Public School next September could entail the purchase of additional city transport equipment.

This was suggested at city council Monday evening by City Treasurer Frank Morrell when the board's plans for new children would be the responsibility of the city transit commission and additional buses could be required.

The comment came during council discussion of a brief presented by Michael Pierce, spokesman for parents and ratepayers protesting the proposed closing of the 61-year-old east side school.

Mr. Pierce reviewed for council the reasoning behind his delegation's objections to the school closing.

Also he claimed the board's reasons for the proposed school closing did not appear valid. It was at other schools — not Queen Alexandra — where pupil attendance was reduced below the 270-mark figure suggested as the cost of necessary renovations could go mostly for a new gymnasium.

Referring to the board claim that the 2.5-acre Queen Alexandra school property was too small, Mr. Pierce asked how often the latter areas at new or schools saw full use.

Turning to the economic side of the picture, Mr. Pierce said residential housing values in the area would be lowered if the school were closed as in many instances close-by school facilities were a factor in home purchasing.

The fact that the school had been suggested for use for administrative offices indicated there was still life left in the school building.

Alderman Stu Meeks said closing of the school would mean children from the area would be walking across town to get to classes.

He said regulations were such that the province would not pay for busing of children in urban areas unless the distance was more than 2.2 miles.

The board intention, he said, was to bus children only from south of Dundas Street.

Children living north of Dundas Street now have to walk to other schools, the alderman suggested.

Alderman Dr. John Stock said he deplored the idea of busing school children, suggesting this would mean lost time away from home.

Much of today's problems, he said, resulted from the breakdown of the family unit.

Alderman Lou Turner, as chairman of the committee of the whole, questioned whether council had any jurisdiction on school matters, pointing out that school board members were duly elected to look after school matters.

The result was that Mr. Pierce's brief was referred to the school board and to Quinte MPP Hon. R. T. Potter with a request that the matter be given further consideration.

Correction

Alderman Jean Smith was incorrectly identified in The Intelligencer last night as chairman of the Heart Fund campaign. Ald. Smith is heading the publicity campaign for the Heart Fund and Mrs. Gwen Brain is chairman of the Heart Fund Committee.

Board Approves $½-million Cost

Hastings county board of education Monday night approved expenditure of about $½ million for alterations and renovations of several schools.

The approval was necessary before detailed plans could be drawn up.

Schools involved are North Hastings High School in Bancroft, Marmora Street and Queen Elizabeth public schools in Trenton and Moira Secondary in Belleville.

Advanced renovations at North Hastings High School will cost $120,000, with 85 per cent of the cost covered by grant.

Alterations to Marmora Street will cost $300,000 and will be financed from current revenue.

Replacement of the mechanical system at Queen Elizabeth Public School will cost $85,000.

Fire safety improvements at Moira required by the fire marshall's office will cost $70,000, of which 85 per cent will be covered by a grant.

Controversial Bylaws Passed In Marathon Council Session

Despite the fact a building permit has been issued and the property has been razed in preparation for construction, members of the Keep Belleville Beautiful committee haven't quite given up on their efforts to block construction of 8, 75-unit apartment structure on the site of the St. Agnes Manor.

This was indicated at Monday night's city council meeting by Ald. David Lantern, who said his organization had contacted people in Hull, Quebec, where a multi - storey apartment structure was ordered demolished after nearing completion.

"We are still looking at the possibility of blocking construction of the proposed highrise at St. Agnes Manor," he said.

But Ald. Lantern and several other delegation members attended the council session to see passage of the amending bylaw which removes multi-family construction as a use in the B district of the city.

The amending bylaw comes into effect with the three readings given yesterday by council but still has to have Ontario Municipal Board approval.

Prior to passage of the bylaw, former alderman Gerald Joyce, as spokesman for the Belleville District Real Estate Board, urged that the bylaw not be passed in its present form.

He maintained that passage of the bylaw would not be in the best interests of the so-called "highrise" apartment community as it would preclude construction of the popular three-storey, 6- and 12-plex apartments which were in demand in the city.

He said his organization was not concerned with the elements requiring elevator equipment, which usually were constructed by out-of-town principals.

Mr. Joyce said spot rezoning for 6 and 12-plexes would be impractical.

The amending bylaw passed by council leaves only a now-vacant park area on Wellington Street owned by Alfred College in the B zone.

This, it was pointed out, would allow construction of a proposed senior citizen housing complex.

Also at Monday's meeting, council finally passed a rezoning bylaw which would allow construction of townhouse and condominium units east of Elizabeth Crescent.

Residents of the area had strongly objected to the proposed rezoning, claiming that construction of the townhouses would reduce property values and create traffic problems.

The motion to pass the rezoning bylaw was passed by a 7-4 vote. Approving were Mayor Jeffrey, and Aldermen Joe Cox, Jack Ireland, Art Keegan, A. Orr, Paul Russell, Jean Smith.

Opposing the rezoning were Aldermen Ben Corke, Stu Meeks, Roger Porter and Dr. John Stock.

Also at last night's meeting, council passed the amendment bylaw which calls for all operators to be 16 years of age and to be holders of an operator's licence.

The bylaw limits operation of snow machines to 11 p.m. on city streets and some city parks but allows unrestricted use in some city parks providing access to the open country.

Sentences Suspended

After issuing a strong warning, provincial court Judge H. L. Clendenning suspended sentence on two youths involved in a series of break-ins and placed probation on two years probation.

David Karl Geerow, 18, was earlier convicted of three of fences between Sept. 15 and 20. He was found guilty of theft in a $400 Stirling breakin, possession of stolen property and possession of hashish resin.

Charles Robert Benson, 17, who also lived at 24 Cross Ave. Trenton, St., was convicted of two Stirling thefts and possession of $70 worth of food from Pape's Steak House in Belleville.

Judge Clendenning arrived at his decision Monday after perusing pre-sentence reports which showed neither youth had any previous convictions.

The judge told them that many youths their age get into minor conflicts with the law and escape with suspended sentences and probations.

"It is the view of this court that if you are brought back, you are going to be incarcerated," he told the youths. "There's going to be an understanding that is there's a probation order is not something to be taken lightly."

Under the Canada Criminal Code, an individual breaking his probation order can be sentenced to six months in prison in addition to that sentenced on the original offence.

Geerow was ordered to reside with his grandparents in Belleville and abstain from the company of persons possessed of illegal drugs and advice to continue learning a machinist's trade in Toronto.

Ten Chain Saws Stolen

STIRLING — Police are on the lookout for 10 chain saws, valued at $1,500, that were stolen from McIntosh Motors here this weekend.

Police expect to have forced a side entrance sometime Saturday night to get into the building. The theft was discovered the next morning.

Ministers Discuss On-air Techniques

How would you sum up religion and its workings in a 90-second time slot?

Man Alive's Roy Bonisteel, one-time reporter with The Intelligencer and now associate with CJBQ, met Monday with more than 30 leaders of churches from Belleville and neighboring municipalities to help arrive at an answer.

Not to tell the clergy what to say, but rather how to say it.

Mr. Bonisteel, while living in Toronto, spent earlier years in the Quinte region and still has a farm in the Johnstown area.

In a casual setting, Mr. Bonisteel, perching on the edge of a table in the chapel area of Lutheran Holy Trinity Church, the clergy were given the task of creating 90-second speeches that would be suitable for air play on CJBQ. The station, which normally runs such spots, sponsored Mr. Bonisteel's visit to the seminar which continued for most of the day.

Once completed they were read, followed by constructive criticism from the audience and the moderator.

Mr. Bonisteel, while describing the occasional address as "a holy spirit spot" and saying the odd one "didn't do much for me," asked that the talks have a little more "oomph."

A minister from the northern portion of the county asked: "Could I talk about abortion while someone is eating their breakfast," pinpointing the easy-going mood of the unstructured conversation segments of a typical service, the third of its kind for the area.

"I don't mean to flip . . . must break down some of the clerical reserve," said Mr. Bonisteel explaining his light-hearted approach. "How can they be natural in a clerical suit?"

Mr. Bonisteel felt religion should be aired, as ing there was a good, loyal audience in the area. "People are now exposed to religion and not over their spiritual dimension."

Mr. Bonisteel also felt religion should be covered more often in the paper, saying most papers do their thing once a week and then coast for the rest of the week.

He told the clergy that they be natural while making their tapes and not sound like they are speaking from a pulpit.

He said religious addresses made in the Quinte area stood head and shoulders above many other communities across the country and that there had been a great improvement over the last few years.

Quinte's Unique Cactus Are Saved From Road Grader

KALADAR — Rescued from the highway reconstruction, an acre of ground near this northeast corner of the Quinte district will soon become mingled Canada's more unique nature reserves.

Its originality is not its size but its exotic contents — cactus.

The site is only one of two in Ontario where the spiny plants grow wild. The second is Point Pelee, Canada's southernmost point.

The thumb - size Kaladar cactus — known scientifically as Opuntia fragiles — is also the rarer of the two species and a climatic phenomenon. Its nearest known occurrence is 600 miles southwest in Wisconsin.

Just why the plant has survived so far north — and only here in Ontario — can only be guessed at, says a Natural Resources Ministry official.

The same site also has revealed several other plants and a small population of lizards, all more common to warmer - weather areas.

"This little area forms what could be thought of as a small community left over from a warmer, dryer, geologic age," says a ministry spokesman.

Researchers are curious to compare the Kaladar cacti — reproducing in isolation for thousand of years — with the same species from other areas more normal to their growth.

For a while, it appeared the pocket of land on which the phenomenon has flourished might be erased. Highways ministry plans for reconstruction of Highway 41 called for a rerouting — right through the site.

But officials of both ministries got together and engineers agreed to shift the route further east.

The site said the Natural Resources spokesman, will be purchased as a reserve.

Permit Application Would Be Refused

Passage Monday by city council of the amending bylaw ruling out future multiple dwelling construction in the B district of the city would appear to rule out possible issuance of the building permit for a proposed highrise on Highland Ave.

Last week, a local realtor, on behalf of Toronto principals applied for a permit for an 80-unit highrise on the east side of Highland Ave., opposite the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

However, plans were not available and certain other information was lacking and the requested permit was not issued by city hall.

Monday, the question was asked in council how passage of the amending bylaw would affect the building permit for the highrise proposal.

City manager J. R. Reynolds replied that because the required information was not available at the time of the request, there was no official permit application.

Later, Mr. Reynolds said that on the basis of the amending bylaw passed Monday by council, if the application for the highrise was renewed it would be refused.

Stolen Car Ends in River

BATAWA — When asked how he proposed to haul a 1970 Buick Electra from the rifled waters of the Trent River last night, a local tow truck driver shook his head and replied: "I don't want to talk about it."

The car was submerged to a depth of five feet, 15 to 20 feet from shore.

Belleville provincial police report the car was stolen from Stirling car dealer Bill Morton while he was attending a hockey game at Frankford.

It was not seen again until the river reported seeing two residents on the east side of the river, a short distance from then one of the cars plunge into the river, a steep embankment into the river. This occurred shortly after 10.30 p.m., half an hour after the theft at Stirling.

Police believe the Buick — a lot car at Morton's New and Used Cars — was used to hot-rod in and around the Frankford area. Heat marks were discovered by police on the highway overlooking the river edge.

It is thought once the vehicle became overheated, the joyriders either used the secondary brake to push it over the embankment or set it in gear, and shoved it off the road heading toward the river. The lights of the car were visible under the water.

Sidney Township detachment responded, but left the scene once it was determined no one was inside the submerged auto.

Provincial police divers were requested to remove the car from the Trent River just north of Batawa this morning.

Peewee Hockey Player Has Artificial Leg

QUEBEC (CP) — Kelly Crossman of Toronto's Warren Park team got only one assist Monday night and his team dropped a 6-3 loss to Montreal's Ville Emard at the Quebec international peewee hockey tournament.

So why did all the reporters converge on him later?

Because Kelly, to walk, has to strap on an artificial leg.

"To his team-mates and opponents, he's just another kid," says Doug Crossman, Kelly's father and assistant coach of the Warren Park team, playing in the Class AA division of the tournament.

Kelly, 12, plays lacrosse in the summer and wants to play peewee football this year.

"It never bothered him, so why would it have bothered me?" says his father, when asked how his son got into active, contact sports.

Kelly was born without anything from mid-shin down on his right leg. He has been wearing artificial limbs since he was young and on the ice it is unnoticeable unless you look for it carefully.

A slight dragging of the right skate is the only indication, and while Kelly might not be the fastest skater on his team, he makes up for it with a strong position game.

"He's a very smart hockey player," Crossman said. He scored his Class AA assist Monday, Toronto Ted Reeve defeated Montreal Hochelaga 5-4, Toronto Downsview nipped Laval, Que., 2-1 and Boston Braves dumped Toronto Olympic 4-1.

In Class B play, Beaconsfield, Que., defeated Pointe Aux Trembles, Que., 4-0, Whitby, Ont., doubled Fredericton 8-4, Edmundston, N.B., tripped Hershey, Pa., 5-3 and Gatineau, Que., slammed Kenogami, Que., 6-1.

In the lone Class A contest, Peterborough, Ont., needed overtime for a 6-5 win over Melrose, Mass.

Labrador City, Nfld., and Mordochville, Que., scored 4-1 wins over Ottawa CFB Jets and Amherst, N.S., respectively, in the only Class C competition of the day.

Daniel Gamache and Alain Lemieux scored two goals apiece to lead Ville Emard Francaises over Warren Park while Steve Bice netted a pair in Ted Reeve's squeaker over Beaconsfield.

After Monday's action, 48 of the original 64 teams entered were still in contention. That included eight more U.S. entries but none of the three European entries which were eliminated earlier.

The 10-day tournament ends Saturday.

Rochester Wins 4-2

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jeff Hunt sparked a Rochester rally as the Americans came up with two third-period goals and went on to beat Jacksonville Barons 4-2 in an American Hockey League game Monday night.

Jacksonville jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second period on goals by Gary Gambucci and Pierre LeBlanc.

The advantage was short lived as Hunt scored on a breakaway and Rod Graham tallied on a power play goal to tie it 2-2 after two periods.

In the third period Hunt rifled a slapshot from the left point at 3:36 to score mark to make it 3-2. Bob Elliott scored an open net goal with 28 seconds left when Jacksonville pulled goalie Fern Rivard in an attempt to tie the score.

Central Junior Loop Has Ground to Halt

OTTAWA (CP) — The Central Junior Hockey League playoffs, scheduled to start tonight, have been temporarily postponed, league president Norm Saunders said Monday.

The league has ground to a halt over the issue of whether two of its teams have been suspended.

The Ottawa District Hockey Association has suspended Smiths Falls and Brockville Braves, say ODHA president Bill Dillabough and secretary Pat Smith, but Saunders and Bears president Tom McPhee said they have had no official notice.

Smith says notification was given to Saunders by telephone and telegram that the teams were suspended as a disciplinary action after a game last week in which both teams sought to avoid a victory that would have meant meeting the high-flying Pembroke Lumber Kings in the league playoffs.

Saunders has postponed the start of the first playoff series between the Bears and Ottawa Rangers, but the second—between Brockville and Pembroke is still scheduled for Thursday.

Originally, the teams were assessed $1,000 fines and had three coaches suspended. That action was taken by the CJHL in a five hour meeting here Saturday.

The ODHA held a telephone vote Sunday suspending the teams, apparently at the insistence of Joe Krycsca, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Krycsca was unavailable for comment.

Saunders says he wants to know "if the national body suspended us without a hearing.

"The CAHA constitution calls for a hearing."

Saunders says there are "mitigating circumstances" in the game report, but refused to say what those circumstances might be. He said the ODHA and the CAHA can hardly have made a proper decision without seeing that report.

Jets and Daley Set New Records

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Winnipeg Jets and goalie Joe Daley set a couple of World Hockey Association records last week and Bobby Hull continued to move, league statistics released Monday show.

Daley gave up a goal to Philadelphia Blazers in Winnipeg's 6-3 win, which ended his streak of not allowing a goal at 126 minutes, 42 seconds.

The win for the Jets was their seventh straight, longest winning streak in the WHA's brief history.

And another Jet, Bobby Hull, who clinched into the top 10 scorers for the first time a week ago, moved into seventh place in league scoring with 40 goals and 36 assists for 76 points.

Daley has taken over from Cleveland's Gerry Cheevers as the WHA's top goalie with a 2.63 goals-against average. Cheevers ranks second at 2.80.

Ron Ward of New York had his second shut-out game of the year before the season's largest WHA crowd in Madison Square Garden—13,674—and regained the individual scoring lead from Philadelphia's Andre Lacroix.

Wilfd has 43 goals and 55 assists for 98 points, four more than Lacroix with 37-57—94.

Hate-Love Relationship Nothing New for Derek

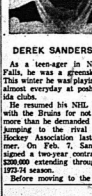
By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — Some hate him and many worship him. This hate-love relationship is nothing new to Derek Sanderson, the prodigal son of Boston's Bruins.

He exudes color from his shaggy head to the tip of his flamboyant mustache with his charisma and his credentials as a centre have been impeccable.

Sandy carries with him the image of a 26-year-old bachelor living the exotic life of a millionaire playboy, although he probably is something less.

Hockey is his first love, but he says he has a couple of other careers ahead of him—movies and business when this is finished."



With Derek back in full swing, the Bruins are moving again in their drive to catch New York and Montreal in the tight weeks of the National Hockey League season.

Although idle for almost two-thirds of the season, Sanderson needed just eight games under his belt to reach the stage where he was able to score two goals to help Boston's win over California last Wednesday night.

Derek was the top penalty-killer for the Bruins last season, and many of his 25 goals were scored while his team was shorthanded.

It took Sanderson six years to graduate from a boarding house to a two-bedroom penthouse apartment in Boston. His closets are stuffed with clothes he hasn't even worn, and he keeps his $31,000 burgundy Rolls-Royce in the building garage.

When Sanderson won the Rookie-of-the-Year award in the 1967-68 season, he roomed in a rooming house with Glen (Sting) Sather, now a New York Ranger. He says Sata taught him the ropes.

DEREK SANDERSON

As a teen-ager in Niagara Falls, he was a greenskeeper. This winter he was playing golf almost everyday at posh Florida clubs.

He resumed his NHL career with the Bruins for not much more than he demanded before jumping to the rival World Hockey Association last summer. On Feb. 7, Sanderson signed a two-year contract for $200,000 extending through the 1973-74 season.

Before moving to the WHA, Rent was $65 a month, and the landlady cooked their meals.

When he left his home in Niagara Falls, Ont., to report to the Bruins training camp he had to borrow $110 from his father.

Now Sanderson has his own gold credit card, good for $2,500 in cash at any bank, he says.

He purchased his Rolls-Royce last year and says the insurance premiums are almost $2,000 a year.

Round Robin Series For Memorial Cup

MONTREAL (CP) — The representatives from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League will open the Memorial Cup round-robin playoffs here May 7, it was announced Monday.

The weeklong series will also involve the champion of the Western Canada Hockey League and will determine the national junior hockey champion for the season.

Ontario will meet the West May 9, and two nights later Quebec will play the Western representative. In the event the three teams end with identical records, the team with the worst goals-for-and-against record will be eliminated.

The top two teams will then play a sudden-death game on either May 12, 13 or 14 to decide the championship.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced it has sold the broadcast rights for the series to Canadian Sports Network Ltd. of Toronto, producers of Hockey Night in Canada, for both radio and television coverage.

Once the television commitment is settled, the date of the final game will be decided.

The winner of the Memorial Cup this year will leave Canada May 15 for a seven-game tour of Czechoslovakia where it will play against top junior clubs.

Cornwall Royals of the Quebec league are the defending Memorial Cup championships.

Gas House Hockey

Eric Emerson's Parting Shot

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Eric Emerson, former sports editor and coach of The Intelligencer, did not have the satisfaction of ending his coaching career with the Gas House Hockey League entry with a victory.

Despite a superb mastery of coaching skills, the coach was unable to stop the Rollins team from coming from behind and eventually tying his third place club 4-4.

"I think we've got one of the top three teams in the league, and probably the superior coach," quipped the low - keyed Emerson, "we've just hit a few rough breaks during the season. The Pizza's tied us in the last 19 seconds and we had it all over them."

Emerson, however, as a coaches today are prone to do, took the obligatory shot at the press, tongue in cheek, of course. "I think the main reason that we didn't finish in first place," remarked the disgruntled coach, "was because we didn't have good press coverage."

Tykes Tally

Jamie Johnston and Trevor Powell scored a brace of goals and then one in the Wilson club's 11-0 playoff pummelling of Madoc. The shutout victory gave the Belleville club the semi-final two games straight in Trent Valley Mite Hockey League action.

The tyke concretemen move into the sudden death finals against the winner of the Welleston-Brighton series.

Jamie Hofford, Bryan Beer, Chris Coates with two goals, and Tim Mulroney completed the scoring for the Wilson club. Mike Thompson and Don Vokey shared the shutout honors.

Hockey Splash

The Quinte Kiwanis Community Pool, formerly the Black Hawk Motor Inn Pool, will be the scene of a hockey splash party Wednesday between 7 and 8 p.m.

Families and members of the Towers Food City novice majors and the McDonalds novice minors will be the participants in the splash party.

Bantam Squad Exhibitions

The Kinsmen Club bantam majors, despite the goaltending of Paul Hayman who tallied two goals against Bowmanville, were defeated in the exhibition game by a 5-3 final score.

Ray Skelly scored the other goal in the OMHA contest Sunday.

In Saturday's contest against a newly formed Belleville Midget "B" all-star team the Kinsmen faired better, defeating their older opponents by a 6-2 score.

Goalgetters for the Belleville bantams were Rob Chase, Paul Weeks, Paul Hipkin, Hayman, Sandy Watterson, and Rob McIlrien while Murray and McInroy tallied for the losers.

"I know it's a big room. But I never fell off before, did I?"

The former sports editor went on to say that the "one thing that I resent is that Jim's Pizza has received a lot of press coverage this year, while we've been one and were edged 3-2."

Though the coaching coach did not want to be quoted he did say that he feels th has done a hell of a job organizing the team. The key to our success was our organization. We patterned ourselves after the Boston Bruins because like the Bruins our team has strong but individual performers on the team. There are no individual stars on this team, it's just an all-out team effort all the way."

Emerson, who'll be traveling after he leaves his behind-bench duties, was unwilling to reveal whether he will be scouting for The Intelligencer while he is in the United States. The team, however, will not be without a coach, as a man whose name cannot be revealed at this time, may be taking up the coaching duties with the beginning of the quarter-finals league playoffs starting tonight.

When asked what the playdown structure will be Emerson revealed that the first place team will be playing the fifth place team, the second, the sixth, the third the seventh, and the fourth the eighth but he was unwilling again to be quoted. Frank Wiles, however, the president of the Gas House League confirmed the information supplied by the coach to this reporter.

In their last regular season game, The Intelligencer, after acquiring a 2-0 lead at the end of the second period, on goals by Jim McGuire and Dennis Baragar, allowed Gary Lucas with two goals, Don Bowery and Wayne Harrison with single tallies to even the contest. John Kilpatrick and Tim Hennessey scored The Intell's other two goals.

In the other Gas House game last night, George Jacklin led the Hospital to an 8-3 victory over last place Stewart Warner with three goals while Bill Van Zeeles tallied ten. John Chambers, Peter Delanty, and Fred Knight scored singles for the doctors while Bill Lynch, Randy Carmichael, and Bob Hunter provided the same scoring services for Stewart Warner.

New Figure Skating Competition Set Up

A new figure skating competition has been initiated by the Quinte Figure Skating Club in conjunction with the club in Frankford.

This will be the first year of the Trent Inter-Club Competition, a skaters' meet similar to the Pine Ridge Competition, but with fewer clubs participating. Frankford, Trenton, Wellington, Peterborough and Belleville will all send skaters to make up some 100 children who will be skating competitive figures and free style competition according to Ed Reid, president of the QFSC.

The skaters will be divided into two age categories — up to and including 11, and from 12 to 16 years of age. Besides the age divisions, the skaters will be classed into either pre-preliminary, preliminary, pre-juvenile, juvenile or pre-novice groupings. There will also be a bronze interpretive competition at the Frankford Arena Sunday, during which a skater will wear a bronze medal piece for the first time, be allowed to listen to it for three or four times, and then will have to perform figures based upon his or her interpretation of the piece.

Towers Novice Team Makes It to the Final

Towers Food City Novice Majors made it to the "B" division championship game at the Peterborough Novice Tournament Sunday, but they couldn't come out of the game as victors against a stronger Brockville hockey team.

Led by a trio of goals by Richard Cocchiaro, the Brockville club defeated Towers 7-1 after having run up a 4-0 lead in the first 20 minutes of play. Tony Parks scored the single second frame goal for the Belleville team.

The Towers Novices earned their championship game berth with a 3-1 victory over Equipment novices in the 36-team, four division tourney.

Lawrence Hanlon tallied the first goal in the contest though it was answered by Tod Cotten of Whitby later in the first period. Tim Angues goal in the second period provided Belleville with the go - ahead tally, while Jan Guthrie insured the victory with an unanswered marker in the third frame.

The closest victory the Towers club earned in the tourney was in their contest against Fraser Michigan Raiders whom they defeated 4 - 3 within the last minute of play on a goal by Parks.

Parks opened and closed the scoring for the Belleville club, and sandwiched one of his own goals and another by Louie Crawford to give the Towers Novices the victory.

Parks tallied the winner with 37 seconds left in the game as he tipped in a Hanlon slapshot for the winner.

The Towerites, in their first game of the tourney, had to come out from under a 1-0 lead by the Markham Canadian Progress to get on the road to the championship game.

Peter Bauer with an assist going to Brant Taylor scored Markham's only first period goal, after which the Canadian Progress team kept the Belleville novices scoreless until the 17:33 mark of the third period.

Bob Wolfe started the winning play for Towers, firing a pass to Danny Rose who sent the puck over to Louis Crawford in the Markham net. Crawford's shot beat the Markham goalie and provided the tie-up goal.

The Towers Food City Novice team, besides seeing the Belleville Bobcats - Peterborough Lions Metro Junior "B" game Saturday, came away from the tourney with numerous satisfaction and a 2-1-1 won-loss tie record.

Kirby scored two of the hat trick against Prescott while Eric Powell, Larry Woodley and John Murphy each connected with single tallies.

Terry Meagher Team Leader

BOSTON — Freshman Terry Meagher of Belleville is currently leading the Boston University freshman hockey team in scoring.

The 6-0, 190-pound winger boosts 15 goals and 14 assists. He is only one goal behind Bill Buckton of Saskatchewan in their race for team goal scoring honors.

The Terriers are presently 11-2-1 and Meagher is certainly a prime factor behind the team's success.

Stickle Waits for Pass

Intelligencer centre Fred Stickle failed to receive the pass he was waiting for in front of the Rollins' net in last night's Gas House Hockey League contest, but Don Bowery, keeping watch on the Intell forward, did. Bowery managed to put the puck into the netting behind Intell goalie Warren Hay as he tallied a single in the two club's 4-4 tie and final game of the regular season.

Bobcats At Lions Tonight

The Belleville Bobcats travel to Peterborough tonight for the fifth game of their best-of-seven Metro Junior "B" quarter - final playoff with the pennant winning Lions.

The series now stands at 2-2 as the Peterborough Lions defeated the Cats in their last two meetings by 3-2 and 4-2 scores. The Cats would the first two games 3-4 and 3-2 to lead the Lions 2-0 going into the third game played in Peterborough Saturday.

The Bobcats are hoping they can come home victorious from the game in Peterborough tonight at the Kinsmen Arena. An away-game win would increase their advantage on home ice Thursday.

Some people should not drink

Maybe you think you're drinking too much. Maybe it's beginning to worry you. Maybe it's worrying your family and friends, too. If so, what do you do? Where do you go?

Your first and immediate step should be to seek the advice of your doctor. Tell him the truth. He won't be shocked and he won't let you feel embarrassed. And the advice he'll give you will be based on the collective experience of the medical profession and his own intimate knowledge of you.

He'll probably start out by giving you some straight, down-to-earth facts about alcohol and alcoholism — two entirely different subjects.

He may tell you, for example, that about 95% of people who drink beer or wine or spirits do so moderately. But for the remaining 5%, unfortunately, the story is completely different. This group, he may point out, includes the immoderate drinkers, the abusive drinkers and the outright alcoholics. He'll probably explain that, for some reason as yet unknown to medical science, people in this group are not always able to control the amount or extent of their consumption of alcohol.

Your doctor may also explain that alcoholism is not a behavioral defect. Alcoholism is a disease. And persistent, immoderate drinking is a symptom of that disease. Scientists specializing in the study of alcoholism are virtually unanimous that just as the use of sugar, itself, is not the cause of sugar diabetes; the use of alcohol, itself, is not the cause of alcoholism. And even though scientists throughout the world continue their search and research, the unfortunate fact remains that, so far, no one knows for sure what causes the disease of alcoholism.

In your own particular case, your doctor will work with you in trying to determine why you are drinking too much. Once he fully understands the nature and extent of your problem, he may simply recommend greater moderation in your drinking. Or he may tell you that you should not drink at all — neither beer nor wine nor spirits — because, in this context, there can be no distinction made between them.

We don't want to sound preachy, but we do ask you to seriously consider this advice: If the question of drinking is becoming a matter of concern, we who are distillers and vintners say: "Talk it over with your doctor. Let him decide."

Magnussen Early Leader In Figures

By IAN MacLEOD

Her score in the first figure, the right forward outside counter, of 39.4 out of a possible 54.0 placed her ahead of the field of 28 competitors.

Miss Magnussen drew second place among the 28 skaters representing 21 countries at the four-day championships.

Cathy Lee Irwin of Toronto skated fourth after the strong British skater, Jean Scott.

East German Sonja Morgenstern was in fifth place, and Miss Lynn sixth.

The other Canadian in the ladies' division, Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa, placed 18th in the draw.

Canadian coach Rhartie Dover said no one was worried by the placings of Karen and Janet by in the unevenable top-of-the-list positions, since all the skaters with a real chance of winning may be there together.

Miss Lynn was in a great position, with a good idea of what she had to beat, "but skating in the middle ? the order.)

Also announced at Monday's opening ceremony was the starting order for the pairs short program to be skated later today.

Sandra and Val Bezic of Toronto, this year's senior Canadian champion, skate third with Marian Murray and Glen Moore of Vancouver following in 17th place.

The European champions, Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitsev of Russia, favorites to win the pairs, skated to the Bezics in fourth place. Sixteen couples are competing for the pairs title.

Miss Irwin and Miss Nightingale produced good performances in the first figure but failed to place in the final positions.

Cathy scored a total of 32.5 from the nine judges, placing her 12th.

Lynn was close behind with 32.3 points in 15th position.

Hopes now are running high that Miss Magnussen will win the gold medal in the figures. The third and last figure to be skated today is the right forward paragraph bracket.

"One of my favorite figures," she said.

However with Miss Lynn so close on her tail, she admits she cannot afford to relax for a moment.

"I'm not making any predictions," she said after her triumphant opening skate.

Authorities here feel the Swiss girl, Karin Iten, may still challenge the two North American champions.

One veteran Czech skater said after the first figure had been skated: "Everyone's talking about Magnussen and Lynn. I tell you, Karin Iten must not be forgotten. She'll come up with a surprise or two before this championship is out."

With east European skaters strong favorites to defend titles in men's singles, pairs and ice dance, however, attention was focused on the blonde North American rivals.

The women's winner, who will be decided after Thursday's free skating finale, will be the successor to Miss Fratianne who held the title in the last two years but has since turned professional.

Miss Magnussen, 20, won silver medals in the Sapporo Winter Olympics and the 1972 championships at Calgary, both behind Miss Fratianne and Miss Schuba.

Miss Lynn, 19, also won bronze medals in both 1972 events, is considered by the experts the best woman free skater, and new scoring rules emphasizing movements in the dazzling free figures section could give her the title.

Miss Nightingale beat Miss Magnussen in the compulsory figures section in the Canadian championships.

In other events, Toller Cranston of Toronto, an artistic free skater, is rated a favorite to defend his favored Ondrej Nepala of Czechoslovakia, the defending champion.

Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., is a contender for the title he had lacks the presentation of Cranston.

Barry and Louise Soper of Vancouver, who placed in the top 20 last year in the dance are not expected to improve more than that.

Val and Sandra Bezic of Toronto are aiming for a fifth in the dance section. Marian Murray of Vancouver could be in the top ten.

Compared with the six school figures required in previous championships, the skaters do three under the new rules this year. The figures make up 60 per cent of the total points, a reduction from the 70 per cent of the past few years.

Free skating, formerly worth 30 with school figures, has been upgraded to 40 per cent of the points toward the crown. The section includes a two-minute routine with required moves and a four-minute program of choreographed spins, leaps and jumps.

Fencing, A Mets' Exercise

Players' and Owners' Conflict Now Virtually Resolved

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The conflict between major league baseball owners and their players is virtually resolved but it won't be over officially until at least Wednesday.

That's when Marvin Miller, outspoken executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, meets with player representatives of the 24 clubs to brief them on the agreement achieved with the club owners.

Miller and the owners' representative, John Gaherin, wouldn't disclose any details of the agreement although plenty of them leaked out anyway. And it still isn't official. Both the owners and players must ratify it. That, however, appears to be merely a formality.

For even as the announcement of the settlement was being made, players were already flooding into spring training camps to begin getting in shape for the season that will open—on time this year—barely a month away.

The agreement is not only preventing another divisive and costly strike, it is hardly ruffling the spring training schedules. As of now, only four teams—Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers, New York Mets and Minnesota Twins—have called off any exhibition games at all. The only other casualty of any consequence was the cancellation by Pittsburgh Pirates of their three-game exhibition series this weekend in Mexico.

"It's a fine agreement," said Miller. "I think there is a strong chance for approval."

That approval must come before the March 31 expiration of the old contract.

Among the reported details of the new pact are:

—A minimum salary of $15,000 for major leaguers. In 1967, for a comparison, the minimum was $7,000.

—A maximum cut of 20 per cent of a player's salary after he has a poor year and a maximum decrease of 30 per cent over-all construction costs for over two years. The old terms permitted a one-year slash of 25 per cent and a two-year cut of 44 per cent.

A month's pay for a player released in spring training, two month's pay if he's cut between the April 6 start of the season and May 15, and a full-season's pay if he's released after May 15. Previously, the player got nothing but a handshake if he was cut during spring training, one month's pay if he was cut any time after the start of the regular season.

Excavation Underway

MONTREAL (CP) — Excavation for the site of the 1976 Olympic stadium will begin in mid-May, Gerry Snyder, vice-president of the organizing committee for the Games, announced Monday.

Speaking to a meeting of a downtown citizen's association, Snyder said construction will begin this summer, as soon as tenders can be awarded.

The cost of the stadium has not been cited separately from the Games, estimated at $250 million.

Snyder said an early start is necessary because part of the stadium is to be used when training begins for world championship bicycle races in the fall of 1974.

He also said Prime Minister Trudeau was not putting his full weight behind the Olympic program.

"It's been an embarrassment not only for us but for the rest of Canada."

Tom Seaver won't have to worry about such details. The pitching ace of the New York Mets, a six-time All-Star who posted a 21-12 record last year, signed his 1973 contract Monday for a reported $140,000.

Other signings included catcher Mike Ryan and pitcher Jim Nash of Philadelphia, outfielder Reggie Smith of Boston, pitcher Mel Stottlemyre and infielder Steve Garvey of Los Angeles Dodgers.

Weston Winger Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Right winger Bill Ampleford of Weston Dodgers will receive two trophies this season from the Provincial Junior Hockey League, it was announced Monday night.

Ampleford, 19, will be presented with an award for winning the points race in regular-season play. He was also a unanimous choice as the league's most gentlemanly player.

In 44 games, he had 105 points including a league-high of 65 goals, while serving five four-minute penalties.

John Fielding, 16, of Ajax, who finished second in the scoring race with 101 points, was selected as the most valuable player and 16-year-old Mike Kaszycki of Dixie Beehives was named the Rookie of the Year. Kaszycki wound up fifth in scoring with 88 points.

Gary Carr of Richmond Hill Rams was chosen the league's outstanding goaltender. Carr, 17, posted a 2.50 goals-against average while allowing 120 goals in 41 1-3 games. He also led in shutouts with five.

Greg Natale, 18, of Wexford Raiders is the most valuable defenceman.

Quebec Loses First Starts

By IAN MacLAINE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A little village on the Trans-Canada Highway about 20 miles west of here triggered a lot of hometown pride Monday, but it was some super shooting by Saskatchewan to grab a 6-5 victory, over Alberta in second-round action at the Canadian women's curling championships Monday night.

Elayne Thomson's rink from Craigmyle rang up its second easy win of the day, upsetting favored Quebec 10-3, handing Lee Tobin of Montreal her second successive loss.

The five-year-old club looked more convincing against Quebec than they did earlier in the day, handing back Sheila McLeod's New Brunswick rink from Fredericton, 14-7.

But the highlight of the day's action was the match-up between Vera Pezer's Saskatoon rink, shooting for its third straight undefeated title, and Betty Cole's foursome from Edmonton who came home four of the seven down to tie the game at 5-5 after 10 ends, forcing an extra end.

But the smooth-working Saskatchewan girls scored three of the house clean in the 11th and enabled Miss Pezer a clear shot at the one Alberta stone counting in the house.

She shot one on target and didn't move an inch after taking out the counter.

The Pezer rink, most of whom have been together since 1969 with an assortment of skips until Miss Pezer took over in 1970, goes after No. 3 this year in the third round against winless Quebec. Lee Tobin of Montreal, with her third different front end in as many trips to the national final, upset the Saskatoon entry in the first game of the 1971 championships.

But the defending champs, playing in front of a home crowd, went on to win eight straight games and their second consecutive Dominion title.

In other third-round matches scheduled for 2:30 p.m. AST, Prince Edward Island puts its unbeaten mark of the line against Nova Scotia while British Columbia's Nanaimo entry, skipped by Karin Kasso, goes against Joan Ingram's Manitoba rink from Winnipeg in another matchup of the unbeaten.

Alberta, 1-1, takes on New Brunswick, 0-2, and Ontario, 1-1, meets Newfoundland, 0-2, in other third-round games.

In the fourth round, set for 8 p.m., Manitoba takes on Quebec, Newfoundland faces Saskatchewan, New Brunswick meets Nova Scotia, P.E.I. goes against British Columbia and Alberta meets Ontario.

B.C. needed two in the final end to ensure an 11-8 win over Miss Betty Hodgins of Dartmouth, N.S.

In other first-round games, British Columbia downed Quebec 8-5, Alberta trimmed New Brunswick 9-4, Manitoba walloped Nova Scotia 10-3 and Saskatchewan downed Ontario 14-8.

Sorel Tops Laval In Quebec League

MONTREAL (CP) — Sorel Black Hawks exploded for three unanswered goals in the third Monday night en route to an 8-4 win over Laval Nationals in Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League action.

Parent Messages scored twice and assisted on another goal to place Jean-Pierre Comeau, Raynald Gill, Michel Deziel, Pierre Yves Giroux, Pierre Lacroche and Yves Pratte also got single goals.

Laval received goals from Bernard Rocheleau, Marcel Dumais, Kenny Kane and Marc Parent.

The high-flying Black Hawks put on the first period surge and went into the final period nursing a 5-4 margin.

Referee Denis Morel handed out eight minor penalties in the first-stanza game which saw Laval outshoot their opponents 39-42.

Sorel is in third place with 51 points while Laval has 33 points, 11 behind fourth-place Montreal Junior.

League action resumes Tuesday when Quebec Remparts, still smarting over Sunday's 13-4 pasting at the hands of Cornwall Royals, visit the lowly Trois-Rivieres Ducs.

WIN ON ICE-CYCLES

Don McHugh, a 48-year-old driver from Brampton, won the Expert 500-cubic-centimetre class, edging out one of the favorites, Dave Schl of Watertown, N.Y. in the Junior 500-cc class. Murray Brown of Sherbrooke was the winner, while Jim Kelly, Hudson won the Expert 250-cc section.

Canadien President Boosts Expansion

MONTREAL (CP) — Expansion of the National Hockey League has benefited both professional and amateur hockey players, Jacques Courtois, president of Montreal Canadiens of the NHL, said Monday.

Since the NHL began expanding in 1967 more players are in the league and earning an average of at least $11,000 more than they did before, Mr. Courtois told a meeting of the Montreal Chambre de Commerce.

Players arriving in the NHL now are more mature and have "wider horizons", said Mr. Courtois, because they are not pressured or signed to a professional contract until they are 20 years old. The age was 16 before expansion.

Mr. Courtois denied that NHL players are "soft" or enjoy the good life too much, as some critics charged after the Russia-Canada series last September.

"Our players showed in that series that they were true athletes and they proved their hearts are in the right place by their efforts to push beyond the point of exhaustion.

"We are faced with two completely different styles of life. The Canadian public is certainly not ready to adopt the Russian way of life, so why try to impose it on our players?"

LITTLE M'S CAST OFF

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Peter Mahovlich is expected to resume skating with the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens later this week. Mahovlich, who had the cast removed from his dislocated knee last Wednesday, has been three weeks ago in Los Angeles when he collided with defenceman Terry Harper of the Kings.

Young Musicians Twin Cities' Ambassadors

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The young members of the Dutch Boy Cadet Corps drum and bugle band have been described as Kitchener-Waterloo's "goodwill ambassadors".

During the last four years, the band has represented the Twin Cities in national and international competitions, shows and parades, and in two successive years it has brought home the title of Canadian champion.

The band was started in 1960 to serve primarily as a feeder corps to an already-existing community band, the Flying Dutchmen. Initially, it was made up of boys only and their uniforms were black trousers, red shirts and dark, peaked caps, after the fashion of the majority of drum and bugle bands in North America. Their instruments were hand-me-downs from the senior corps.

"Then Oktoberfest came along that same year and developed into a national festival, and it just seemed like a natural evolvement for this newly-formed corps to become known," said one band bugle band," said Owen Lackenbauer, a local public relations officer and one of many Twin City residents donating their time to the administration and instruction of the Dutch Boy corps.

Girls were admitted into the corps and distinctive new uniforms were purchased. These featured the German lederhosen (leather shorts) for the boys, folk-dress dirndls for the girls and tyrolean hats.

Additional sponsors were found and local insurance companies provided the money for new instruments.

This year membership in the band exceeds 100, all between the ages of 10 and 15, and the band now also has its own feeder corps, the Kavaliers, providing training for another 30-odd eight- to 13-year-olds.

The movement to form a children's drum and bugle corps was rooted in the musical traditions of the Twin Cities.

"Years ago Kitchener-Waterloo was renowned for its musicians," Mr. Lackenbauer said, "We used to have the Waterloo Band Festival here back in the 40s and '50s, which would attract bands from all over the world.

"After that, there were a lot of people in town still interested in music, but they were concerned that there was no grassroots growth any more. Forming a drum and bugle corps was a way of organizing kids, teaching them discipline to a degree, providing them with musical training and creating better citizens out of them."

Tom Scott, a Kitchener advertising agent and corps director, said there's often "a misconception about drum corps, that because the kids are at it so much everything else gets put behind."

"We have a ruling. A corps member's responsibilities at home come first, then his school and then the drum corps."

After two years of winning the Canadian Junior C drum and bugle corps championships, the cadets have been moved up this year to B level in competition.

Between June and September this year, the corps will take part in 12 competitions, Mr. Scott said.

"We also do shows and parades—we've got a list of places that want us. We've got to decide which ones we can handle. The requests for the corps are fantastic."

"Then, we do things for the community, like we play at the old people's home for free, and in churches and we're a regular part of the opening ceremonies for Oktoberfest.

"We try and show the kids you have to put something back into the community, and that you don't always get paid for it."

Showbiz Shorts

NEW YORK (AP) — Fan-out rock star Alice Cooper is teaming up with Salvador Dali, the surrealist painter, in the making of a three-dimensional photograph for exhibition this spring at a local gallery. It will be displayed as a promotional gimmick when Cooper is on tour.

Alice, a man, posed for the photo with his bare chest covered with diamonds and with a Dali creation in the background—a model of Cooper's face with a metallic dripping out of it to represent his sweat.

"Being immortalized by Dali is worth sweating," declared Cooper, who said he is paying $14,000 for the photo.

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris V. Ioganson, a realist painter whose depictions of the early days of Soviet power are well known to the Russian public, died recently, Tass news agency announced Monday. He was 76.

Some of Jogonson's best-known works are The Soviet Order and Lenin's Barrier in 1919, both done in 1928; Interrogation of Communists, 1933, and At a Urals Factory, 1937.

He was awarded the Order of Lenin, the highest civilian honor, in 1945 and 1967 and received Stalin Prizes in 1941 and 1951.

LONDON (AP) — The Osmond Brothers, American singing group, said Monday they may move to Britain because of death and kidnap threats in the U.S.

Donny Osmond, 15, and brother Alan, 23, declined to discuss the reported threat, but their father, George Osmond, told reporters: "We've received a reported threat lately. Things are getting pretty scarey.

"We have had to take tremendous security precautions."

The two brothers, members of the six-member group, flew to Amsterdam during the weekend to receive an award for selling four million records in Britain last year.

Donny said 15 London hotels refuse to take them because of the damage done to the hotel where the group stayed when they visited London four months ago.

Mobs of teen-age girl fans used iron bars to batter their door and hat hotel to get near their idols.

George Osmond said he and his sons eventually booked into a luxury hotel, but kept its location a secret.

Anne Murray Top Vocalist

TORONTO (CP) — Singer Anne Murray was chosen Mon day as the female vocalist of the year in the RPM annual Juno awards poll for 1972.

Miss Murray, a native of Springhill, N.S., also won the Canadian music magazine's award for the best-produced middle-of-the-road album for the year.

Other winners, to be presented with the awards at a date to be announced later, included:

Ginette Reno, outstanding female performance; Bob McBride, outstanding male performance; Gordon Lightfoot, male vocalist and also composer of the year; Lighthouse, vocal instrumental group; Edward Bear, outstanding group performance; Bruce Cockburn, folk singer; Valdy, outstanding folk performance; Stompin' Tom Connors, male country singer; Shirley Eikhard, female country singer; The Mercey Brothers, country instrumental group; Edward Bear, best produced single; Capitol, Canadian content; RCA Ltd., record company in promotional activities; Wes Music, record company.

Sally Struthers Changes Her Pace

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What is Archie Bunker's daughter doing running across Texas in The Getaway, playing sex games with a fugitive?

Sally Struthers, Gloria on All in the Family, says she is tired of being sold to television audiences as Miss American Pie.

In Sam Peckinpah's The Getaway, she is a frustrated, frightened spectator who plays games with actor Al Lettieri while her husband is tied in a chair. She ends up in a sobbing heap on the floor of a sleazy hotel in El Paso.

Miss Struthers is restless in her contractual commitment to All in the family, which runs as long as the show does.

"Don't get me wrong," she said in her throaty, croaking voice. "I don't regret getting on it. I don't regret that it's a hit. It's done a lot for me. Opened a lot of doors. But as long as it continues, it will close doors."

Miss Struthers, who picked up an Emmy last year for her portrayal of Gloria, said:

"I am relieved that the role in The Getaway opened peoples eyes so they could see me as an actress who could play someone evil and sadistic as well as sweet and innocent."

Published below are the pictures of the owners, managers or employees of the participating businesses in this contest.

During the next eight weeks, in each Tuesday's Intelligencer, a full page will be published with pieces of the pictures of the participating merchants.

These pictures pieces must be cut out, matched to the pictures below and then pasted in the corresponding block on the opposite blank page.

At the end of the eight weeks, all the pieces of the pictures will have been published.

When you have pieced together the pictures of all the merchants, fill in the name of the person and the business name under each picture.

Fill in your name, address and phone number in the entry ballot and mail or bring in the two pages to: The Intelligencer, Belleville, so it arrives no later than Friday, May 11, 1973.

Entries must be in a sealed envelope to be eligible.

On Monday, May 14, 1973, one entry will be drawn, and if that entry has correctly matched the merchants, and has correctly filled in the names and businesses, he or she will receive a 29" Black and White TV set. IF — the entry contains proof of purchase from any four of the 16 participating merchants, the prize will be a 29" Color TV.

So start now — save these pages. The first picture pieces will be published Tuesday, March 6, 1973.

Watch for them and patronize the participating merchants. All Intelligencer employees, participating merchants and their immediate families are not eligible for this contest.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON
Wednesday, Feb. 28

Aries (March 21-April 19): With gentle care of those less fortunate, seek agreement amongst your equals, associates. Bright ideas are normal for today.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It's quite all right to be satisfied with yourself in addition of what you may be able to do to improve your income.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Efficiency now fails. If you are going to fly, be sure you have the authority. In personal relationships, you don't.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Just being yourself may be all that is needed for a successful day. This is a good time to catch up on any neglected correspondence.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Get started on something you've been putting off—distasteful responsibilities are better borne early and without comment.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In the course of rather ordinary activities you gain a deeper perspective on yourself and your work—there's much to do yet.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A long-standing question comes near resolution—you may be relieved at your reaction to not having to consider the question.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Differences of opinion exist, can easily become quarrels. See whether you can stay out of a game of trading harsh words.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Feb. 21): An inner streak of mischief leads you to the words and deeds that dismay your associates—with the best intentions.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You can't sit back and watch life happen to you especially today. You must get up and going and busy making things happen.

Are Many Causes For Burning Feet

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a woman, aged 60, and about six years ago I was aware of hot burning feet after my daily walks. It gradually worsened. An internist made tests, but they were negative. He suggested a neurologist who also found nothing but suggested no cortisone acid three times a day, which did not help.

Last year another doctor said all he found was a low normal of thyroid. I began taking one grain of thyroid daily. Still no help.

I have tried elevating my feet and soaking them. I never wear shoes with my feet when the sheets summer or winter. They are always hot. Have you any suggestions?—L.S.

There are various causes of the misery of burning feet, but your three doctors evidently have explored most of them and such things as faulty circulation (that was what the nicotinic acid was for) and nerve disorders.

I have only a few further possibilities. A deficiency of vitamin B can cause trouble. A look at your weight and usual eating pattern should help uncover that, if it exists. A daily portion of a vitamin B complex could then be tried.

A rare possibility is a vasomotor disorder called erythromelalgia—that is, an intermittent dilation of small arteries, especially those in the feet. That would require pretty sophisticated diagnosis and treatment.

Finally, if you are heavy, weight may be pinching nerves in the feet. A podiatrist might help in that case.

Fortunately the majority of cases are helped by the treating of the more common causes. If sometimes burning feet present a pretty baffling puzzle, help is in your case.

Dear Doctor: My son likes to eat pork and very rare meat. He also eats fat and eggs half done. I would like to know if this is harmful and if I should let him continue to eat this way.

It is potentially harmful, so we certainly try to establish some new eating habits. In my opinion, all meat products should be cooked until they certainly includes bacon.

In fact, pork, although a wholesome food, is particularly risky unless thoroughly cooked, because of the danger of trichinosis. Thorough cooking eliminates that danger. Other meats can cause worms, at times, unless cooked.

The bidding:

Opening lead: five of hearts.

Defense is generally passive or active. In some hands, the best plan is to simply stand pat and see what all that you might give declarer a trick he is not entitled to. This is called passive defense.

In other hands, you can't afford to sit still — but must adopt an active form of defense. Sometimes your tactics will offer very little prospect, but you must attack anyway because you see that playing possum will hand declarer the contract.

Let's say you're West, defending against three notrump. You lead a heart to East's jack, which declarer ducks, and East then plays the queen, which South ducks again.

At this point you should take the queen with the king, not simply because you have the ace-10-9 and can afford to, but because it would be futile to allow partner to win and play still another heart. You know you have no entry card for the hearts and that it can't help your side to play a third round of hearts to force out the ace. You would be beating a dead horse in that case.

Instead, you lead the jack of spades at trick three. This is sent to do you any harm and might do some good. True, partner is unlikely to have the queen, considering South's notrump bid, but it is possible. At any rate, a spade shifts offers more promise than a heart continuation.

As it happens, you hit pay dirt. Declarer wins and plays the A-K of clubs, hoping the queen will fall. When it doesn't, he leads another club. You win with the queen and returns a low spade to eventually put the contract down two.

But with a thoughtless heart continuation at trick three, South would unquestionably make three notrump.

Tomorrow: Inferences.

Reds Halt PoW Release

Demand Safety For Delegates

Refusal To Free Civilians Is Issue

TORONTO (CP) — A former United States news correspondent says the Vietnam ceasefire is in jeopardy because the Saigon government refuses to release more than 200,000 civilian political prisoners.

Don Luce, who lived in Vietnam for 14 years, told a press conference Tuesday that North Vietnam has refused to release any more U.S. prisoners of war because "Saigon is not keeping its agreement."

Mr. Luce, who went to Vietnam as a volunteer agriculturist in 1958, later became a television news correspondent.

In 1970 he reported the existence of the so-called tiger cages for prisoners in a large South Vietnamese prison on the island of Con Son. A total of 408 prisoners were kept in 120 cages, each five by 10 feet.

"If the civilian prisoners are not released," said Mr. Luce, "there is a possibility for more hostilities in Vietnam. The majority of those in prison are civilians—religious leaders, teachers and students—the very ones who could bring reconciliation to Vietnam."

Halt Troop Withdrawals

SAIGON (AP) — The United States suspended its troop withdrawals from Vietnam today in an attempt to prod North Vietnam into releasing another large group of American prisoners of war, U.S. authorities report.

Hanoi also was given a virtual U.S. ultimatum to dismantle an anti-aircraft missile base south of the demilitarized zone.

Maj.-Gen. Gilbert H. Woodward, the senior U.S. representative to the four-party Joint Military Commission (JMC), told the Communists the United States "reserves the right with its allies to take such actions as it deems appropriate" if the North Vietnamese do not remove the missile batteries.

News Briefs

Sharp Concedes Defeat

PARIS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp today virtually conceded defeat for Canada's controversial plan for peacekeeping machinery in South Vietnam. "It would be very naive to think that our proposal as such has a chance," Sharp said.

British Trains Halted

LONDON (CP) — Railway stations throughout Britain were deserted today and a week-long commuters took to cars and buses as a one-day strike by train drivers stopped all passenger services and nearly half the London subway system. Spokesmen for Britain's automobile association said it was the worst chaos for years on roads leading into the capital. Businessmen jammed London's hotels Tuesday night and many strike-weary commuters simply stayed home.

Strikers Want U.S. Jobs

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers called on area members of Parliament Tuesday to speed up the processing of visas that would permit 30 union members on strike against Windsor Utilities Commission to take jobs in Detroit. There is a demand for linemen in the Detroit area and the Canadian workers will earn $2 an hour more in Detroit than their regular wage scale in Windsor. The jobs would last at least for the duration of the Windsor strike.

Threat on Life Alleged

TORONTO (CP) — A Kitchener man testified Tuesday that a Dare Foods Ltd. striker threatened to kill him last summer if he didn't stop his wife from crossing picket lines. Gary Moore said Wayne Zettler choked him "pretty hard" and told him "if she (his wife) didn't stay away from Dare, they were going to kill me." Zettler is one of seven persons charged with contempt of court for alleged harassment of workers crossing picket lines.

Offers Eye to Rival

LONDON (AP) — Former British boxing champion Eric (Golden Boy) Boon has offered one of his eyes to a man going blind — an old opponent he defeated 35 years ago to win the title. Boon learned about the plight of his old friend, Dave Crowley, at a meeti g organising a charity boxing tournament for the 63-year-old ring veteran.

Mother Awarded Child

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court has ruled that a three-year-old girl be taken from her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Feldstein of Toronto, and given to her real mother who has not seen her since infancy. Mr. Justice W. A. Donohue awarded custody of the child Tuesday to Jane Louise Meeves, 38, of nearby Bramalea. "She is entitled to have her child, and the child is entitled to have its mother," Mr. Justice Donohue said.

PARIS (CP) — North Vietnam said today it will resume freeing United States prisoners of war as soon as the Joint Military Commission (JMC) in Saigon guarantees the security of its Communist members in South Vietnam's cities.

A North Vietnamese spokesman, Nguyen Thanh Le, told a news conference that the liberation of prisoners will resume "normally" as soon as the four-member commission has adopted a North Vietnamese "working plan" to safeguard commission personnel.

Le reported Communist protests against attacks on North Vietnamese and Viet Cong members of the commission in Hue and Da Nang.

U.S. State Secretary William Rogers had arranged an urgent meeting with Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh of North Vietnam to demand the resumption of PoW releases. Trinh replayed a request from the Viet Cong's foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, that the meeting be enlarged to include all four signers of the ceasefire agreement, and Rogers agreed.

Boy Killed As Soldiers Return Fire

BELFAST (Reuter) — A 13-year-old boy died in a hospital at Newry in Northern Ireland early today after being shot with gunshot wounds.

The British Army spokesman said that a shot was fired at an army patrol in Newry and the fire was returned, hitting one person.

A crowd gathered and hampered security forces in their investigations. The 13-year-old boy was admitted to a hospital in Newry and died of his wounds.

Today's Chuckle

Said one deer to another; "Gosh, I wish I had his doe."

Mrs. Binh and Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam joined Rogers and Trinh at the International Conference Cevre. It was the first meeting of the four to consider alleged violations.

The outcome of the 12-party conference to endorse the Jan. 27 Vietnam peace agreement hung on the meeting, sought by the U.S. on orders of President Nixon.

Delegates were hopeful the crisis will be resolved permitting the conference to complete its work so that foreign ministers can sign the final declaration by Friday.

Nixon had ordered Rogers to suspend other conference business until North Vietnam clarifies its refusal to go ahead with the release of the next group of U.S. prisoners.

The White House made clear that there will be no further progress toward the conference objective of a guarantee for the ceasefire until the prisoner issue is resolved.

The North Vietnamese delegation left back by saying that those who create "fake difficulties and obstacles" to the work of the conference must assume full responsibility for the consequences.

The prisoner issue is linked to North Vietnam's demand for assurances that all provisions of the ceasefire agreement will be strictly observed.

North Vietnam has alleged widespread violations of the accords by Saigon, encouraged by the United States. The U.S. delegation counter-charged that North Vietnam violated the agreement by introducing artillery, trucks and heavy military equipment into the South.

Diplomatic observers believed that if the problem is not quickly resolved, the conference's final declaration associating the Soviet Union, China and other powers with the Vietnamp peace accord will be delayed Friday. Since the conference might have to recess, Rogers is not expected to stay in Paris beyond this week.

UAW Official Opposes Branch-plant Unionism

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian union movement can no longer hide its head in the sand, dismissing nationalist sentiment, Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said Tuesday.

In an interview, he said larger unions which already have a good degree of autonomy must take the lead in the drive to get a greater degree of autonomy for Canada.

In a recent report to the Canadian UAW council, he said that unless international unions can make some fairly drastic recommendations and adjustments to the needs of current emotions then "the role of international unions is in serious jeopardy".

"Indeed, their very survival as an effective entity is questionable. And if for one do not look forward to that prospect. It is because of my concern for its future that I am indulging in painful self-criticism."

Mr. McDermott said he plans to meet March 8 with UAW international representatives to present his proposals for greater autonomy in the UAW in Canada.

Global unionism will eventually be the only effective answer to the growth of multi-national corporations, he said.

"But the moment of truth, if it hasn't already arrived, is not far away. Genuine international unionism with Canada as a true partner is one thing. Such union with a branch-plant mentality and Canada relegated as an unequal partner, living afterthought is something else."

Steel Union Official Is 'Shocked' by Munro

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — James Griffin, international bargaining chief for the United Steelworkers of America, said Tuesday industry was "shocked and astonished" when he learned Canadian Labor Minister John Munro's suggestion that international unions may no longer be able to represent fairly both Canada and the United States.

Mr. Griffin, responsible for collective agreements negotiated by gaining for the USWA, represented U. W. Abel, the international president of the union, as a banquet here during a seminar by Local 2251 USWA.

Reacting to "the fuss raised" in Canada by Mr. Munro and others over the proposed protectionist Burke-Hartke legislation under consideration in the United States, Mr. Griffin said those who advocate the separation of national unions from international organizations "are so many crackpots."

"They don't understand what this (international union versus multi-national corporations) belligerence is all about," he told 200 delegates and their wives.

Unions have to grow "bigger and tougher" to cope with the multi-national industry, and a more powerful Canadian union is the only answer to companies with massive operations in nations throughout the world, he said.

"I don't think even the government of United States has the power to control multi-national corporations."

The Breath of Music

After its first day, the Rotary Music Festival, say organizers, is turning out to be the best so far. This is the fifth such competition to be sponsored by Rotary. Bayside Public School student Andrew Malcolm was one of more than a hundred competitors in band events held in Centennial Secondary School yesterday. The festival continues this evening in Belleville's Collegiate Institute, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Centennial. Story Page 21.

Ten Hostages Held

Militant Indians Seize Town in South Dakota

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — About 200 members of the American Indian Movement (A.I.M.) were in control of this small town today and were holding about 10 of its residents as hostages, authorities reported. One A.I.M. leader said the Indians have vowed "to die if necessary" unless their demands were met.

He said the demands include:

—The Senate committee headed by senator Ted Kennedy launch an immediate investigation of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the department of the interior for their handling of the Ogallala Sioux nation."

—That Senator William Fulbright investigate the 371 treaties between the federal government and the Indians to show how the government has failed to live up to the terms of each. He says many of the United States never keeps its treaty commitments.

—That the Ogallala Sioux be allowed to elect their own officials. These now in office are just puppets. They need traditionalists."

Camp said it "is symbolic that we have seized Wounded Knee and here it a definite threat that another massacre could occur here."

"We are not going to give in without a fight."

Wounded Knee was the site in 1890 of a bloody battle between Sioux Indians and federal troops in which about 200 Indian men, women and children were killed. The battle marked an end to fighting between Indians and white men in the Dakota Territories.

Camp said the Indians are holding the priest of a Roman Catholic church among the hostages. "The church sits on high ground and gives a commanding view of the area. We have the men and the weapons to hold it."

Camp said a number of the Indians are armed with high-powered rifles. He would not confirm or deny an FBI report that one man was shot Monday and had been taken to hospital.

The A.I.M. leader said the Indians "are not to be harmed or maltreated and they will not be harmed." He said, however, that a number of demands must be met before the town of about 1,000 is vacated and the hostages released.

Irish Vote Expected To Be Close

DUBLIN (CP) — The Irish vote today in a general election following a hectic campaign that attracted more international attention than any in the republic's history and left politicians predicting a neck-and-neck race.

A minority government is the thing both the Irish and the British fear most in attempting to cope with the critical situation in the North—loosed as a defeat possibility, although all party leaders predicted a clear victory for themselves. Prime Minister Jack Lynch forecast that Fianna Fail will take 78 seats and Labor 18 in the 105-seat Dail (parliament) but said he would go ahead and form a minority government if necessary.

An opposition spokesman said "victory is within our grasp" but declined to predict by how many seats.

Slow Payment Brings Query

The city should do something to speed up payment of some of its bills.

That is the feeling of Belleville Alderman Ben Corke, who Monday questioned why some of last year's invoices are getting paid only in February.

The observation came during council perusal of accounts that no less than seven of 13 accounts were for ... bills.

Department officials explained that some of the December bills had not been submitted for approval by respective boards in time for January meetings. Accordingly they had to wait until the February meeting for department approval before they could be sent on to council for payment.

Man Placed On Probation

A Trenton man was given a suspended sentence and probation Tuesday after provincial court Judge J. L. Clendenning convicted him of passing a forged cheque for $121.38 in the Queen's Hotel.

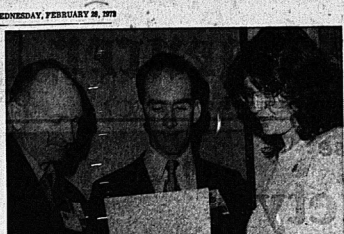
Raymond Davidson, 43, of 89 Byron St., pleaded not guilty to the charge. He had been waited two weeks since his conviction while a pre-sentence report was prepared.

Mr. Davidson and his brother Robert presented Queen's owner Ben Yanover with two paycheques from the Toronto firm of Maxwell's Painting and Decorating last Dec. 5.

The owner of Maxwell's, Walter Bagge, testified about 40 business cheques had been stolen only a few days before.

Robert Davidson, who did most of the talking in the transaction, said he received the cheques and two sets of identification from another man in Trenton.

Raymond, a part-time cleaner with five children, told the court he was too drunk to know what was happening, although he remembered he had not spoken to Mr. Yanover.



His brother faces an uttering charge in Trenton.

Regional Alternatives Presented

Two alternatives to the Oshawa-centered regional government proposal for the area east of metropolitan Toronto are being submitted to the Ontario government.

Monday of this week John Hobicki, Cobourg consultant, with the heads of several local municipalities met with Provincial Treasurer John White with proposals for a Great Pine Ridge region.

This alternative to the government - proposed region would take in eight townships along the lakefront from just west of Newcastle to east of Colborne and include Seymour township at the Hastings-Northumberland border.

Brighton and Murray townships would not be included in the proposed Great Pine Ridge Region, but possible future expansion into Peterborough county north of Rice Lake would be allowed for.

The second alternative, drawn up by planning consultant Derek Little, and approved by Durham and Northumberland Counties council last week will also be presented to the provincial government.

This proposal calls for a unit of regional government proposal announced in December, nine municipalities in East Northumberland, including urban centres of Hastings, Campbellford, Brighton and Colborne would be attached to Hastings County for administration purposes.

Park Plan Presented

Artificial islands, canoe routes, boardwalks and a hotel are among the many proposed developments for Belleville's waterfront park to stretch from the Government Dock at the foot of South Front St. east as far as the Union Carbide Canada Plastics and Chemicals plant at 621 Dundas St. East.

The Belleville Kiwanis Club will undertake aspects of the work starting with a walking path through present park areas. The approved plans were made available to members of the service club Tuesday by the city parks board.

Shoal areas are ultimately to be filled to create lagoons, canoe routes and a bird sanctuary. The artificial islands will be located offshore from the foot of South Foster St. and the foot of Herchimer Ave.

A hiking trail will stretch the length of the park. Boat ramps, a canteen and changing rooms will also be provided. Parking areas are proposed off Dundas St., one just west of and one just east of George St., at the foot of South Foster Ave. and the foot of Herchimer Ave.

More LIP Grants on the Way

A pocketful of projects, as diverse as they are varied in size and cost, are creatively tingling federal coins through Hastings County.

They are various undertakings proceeding under Local Initiative Program funding.

Not that all have realized the dimensions first blueprinted by their originators.

But the various projects proferred by community and civic groups and individuals so far have won approval totalling about $200,000 in federal financing.

More submissions have yet to be approved, indicate a Belleville official of Canada Manpower, which processes LIP projects locally.

Hence it will be some time yet before the total of LIP grants in city and county emerges for 1973 — a year in which local response to the program is described in the superlative by Manpower counsellor Susan Brail: Some 50 applications, totalling around $1-million were originally submitted by LIP's March 31 deadline.

To date, 13 formal approvals have come through from LIP, totalling almost $185,000 creating about 85 jobs. Some applicants also have received indication of approval, although official endorsation has yet to be received at the Manpower Centre.

The unusually large number of applications generally means a higher attrition rate, indicates Mrs. Brail of Manpower counsellor now assigned to local LIP ventures.

"The response was tremendous — and, unfortunately, because of the deadline we're going to be more disappointed people."

As yet, it's difficult to define just what percentage of the original $1-million request total will materialize. LIP's response pattern has been as varied as the projects submitted. Some have been refused.

Others have been approved — but on a reduced scale, thus whittling down the total at deadline.

For instance, a scheme to help youngsters with learning disabilities in the schools requested more than $100,000, and proposed putting 46 people to work. It was approved officially for $23,000, creating 10 jobs.

The Quinte-Hastings Trail, created entirely with LIP grants of more than $130,000 last winter, this year was refused $73,000.

A community medical centre at Madoc was first turned down on its request for LIP funds. Since then, an appeal and proposed petition of 6,000 Robert Andras and top LIP officials, $20,000 is on its way.

No single large-scale employment project has emerged. The work teams have been scaled from three to 11 on the undertakings so far endorsed. The variety of work appears to bear closely to a basic LIP criterion of community benefit. Already some have drawn comment and criticism which have become a side feature of LIP.

So far, funds also are being spent on a broad mix of undertakings ranging from boys' camp improvements to creative teaching aids in the Bancroft area; nursery school and day care centres at Stirling and Belleville; a history compilation of Wicker township; a citizens' complaint bureau in Belleville.

At Maynooth, Catholic and United Church pastors got together to produce a program of repairs to local church properties, important in community activities in north Hastings. The ecumenical venture won the largest LIP grant to date — $29,500 — and put 11 men on construction work.

The projects also must be administered on a business-like basis since the participants "have a contract to fulfill" says Mrs. Broll. A LIP grant is "no outright gift".

Each project has to file monthly interim reports, outlining activities, goals and predicted financial outlays.

Gordon Crawford, who's also finds those administering their projects in the field are "scrupulously careful to do no everything right".

Nonetheless, people must be given freedom in their undertakings. "You don't want to stifle anybody's projects".

As for success, Mrs. Broll says "definitely more approvals" will be received.

PECI Wins Close One

PICTON — The Prince Edward Collegiate Institute safety quiz team yesterday defeated rivals from Belleville high school in Ottawa in a tight contest conducted among the final rungs on the ladder in a provincial championship. The competition, sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, was held in the lecture room of PECI.

The PECI team retained its championship to date by beating the Ottawa opponents with a final score of 22 to 20 points. This was the closest game yet recorded for the winning team of Dennis Conley, Mark Vincent, John Whitemkamp, George Wandless, and standby Jim Harrington.

Moderator for the contest was James Dunlop of Corby Distilleries and judges were Ted Levigne of CFB Trenton and Alan Grieve of Ottawa.

The PECI team was low at the close of the contest's first quarter with a score of 30 to 45 in favor of Merivale. A series of 15 tossup questions provided an opportunity to take the lead and at half time the PECI was ahead with a score of 115 to 90 points.

At the end of the third quarter the margin widened to a score of 165 to 148.

The victorious PECI campaigners will visit Toronto next week where they will meet the Humber-Don Valley champions in competition.

Coach for the local team is PECI teacher Roy Gourley of Picton.

Evaluation Program Explained

PICTON — Director of the ERAS (Education Resources Allocation System) task force, D. Lawless, Monday told Prince Edward school trustees this program, in an era of competition for provincial resources and social services, provides a significant challenge for educators at all levels.

At a special meeting of board members, teachers and parents at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Mr. Lawless said the ERAS project here will span a three-year period, probably finishing in the spring or summer of 1975. The Prince Edward County board of education was one of three pilot boards chosen recently for the program which invites "input" from local residents.

Mr. Lawless said the phases of ERAS enacted here will include an attempt to describe where resources now are going, an examination of objectives and alternatives and implementation and evaluation.

His task force has several prime objectives, among them the job of working with 14 Ontario school boards now to develop an ERAS with planning, programming, budgeting and evaluation alternate methods of achievement and allocation of available resources must be established, he said. Hopefully, a guidebook on ERAS can be published and the program found adaptable to various schools in Ontario.

Constructive and valid "input" for the ERAS program is sought through close work between the task force, trustees, teachers and parents and students.

Mr. Lawless said the best decisions are based on the best information. The ERAS project supports decision-making but the persons involved in the school system are actually responsible for the decisions.

The task force director commented each of the individual schools, hopefully, will be allowed some freedom of operation within the broad goals of the board.

He emphasized the single goal of utilization of available resources for the best possible education of youth in the schools today.

Prince Edward County has gained an early start in the ERAS program and progress has been made. Now trustees are required to make certain decisions in the areas of initial emphasis and public input.

"To a degree we are breaking new ground," said Mr. Lawless, who added he knew of no school system on this continent with a fully phased ERAS program.

He expressed hopes for a program peculiar to Ontario and said it would likely prove acceptable from a group of 2,500 students to a body of more than 100,000.

Carl Reid, project co-ordinator for ERAS in Prince Edward reported "very considerable progress" since the program became a reality last November. He said public awareness of its meaning has increased and he has promoted it through a series of 12 meetings with all county teachers.

A special need now exists for "the best possible balanced relationship between education planning and available finance," according to Mr. Reid.

Through ERAS, teachers and principals have a professional opportunity to participate to a greater degree and to take part in decision making.

Mr. Reid said community response to participation in ERAS has been good and persons appointed, with one exception, have agreed to provide input. In less than two months approximately two persons will meet regularly to discuss some phase of county education.

The co-ordinator noted he has encountered a problem in describing, in a limited way, the relation of education programs to dollar education. Some persons, however, feel certain education programs have such a profound effect there is no real dollar value for them.

Mr. Reid observed some persons think the development of the ERAS should be accomplished swiftly. He said if this were true no task force would be needed. It is important to introduce information at the proper time and in the proper context of usefulness.

Complacency can create a problem since the project officer sometimes is asked why the present system is being investigated if there is nothing wrong with it.

Mr. Reid described Prince Edward as "extremely fortunate" to be a pilot project of ERAS and remarked on the task force's co-operation with him and also the 'on' supervision of John McNeil, Prince Edward County director of education.

Keeping Eye on the Boys

Paulette Seltenrich is surrounded by young admirerers of the 19th Belleville-Tyendinaga cub pack. The Shannonville group, which already has 10 members, was presented with its charter Sunday after being organized just before Christmas. Mrs Seltenrich is one of many women in charge of Belleville district packs.

Past Chairmen Have High Hopes

PICTON — Three past chairmen of the Prince Edward County board of education who are now members of the ERAS planning committee Monday stated their views' on the project.

George Bowyer of Ameliasburgh termed it in its "formative years" and predicted "wonderful things" ahead.

Bloomfield's Hallowell trustee Edward Rutter stressed the board's willingness to examine the educational needs of the county, hopefully with full co-operation from the public through needed input.

He cautioned that not too many priorities should be placed on which should come first, "otherwise we'll need for balance was urged by him.

ERAS came at the right time for the board to say 'Let's take a look at where we are going and how we are going to achieve these aims'," he said.

Mr. Rutter added the project would proceed "cautiously."

James Ploneer, a North Marysburgh trustee, said he has been amazed by the lack of more sharply defined aims in the education system. ERAS will completely analyze the education system. Aims should be re-checked before priorities are defined.

Mr. Ploneer said the ERAS study should include the considered opinions of parents, students and teachers. The public also will be needed at ERAS meetings or can incorporate their thoughts in briefs.

He suggested seven aims in education which he said he felt the county is recognizing.

ANAF News Report

Units 227 and 229 London, Ontario were hosts over the weekend to the Provincial quarterly meeting of the Ontario Command, ANAF. Since adopting the constitution and bylaws as laid down for units, the Ladies Auxiliaries in Ontario now attend quarterly meetings to coincide with those of the units.

Hosted by Unit 229 were delegates, president Hank Ford, vice-president Dad Ford along with J. G. Lundberg representing Dominion Command and vice - president, Provincial Command, R. G. Burns. A full report will be made by your delegates at the next general meeting to be held on Thursday, March 1.

Headed by Provincial Vice-President, Alice Sjoerns Jr. with June Newlands as acting president/Past President Gladys Fitzgerald, Elizabeth Lundberg and Jean Gannon, the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Ladies Auxiliary No. 49 joined other zone units from the province at the quarterly meeting hosted by Unit 227, London Ont.

At the last monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary No. 49 plans were laid for their annual potluck supper and auction to be held in the near future. This is an annual event eagerly looked forward to by so many members so keep an eye out for the date to be announced soon. One new member was initiated at the meeting. Mrs. Edith Sylvester. Two members are in hospital in Kingston, Mrs. Eileen Sills in Hotel Dieu and Mrs. June Walker in KGH. The Ladies Dart League standing for the month is as follows: Jets 4½; Angels 42; Big 4s 37 and Misfits 32. Peg Ronsky has high three darts for the league at 714.

Entertainment Chairman, Glen Denike is to be commended on his choice of musical entertainment as Joe Lewis thrilled his audience on both Friday and Saturday nights with his versatile songs and music. Saturday, March 3 the Sister Act with Country Stylemen with admission $2 a couple. Tickets are now on sale at the bar and you are advised to pick them up early to avoid disappointment at the door. The weekend dances will be helped tremendously by the efficient services of floorman Ernie Lowe who certainly sees that everyone is looked after at their tables. That red vest of his can be seen darting around all evening and will be the dress for Saturday March 17 is the question a lot of members will be waiting to have answered.

It was with deep and sincere regret the members of Unit 229 learned of the passing of Kenneth Edgecombe. He joined the Unit in 1946 and served on several chairmanships as well as secretary. Elected president in 1956, re-elected in 1957 and elected again in 1961, he was awarded the Dominion Life Membership. The sympathies of the members are extended to his family.

The weekly Saturday afternoon dart doubles results are as follows: 1st round winners, Rod Salter and Jack Fitzgerald; runners up — D. Watts and R. Hay. 2nd round winners: Bob Telford and Rod Salter; runners up Cash Mc-Duff and Paul Pelletier. 3rd round winners: Bob Bero and Rod Salter; runners up F. Telford and Dick Thomson. 4th round winners: R. Mansfield and Ken Dayton with Chuck Lloyd and Harry Farnell as runners up.

With so many members away at the quarterly meeting, the Saturday night mixed darts were not held. The sports chairman announced the next mixed darts would be held on Saturday March 10 commencing at 8 p.m., so make a note of the date.

It has been brought to the attention of your publicity chairman that in the pastime of two past presidents of the U.S.A., he ANAF has lost two friends. Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Paulette Runs New Cub Pack

SHANNONVILLE — As cub scout leaders go, Paulette Seltenrich is somewhat atypical.

First of all, she seldom wears shorts and when she does, the effect does not call up memories of Lord Baden Powell.

Secondly she has her own method of discipline that spurns parental reprimands for patient, unperturbed logic.

"I get along with the boys pretty well," the 24-year-old Shannonville resident says. "They get a little rowdy sometimes so I give them a sharp word — like telling them to remember the importance of behavior they made when they were indoors. That brings them right back into line."

As Akela of 19th Belleville-Tyendinaga Cub pack, Mrs. Seltenrich was at the hub of Sunday's charter presentation to Belleville district's newest group. Wearing an uncool-like skirt she kept her knees in tasteful eye as they relished a pop and doughnut feast following the presentation.

She decided to take the leader-ess job after hearing there was an opening when she enlisted in Brantford, Ont., a year ago.

A former girl guide, Mrs. Seltenrich comes from a family of scouting enthusiasts, her father being a scoutmaster and her brother also active in the movement.

At the moment, there are only 10 members in the pack, but district commissioner Arnold Welch, who handed over the charter in Holy Trinity Church, said youngsters from the western end of Tyendinaga Indian Reserve were being urged to join with the blessing of Chief Earl Hill. There is already one boy from the reserve in the 19th.

The pack was reorganized by community members after it folded up in Melrose following a year ago.

Sponsored by Jan Brandsma, it is to meet regularly in Shannonville public school and officials hope to form a troop for 11- to 14-year-olds later this year.

Education Must Be 'Meaningful'

PICTON — One of the major challenges confronting educators today is to create situations so meaningful that they will not become "detached knowledge."

Prince Edward County director of education, John McNeil Monday told school trustees students may follow specific programs of courses or other teachings through the school week but it is no guarantee they will continue in real life situations.

The director also mentioned teachers must ask themselves what backup material they require professionally to achieve their goals. They may be faced with priorities at times in their work.

Teacher warmth and precision are two of the most important ingredients in education systems according to the theory of Dr. David Pratt, an educator quoted in his views by Mr. McNeil.

Mr. McNeil touched on ERAS, noting he has designated it with all kindergarten to grade eight teachers in the county and will speak with secondary school teachers here soon.

He observed some seem fearful of change, since it is always suspect, but suggested the present movement perhaps may seek to confirm what teachers already are doing.

- The relationship of the Board to the Ministry of Labour;
- The safety functions of the Board and the Ministry of Labour;
- The composition, size and responsibilities of the Board, itself;
- The role of the Workmen's advisers;
- Retirement benefits and attendance credits for employees and Board members.

Written submissions are welcomed by the Task Force. While the deadline for written submissions is March 30, the Task Force would appreciate receiving the submissions earlier if it is possible. In Brazil They Build Roads and Schools

Role of the Military in National Development

BY JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The participation of the Canadian armed forces in a post-truce Vietnam detracts from a wider and so far little-considered role for the Canadian military establishment at home.

This is a deeper military involvement in what Prime Minister Trudeau has called "national development," part of his first foreign policy priority of April, 1969.

The idea of using a primarily technically-equipped force-to-being for an infrastructure role in Canada's North and Arctic comes as a "revolutionary" development, not only to many in the armed forces but to a public at large which is fed up with the high costs of a Canadian military establishment.

Both the Canadian and world experience, putting a disciplined military force to work on national projects is not new. In Canada, the Royal Engineers in the 1850s when they built the Rideau Canal, and in the early 1900s, when they built the Cariboo Trail were committed to "national development."

The Rideau Canal admittedly had military overtones, to connect Ottawa, a capital distant from the American border with the rest of the colony of Upper Canada.

The Cariboo Trail had no such military commitment. It was, what a larger role of the Canadian armed forces could be in our North today, a major assist to opening up the land—permitting settlers and settlement to take place.

In our own times, as Canadian armed forces spokesmen will tell you, the armed forces have already had a substantial "infrastructure" role. The last duty of the famous, lumbering Lancaster wartime bombers in the early 1950s was the complete aerial mapping of the Canadian Arctic.

In 1946, with the cold war upon us, Operation Musk Ox was the first modern military manoeuvre in the Arctic, military it is true, but with clear overtones of a permanent, non-adversary military commitment in the North.

Today the language and intentions of futuristic politicians and some younger military officers suggest wider roles than these. Who is better-equipped with planning engineering, medical, and planning support services to build "seed bed towns" in the Arctic than the Canadian armed forces ?

Peru's military is largely committed to economic and social development, the country's largest "commercial airline" is operated by the Peruvian air force to Peru's numerous jungle and Andean towns, even has a Canadian-built STOL aircraft.

For decades, the Seventh Division of the Brazilian Army, has been assigned completely to road, railway and even school building.

In Nigeria, an army trained on the same British principles of discipline, aid to the civil power as our own, has undertaken developmental commitments.

The inference for those senior officers in all armies who would sooner fight than build, is that most would say today, (other than those involved in Middle East and Asian Wars), are utilized for peaceful purposes.

The Latin Americans call that role "civic action." The Indonesians who send military missions to our National Defence College to study Canadian development methods call it economic development.

In the long run, the Arctic, not Vietnam or Cyprus is where this costly, but well-trained establishment could primarily serve.

In the Open

The subject of abortion is one which in these liberalized days is recognized and discussed with much greater freedom than in times past. We see for instance that Belleville has one of the lowest abortion rates in Ontario and while we have no particular comment to make on that the fact is abortion remains a topic of some controversy.

Perhaps apart the moral implications of heightened permissiveness, when its consequences result in new life, with the birth of children, it is then that the whole issue becomes clouded. To give birth or to abort is the question and the answers vary greatly according to circumstances. In some cases it is in the best interests of all — and specifically the mother, and taking all the family circumstances into consideration — to permit an abortion. Some hospitals — and Belleville's is one of them — have committees which determine this matter. Some jurisdictions, notably New York, go even further by having legalized abortion.

Paramount though — and this is where there is some confused thinking — is the matter of the rights of the unborn person. The fetus, the embryo life in the making inside a mother's womb — does it have any rights? The answer in our view is that here is life in the making, the process of creation that results in children being born. There has to be a beginning, and this is it. Who knows, when it is aborted, what potential in terms of human flesh and blood — average man or woman or genius — is being denied a full and useful life in this world. What if some of the great people of world society had been denied life in this manner?

Thus is the potential for life observed by argument over the mortality of the act of abortion itself. Perhaps what is most needed in this perplexing matter is a return to greater personal discipline — not a return to the Victorian code of morality, but simply a more responsible attitude to one's fellow human beings, to life and to society as a whole. This should include of course an understanding of and adherence to modern concepts of family planning, whether in or out of the marital state.

Research Into Colds

Attention Ottawa, those awful Americans are really stealing a march on you, but it is all in the interests of science and their fellow man!

After all, who would not be in the debt of the United States — or any country for that matter — if its researchers finally came up with a cure for the common cold, not to mention influenza.

Before us is a note from Donald O. Prasser, M.D. of Bakersfield, California, who heads a body trying to educate people to the fact that research can eliminate colds and flu. With the note is a letter to the editor.

The letter calls on Americans to write to Congress and the President in support of the monetary research. For Canadians, as for U.S. editors, there is a reply envelope for clippings of any publicity given and completed with an 8-cent U.S. stamp.

Well we are certainly happy to put in our eight cents worth of Canadian postage in the interests of this worthy research. Dr. Prasser, who is chairman of the board of the Committee to End Colds and Flu, notes that colds and flu represent the nation's most costly infectious disease. The U.S. public health department estimates Americans will spend $350,000,000 this year on "useless cold remedies." Furthermore $6 to $10 billion will be lost in the United States alone due to absenteeism from colds and flu.

Colds, Dr. Prasser goes on, are well-known as forerunners to much more serious ailments, and along with flu they can leave organs such as the heart and lungs permanently weakened. "Add to this that each cold shortens your life a bit. Multiply this by the number of colds in a lifetime."

It is all rather scary, especially when you cast your mind back to that last cold and recall that you thought it would never end. And up to that point you had prided yourself on having few colds.

Dr. Prasser's message in brief then, is simple. He believes research into the common cold and its associated ailments is greatly lacking. We commend his letter to Health Minister Lalonde in Ottawa. It may be that more could be done to ward off this pernicious bug rather than waiting for it to strike, then stuffing ourselves with medication knowing full well the nasty visitation will run its course anyway.

In 1932 A Family Could Live On $4.10 A Week

BY DON O'BEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

This impressed me:

"In Ontario most relief applicants had to turn in their liquor permits before aid was issued. Usually the telephone had to be disconnected, and licence plates or driver's licence handed in to the municipality to guarantee that the taxpayers' money was not financing the luxury of an alcoholic.

"Any undisclosed revenues, or in Saskatchewan, assets like a secret hoard of grain, were cause for relief being cut off. Accepting a job, of course, or refusing to accept a suitable job, meant an end to relief.

"To have purchased beer or liquor in Saskatchewan resulted in the immediate termination of aid, and to make sure that it was not being cheated the Saskatoon Relief Board issued press releases urging citizens to come forward with information on cheating families.

"There were embittered citizens who needed no urging to inform on relievers. Perhaps it was because of this bitterness that many of the destitute had to sign agreements to put back everything they were given.

"In 1932 it was calculated that $6.57 was the minimum amount of money needed to provide a well-balanced diet for an Ontario family of five. A survey of relief schedules across Canada found a maximum weekly food budget for a family of five of $7.80 a minimum of $4.10."

These quotations were taken from a book The Wretched in Canada made up of a selection of letters written to R. B. Bennett and edited and compiled by L. M. Grayson and Michael Bliss.

There were two reasons they made such an impression.

One was that I had just read that the Committee on Poverty had held a convention at which was proposed every family in Canada should have an annual minimum income of $6,800 a year.

The second was that I had been told a story which I really don't confirm but still believe as a childless couple. The husband is a lawyer making about $20,000 a year. The wife also works, at an income of about $11,000 a year.

The wife became unemployed, perhaps through boredom, and then started collecting unemployment insurance of $100 a week.

Nobody would really deny that in our healthy society anybody should starve, or go without out at least an adequate supply of life's essentials.

But at the same time there is really no social obligation to give a $20,000 lawyer's wife unemployment insurance, and also it would seem to be an exercise of intelligence to look back only 40 years now and appreciate what conditions were and just how much we have gone ahead since then.

Booth Radio and Television. That was back in 1935.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Arthur Orton, the Tichborne claimant, was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment for perjury today in 1874—at London. For several years he had made himself out to be Roger Tichborne, last at sea in 1854. Tichborne's mother, never believing her son was dead, had advertised around the world, thus suggesting the impostor. The real, long-lost Tichborne 'family money in court, it was thrown out after a 100-day trial. Orton was then charged with perjury and convicted in a trial lasting 188 days. It was the sensation of the year in London.

1826—A hurricane killed 11 persons on Mauritius Island in the Indian Ocean.

1858—A restaurant in Chatham, Ont., was fined $20 for refusing to serve two Negro students.

1954— Fourteen persons were killed in Cairo riots as Egypt's feuding military leaders tried to re-establish order.

Ulster Steps Up Recreation Program

Ulster Commentary

Given a special boost by the Government's Development Program for the 5-year period up to 1975, the Ministry's plans for capital expenditure on sport and other forms of physical recreation and on the youth service now envisage a public investment of some £10 million in these facilities over the next few years.

Perhaps the most important feature of this capital program is the provision of multi-sport complexes with very substantial indoor provision. Traditionally provision for sport has been concentrated on outdoor games pitches and secondarily recently on indoor swimming pools. These, of course, have not been forgotten.

About 30 new schemes for playing fields and changing accommodation and another 100 for children's playgrounds are in progress or are expected to be carried out soon. Indeed with the special help available to local authorities under the Urban and Rural Improvement Campaign many more schemes could well be carried out in line with the recommendation of the Youth and Sports Council for Northern Ireland that local authorities should ensure that such basic facilities as playgrounds, kick-about areas, playing pitches and changing accommodation are available in sufficient quantity and to satisfactory standards within their areas.

Swimming pools have been approved for Andersonstown, Bushmills, Castlereagh, Coalisland, Dungannon, Keady and Limavady and others are expected to be in operation by 1975.

A special feature of provision by local education authorities will be the development of outdoor centres in parts of Northern Ireland offering good facilities for physical activities like hill-walking and canoeing as well as for field studies.

There are now eight centres designated for outdoor activities or field studies fully staffed and operated by local education authorities as well as a number of others providing only hostel accommodation for school parties and some centres belonging to individual schools or co-operatively to groups of schools. Normally a single class from a secondary school will occupy one of the major centres for a week and in addition to its own teachers, who will be in residence with it, the centre will provide specialist instructors in its activities.

During the summer holidays each local education authority now organizes a varied activities scheme offering suitable games, hikes, camps and other activities to school children on holidays. These activities are normally centred on primary or secondary schools but may also be co-operation with local youth clubs.

Too Many Chiefs?

Kingston Whig - Standard

A former teacher, school principal and guidance counsellor claims that Ontario schools are badgered and burdened by too many administrators. Writing recently of a situation which has long been with us in this province, R. L. Harshaw warned the Minister of Education, Thomas Wells, that he had better do something about it before "a shortage of chiefs is ruled under-staff."

For example, Mr. Harshaw told of how, as a principal, he tried to help a new history teacher in his room with problems of discipline. The new teacher's predecessor had left the class with the impression that the principal was prepared to give it a free hand. But the county school board suddenly stepped in with the claim that all new teachers deserved more supervision. Principals and vice-principals were told to inspect their new staff members. Those who inspected the new history teachers were not themselves history specialists. They all descended on the class on the same morning and he resigned on the spot.

The point of course, in this article, is not a teacher into classes of 40 pupils. A class that big is certainly a recipe for disciplinary troubles", but all the boards can do is hire more administrators. And administrators cost money: The number of administrative executives although they don't have equal responsibility with the Ontario Teachers' Federation to back them in their demands for higher pay, they can drag it out for months or even years. A plea of manager trouble it would be fired.

A hot issue at the moment is the number of principals that they have something to say about the number of teachers hired so that smaller classes will be possible. The boards say no, it would be too costly. The disciplinary problems continue and the increase in administrators is justified in the eyes of the boards.

Duplications of effort appears to be added to the mounting cost and expense. Mr. Harshaw points out that the boards hire their own subject consultants "to give the teachers even more help. These staff are executive salaries and cost the Ontario taxpayer hundreds." In turn, these consultants "are deducting a part of the teaching moment which already has offices all over the 'province staffed with consultants."

Why is it impossible for government to call a halt to see how crazily careless they are with the people's money and saving sens, to remedy the situation? Most of our tax troubles could be solved if this kind of vision could miraculously be distributed among the elected representatives we so hopefully — or it is, rather, blindly? — choose at election time to govern us.

Energy Board Keeps Eye on Oil Stocks

Granby La Voix de l'Est: To avoid any oil shortage in Canada, the federal government will keep a closewatch over Canadian exports to the United States.

The National Energy Board will intervene when necessary, to make sure that Canadians will themselves have the needed oil at their disposal.

It is said in Ottawa that without this measure, we would not have the assurance that production and transport capacities would be adequate for next month.

The American demand is so great at the moment that oil companies have difficulty to fill the country's own consumption needs. In fact, the American demand exceeds the Canadian production capacity.

The government . . . must intervene to protect the Canadian population.

However, it remains to be seen whether the industry will not try to take advantage of the situation to increase oil prices.

This abnormal demand for oil must not be a reason for imposing higher prices on the Canadian consumers. They already pay enough for this product. . .

Tariff Cuts Threaten Canadian Food Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — Tariff reductions on imported food products announced in the Feb. 19 budget will "cut the very heart" out of some parts of the Canadian food producing and processing industry, Conservative farm critic Harold Danforth said Tuesday.

Mr. Danforth (Kent—Essex) told the Commons that the budget tariff reductions applied to imported meat and out-of-season fruits and vegetables have upset the farm industry "as I've never seen it before."

The government had obviously "pressed the panic button" in its worry about rising food costs, he said, referring to the sayings the tariff cuts should bring to consumers. But it had failed to realize the disruption the cuts would trigger in the farm and processing industries and the unemployment they would cause.

Mr. Danforth spoke on the fifth day of the sticky debate on Finance Minister John Turner's latest budget.

Mr. Danforth said Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan couldn't have been consulted when the tariff reductions were put into the budget. The minister knew the disastrous effects the cuts would have, particularly on the fruit and vegetable business.

Mr. Whelan said earlier in the debate the government will intervene if any farmers are hard hit by the reductions. Mr. Danforth said the same assurance was given years ago when duties were taken off imported tomatoes. Now there was no sheep industry in Canada and the country relied on imports from New Zealand.

New Democrat Ed Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) reiterated his party's contention that the budget would be "not perfect, moves in our kind of direction."

The NDP would have made a $200 across-the-board income-tax cut rather than the proposed range between $100 and $500. Such a reduction would have been fairer, treating all people the same.

And while the NDP supported reductions in the federal sales tax on children's clothing, the party would have worked to get rid of all sales taxes.

Bill Kempling (PC—Halton-Wentworth) said the flood of businessmen over the budget is "is one of anger." There was no mention of small business, secondary industry or the service industries.

The Liberal minority government was emerging as an anti-business government, it demonstrated "how far left the government has gone to accommodate the NDP."

Jean-R. Roy (L—Timmins) said the budget would be approved by the vast majority of Canadians, to the chagrin of the opposition. But a committee should be established to keep an eye on the various tax regulations so no abuses would be committed because of the complications involved.

John Wise (PC—Elgin) said the budget showed the huge distance that still exists between the ivory towers and those at the grass-roots level. Little attention had been paid to agriculture, which was declining steadily, and he said the government should have removed the sales tax on building materials.

Stan Darling (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) called for a renewed effort to stem th decline in rural population. If present trends go unchecked and Commons representation remains on the same basis as at present, he said, 238 of the 264 MPs in the Commons will come from a handful of urban centres.

"Something must be done to halt this and to provide a way of life for people who want to remain in their home areas."

Education Policy Backed

Report Urges Quebec Integrate Immigrants

QUEBEC (CP) — Programs designed to integrate immigrants into French-Canadian life and "selective" immigration are recommended in the third volume of the Gendron commission report, tabled in the Quebec national assembly Tuesday.

The report also recommends the government appoint an ombudsman to protect immigrants' rights, adopt a human rights charter and set up a human rights commission to guard against violations and all forms of discrimination.

The first two volumes of the report on the use of the French-language also tabled in the national assembly Tuesday, were leaked earlier to Montreal Le Devoir.

They recommended that French become the official and working language of Quebec but that English retain legal status as a "national" language and that there be no change in legislation allowing parents to determine their child's language of instruction.

Since coming to power in 1970, Premier Robert Bourassa has said no language policy would be prepared until the Gendron report was concluded.

When the report appeared, Education Minister Francois Cloutier said it would be a major part of any such policy but the government was not bound by it and could go farther if necessary.

The report's recommendation that no immediate changes be made in education legislation fuelled an attack by government critics who believe immigrants opt for the English system and should be forced to go to French schools.

In Ottawa, Howard Graffety (PC—Brome-Missisquoi) said the report will probably force the federal government to reconsider its bilingual districts proposals.

Prime Minister Trudeau had indicated, when the first two volumes of the report appeared, that the federal government would be examining it to detect where recommendations might impinge on federal jurisdiction.

The Gendron report recommends setting up a permanent federal-provincial committee to improve immigrant recruitment by keeping Ottawa "aware" of Quebec's needs and priorities, channelling more complete information on Quebec to overseas immigration offices and streamlining immigration procedures in order to steer suitable immigrants toward Quebec.

The report also recommends the Quebec government support ethnic publications financially, using them to inform foreign grants on French-Canadian culture, job opportunities and how to adjust to new institutions and customs.

The third volume also touches on the language rights of native peoples, recommending that Indians be educated on their own reserves and Eskimos within their own territory, with French-language instruction being introduced gradually into their school systems.

It suggests they be encouraged to conduct business co-operatively in French, but be left free to choose their language of work.

All derogatory and discriminatory references to Indians and Eskimos should be stricken from Quebec textbooks, it says.

The Gendron report is the work of a five-man royal commission headed by Jean-Denis Gendron, a Laval University linguistics professor.

Whelan Says Lower Tariffs Won't Affect Farm Incomes

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, attempting to cool a hotbed of discontent in the horticultural industry, said Tuesday night tariff cuts on imported food, announced in the Feb. 19 budget can be "put back on just as fast as we took them off."

He told the Canadian Horticultural Council annual meeting that tariff reductions on many imported farm products will have little effect on Canadian farmers' incomes.

And, he said three times during the speech, "I will not hesitate to recommend appropriate changes should difficulties arise with specific commodities."

Members of the council, which represents a wide range of interests from vegetable and fruit growers to wine-makers and processors, decided earlier Tuesday to march on Parliament Hill today to protest the tariff cuts.

In the budget, the government acted to eliminate customs duties for most fruits and vegetables during the off-season in Canada. Tariffs will be levied when Canadian products come onto the market.

Mr. Whelan said the tariffs affect goods that are either "non-competitive or marginally competitive with seasonal or natural Canadian production." They affected commodities that are imported to be sold mainly when they are not grown in Canada.

He said some of the changes "simply remove or reduce tariffs which were set up for protecting our industries, but were there long after they were needed." Others taken off were "really more of a nuisance than a protection."

Other tariff cuts would benefit Canadian farmers. Reductions on tariffs for imported baskets, saws, vises, chisels, screwdrivers, hammers, crowbars and other tools would make them cheaper for Canadians.

Mr. Whelan's remarks appeared to be well received by the council. However, they still planned to meet him and Finance Minister John Turner today to press their concerns.

Departing from his prepared text, Mr. Whelan said at one point that the government will continue to maintain strict regulations on food imports.

Distributors "had better make damn well sure they bring it just as high a quality as that in Canada or we're not going to allow them to distribute—not at all."

Fireworks Ban Limited

OTTAWA (CP) — Retail merchants and the public have been advised by the federal government that regulations passed last September do not ban all types of fireworks.

A government spokesman said Tuesday that there was confusion about the regulations which banned sale of fireworks to the general public but which allow sale of display fireworks on a restricted basis persons .18 years of age and over.

Firecrackers are defined as fireworks whose sole purpose is to create noise. Display fireworks, including rockets and "bombshells" can be bought by responsible organizations and persons who have obtained local authorization.

Roman candles, sparklers and pinwheels are included in the family fireworks that can be bought at retail stores.

E. J. Fraser, chief of the explosives division of the energy department, said many retailers across Canada who had stocks left over last year thought they had to destroy all fireworks.

He said that while manufacturers were not confined to regulations, they had found a noticeable drop in business in orders from retail outlets. The industry had been in touch with the government on the matter, he added.

Racist Literature Assailed

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative MP said Tuesday that an association made up of "nuts, crazy people" is distributing racist literature to some opposition members of the Commons.

Peter Reilly of Ottawa West said the Canadian Loyalist Association mailed literature containing warnings that a movement is under way to have French-Canadians take over the country.

He made his comments outside the House after eliciting a promise from Postmaster-General Andre Ouellet in the Commons that he will investigate the situation.

Mr. Reilly told reporters a number of the pamphlets he has received have been signed by a woman from Montreal with an apparent French-Canadian name.

He said the pamphlets go "back to the Plains of Abraham and before" to offer alleged proof that the French are inferior to other Canadians.

He had raised the matter because he felt some action might be taken, perhaps under Criminal Code obscenity provisions, to halt distribution of the material through the mail.

"I find it highly objectionable."

Budget's Last Test Is Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The minority Liberal government faces its third and final test of the six-day budget debate today when the Commons votes on a motion to approve Finance Minister John Turner's fiscal and economic proposals for the next fiscal year.

Continuing New Democratic support of such items as tax and tariff cuts and pension increases leaves little doubt the government will survive without trouble. The 149-111 defeat Monday of a Conservative budget amendment was a clear indication of this.

Art's Role in Man's Life Discussed at NSA Meet

Art plays an important part in man's existence, but it can play an even greater part in our educational system, according to Murray Irwin, vice-principal of Centennial Secondary School, and former president of the Quinte Arts Council.

Mr. Irwin addressed the February meeting of the Quinte Chapter of the National Secretaries Association pointing out that the arts call on man's creative imagination, self discipline and judgment; all qualities which have a place in education and daily life.

Using slides and sound recordings, Mr. Irwin reviewed the transition of the arts from the middle ages to modern times.

The speaker's closing remarks pointed out how modern society is making the public aware of the arts, and making it possible for everyone to enjoy them. Quinte Arts Council serves this purpose locally.

During the business portion of the meeting, the Program Chairman announced that the March meeting will take the form of a mini-workshop, the NSA seminary will be held on April 7 and Secretaries Week is April 22 to 28.

The Committee for the Future Secretaries Association proposed a scholarship for a secondary school commercial student belonging to an NSA chapter. The motion received strong support from members.

Mr. Bay of Quinte Chapter members. Business secretaries in Belleville, Trenton and the Quinte district are invited to attend this informative seminar on April 7, 1973 at Bayside Secondary School. Men's Fashions Undergo Elegant Transition

Men's fashions are on an even keel now. The way-out designs, sloppy looks crash styles and the anything goes dressing have managed a transition to contemporary elegance without going overboard into preciousness.

This is especially true in casual clothes. This spring-into-summer, one watchword is that comfortable but smart sports and leisure-wear clothes are a welcome addition to their wardrobe.

Seersucker is suddenly a man's fabric in 100 percent texturized polyester, with less stretch. The fabric comes in ice cream checks, very much in line with the pale pastels that are the top colors in women's spring fashions.

Actually, of course, it's the fashion-conscious young men and the older sophisticates who will take quickly to the new pales. For the more casual classes, men who usually broke into bright bold plaids during the last few seasons, the plaids still continue in popularity, both in the straight long jackets and the banded Eisenhower style. For ultra - conservatives, there's still sufficient browns and Gingham, too, has become a manly shirting check and, along with chambrays, is featured by Before Six. Says the B. J. Kaplan; "If you're gung-ho for gingham you'll love checkmate collection. One style features jumbo checks on the body shirt with a mini version for collar cuffs."

And for spring, wide wale cotton corduroy is still ideal for casual jackets. It comes in plain shades and a neat print.

New Math or 'Arithmetic' It Still Adds Up

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The new math and the fuzzy-looking exercises in grade school arithmetic books are apparently still causing nervous tremors among Canadian parents.

Winston Bates says that's a situation that should never have occurred. He says the new math isn't new at all, it's just a clearer presentation of the old math. He feels any adult is able to manage it if he knows the philosophy behind it and takes a patient look at the new approach.

"What happens is a child asks for help, the parent hasn't looked at the work before, and he throws up his hands in horror."

Mr. Bates is director of mathematics with the Toronto board of education.

"It's necessary now for children to grow up with big ideas. Twenty-five years ago we taught a course in arithmetic. Now I think you could call it a course in mathematics. Arithmetic is not good enough.

"What we try to do is develop a balance between the understanding of mathematics and the performance."

He says much of the old is still there, mixed with the new. If they use games to aid understanding and make the work interesting, they also use drill to teach the multiplication table.

Assistant director Olive Fullerton says most teachers will take the time to explain the course or new work to an uncertain parent.

Mr. Bates begins with that exasperating word "sets" to explain the idea behind the new approach.

Things in "sets" in new math do not have to be related objects, as in a set of dishes. The word just means more than one.

"We could say groups, but sets is easier word. Collections, that's a pretty long word. Say piles, anything."

Three sets or groups or piles of two of anything make six.

"If the teacher is doing her job, she has children take things they're interested in, toys, counters, anything, and take them out and play with them in sets.

"It's not good enough to do it on paper."

They also do it backwards, taking sets away from the total to see what division does.

They work with rows and columns, for instance, two rows of three columns of Xs, to look at multiplication and division another way.

At the most sophisticated early stage, they take another look and consider a problem such as how many two to two dogs might each go into three dog houses.

"Then they understand what multiplication and division is."

Miss Fullerton says once the ground work is secure, the next stage may be to teach a method more familiar to adults.

For instance, in division, children are first asked this way: how many times 3 is contained in 36? One answer is 10. That leaves 18, and 6 is contained in 18 twice, with 2 left over. The answer is 12 with 2 left over.

"In about Grade 5 we say, now you understand how to do it. Now we'll teach you a more efficient method."

Then they learn, as most parents did, that 9 goes into the 9 in 36 once with 18 left over, goes into 18 twice with 2 left over. Miss Fullerton says that is a kind of arithmetic shortcut that hasn't the logic of the "contained in" approach which now is taught first to create understanding.

Games used in arithmetic classes upset some parents who consider them frivolous. In fact, they set minds working.

Miss Fullerton says, "A game is designed for a purpose. Parents could learn them and play them with the kids.

"A card game we call Ordo reinforces relationship, division and the identity element."

To play it with a child nine or older, you need to re-mark a deck of cards. You need three cards marked with each number from 1 to 10, two marked with 11 to 17, one one each marked with numbers 18 to 25.

To play the game, put one card face up on the table, and deal five cards to each player. The object is to use all five cards, using each card as only one value, to make the number of the face up card.

Miss Fullerton dealt a 4 face up and a hand that included 17, 18, 1, 6 and 19. One solution is to take 17 from 18 to give you 1, take 6 from 19 to give you 4. Four times 1 is 4.

There can be more than one solution to most hands, and only about three times in 1,000 is there no solution that includes all five cards.

More OMSA Meeting Reports

At a brief business meeting earlier members were re-elected to executive for the OMSA Annual Convention in Toronto May 8 and 9.

Discussed also was OMSA policy of presenting awards to outstanding students in Medical Secretarial Courses in community colleges, with the suggestion that the next presentation at Loyalist College be made by a member of the OMSA.

The next meeting will be held at Trenton Memorial Hospital on March 19th, when Mary Gwindal, obstetrician and gynecologist will be guest speaker.

Successful Living
'Losing' Is 'Winning' For Weight Watchers

By DORIS CLARK

I have been dieting most of my married life. First I would lose, and then put twice the amount back on. Finally I gave the whole thing up as a bad job and just quit looking in the mirror.

I have a bad back and after a spinal fusion, the last word the doctor said was "Don't put on any weight." It wasn't too long after that that the weight was right back on — 228 pounds of it.

How Tim anyone be so stupid? I kept right on eating and lying around because I didn't feel good, until one day at the cottage, my next door neighbor told me to get off my high fat — and come to the next Calorie Counters' meeting with her.

I was scared to death, but the girls in the branch were wonderful to me. In six months I became a Star. I had lost 56 pounds.

The 5 C's are the ones who deserve the credit for every pound I lost. They were cheering me on: the success is rightly theirs. — Slendora (Slender was Leaf, Canadian Calorie Counters.)

Dear Doris: We are foster parents and we disagree on two or three things. For instance, show should a foster child address us?

Also, is it wise to force our religion on our foster child? Should he have to do household chores? — Fostering.

Dear Fostering: Let things come about naturally. Your child will choose how he should address you or ask you about it, as he gets to know you.

About religion — the best way is to encourage some interest by your own personal image. You don't force it.

Let your child see that he is a part of the family — as such you need his help. Probably not a lot, but some. Put across the idea that families pull together.

The important thing is to realize that your foster child has possibly suffered through family break-up. He needs to be understood, and gently helped along the way.

Ann Landers
Daughter's Husband Hurt In-laws Won't See Him

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago, at the age of 17, I told my parents I was going to become engaged to a man they despised. They tried to talk me out of it but my mind was made up. I should tell you that Robert was six years my senior and handicapped. They informed me that if I accepted a ring from him I must move out of the house at once. So I did, and moved in with Robert.

Eleven months later our child was born. We decided to get married three weeks after that by the justice of the peace. I phoned my mother, with whom I had had little contact those several months, and told her about the baby. She said she had heard the news and she and my father would like to see me but Robert was not welcome in their home. He is very kind to me he feels I should take the baby and go see them.

I don't know what to do, Ann. I know my folks are dying to see their first grandchild, but I hate to hurt my husband. Please advise.—Asander In Ohio

Dear Asander: Take the baby and go see them. In time perhaps they will get to know Robert. If you reject this invitation, it might mean a closed door for all time. Don't risk it. Now is the time to build bridges — not burn them.

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding a recent letter about interrupting people who are speaking, you seem to think, Ann, that it makes for a lively conversation when one person can't get a word in edgewise and you say something. Where I was raised that was called "butting in."

When someone butts in on me it means he thinks what he has to say is more important than what I am saying. When this happens I clam up or leave.

It has been my experience that the windbags who interrupt most frequently are the biggest bores. If I have to born in when someone else has the floor in order to say something, I'd just as soon not speak.—Dos Who Waits In Calgary

Dear Dos: I've said it before and I'll say it again. In most spirited conversations, if someone didn't interrupt the speaker he'd probably go on forever. Usually I don't mind being interrupted. When I do mind, I'll say so and refuse to yield the floor. When I interrupt others and they refuse to yield the floor I respect their wishes.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an 18-year-old girl and am writing about a very unusual problem. I have a brother who is seven years older than I but who acts like a ten-year-old.

We each inherited $15,000 from our grandmother about six months ago. The way he acts you'd think it was a million. The first thing he did was buy some golddigger tramp a fur coat and a very expensive piece of jewelry. She dropped out of sight a few weeks later. Yesterday he gave another girl his car because he is going to buy another one for himself. He says this is sort of an engagement present, which is ridiculous. The girl is still married. Last night he informed me that he is running a little low on cash and asked me to lend him $1,000. His ex-girlfriend needs an abortion and he says he is desperate. What should I do?—In A Spot

Dear Spot: He says he's desperate? He's also nuts. Don't lend him any money—unless he needs it for psychiatric treatment. Then I would approve.

Confidential to all readers who wrote to say: "Don't turn off the ignition if the scekers-tor is stuck": My advice was ok for the older models, but cars with power steering are another matter. Turning off the ignition will lock the steering wheel. Better shift into neutral and use the brakes.

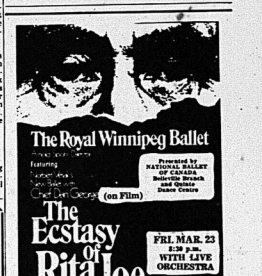
Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONNELL

Must tears go with an apology?

NOT necessarily. A person who delivers a smooth apology can be just as sincere as one who says he is sorry while trying to choke back the tears. It depends on . . . well, it depends on the person himself. If he is truly sorry, the one he is apologizing to will get the message. Sometimes, however, the individual apologizing doesn't believe he is punishing himself enough for what he has done unless he lets the tears flow with his apology.



Does marriage curb dreams of glory?

NO. Oh, being married may settle once and for all a man's fantasy about being able to come to the aid of maidens in distress; or a woman's image of herself as the everlasting belle of the ball. Yet, when it comes to realling a person's fullest potential, nothing does it like marriage. If a man, for instance, visualizes himself as being the finest husband in the world, marriage can make his dream come true.

Are parents proud of their children?

ONLY, in many cases, if they reflect credit upon the parents. At least that is the impression many observers get from such a film as this: "Look at that kid of mine." Pop will say to friends as the youngster, perhaps, receives a foul shot in the school basketball game. "He must get that from his mother's side of the family." If the boy had dropped in the points that won the game, though, guess who will take the credit!.

Kiernans Urges Manitoba To Control All Minerals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Eric Kierans, a former cabinet minister in the federal Liberal government, has urged that Manitoba bring all the province's mineral resources back under effective public ownership and control within 10 years, and set up Crown corporations for basic mining.

He warned that massive give aways of mineral rights to national corporations would mean loss of control over the province's economic destiny.

"It is not wildly imaginative to suggest that the day may not be far distant when Canada's resources will be controlled not by the 10 provinces, but by fewer than 10 giant resource corporations," he said.

Mr. Kierans, who also has been a cabinet minister and president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, makes the recommendations in a 50-page report on a study of natural resources policy made at the request of Manitoba's NDP government.

The report was tabled in the legislature Tuesday.

Premier Ed Schreyer said an interdepartmental committee will be established immediately to study the report, which he hoped would lead to widespread public discussion of resource policy and representations from mining companies in the province.

While the government is not committed to adopt specific recommendations, he said, it is committed to guarantee the people of Manitoba fairer return from the province's natural wealth.

Mr. Kierans, now a professor of economics at McGill University in Montreal, long has maintained that Canadian resource policy in general is producing high profits to corporations and insufficient returns to the Canadian people.

Transportation Called Biggest Urban Problem

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Good Roads Association was told Tuesday that providing transportation is the greatest challenge facing Canada's ever-expanding urban municipalities.

Mayor D. G. Newman of Whitby, Ont., president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said 85 per cent of Canadians are expected to be living in urban centres by 1985. By 2001 the figure is expected to reach 90 per cent.

At the same time, he said, the automobile is expected to be increasingly favored for short-run travel while longer journeys are made by air.

Proliferation of autos "will compound existing problems of pollution, parking, urban sprawl and municipal financing and it will continue to destroy existing neighbourhood configurations."

But Mayor Newman said municipalities face serious difficulties in attempting to cope with transportation needs because of their inflexible tax base.

In the last 10 years, he said, 25 Canadian cities drafted a total of 85 transportation plans but only 10 have been implemented. Most were dropped because the municipality couldn't finance them.

Among suggestions made by Mayor Newman was one that urban municipalities consider acquiring adjacent land areas. As the transportation network develops, then the land would increase in value and could be sold by the municipality to help finance its transit system.

Music Stopped

VINA DEL MAR, Chile (AP) — The annual Vina Del Mar Music Festival was suspended this year because of disturbances between Marxists and anti-Marxists during performances.

Alberta Power Fails

CALGARY (CP) — One of the biggest power disruptions in Alberta's history blacked out most of the province's southern half Tuesday morning, affecting 220,000 people.

Severe icing conditions knocked out three 240,000-volt power lines which serviced a 35,000-square-mile area ranging from Red Deer in the north to Lethbridge in the south.

Rural areas were the first to be affected as one of two side-by-side lines shorted about 4:30 a.m. when the weight of ice forced a ground wire down near Madden, 27 miles northwest of Calgary. While linemen worked to repair the damage, the second line also shorted.

The third line took the full supply and malfunctioned at 8:39 a.m. due to the overload, plunging offices and homes in Calgary and Lethbridge into darkness. Power wasn't restored in Calgary until 30 minutes later and Lethbridge was without electricity for more than two hours.

The power failure struck Calgary during the morning commuter rush hour snarling traffic as signal lights blinked out.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN

To Simplify Your Shopping

NEW SINGLE ITEM PRICING

As of today, Miracle Food Mart is responding to the request of countless consumers by introducing single item pricing for all grocery and household products—all processed and packaged meats such as sausages and cold cuts—and all fruits and vegetables which lend themselves to selling in individual units.

You will no longer need to buy two, three, four or more of an item to get a bargain, when you prefer to buy only one. There will be no need to strain your current budget, overstock your kitchen, or risk spoilage, to take advantage of a "two-for" sale.

Items will now be individually priced so that you can tell immediately the cost of such things as a single grapefruit or a can of cleanser previously sold at a "two-for" price. You will also find it easier to check comparative costs of different brands.

The new pricing will also simplify and expedite checking out, since cashiers need no longer do the necessary arithmetic when you buy only one or two of a previously multiple-priced item. Chances of error are eliminated and you will be able to check sales slips against purchases more easily when you reach home.

When you shop this week at Miracle Food Mart, you will find a real convenience advantage.

Miracle Food Mart hopes that this new move will make shopping faster, more pleasant and more satisfying for you—and I'm sure it will.

U.S. Court May Decide Tire Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations still are being sought on the American application of higher import duties on Michelin tires from Nova Scotia, but the issue "may well have to go to the courts," Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Tuesday.

There has been no response to the Canadian note seeking negotiations and further representations are being made, Mr. Gillespie told Commons questioners. He added:

"We don't want to create the impression that negotiations will be able to effect a solution. We may well have to go to the courts and that may be a long process."

He has said in the past that the Michelin tire company, with or without federal government assistance, may appeal the higher American duty in American courts.

The 6¼ per-cent duty was imposed to counter incentive grants given to Michelin by the federal and Nova Scotia governments for construction of two plants in Nova Scotia.

Peter M. Flanigan, a leading Nixon administration trade official, said a U.S. Senate subcommittee Monday that the U.S. intends to use its full powers to discourage further efforts by Canada and other trading partners to subsidize export industries such as the Michelin tire plants.

Numbers Plan

NEW YORK (CP) — To thwart a multi-million-dollar underworld gambling racket, a city agency is seeking to take over New York's illegal "numbers" business.

The plan to legalize the numbers was announced Monday by the city's Off-Track Betting Corp. (OTB), which now accepts bets on horse and harness racing.

OTB estimates that 1.35 million New Yorkers now are involved in wagering $600 million a year on numbers. It says the profits from the gambling could be plowed back into the city to improve poor neighborhoods, where much of the numbers gambling now takes place.

TTC Passes

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Transit Commission approved a family-pass system Tuesday entitling individuals or family groups to unlimited rides on the transit system for $1 on Sundays and holidays. The pass, effective March 8, may be used by one person or by any family group of no more than five. Present fare is 30 cents for a ticket, or token, or $1 for four.

Ban Flights

SAIGON (Reuter) — The International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) halted all helicopter flights in Vietnam today following three ceasefire shooting attacks during the last 24 hours.

The ban on peacekeeping flights was taken unilaterally by Canadian Maj.-Gen. Donald McAlpine, acting as chairman of the military commission of the four-nation peacekeeping force.

All flights were forbidden from dusk today unless specific safety assurances are received. The ban remains indefinitely.

Reports Late

OTTAWA (CP) — Various government departments have broken the law by failing to produce their annual reports on time, Conservative MP Erik Nielsen (Yukon) charged today.

Mr. Nielsen listed nine departments—defence, energy, mines and resources, external affairs, health, public works, agriculture, communications, environment, and regional expansion.

Cut for March

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board refused Tuesday to give a public hearing to many permission to export the full amount of all it would like to send to the United States. It says the first restriction of oil exports since the controls imposed as export-licensing system two weeks ago.

When the energy board, under chairman R. D. Howland, issued the export permits system, it said Canada's pipelines cannot carry enough oil to serve both the demands of Canadian refineries and skyrocketing U.S. needs.

Mr. Howland, announcing the partial export license, refused at a meeting of the Commons resources committee, emphasized that the rejection is not related to long-term oil needs. It was based only on the carrying capacity of the pipelines and the amounts needed in March by Canadian refineries.

GEORGE MANUEL

MPs to Seek Indian Views

MEMBERS of the Commons Indian affairs committee made it plain Tuesday that they will not approve any changes in the Indian Act until they hear the views of Indian organizations across the country.

The committee made the point in shelving any consideration of a bill by Maurice Foster (L—Algoma) until a committee from the National Indian Brotherhood reports and hear Indians feel about it.

Mr. Foster's bill would lower the voting age in band elections to 18 from 21. It already has obtained second reading—approval in principle—in the Commons.

Brotherhood President George Manuel praised the committee for its stand and said it was a landmark for the Indian affairs committee to insist on hearing from Indians before passing legislation that would greatly affect the way Indians live.

Brotherhood committee, under Harold Cardinal of Alberta, is to consult Indians in every province and within six months propose an entirely new Bill 79 Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

Ban Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation that would prevent anyone involved in the drilling or refining of oil from retailing oil or oil products was introduced in the Commons Tuesday by a New Democratic Party member.

Some oil companies are reported to have taken over direct operation of many of their service stations instead of leasing them to individual operators, said Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) said the purpose of the bill is to "ensure the return of the operating of service stations to the individual proprietor and to prevent further expansion of small business."

The legislation goes to the clerk of a long list of private bills that are seldom acted on by the House.

Schools Closed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Forty schools here remained closed to 17,000 elementary and secondary school students Tuesday as a strike by janitors and office staff continued for the sixth day.

Ralph Derby, director of education here, said that although teachers were still in the schools for non-teaching activities the board decided to close the doors to students for sanitary reasons.

Sharing Hit

TORONTO (CP) —Sharing of building and classroom facilities by the public and separate school systems should be restricted only to top-grade reserves, an Ontario study group reported Tuesday.

The researchers said they could find no evidence to support some public claims that an exchange of facilities would destroy both systems. But they regarded such exchanges as an ineffective use of facilities.

In a separate report, the group said the proposal for a single school to operate both religious and non-denominational schools should be pursued further to determine how it could help in solving the problems of sightseeing accommodation in the province.

It recommended that a committee be established with wide terms of reference to delve deeper into the problem of sharing school facilities brought about by declining enrolments and a provincial-gove ment review on new school construction.

Secret Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — A $300,000 cash contribution was secretly made to President Nixon's election campaign last April, three days after a new campaign finance public disclosure law went into effect, government reports filed here Tuesday showed.

The money came from a Nassau, Bahamas, bank allegedly controlled by Robert Vesco, a New Jersey financier who the Securities and Exchange Commission accused last November of playing a leading role in the alleged looting of $22.4 million from Investors Overseas Services.

Court Can't Return Woman to Reserve

OTTAWA (CP) — Even if the Supreme Court of Canada decides that Indian women who marry white men retain their Indian status, Mrs. Yvonne Bedard cannot return to her home on the Six Nations reserve near Brantford, Ont., the court was told Tuesday.

B. H. Kellock, appearing for the Indian band, said because Mrs. Bedard left the reserve to live with her white husband, she lost the right under Indian custom to return there.

The Toronto lawyer was making the final arguments before the court in an appeal involving the rights of Indian women.

Judgment was reserved and a decision probably won't be known for a few months.

Mrs. Bedard and Mrs. Jeanette Lavell were successful in the Federal Court in regarding their Indian status when that court found that the Indian Act section on status discriminated against women contrary to the Bill of Rights.

The government and all provincial and territorial brotherhoods want that part of the Indian Act restored.

Mr. Kellock told the Supreme Court that while the Indian Act allows Indians who leave reserves to possess property on the reserve, it does not allow them to reside on the reserve.

This was a rule the Indian band, he said.

Earlier the court rejected an argument by Mrs. Bedard's lawyer that Mrs. Bedard became legally ordered off the reserve while white people were given

Inquest Story

Northern Aviation Hazardous

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — In northern aviation almost anything can happen, a coroner's inquest is learning.

Complete systems may become useless, radio beacons can be difficult, and, under some conditions, it can be impossible to determine a plane's location from the air. These are some observations that came from witnesses appearing Tuesday at the inquest into one of the most controversial crashes in Canadian history.

The six-man jury, five pilots and the proprietor of a dog cleaning store, were charged with determining why constable Judith Hill and her two patients, Neemee Nullayok and David Kandyo, died in the Nov. 4 air mercy flight.

Mrs. Nullayok was in premature labor and David, 14, was diagnosed as suffering from acute appendicitis. They were being evacuated from their remote community to a hospital in Yellowknife.

The only survivor was the pilot, 46-year-old Martin Hagwell, who lived in the bush for 32 days in below-zero temperatures. The crippled pilot credited David with saving his life.

Witnesses said Mr. Hartwell's radio was hard to hear on the day of the crash and that was because he might have been expected to depend on such sources inadequate.

But it still isn't known exactly why he crashed into a wooded hill near Great Bear Lake in Mackenzie Mountains, 200 miles off course. The inquest continues.

Pilot John Peacock, on a scheduled flight to Yellowknife aboard a DC-3 owned by Territorial Airways Ltd., followed the route that would have crossed over Mr. Hartwell's flight path as he veered off course. Hindsight, however, was several hours behind.

"We had no problem with the weather," said Mr. Peacock.

"It was a beautiful night with unlimited visibility. It was easy to map-read below the tree line."

His automatic direction finder became useless on the flight but he had alternative means of navigation.

Mr. Hartwell also is believed to have been carrying an automatic direction finder.

The inquest was told many northern navigation problems can be avoided if units of instrument flight rules. Mr. Hartwell filed a flight plan and a provincial-gove ment report on new school c nstruction.

Secret Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — A $300,000 cash contribution was secretly made to President Nixon's election campaign last April, three days after a new campaign finance public disclosure law went into effect, government reports filed here Tuesday showed.

The money came from a Nassau, Bahamas, bank allegedly controlled by Robert Vesco, a New Jersey financier who the Securities and Exchange Commission accused last November of playing a leading role in the alleged looting of $22.4 million from Investors Overseas Services.

The court said it would not be concerned with such internal matters and that they had no bearing on Mrs. Bedard's case.

Privacy Invasion Is Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers Association of Canada says it is time consumers became concerned about the amount and availability of information about them that is getting into data banks.

President Maryon Brechin of Toronto said Tuesday the consumer must demand safeguards to make sure information about them does not get into unauthorized hands.

In an interview in advance of Consumers' Week in Canada, which starts Thursday, Mrs. Brechin said the prospect of information on everything from health to credit being gathered in one bank and available to a number of persons with varying interests "is rather horrifying."

She also said the association wants stronger support for those seeking credit to see the records kept on them by credit bureaus, and for the right to have erroneous information corrected.

Some provinces had moved in the right direction, but only Manitoba had what she called perfect legislation.

She said it was good that medical records are being put into banks so that a new doctor could get background information on a patient by pushing a button, but if insurance companies or government also could get the same information, that would be an invasion of privacy.

Mrs. Brechin said the association wants legislation requiring that credit reporting agencies be licensed; that individuals be informed when a credit report is made; that a credit reporting agency make an individual's file available to him; and that credit reporting agencies correct or delete erroneous information and inform all recipients of the erroneous information of the revision.

The Associated Credit Bureaus of Canada has established a voluntary code of ethics that it says meets the association demands, but the CAC is still concerned because too little action was taken by governmnet at any level, she said.

Manitoba has the best legislation, Quebec and Saskatchewan have some but does not come up to CAC standards and Ontario is expected to bring in a bill this year.

Garbage Not Threat To Planes

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal environment department is studying possible food problems that may be caused by a proposed garbage dump near the planned new Toronto airport at Pickering, Ont., Environment Minister Jack Davis said Tuesday.

It was replying in the Commons to Norman Cafik (L-Ontario), who drew loud heckling from Conservative benches when he asked a series of questions on the topic.

Mr. Cafik said "this is a very important question affecting the people of Pickering and of all Canada." The proposed dump would be around fields that attract birds that would be a menace to air navigation.

Conservative hecklers rejected Mr. Cafik's contention that the issue is an important one. They argued that as parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Marc Lalonde he should not be taking time in the question period from opposition members.

Gunman Tried To Darken City

RIVERTON, Va. (AP) — A gunman, demanding that nearby city be darkened, seized the power station here Tuesday night and held its operator at gunpoint for more than an hour before surrendering.

Police said the man walked into Riverton power station shortly before 9 p.m., pointed a double-barrel shotgun at a Potomac Edison employee and demanded that power be turned off in Front Royal, a city of about 11,700 located 80 miles west of Washington, D.C.

Lyle F. Gibson, 41, of Front Royal, surrendered after police and the FBI surrounded the station. He was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Dilapidated Hut Is Suspected Sniffer's Hangout

Director Explains Board's Stand

When Hastings county director of education, Eric Runacres came here four years ago, he said he would operate in a climate of trust, openness and risk.

He exhibited all three Tuesday night as he was confronted by about 30 parents of Alexandra School pupils about to lose their school.

When the board reluctantly decided to close Queen Alex in June, he said, it was caught between statistics of education guidelines it couldn't squirm out of.

Travelling with the parents, Mr. Runacres said no capital funds would be available for new schools in the county or extensions to existing ones as long as vacant pupil places remained in such facilities.

Declining enrolments have forced the board to close four schools this year, Gilmour, Shannonville, Point Anne and Queen Alex, South Hastings, with about 10,000 pupils now will lose 2,000 students every five years until 1991.

"The ministry of education in Toronto, faced with the need to curb educational spending, has set up new guidelines for boards of education.

"The money allocated for capital works in Ontario last year was $190 million. It will be cut to $50 million this year.

"The capital fund is expended," said Mr. Runacres. "The guidelines permit no new schools. They insist on shared jurisdictions as a means of accommodating pupils."

"Shared jurisdictions" means that public and separate school boards must agree to share schools if one has an overcrowded school and the other has vacancies.

It means sharing of schools in one county with those in another. In Hastings' case it would deal with Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward county schools.

And it means sharing schools in adjacent neighborhoods within the same county by busing pupils, including putting secondary school programs in vacant elementary school classrooms.

These guidelines apply "unless we are willing to waive". Mr. Runacres said.

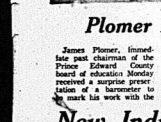
"There is only one way out, he told the parents. The ministry allows boards to close schools over 25 years old. Two schools in the east Belleville area where the pupil vacancies exist are 61 years and Queen Victoria.

"Close those two schools and your enrollment problem is solved until 1976," said Mr. Runacres.

Provincial guidelines came into play again in the decision to close Queen Alex instead of Queen Vic. The province requires five acres lots for elementary schools. Queen Alex has 2.75 acres, but Queen Vic has 5.7.

Although east Belleville has vacancies, schools to the south and west are overcrowded, with about 700 pupils housed in 20 portables.

Because development is pushing out to the suburbs on the periphery of Belleville, a new school is needed in Foster, bore and additions are required at existing schools. The parents' suggestion that pupils from these areas be bused to city school, saving construction costs and filling up empty spaces, was shot down by Mr. Runacres.



"It would cost 10 times as much as busing some children to east end schools," he said.

If Queen Alex were to remain open, vacant spaces in elementary schools would have to be filled with Quinte and Moira secondary school students.

"That kills secondary school programs," said Mr. Runacres.

With the closing of Queen Alex, the board can get capital funds for extensions to the two overcrowded secondary schools.

Mr. Runacres assured the parents and Mayor Robin Jeffrey, who unsuccessfully faced with a delegation from the board through all phases of the past year. He was presented with the lacrosse trophy by present chairman, Clare McFaul of Wellington, who succeeded him last month.

New Industry In Cherry Valley

PICTON — A new industry manufacturing various serums and plasmas from animal blood has located at Cherry Valley in Prince Edward County. Approximately 20 persons will be employed in its operations in 1973.

Prince Edward director of economic development, William Duggan, who announced the industry's arrival on Tuesday said facilities have been constructed at the Cherry Valley plant of Lo-Isle Packers Ltd. He explained that Krutulis Laboratories of Bridgeport, Connecticut have taken "a substantial financial interest" in the newly reorganized company.

Certain pieces of new machinery such as the centrifuges used to separate blood already have been installed. Supplies are being shipped to other parts of Canada and the United States.

Mr. Duggan said two or more additional buildings will be constructed at Cherry Valley this year to house drying and cooling equipment and metal working machinery for the manufacture of breeding cages.

Two buildings also will be erected at a Sophiasburg farm owned by Krutulis Laboratories Ltd. and will be equipped with walk-in freezers, coolers and animal pens. Stanley Krutulis, president of the American company and a director of the Canadian project stated a minimum of seven persons now are working at the Cherry Valley site and approximately a dozen more will be hired for various jobs in 1973.

The blood of sheep, horses and cows is collected from all parts of eastern Canada for use in serums and plasma. Rabbit blood of special interest since rabbit brains and lungs are used in research.

Mr. Krutulis has confirmed that because these organs with the rabbit blood are discarded when the animals are prepared for market it makes economic sense for at least part of his operation to be based at the rabbit slaughter plant.

Mr. Duggan noted the location of the new industry in Prince Edward was deferred last year because of problems with American border authorities over Canadian Veterinary inspection.

Two new companies, Canadian Biologicals Limited and Circle L Rabbit Ranch Supplies Limited have been incorporated to handle offshoots of the new enterprise.

Some of the sheep's blood use in the company's operations will be obtained from local farm herds and owners will be paid. The farm owned by Krutulis Laboratories Ltd. in Sophiasburgh also has facilities for keeping animals as "donors".

Under Police Watch

Shack Said Sniffers' Hangout

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

An abandoned shack, believed used by youngsters for sniffing glue, had been under police surveillance for nearly a week prior to the suffocation death of an east end boy Monday.

Police also had been given the names of several juveniles suspected of inhaling the deadly fumes although the dead boy's, John David Brewster, was not among them.

On the last were several of John's friends, reported to have been sniffing glue earlier in the afternoon with him.

The 13-year-old Herchimer Avenue boy was found in the bathroom of his home with a plastic bag over his head and a tube of contact cement inside. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Belleville General Hospital by Coroner Dr. William Bates.

An autopsy conducted Tuesday morning revealed the cause of death to be asphyxiation brought on by the inhalation of poisonous fumes.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said Tuesday that investigations by the force's youth branch saw no activity in the shack during the three days last week they were watching it. The broken-down hut is located among trees on the North side of Dundas Street east of Herchimer Avenue.

Chief Crosbie also said that unknown individual phoned the station to inform police that the youngsters were all aware they were being watched.

The chief stated there was nothing his men could do to prevent the tragedy.

"Normally if something like this comes to our attention," he said, "we would go to the parents in the hope they would take the necessary medical steps."

But, he added, such action is warranted only when the source of the information is related to the allegation has been confirmed.

"We get tips like this quite often," he said.

The chief expressed hope police John's death would serve as a warning to others.

"It's a sad case, we can only hope that a thing like this will show other young people the danger that's involved," he said.

Also in the problem in dealing with glue sniffing stems from the lack of legislation to control it said Chief Crosbie. Mere possession of glue and bag is not enough to convict a suspected solvent inhaler.

Nowhere in either the Criminal Code Canada or the Juvenile Delinquents Act is the practice mentioned.

Crown attorney John Price said he agrees with the chief of delinquency act referring to a "Crown point of view" is usually quoted when charges are being laid against juveniles for inhaling fumes.

In the case of persons 16 and over, the situation is even more difficult to control.

"Maybe you could bring a charge under the Mental Health Act that calls for a conviction if the person or substance the safety of himself or others," said Mr. Pringle. He noted that this section is usually enforced only in the case of senile persons, or those suffering a debility of the mind.

Stu Meeks:

Board Caught In Middle

"We haven't begun to fight. We're going to keep our school."

Supporters of the retention of Queen Alexandra School appeared to be in accord with the words flung out at a Thursday night's meeting of parents, held in the school auditorium.

It followed a two-hour session at the Belleville county board of education office, when a representative group of about 20 parents met with director of education Eric Runacres, board chairman Mac Smith and superintendent Glen Watson to get detailed reasons for closure of the school.

Parents of Queen Alex pupils have formed the Queen Alexandra Community Action Group, raised $75 and retained an unidentified solicitor to handle their case against closing of the school next June. The group is led by Loyalist College teacher Mike Leslie together with Art Liddle and George Fisher.

Purpose of the meeting was to relay information gathered by the executive since the last gathering Sunday afternoon.

There was much heated discussion, Liddle information until Alderman Stu Meeks took the floor.

Alderman Meeks, who had attended the meeting between the school board and the action group's executive earlier in the week, was asked to be present as a parent, not as a city councillor.

He said he opposed the school's closing, but, "if you looked at it objectively, you'd have to say the board did its best.

"City development is growing faster in the west than in the east," he said. "The board is faced with overcrowding in the west and vacant spaces in schools in the east. The city has fallen down in encouraging development in the east of Belleville."

Ald. Meeks had said earlier at the board office meeting that the action group should make representation to council to urge it to allow development to the east and "fill up those vacant schools."

"The school board was faced with a problem handed to it by the provincial government. It made a decision on what was best for the whole area," he said.

Mr. Pierce said he was in the difficult position of having to explain the board's position.

"They could have come here: they are passing the buck to the committee," he said.

A man in the audience who had been present at the early or board office meeting told the gathering that the board's goal was to better the school facilities in the county and the only way to do it was to close Queen Alex.

"Support the school board in tackling the ministry of education," he urged. "The board is not trying to save money; it's trying to get more money."

Ald. Meeks took the floor to tell his listeners that opponents to closure are jeopardizing the secondary schools in the city.

"If they don't close this school they won't be able to proceed with programs for Moira and Quinte," he said.

About half the number present on Sunday were on hand for Tuesday's night meeting. They decided to meet again next Sunday at 3 p.m. for a further progress report.

Firemen Commended

TRENTON — Trenton Fire Department has received honorable mention in the category of municipalities with a 10,000 to 25,000 population for entries in last October's annual Ontario small fire prevention contest.

In a letter from Ontario fire marshal M. S. Hurst, the department was congratulated on its efforts to curb fire prevention.

"Trenton has an excellent record in this field," he wrote.

Of a total of 150 entries, Trenton placed 27th. The contest is sponsored by the National Fire Protection Association.

Pedestrian Spots Fire

TRENTON — A young woman pedestrian Tuesday night was walking on Henry St. when she spotted smoke coming from a garage at 78 Henry.

Trenton firefighters responded to the 8:40 p.m. call using extinguishers to put out a fire centred in a pile of discarded furniture that was destined for transfer to the town dump.

The residence is occupied by Mrs. L. Chouinard.

Emergency Plan Needs Updating

TRENTON — Volunteers and public officials Tuesday night rallied at Mariposa Secondary School here and heartily endorsed plans to update a nine-year-old measures list for the Quinte area Emergency Measures Organization.

Colonel Angus Duffy, chief co-ordinator for the EMO, at exercise Tuesday's disaster exercise, said in order to remain prepared to any emergency, an up-to-date list of all available facilities, manpower and equipment is necessary.

The exercise, a mock meeting staged at the school prompted a larger response than anticipated. Civic officials, representatives of local police, fire, medical, and public service organizations were joined by communications volunteers, a disaster expert from CFB Trenton, members of the Hastings - Prince Edward Regiment and the St. John Ambulance.

"This exercise was a little more advanced than that of last year," Col. Duffy said. "Tonight we put our officials to commit themselves."

Although an EMO exercise is held only once a year, plans to maintain a complete and updated flow of resources information will soon begin. The flow of statistics will be sent to the Emergency Measures Organization headquarters in Belleville. From there reports will be compiled and circulated to the various volunteer and civic officials involved in maintaining a peacetime disaster plan.

Trenton has one of Ontario's first plans accepted under the emergency plans. A bylaw based on the plan was passed on March 6 of last year.

Col. Duffy says this particular plan was emulated throughout Ontario and used as a basis for establishing a number of other disaster plans in other municipalities.

As part of the Tuesday exercise, a simulated disaster was created on paper. It involved a "minor" crash" of a large passenger jet carrying 100 people into College Street School.

During the lecture and discussion period, a constant flow of prepared reports was being transmitted and received by members of four area citizens' band radio organizations.

Communications in the event of such a disaster are of primary importance. In the case of the mock crash in the town of Trenton, the responsibility of making decisions lies in the lap of the mayor or his duly appointed representative. According to the advice of his department heads and other experts, it is his job to relay orders to the various disaster teams in the field.

Unlike a complete disaster exercise, with ambulances transferring "patients," police directing traffic and the hospital handling supposed injured people, this exercise was primarily designed as a "think-tank" session.

Hardware Store Closes Its Doors

TRENTON — Shortly after noon Monday, Peter Merrett Macmillan closed the doors on a six-year hardware-plumbing business in downtown Trenton.

Macmillan Pro Hardware ceases to exist as a week-long bankrupt operation. Starting this weekend, four student part-time workers will open the doors to curious customers only.

And Hector Macmillan said Monday this weekend operation will only continue until spring. For the time being, the business will concentrate on its plumbing line, with the operation under the management-ship of Eugene Smith, the Macmillans' plumber.

"We supply a lot of plumbers in Trenton," Mrs. Macmillan said as she stood in the unpopulated aisles stocked with hardware items.

The decision to move into full-time plumbing and retire the hardware line came after lengthy deliberation. One of the other factors is Mr. Macmillan's health. Last year, he suffered a heart attack and hasn't been able to devote as much time to the business as he would like.

And with the partial closing of the business after 6 p.m. one of the more colorful of Trenton' residents. Mike Harrison, at 78, a 65-year veteran in the hardware line, has retired for good.

He had planned to retire on March 16 and had given notice to this effect, but the announcement by the bosses today brought his retirement that much closer.

Bellevillians in Last Lineup for Licences

The last lineup for 1973 automobile licence plates began to form before Belleville's licence bureau opened this morning. The early arrivals were indicative of mounting demand this week as today's deadline approached. Yesterday's license manager George Osten reported more than 1,000 licences sold.

So far, some 14,500 new plates have been issued — although it's not easy to estimate exactly how many city-area motorists that are left still unlicensed to drive before time runs out at midnight tonight. After that, it's illegal to drive without new plates.

Bobby Hull Gets 42nd

Crusaders' Position Becoming Precarious

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Crusaders appear to be having problems in taking their lesser rivals seriously in the World Hockey Association.

Cleveland, the Eastern Division leader, lost to third-place New York Raiders, and to Chicago Cougars, Western Division c e l l a r-dwellers, during the weekend.

Tuesday night, the Crusaders went against Ottawa Nationals, the last-place club in the East, and lost again, 3-1.

Winnipeg Jets, on the other hand, made good on their easy rivals with a 5-1 win over Chicago, led by Bobby Hull's 41st and 42nd season goals.

That maintained the Jets' lead in the West, by 11 points over Houston Aeros who edged Alberta Oilers 4-3. In Tuesday's other game, Minnesota Fighting Saints whipped Philadelphia Blazers 3-0.

Cleveland's slump leaves them in a precarious position with only a two-point lead over second-place New England Whalers who now have a game in hand over the Crusaders.

Guy Trottier's 22nd goal of the season broke a 1-1 tie at 0'05 tawa in the third period after Gavin Kirk had given the Nationals an early lead. Joe Hardy scored for the Crusaders who have had Gerry Cheevers in goal during their last two losses.

At Winnipeg, Hull's two goals and two more by Mik Black, left to the Jets' 30th season victory, tops in t h e league. Chris Bordeleau got the other Jets goal while Rosaire Paiement scored for the Cougars.

Houston recorded its fourth season shutout for Minnesota while taking a minor and a misconduct penalty. The minor came with two minutes left in the game when Curran tripped Philadelphia forward Johnny McKenzie in the g o a l crease.

Curran stopped eight shots during the power play to pre serve his shutout, and when the final siren sounded, he raced to centre ice and threw the puck at referee Ron Ego who had handed him the minor penalty.

Ego then assessed Curran the game misconduct and auto matic $50 fine.

Bob MacMillan, Ted Hampson and Bill Young scored against Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent.

At Houston, Alberta jumped to a 4-1 lead in the first two pe r i o d s on goals by Bob McAneeley, Ken Baird, Brian Carlin and Roger Cote.

The Aeros then roared back with third-period goals by Dave Grierson, John Schella, Keke Mortson and Paul Popiel, Grierson's goal scored Houston's first goal in the first period.

Backstrom Connects First Start as Hawk

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks have chased the wolf away from their door, at least for the time being.

Last week, the Hawks were wondering dangerously close to losing their National Hockey League West Division lead. But, after a weekend trade that helped them win another game Tuesday night, Chicago's lead over Philadelphia Flyers has gone back up to nine points.

Centre Ralph Backstrom, acquired in a trade Sunday from Los Angeles Kings, scored his 21st season goal in helping the Hawks to a 5-3 victory over the New Islanders, in Tuesday's only NHL game.

It was the first stop on a seven-game road trip for the Hawks who picked up the 35-year-old Backstrom in exchange for 22-year-old winger Dan Maloney.

"We hated to give up Danny," said Hawks general manager Tommy Ivan. "But we've been looking for a centreman all year and, of course, now our situation is desperate."

The situation became deeper two weeks ago when Stan Mikita, Chicago leading scorer, was sidelined with a broken bone in his left heel which may keep him out another two weeks.

The win over the Islanders, led by Bill White's goal and three assists, was the Hawks' second in a row after they had lost four straight, while the New York expansion club suffered its 22nd defeat of the season, jetting it within one loss of matching the league record set by California Golden Seals in 1970-71.

BACKSTROM

Tonight, the Hawks visit New York Rangers before a weekend of meeting the Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday and Boston in Boston Sunday. After that, they swing to the West Coast for five games.

In other games tonight, Philadelphia visits Detroit Red Wings, St. Louis Blues meet the Penguins in Pittsburgh, California faces North Stars in Minnesota, Los Angeles plays

Two Shutouts in AHL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Braves and Virginia Red Wings both posted 6-0 shutouts Tuesday in American Hockey League action while Nova Scotia Voyageurs kept 15 points ahead of the Braves with a 5-2 win over Richmond Robins.

Dave Reece was a standout for the Braves, stopping 36 shots in blanking Providence Reds while Dave Forbes, with two goals, and Rich Leduc with a goal and two assists, led the point parade.

The other Boston scorers were Dave Gryp, Steve Stirling and Neil Murphy.

At Halifax, the Voyageurs kept their lead in the AHL Eastern Division by firing three third-period shots past Richmond netminder John Garrett.

Left winger Yvon Lambert tallied his 46th goal of the campaign and picked up an assist to break a two-game deadlock in the league scoring race with team-mate Tony Featherstone who scored his 39th of the season which proved to be the winner.

Randy Rota, Peter Sullivan and Dave Gardner were the other Nova Scotia triggermen while Allan MacAdam and Brent Kilabuck answered for the Robins.

Doug Grant was tested only 22 times by Jacksonville Barons at Norfolk as Virginia closed to within five points of second-place Hershey Bears in the Western Division.

Winter Herb Boxer led the wings with two goals while Bill Hogeboam, Brian McCutcheon, Art Stanfield and Rick Newell added the others.

Two netminders found life be-the-pipes somewhat hazardous.

At Halifax, the Voyageurs Ross Butler collided with Garrett and both collapsed on the ice.

Garrett, who was flipped high in the air, returned to his crease but was taken to hospital for observation following the game and was expected to remain there overnight.

Jacksonville coach John Muckler was tossed out of the game early in the first period when the Red Wings scored on a play in which Barons netminder Fern Rivard struck his head on the post.

Rivard was also taken to hospital and Ted Ouimet finished the contest.

Tonight, the Barons travel to Baltimore to meet the Clippers, Springfield Kings are at Hershey and Rochester Americans meet the Nighthawks at New Haven.

Central Hockey War to Skirmish

OTTAWA (CP) — The Central Junior Hockey League's war appeared to have died to a skirmish Tuesday with the announcement that playoffs start Thursday—without two teams suspended earlier in the week.

Pembroke Lumber Kings and Ottawa Rangers, who finished the regular season one-two in the standings, will start a best-of-nine home-and-home series for the playoff championship here Thursday.

The second game will be played in Ottawa Sunday, the third here Thursday, March 6, and the fourth in Pembroke Sunday, March 11. Schedule for the remaining five games has not been announced.

Brockville Braves and Smiths Falls Bears, third- and fourth-place teams, were suspended by the Ottawa District Hockey Association Monday. Earlier, the CJHL itself had assessed each team a $1,000 fine and suspended three coaches.

The action followed a Braves-Bears game last week in which both teams scored on their own nets in an apparent effort to lose and thus avoid finishing in third place and a best-of-seven against powerful Pembroke.

Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president Joe Krycuka Tuesday denied that the CAHA had ordered the suspensions, but he said the ODHA was within its rights to override the league punishment with a harsher penalty if it thought fit.

"If you're not happy with what the league's done, then you should review it and deal with it," he said.

Smiths Falls president Tom McPhee thinks it's a case of railroading.

"We've been unjustly tried and unjustly convicted," he said.

Flyers Alone At Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie goaltender Ernie Miller dominated a 2-1 Flyer win over the Orillia Terriers Tuesday night that gave the Flyers undisputed possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league.

Miller blocked 40 shots as the Flyers were outshot 41-22 and even drew a rare minor penalty from referee Blair Graham for delaying the game by lifting the net off its posts.

The win gave the Flyers a two-point lead over the second-place Terriers. Barrie has four games to play and Orillia two.

In Tuesday's only other game, Owen Sound Downtowners moved into a fifth-place tie by defeating Brantford Forester 7-5.

Broderick To Bruins

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ken Broderick, the Western Hockey League's leading goalie, was traded by San Diego Gulls to the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League Tuesday night, effective at season's end, the Gulls said.

In exchange, the Gulls get three players and cash. The players, a goalie, forward and defenceman, were not named. They will join the Gulls next season.

Broderick, 31, has allowed an average of 2.92 goals a game this season. his third as a professional., he also spent five seasons on the Canadian national team and played in the 1968 Olympics. He played seven games for Minnesota North Stars of the NHL in 1968-69

Quinte and Napanee Qualify for COSSA

TRENTON — Quinte Secondary School of Belleville and Napanee and District Secondary School juniors will represent the Bay of Quinte in the Central Ontario Secondary School Association (COSSA) volleyball championships in Peterborough, Saturday. The teams qualified for COSSA in a Bay of Quinte tournament staged Tuesday at, Trenton High School.

The Quinte girls, with one defeat on their record in getting to the tournament final, had their work cut out for them as they met undefeated Centre Hastings Secondary School. However, Centre Hastings couldn't hold off the determined Belleville team as Quinte won in three games, 15-11 13-15 and 15-5.

A Bay of Quinte ruling stipulates that a team must lose twice before bowing out so the two squads went right back at it to decide the championship and it was Quinte coming out on top, 15-5 7-15 and 15-6.

Quinte got off on the wrong foot as the Tuesday tournament opened, losing to another Belleville entry, Centennial Secondary School, in three games. It was Centennial, 5-15; 15-1 and 15-12. But, Quinte was unbeatable from then on.

Centre Hastings went to work early, disposing of North Addington Secondary School and Centennial, taking each of the matches in straight games. Quinte, meanwhile, defeated NASS in three games and got even with Centennial in the fifth game of the day, winning in straight games.

In the junior action, Napanee topped host Trenton H ath School in their final by scores of 18-16 and 15-8. Leading up to the championship match, Napanee got by Centre Hastings, 15-6; 7-15 and 15-8 and later beat Trenton, 6-15; 15-7 and 15-6.

Trenton opened with a twin straight win over BCI, 15-4 and 15-9 and later losing to Napanee, rebounded for another win in straight games, stopping Centre Hastings by identical 15-8 scores. In the other match played, Centre Hastings won over BCI, 15-9; 15-7.

The COSSA championship Saturday for the AA Quinte and Napanee teams will be played at Peterborough's Thomas A. Stewart Collegiate.

Bayviews Are Upset By Proctor

Bill Harrison scored four goals in the Bayviews' 9-7 upset of Proctor in North Shore Hockey League action Monday night. Harrison also earned two helpers in what was the first game in 25 that the Proctor club has suffered defeat.

Though Proctor led 6-3 at the end of the second period, the Bayview team with the scoring of Gary Thompson, with four, and Steve Dostatter with one goal outdid the Proctor club 6-1 in the third period in the first game of the league's semi-finals.

Goaltenders for Proctor were Tom Lavender and Ralph Irvine with two goals apiece while Larry McKenzie, Roger McCaw and Jerry Ryan each tallied once.

In the other playoff game yesterday, Wellington started scoring and did not relinquish its lead over OPP until the final siren ended the game on a 7-5 scoreboard handout.

Mike Lavender and Rick Rosenthal scored two goals apiece for Wellington while Bob Lavender, Ed Newman, scored singles. Mick Chalmers tallied two for the losing cause of the OPP team while Ron Norton, Bill Walby and Harley Brummell each tallied once.

Lions Caged by Bobcats Belleville Leads Series

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

PETERBOROUGH — The "Tempestuous Tabbies" found the key to the Peterborough Lions Tuesday night, shoved them forcefully into their cage, locked the door, and nearly threw the key away in the first period.

Peter Sovka was the first Bobcat who put his foot in the dolle as he beat defenceman Jake Ayotte at the Lions' blue line, came down the wing and belt goaltender Terry Wasson for the 'Cats initial first period goal.

The 'Cats shut out the Metro Junior "B" pennant winners 3-0 in the first period on their way to a 5-2 victory in their first round playoffs best of seven games series which now stands at 3-2 in the Belleville club's favor. The Bobcats hope to win the deciding fourth game in Belleville on Thursday and finally lock the door on the Lions who victimized the 'Cats for four losses during regular season play.

The Bobcats finally put the game together and seemed on the ice to any observer as they outshot and outskated the club as they have done in all their games with the exception of the third contest of the series in Peterborough in which they suffered a 3-2 loss.

Despite a sore ankle which Rick Meagher suffered on a Jim Richardson shot in the St. Mike's regular season 8-1 victory, the centre appeared to be forever disrupting the Lions' offensive rushes and getting in a few of his own.

Though Meagher scored four assists over the previous four games, he failed to score a goal against goalie Terry Wasson until the third period of last night's fifth series game. Meagher took a pass from Tim Yohn at the Lions' blue line, and with only 'se man back, started his drive down the wing at Wasson who decked out a possible for Meagher, heard the Belleville fan contingent's cheers from a corner position and scored.

Meagher, along with Smrke, who tallied two goals against Wasson, and Robbie Foster have to be singled out as having played outstanding.

heads-up hockey in the Bobcats' cause.

Coach Don Wasson, in an attempt to engage his former top scoring line into gear, shifted winger Evans to his second line alongside centre Jim Kingdon and Craig Brown and filled his slot with winger Dave Clements.

Wasson's shifting of the winger made little difference to the Lions' goal production, but according to Bobcats' coach Moe Hunter it did have some effect on the 'Cats. "It let the Smrke line have a little more freedom," said Hunter. "Though Meagher's line had to play a little tighter."

Both lines, however, produced two goals for the Bobcats as Meagher's winger Paul Lavender, who replaced Ken Holmes on the Kinsmen Civic Arena ice last night, scored Belleville's third first period goal.

Lavender was the recipient of the first real "Bobcat bounce" of the series, as he was at the top of the Lions' blue line when Wasson failed to hold on to a Dave Flesch blast from centre. The shot came from the point and went off the end of my glove behind me," said Wasson in the Lions' glum dressing room, after the game. he (Lavender) was right there."

The goalie, in accounting for the loss, felt that his team had "taf heads. Our heads are too high," said Wasson. "we were the first place finishers 'and had only lost seven games all year."

His father, coach Don Wasson, however, said, "I don't think there are any swelled heads, but he may be closer to it than I am. I wondered whether we played in the same league with the Bobcats," said Wasson, referring to his club's ice time performance.

"Every line that he ('Cats' coach Hunter) played w a s better than any line that we played," said the Lion's coach. "It didn't make any difference what we did. You can't shoot the puck if you don't have it, and we didn't have it."

The Lions did get the puck on two occasions which counted, however, as centre Rick Foster and Jim Kingdon answered Meagher's and Smrke's third and second period goals. Kingdon's goal happened between Moore's legs as he took a pass from defenceman Jake Ayotte who slickhanded the puck from the 'Cats blue line and passed to Doyle at the top of the crease. Doyle got the 19th mark of the third left the Bobcats signers over the ice in the slot as everyone made the lunge to put the stop on the burly defenceman.

The Bobcats, who outshot the Lions 21-23, outmanoeuvred the action over the first two frames, allowing the Lions an 8-7 advantage in the third period. The 'Cats ended the Lions 15-9 in the first frame in which defenceman Dave Flesch tallied on a point shot.

The Belleville club, who will see home ice action Thursday in the sixth game of the playdowns, extracted a measure of revenge from the Lions in their victory in the Kinsmen Arena as the Peterborough team had defeated the 'Cats under the same roof 8-4 in regular season action.

Boston and New York Shine in Peewee Event

QUEBEC (CP) — "We didn't think we were good enough," Louis Valro said Tuesday night, "but when we got here and saw some games . . . we realized that Canadian kids don't have a monopoly on hockey anymore."

Valro had just coached the New York Staters, a group of 11 and 12-year-olds from Brooklyn and the Bronx, to a crushing, 9-1 win over Montreal St.-Leo-Marie Matha and into the AA quarter-finals of the Quebec International Peewee Hockey Tournament.

The Stars, along with the Boston Peewees and the Boston Braves, are threatening to clean up on the honors in the AA section, the top level in the 16th annual tournament here.

The Boston Peewees entered the quarter-finals by clipping Toronto Leaside 5-3. Boston Braves have a chance to make the quarter finals tonight against Toronto Beaver Hall after a win over Toronto Olympic Mount Dennis.

In other Class AA action Tuesday, Quebec Limoilou dumped Ottawa Voyageurs 6-4 and Montreal Elite downed Quebec Centre 5-2.

In Class A play, one Quebec and one Ontario team each advanced to the quarter-finals when we can pass the puck to the open man. That's the way we teach the boys to play and they've taken to it."

The Stars play in the Greater New York Peewee Hockey League, which began just seven years ago with 250 teams of midget age."

"Now we have 600 kids and it's getting bigger all the time."

Stars players get up at 2 a.m. to take the buses to practices at 4 a.m. in the only available rink.

"Three boys out of our league play in the Ontario Hockey Association with Sudbury Wolves and Emile Francis' son plays in our bantam division," Valro said.

"That kid is a real good one, wait until he gets to junior age and size."

One reason for the New York team's success may be attitude.

"Our style recognizes the fact that people are basically lazy and selfish as a starting point.

"We want to build team players and one way you do that is to take a bit of the glory out of it.

"In our league at home we don't keep any statistics on goals, assists or points."

It must work.

The New York team, physically small compared to others here, entered two tournaments in Hyannis, Mass., and Cranston, R.I. earlier this year. They won both.

Chris Barry got his share of cold on the weekend while competing in the annual Canadian Marathon Ski Tour. The 100 mile race between Lachute and Hull, Que., took place in 19-20 degree temperatures.

World Figure Skating

Canadian Entrants Face Stiff Tests Today

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (CP) — With Vancouver's Karen Magnussen leading the women's singles section, members of the Canadian team at the world figure skating championships today try to improve their positions in other events.

In a heavy schedule for the second day of the five-day championship, Canada's dance couples, Barry and Louise Soger of Vancouver and Barbara Berezowski and David Porter of Toronto, face their first trial in the compulsory dance section.

The Canadians are up against tough opposition in last year's world golf medallists, Lumila Pr4homova and Alexander Gorshkov of the Soviet Union.

"We plan to take everything in our stride," said Barry Soger.

"We're here to better our ninth placing at Calgary. To place in the top three and win the bronze medal would be memorable although I think we'd settle for fifth. Anything below that would be a bit disappointing."

In their first world championship, The Toronto pair say they are here for the experience.

"Being realistic, we don't stand a medal chance at all," said 18-year-old Miss Berezowski. "All we hope for is to make a good impression. Then, in years to come, we may be seriously considered in the running."

Following the dance competition, Miss Magnussen and team-mates Cathy Lee Irwin and Cindy Nightingale take to the ice for the second section of the individual event, the compulsory short program.

The 20-year-old Miss Magnussen took the lead in the women's singles with 120.1 points in the compulsory figures section. Janet Lynn of the United States, her best-time in that section, was second with 116.5.

Miss Magnussen was placed first by nine of the ten judges while Miss Lynn got one first-place vote and nine seconds.

Miss Irwin, from Toronto, was 11th and Ottawa's 16-year-old Miss Nightingale placed 15th.

Today's compulsory short skate will indicate whether Karen will go into Thursday's free skate with a real chance of winning the over-all title.

While she held the lead, experts here felt that the American could make up the deficit with her free skating. Karen's objective today was to pull further away from the leaders and to reduce Miss Lynn's chances of overtaking her in the free skating.

The final event today will be the pairs free skating program which will likely be dominated by the powerful Soviet couple, Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitev who won Tuesday's short program.

The Toronto pairs, Sandra Bezic and Martiss Murray and Glenn Moore, placed seventh and ninth respectively in the short program and will have to put on impressive displays in the free skate to close the gap on Rodnina and Zaitev and their team-mates, Ludmilla Smirnova and Alexay Ulanov, who placed second.

"I'm very happy with the way things are going so far," Canadian team manager Charlie Dover said.

Saskatchewan And Manitoba Are Undefeated

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Saskatchewan and Manitoba continue to struggle along in the Canadian women's curling championships with what appears to be a decisive showdown in Thursday's final draw.

Neither rink has had an easy time since round one but remain the only undefeated rinks after four rounds.

Their latest conquests were a 7-4 over Newfoundland and 7-4 over Quebec respectively Tuesday night but they had their troubles with the two eastern clubs which have yet to win.

Ann Bowering's St. John's crew took the last two ends against Saskatchewan and just fell short of tying the game when Vera Perrer of Saskatoon eliminated one of the two Newfoundland counters, then rolled out herself with the final stone.

Joan Ingram of Winnipeg survived erratic shooting in the early ends to hand Quebec a 7-4 setback by picking up seven straight points in four ends.

And Maritimers Sheila McLeod, whose Fredericton rink is the provincial representative for the second straight year, finally ended its winless streak with the most impressive victory curling observers of Canadian championships has seen and women, could recall.

The New Brunswick rink, which learned earlier in the day it would be losing second Arnee Freere for the remainder of the bonspiel because of a death in the family, ran up a 14-0 score on Betty Hodgins of Dartmouth, N.S., after six ends their fellow Maritimers conceded.

The Fredericton rink, which will be allowed a sweeper from the host Charlottetown Curling Club for the remaining five games while lead Isabelle Longhurst handles four stones, leads off in the first of today's three rounds, set for 9:30 a.m. AST, against Quebec's veteran skip, Lorraine Tobin of Montreal.

In other fifth-round matches, Nova Scotia faces Saskatchewan, Manitoba meets Alberta, British Columbia goes against Ontario and Newfoundland meets Prince Edward Island.

The Islanders, represented by Elayne Thomson's rink from Crapaud, lost their first game Tuesday night and dropped into a tie behind the leaders with Ontario's Isabel Munro of Arnprior and Karin Kaese of Nanaimo, B.C., each with three wins and a loss.

Alberta's Betty Cole, upset by Saskatchewan 8-6 in the fourth round, was alone at 2-2. New Brunswick had a 1-3 mark, and Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Quebec were winless.

Today's fifth draw, at 2:30 p.m., has British Columbia vs. Newfoundland, Ontario vs. Quebec, Nova Scotia vs. Alberta, Saskatchewan vs. P.E.I. and Manitoba vs. New Brunswick.

For the 8 p.m. draw, P.E.I. vs. Alberta, Saskatchewan vs. New Brunswick, Newfoundland vs. Ontario, Manitoba vs. Ontario and Nova Scotia vs. British Columbia.

U.S. May Have Had Auto Trade Surplus

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States may have had a surplus in automotive trade with Canada last year, a General Motors executive said Tuesday, after a substantial 1971 deficit under the controversial auto agreement.

Thomas A. Murphy, vice-chairman of GM, told a Senate subcommittee that "after several years of decline" in the U.S. share of North American auto trade under the 1965 agreement, "the trend has reversed."

"Preliminary results for 1972 indicated a favorable U.S. balance in excess of $500 million," Murphy said. While he did not provide total figures, he said production had increased 13-fold since 1964, the year before Canada and the U.S. signed the pact.

Music Festival Keeps Three Halls Humming

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Some call it a competition, others call it a festival but Belleville's Rotary Club calls it the most successful music festival they have sponsored so far.

It began simultaneously in three halls.

This year's festival, which centres Tuesday, drawing hundreds of participants, is the fifth such event sponsored by Rotary.

George Thompson, the festival's executive director, while listening to the final strains of band competitions last night, said it was early to make any prediction, but this would be the best so far.

"We are gathering experience that is paying off in a number of ways," he said. "There are always snags and hitches with an undertaking of this size but the machinery seems to be going well."

While choirs and soloists performed in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, across the lawn at Belleville Collegiate Institute, pianfo competitions were being conducted. Across the city in the most spacious Centennial Secondary School theatre, band competitions were progressing.

While some of the adjudicators wished to make only sweeping statements as to the calibre of the festival after viewing it for only one day, there is a somewhat different point of view as to the competitive element.

Megan Rutledgh, a Canadian singer who carries the district Welsh accent of her homeland, while adjudicating the vocal categories says "of course it's a competition."

At the other end of the question is band adjudicator Robert Hughes, an associate professor at the University of Western Ontario.

Mr. Hughes is the only adjudicator who is not making public a mark for each entry. Rather he uses a rating system on a scale of one to four. One designating a flawless performance and four interesting an average one.

The mark is not as important as the critique and the information available at such a meet, he said.

"A softer competitive aspect is better for festival conditions," said Mr. Hughes.

In the middle cornes pianist Clive Lythgoe. While Mr. Lythgoe recognizes the competeate festival climate, he is demanding is that he looks for that "something a little extra, which is God-given."

"I am looking for sensitivity. I can overlook some mistakes as long as the feeling is there and the entry is using some of his own interpretation to portray what the composer had in mind."

"This sensitivity that I look for, which will denote a winner, can only be developed. It can't be learned," said Mr. Lythgoe.

However their views of the competition aspect differed, each of the adjudicators had little criticism for teaching in the Quinte area and said any errors so far were small and could be easily corrected while the performers are young.

Results of the piano competitions adjudicated by Clive Lythgoe are as follows:

Piano solos (eight years and under): first Linda Angelo, second, Elizabeth McCoy and third Kim Copeland.

Piano solo (nine years and under); first Linda Angelo; second, Tracey Wilson; third, third Tony Karsikas.

Piano solos (12 years and under); first Jennifer Robertson; second Elizabeth Dorner and third Rhonda Smith.

Piano solo (10 years and under); first Lisa Anderson, second Martha Robertson and third Katherine Howes.

In the piano solo open category (no age limit) Lee Strattion placed first, followed by Anne Marie Aquino and Jerry Fostyn in third place.

In piano solos (14 years and under); first Ursula Berger; second, Jennifer Pierce; third was a three-way tie between Robert Bunton, Louise Beninger and Janet Bauer.

In the category, piano solos (18 years and under); first, Alice Dykstra; second, a tie between Sheldon Rose and Joy Ferguson; third, Stephen Bates.

In the piano solo (19 years and under) competitions, Dianna Wiersema was the only competitor and Anne Marie Aquino was the sole competitor in piano solo open competitions.

At Centennial Secondary School, under the adjudication of Robert Hughes of the University of Western Ontario, the following instrumental categories were judged.

Cornet or Trumpet solo (12 years and under); first, Robert Rogers; second, Clinton Bell; third, Stephen Warkentin.

Cornet or trumpet solo (15 years and under); first, Earl Aldrich; second, Robert Rogers; third, Stephen Nelson.

In the French Horn solo, (15 years and under), Cheryl Wilson was the only competitor.

For the cornet or trumpet solo (18 years and under); first, Brian Greenwood; second, Jerry Fostyn, third was a tie between Paul Jones and Stephen Nelson.

In the baritone or euphonium solo (15 years and under) Peter Wilson was the only competitor.

Lloyd Eyre placed first in the baritone category for 18-years and under, Steve Goode placed second and third Don Driver.

In the baritone or euphonium solo class (18 years and under) first place was David England and second was Bruce Burdon.

For the cornet or trumpet solo (open); first was Brian Greenwood; second, Dale Jones and a tie for third between Bob Graham and Paul Jones.

In the cornet or trumpet duo (18 years and under) first place was Bob Graham and George Rymres and second was Jerry Fostyn and Brian Greenwood.

In the evening segment of the Centennial band competitions a slightly different rewnd mark system was used which did not allow places but rather a rating of the performance. Each group was rated on a scale from one to four. One being a flawless performance and four being an average performance.

Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Band Quinte was the sole entrant in cadet band competitions and was rated at two.

In elementary School band competitions St. Andrew's Public School and Prince Charles Elementary School al so rated at two.

In secondary school competitions, playing the overture from the Sound of Music, Quinte Secondary School and Quinte Secondary School rated top. Sydenham Secondary school rated three.

In stage band competition both Quinte and Sydenham rated two.

Mr. Hughes, while not announcing any specific mark for each of the entries desig nated a winner, said in a later comment "a one rating would mean a mark of 95-100, two would be 85-95, three would be 80-85 and four would be 75-80."

Results of the vocal classes, adjudicated by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church are:

Boy's solo (nine years and under) was won by Kyle Reynolds. In the boy's solo (10 years and under) Kevin Reynolds took first spot.

James Lindsay was the only competitor in the category boy's solo (11 years and under).

Eight grade three choirs: first, St. Mary's Roman Catholic School choir second, St. Peter's Roman Catholic School choir.

Queen Alexandra Public School choir won the grade five choir category as well as the grade six choir event.

Georges Vanier Separate School won the grade six choir competition for separate schools.

In the grade four choir: first, Balaam Grove Public School, second, St. Mary's Roman Catholic School; third, Queen Alexandra Public School.

Harry J. Clarke Public School took first place in the grade seven choir and the grade eight choir categories.

For the combined choir of grades one, two and three: first, Cedar Street School; second, Prince of Wales School; third, Holy Name of Mary Public School.

Harry J. Clarke won first place in two grade eight choir categories.

In grade one choir commentions, first, St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Public School; second, Parkdale Public School.

Parkdale Public School was first in grade two choir and grade three choir events.

For grade four choirs: first, Prince of Wales Public School; second, St. Joseph's Roman Catholic School; third, Parkdale Public School.

Prince of Wales placed first in the grade five choir competitions.

For choirs, combined, of grades four and five; first, Massassauga Elementary School; second, College Street School.

Grades five and six combined choir: First, Harry J. Clarke Public School; second, Parkdale Public School.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, MARCH 1

Aries (March 21-April 19): Be willing to meet unusual conditions. There are companions suffering personal conflicts who need your sympathetic ear.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Start new operations, install equipment, change habits, wear new clothes. Think "success" and proceed with diligence.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Check up on what you're getting and what others are doing. You will find a special opportunity is something you've sought far and wide.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): This is a time for thrift in household budgets. An inventory may show you're much better off than you had imagined.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): There is apt to be more outgo than income now. Direct your main efforts to positive enterprises which will bring short-term gains.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Focus on the job at hand. The way you go about today's chances and challenges affects notice, may bring praise and rewards.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your creative, humorous side comes out on top quite naturally. Experimental approaches resolve limitations and problems.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your best days forward—ask for what you've earned, promote personal ventures. Everybody has a good story to tell.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Push for profitable transaction. A buying expedition brings you something you've sought far and wide.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your help and encouragement is much valued, by strangers as well as those who know you well. Travel is indicated as fortunate.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today comes high tide in your business and career morale, initiative energy. Expand according to your plans.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Doing what your intuition tells you, quietly and promptly, brings immediate constructive results. A windfall is promised.

Fibrillation Wasteful Activity

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain atrial fibrillation, what causes it, and what should be done to prevent its getting worse. Why is digoxin given for it?

Fibrillation is a rapid, irregular type of heart action. It is distinguished from a solid, regular beat. You could compare it to any old-fashioned pump. If you just rattle the pump handle back and forth rapidly, you get no energy but you don't pump much water. Rather, a steady pump-pump-pump, with a full stroke each time, is what produces the water.

So with your heart. You want each heart beat to be a solid pumping action. If, instead, the muscle goes into a rapid flutter, little pumping action is produced for the amount of energy expended.

So with your heart. You want each heart beat to be a solid pumping action. If, instead, the heart muscle goes into a rapid flutter, little pumping action is produced for the amount of energy expended.

The "atrial" means this irregularity affects the upper chambers, or auricles. Let this continue uncontrolled, and it can wear out the heart muscle, resulting in congestive heart failure. But generally it can be controlled.

Do not confuse fibrillation with the quite common "extra beat" which can result from too much coffee, tobacco, or other such causes. That's a matter of an occasional double beat or extra beat, but it isn't fibrillation.

Normally the impulse to beat originates in a upper part of the heart called the sinoatrial node. It then spreads to the lower chambers over special fibers. The heart beats in a regular, steady rhythm.

Atrial (or auricular) fibrillation results when the impulses to beat arise from some spot other than normal. It can occur with various types of heart disease—rheumatic fever, coronary heart disease or overactive thyroid disease affecting the heart. Those are the commonest but there are others, and sometimes even the exact cause cannot be pinpointed.

In any event, an electrocardiogram is essential for accurate diagnosis.

Digitalis drugs are used to treat it, most often some form of digoxin. Quinidine again is one.

The digitalis stabilizes the heart rhythm and strengthens the contraction of the heart muscle—it brings on a steady, firm beat instead of that wasteful type of action. (Digitalis is, of course, used for some other types of heart disease also.)

Fibrillation, properly treated, is not a fatal heart problem. People live for years with it—provided, of course, proper medication is used to maintain strong, proper rhythm.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	2♠
Pass	4♠

Opening lead—king of clubs.

There are all kinds of inferences a declarer can draw from the bidding or early play of a hand. For example, consider this deal where South got to four spades on the bidding shown.

West led the king of clubs, everyone following low, and shifted to the queen of hearts. It was on this trick that declarer made the highly unusual move of playing low from dummy and low from his own hand!

As a result, South made the contract. West continued with a heart to the ace and declarer ran two more heart tricks, ending in dummy, discarded a diamond on the king of hearts, and played the ace of diamonds followed by the queen.

When East covered with the king, declarer ruffed, returned to dummy with a trump, discarded a club on the jack of diamonds, and in that way scored his tenth trick. The only tricks he lost were a heart and two clubs.

Certainly South's method of play seems odd, since it appears more natural to win the heart shift at trick two with the ace, draw trumps, and take a diamond finesse.

But declarer adopted this course of play, he would have had reason to regret it. He would have lost a diamond and three clubs for down one.

Actually, declarer's method of play was extremely well-founded. He naturally assumed from the first two plays that West held five A-K-Q of clubs and Q-J of hearts, and that West was therefore highly unlikely to hold the king of diamonds also — in view of his pass as dealer.

So, rather than place his hopes on West's holding a card he could scarcely have, declarer played for that card and so scored a diamond trick — but well-earned — vic-tory.

Tomorrow: A grand slam.
